TELLS OF BUNGALOW LIFE

William Jeffery Explains His Novel Scheme for Rearing His Children.

MAKE THEM INDEPENDENT.

Harlem Liberal Alliance Hears Encouraging Reports from Berkeley Heights Youths.

William Jeffery, formerly of this city but now of Bergeley Heights, addressed the Harlem Liberal Alliance last night, at 100 West 116th street, New York, on "How to live in peace with children." The meeting room was filled to the outermost door. The essence of Mr. Jeffery's teaching is:

"Don't 'butt' in on the children if they will agree not to 'butt' in on you."

Jeffery is the man who built a small bungalow out in his back yard last year for four of his sons and a nephew. The "Independent Five" have been running their own affairs. Mr. Jeffery made a sort of report of progress last night. He said that it was a howling success, although, thank heaven, he and his wife didn't hear the howls. And he was going to add other sons to the independent backyard group as fast as they got old enough to endure the wear and tear of the life in that climate.

"I used to live in Manhattan," went on the speaker. "But I had to move; the landlords got after me too hard. I went to Plainfield, N. J., and that week the rents were raised there. One of my boys was ill. I decided to live out in the open, and that's how I got to Berkeley Heights.

"We liked the land, and I decided to replace the tent with a house. So I built one as I wanted it. Its framework was of hewed oaken beams. We completed it last summer.

"Then one day my wife raised an unsually loud protest about the boys coming into the house, tracking up the carpet, and breaking the furniture. You see, I have six boys and one girl, with a nephew from Brooklyn. He is 19 years old; my boys run down from 15. Four of them are above 8.

"These last-named young persons were the chief offenders, so I decided that there would have to be another bungalow. The question arose as to who was to occupy it. The boys said that they would take it, agreeing not to butt in on my wife and me if we would agree not to butt in on them. And we did that.

"And so we put up a 19 by 24 foot bungalow in the backyard. The four older boys and the nephew took charge of it. Of course, they eat with us, but they take care of their own house. If they don't it gets no care. It's up to them. They may turn the stove upside down; they may stick their heads out of the window. It's their own funeral, and they know it.

"At first I thought that I would inspect their bungalow once a day to see that they kept it clean. I gave that up; there is no more reason why I should inspect them than they should inspect me and my wife.

"This arrangement has been kept up. I like it. My wife likes it. The boys like it. We call it the Pleiades Bungalow out there in the back yard."

Mr. Jeffery then read some testimonials of the Five Independents. The Brooklyn nephew, who had asthma, testified that he had been cured of it. Willie, aged 15, bore witness in writing that he had farmed two acres of land and raised pigeons last year. He had furnished vegetables to the family, and had a bank account of $100.

Charlie, aged 13, testified that he had no trouble waking up in the morning, because if he was inclined to sleep somebody was sure to throw a piece of coal or a water bucket at him. As for worldly goods, he had begun his new life with a hen and a rooster. Now he has thirty-four chickens, feed in stock for them, and money—a little—in his pocket.

Fred, aged 11, who is described by his father as "one averse to work," bore witness that he liked the life in the Pleiades Bungalow, its freedom being very congenial to him. He told no stories of wealth accumulated. His parents will give him a course in forestry.

Richard, aged 9, testified as to his enjoyment of the Sunday night conferences with his parents. He declared that at such times the back yard colony asked their father questions. Sometimes he couldn't answer. Then he went off and asked somebody else, and answered next time.

McGrath—Parsons Case Adjourned.

The case of Thomas McGrath and Joseph Parsons, who had an argument in a lunch wagon Thursday night, during which a revolver was waved by one of the men, was put over until Monday, when called in the city court this morning. Parsons failed to appear and the police were instructed to pick him up.

SETTLED $4,000 SUIT FOR $35, MINUS COSTS

The suit of Thomas Greacen, a wholesale shoe dealer, of New York, against Horace Sherwin, of this city, to recover over $4,000 on a chattel mortgage on Mr. Sherwin's stock, has been abruptly terminated through a settlement on the part of the plaintiff. According to the terms Mr. Greacen agreed to accept $35, without costs, and Mr. Sherwin keeps the shoes. The chattel mortgage has been cancelled, W. S. Angleman was counsel for the defendant, V. W. Nash, Jr., was solicitor.

The original action against Mr. Sherwin was instituted by Mr. Greacen in August of last year, when he attempted to foreclose on a chattel mortgage covering certain stock in the defendant's shoe store. Mr. Coddington, in company with Justice Hezekiah Hand, went to Sherwin's shoe store and tried to close the place of business. Mr. Nash appeared on the scene and took possession, compelling the defendants' counsel to climb out of a back window.

Application was then made before Vice Chancellor Howell for an injunction restraining Mr. Sherwin from doing business. The vice chancellor refused to issue the injunction only as it applied to eighty pairs of shoes, and Mr. Sherwin continued to do business. Counsel for the defendant agreed to let Mr. Greacen have the shoes in question, not disputing his claim to them, but other stock was purchased and the store remained open.

The case was to have been heard on Wednesday last before Vice Chancellor Howell at Newark, but on Tuesday the settlement was effected, Mr. Greacen agreeing to accept $35 offered by the solicitor, and permitting Mr. Sherwin to retain the eighty pairs of shoes.

JUNIOR AUXILLIARY HOLDS SESSION AT ST. STEPHEN'S

Children of many chapters of the Junior Auxiliary, a generad society of the Episcopal Church, met at St. Stephen's church, this afternoon, the session being attended by delegates from the societies of the most important parishes between Somerville and Elizabeth. There was a short devotional service at the church, in charge of Rev. Arthur Searing Peck, the rector, and addresses on the scope of the work in the mission fields by Deaconess Grant, of the Hawaiian Islands and Archdeacon Claiborne, of the Tennessee Mountain district.

The meeting was arranged by Miss Harriet Townsend, of Elizabeth, who is in supervision of the work of the Junior Auxiliary in the New Jersey diocese. Following the service in the church, there was an informal reception at the parish house, where many took advantage of the opportunity offered to talk informally of the work with the two speakers.

Among the branches of the auxiliary represented was a large delegation from the workers at Holy Cross church.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT FAITH CHAPEL CONCLUDED.

The revival meetings which have been in progress at Faith chapel during the past two weeks, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, assisted by Rev. L. J. Westfall, of Bethany Baptist church, Wilmington, Del., came to a close last night. There was an unusually large congregation present and all enjoyed the earnest discourse by Mr. Westfall, who, during his stay here, has made many friends.

The services have resulted in a deep spiritual awakening not only among the members of the chapel, but on the part of many who have been attracted to the meetings. A number have signified a desire to lead a Christian life, and others who had backslided have been revived.

Salvationists' Program.

Major and Mrs. L. M. Simonson, of Newark, will conduct the camp meeting tonight at 8 o'clock, tomorrow morning at 11, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30, and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street. Next Tuesday night Colonel E. J. Parker, of New York, will give an illustrated "Travel Talk" entitled "From Niagara to the Sea, or a Trip Down the St. Lawrence." Over 100 stereopticon views and motion pictures will be shown. All are cordially invited.

A False Alarm.

Smoke issuing from the smokehouse belonging to Fred Endress and located back of his store led a man to believe at 8:30 last night that a fire was in progress. He shouted to Patrolman McDonald to turn in an alarm and the cop pulled box 12. The cause was learned as soon as the department arrived.

REVEALS HIS IDENTITY

Young Man Arrested for Forgery Makes Confession to Chief Kiely.

HIS REAL NAME IS MC GINESS.

Worked With a Pal and Fleeced Banks In Several Cities—Secured Large Amount of Money In All.

Confronted with sufficient evidence to convince him that further silence would be useless, William Browning, the young man arrested for passing two forged checks on the First National Bank, made a complete confession at police headquarters last night. He announced to Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant John Flynn that his real name is Frank, or "Kid" McGinness, a crook well known to the New York authorities and who has served time in the Elmira Reformatory. Further information which he gave relating to his operations confirms the impression first gained that his arrest is one of the most important the local police have made in a long time.

McGinness stated to the two officers that he and a pal he knew as "Jack Jordan" and who he met in New York two weeks ago, had been fleecing banks almost daily until their operations were stopped in Plainfield. He declared that the scheme originated with "Jordan" and that they had secured money from ten banking houses in New York, the Girard Avenue Title and Trust Company, of Philadelphia; one bank in Camden, one in Passaic and the one in Plainfield. When questioned as to the total amount he had helped to secure, McGinness smiled broadly and replied:

"Well, we did pretty nicely."

Chief Kiely believes that the forgeries yielded them a sum well up in the thousands as all the checks he has gotten hold of are made out around the hundred dollar mark. The first payment made by the First National Bank here was $95 and the second $100, the latter amount having been returned.

The most important factor in the plan adopted to get the prisoner to talk was a remark by Chief Kiely just before the confession came. McGinness was woked up to an angry mood by bringing in different people who claimed to remember seeing him at various places. His face was somewhat familiar to the chief and finally in all good faith he remarked to the forger that he certainly had met him previously but when he could not recall.

"Yes, you have seen me before," was the surprising answer that came back. "It was in Jefferson Market police court, New York, five years ago;" and then McGinness went on to relate the circumstances and even told the police head who was with him at the time. The information was enough to start the ball rolling and bit by bit the chief and Detective-Sergeant Flynn got all the facts they wanted. From McGinness' description they are positive they know who the so-called "Jordan" is and it may be only a matter of time when he will also be landed in jail.

In course of his opening up, McGinness stated that the police version of how the second attempt on the Plainfield bank had led to his capture, was correct to the dot. When James Casey, the messenger, had been induced to go to the First National to cash the check, "Jordan" was supposed to trail him. The boy secured the money but on the way back stepped into Warnock's bakery to get some rolls for his mother. "Jordan's" attention had been distracted just at that moment and he failed to notice where the messenger had gone. He made a hurried search and hung about the vicinity for some time but it happened to be an unusually long while before the boy was waited on and he finally concluded that something was wrong. "Jordan" then hurried back to McGinness to give the alarm, both leaving the vicinity of Third and New streets where Casey was instructed to return with the money.

After going a few blocks the pair concluded that the boy's disappearance might have been unintentional and they decided to go back. Casey had returned in the meantime and not finding anyone about, went home to tell his people what had happened. He was explaining the matter to them when he glanced out of the window and saw "Jordan" and McGinness standing on the corner and talking excitedly. John Casey, Jr., believed that something was wrong and a resolve on his part to telephone the bank people is what led to the arrest of McGinness.

The prisoner declared that Lawyer A. A. Stein, of Elizabeth, would act as his counsel but if he has gotten any word to him the police have no knowledge of it. It may be that he knows the lawyer and will call him as soon as he is taken to the county jail.

H. K. THAW NOT GUILTY BECAUSE OF INSANITY

"Not guilty on the ground of insanity." Such is the verdict in the second trial of the famous case of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, a great architect. The crime took place on the Madison Square Roof Garden in 1906 and on the first trial the jury disagreed.

As a result of the second trial, which ended at 11:35 yesterday morning, after four weeks' work, the jury filed out and remained for over twenty-four hours, returning at 12:50 this afternoon with the verdict of not guilty because he was insane.

Justice Dowling committed the prisoner to Matteawan, but his brilliant counsel, Martin W. Littleton, obtained a stay of judgment until 3 o'clock this afternoon, when he will endeavor to show that Thaw is not now insane.

TWO SOLOISTS TO SING AT Y. M. C. A. ORCHESTRA CONCERT

Miss Orrel L. Wrench, soprano, and Philip V. Van Arsdale, bass, will be the soloists at the twenty-sixth concert of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra to be held in the association auditorium Monday night. De Witt Frazee will render a cornet solo. The complete program for the concert follows:

March, "The Crater," (Lincoln); overture, "Stradella," (von Flotow); soprano solo, "My Heart to Hear Thy Voice," (Saint-Saens), Miss Wrench; cornet solo, "Seaflower Polka," (von Tilzer), De Witt Frazee; bass solo, "Down in the Deep," "Let Me Sleep, When I Die," (Petrie), Philip V. Van Arsdale; selection from Lucrezia Borgia, (Donizetti); Japanese Intermezzo, "Nippono," (Lincoln); concert valse, "Enchantress," (Blanke); soprano solo, "Open Thou, My Love," "Thy Blue Eyes," (Massenet), Miss Wrench; (a) Gavotte, "Prince Charming," (Losey); (b) characteristic, "Musette," (Nell Moret); tone picture, "Forge in the Forest," (Michaelis), Synopsis: At Night, Daybreak, Cuckoo, Cricket, Lark, Quail, By the Brook, Clock Strikes Five, Prayer, At Work in the Forge; march, "Seeing Paris," (Mougeot).

"Beauty," Trick Dog, Dead.

"Beauty," one of the three fox terriers belonging to William Briggs, who was to exhibit them at the Y. M. C. A. circus, died suddenly yesterday afternoon. Dr. Pocock said death was caused by apoplexy, brought on by over-exercise. The animal was four years old and was the mother of "Trix" and "Sport," the two other canine performers in the act. The dogs had a rehearsal of their act at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday and "Beauty" seemed in good health at the time. Because of "Beauty's" death, the dogs will not take part in the circus. "Beauty" had unusual ability for tricks and was known as remarkably clever trick dog to many Plainfielders. It has appeared, with the other two, time after time before local audiences, and took part in the Y. M. C. A. circus held last year.

Council to Meet Monday Night.

The February meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday night when several matters of importance will be discussed, including the proposed electric light contract, concerning which the members propose to grant a public hearing two weeks later. The fire committee is also likely to make a report on the question of salaries for the firemen, which was held up at the last meeting. Application for licenses will also be presented at this meeting.

Mission Band's Annual Meeting.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will hold its eleventh annual meeting Friday afternoon, February 7. There will be election of officers and Mrs. J. C. Allen, secretary of the Women's Board of Domestic Missions, an interesting speaker, will talk to the band. The mite boxes for the year will be returned and the contents counted.

Funeral of George Bird.

The funeral of George Bird was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. E. Waldron, of East Fifth street. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. Chambliss assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and was followed by burial in the Methodist cemetery.

Change in Fire Alarm Responses.

Chief Doane announced today that a new answering card would go into effect at fire headquarters at once. Hereafter the hook-and-ladder truck will respond to alarms from boxes 48 and 49, but will no longer answer box 89.

To Address M. A. C.

Royal Cortezzoy, who will lecture at the Casino Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club, is the art editor and critic of the New York Tribune. His subject will be "Titian and Tintoretto."

PROBABLY FATALLY HURT

MYSTERY AS TO THE ACCIDENT.

Supposed That Horse Ran Away and That His Injuries Resulted From Carriage Upsetting.

John Goodwin, a local hackman, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital at 3 o'clock this morning suffering from concussion of brain and the physicians in charge are of the opinion that the injuries will prove fatal. Goodwin has not regained consciousness since he was admitted to the institution.

Just how Goodwin received his injuries is not definitely known. He was employed by John Lynch, of Elizabeth street, and after meeting a train from New York, arriving at the North Avenue station at 1:17, he started for the stables. He was driving a spirited animal and it is the belief that in turning from Central avenue into Elizabeth street, the horse, anxious to get home, got the best of Goodwin and upset the carriage.

John Bundy, a colored man, residing nearby on Elizabeth street, heard the crash and hastened to the corner. There he found Goodwin pinioned beneath the carriage and in an unconscious condition. He immediately notified Mr. Lynch, who in turn summoned the police. The patrol wagon responded and the injured man was taken to the hospital. An examination by the physician on duty showed that he was suffering from concussion of the brain.

As far as can be learned Peter Seader was the last man Goodwin talked with. The two hackmen were conversing at the North Avenue station prior to going home for the night. Mr. Seader says that when Goodwin left the station he was alone, not having picked up a passenger from the early morning train. The horse was slightly injured in the fall, and $10 will cover the damage to the carriage. Goodwin has been employed by Mr. Lynch three years and the latter speaks well of him as a man of steady habits.

DEATH OF JACOB SCHLICK.

Well Known West End Resident Passed Away At His Home This Morning.

Following an illness that had affected him for a year or more, Jacob Schlick, a well known resident of the West End and prominent in German society circles, died this morning at his home on West Third street. He suffered from a complaint that kept him in poor health but which only recently became serious. He went to Muhlenberg Hospital for an operation two weeks ago but it could not be performed and he was taken back home.

Mr. Schlick was forty-five years old and for twenty years had conducted a shoe store and repair shop on South Second street, opposite Muhlenberg place, coming to Plainfield from New York. He was a member of the Gesang and Turn Verein and other organizations and enjoyed a wide friendship in the city and borough. He married Miss Edith Gulick, who with six children, survives him. He is also survived by his father and a brother, Andrew Schlick, who reside on West Third street.

The funeral will be held at his late home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

GETS OFF WITH FIVE MONTHS.

Jacob Flomerfelt Pleads Guilty to Assault and Battery.

Judge Schenck at Somerville yesterday sentenced Jacob Flomerfelt to five months in the county jail on a plea of guilty to assault and battery.

He was twice tried on an indictment for manslaughter in having caused the death of his brother-in-law, Constable Frank D. Cramer, which followed a fight on December 15, 1904, but in both cases the jury disagreed.

The sale will continue daily—10 a. m. and 2 p. m.—until the entire stock is disposed of.

Offered Installation Prayer.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, offered the prayer at the installation of Rev. C. N. Thomas as pastor of the Congregational church, River Edge, N. J., last night.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR MRS. FRENCH'S FUNERAL

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah J. French, widow of Phineas M. French, who died at her home on Somerset street, yesterday afternoon, will be held at the residence Monday afternoon at 2:30. It will be conducted by Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, of which she was a prominent and active member and of which her late husband was one of the founders and a trustee until his death. She had been ill about a month with heart trouble and complications.

Mrs. French, who was born in Montclair, August 10, 1836, was a daughter of Samuel Lees, who came from his ancestral home, the "Hill-Top," in Saddleworth, Yorkshire, England, and established the print works at Bloomfield, New Jersey, seventy-five years ago. Her maternal grandfather was James Wilde, Sr., who lived at "The Roses," Saddleworth, Yorkshire, England, and who was also the great-grandfather of Rev. Dr. James M. Bulkley, of Morristown, New Jersey.

She was married to Phineas M. French on February 12, 1862. Their children are Harriet Anna French, William Albert French, of St. Paul, Minn.; Harrington Robley French (deceased), Elston Marsh French, of this city, and David Herbert French, of Graham, Texas.

VANDERHOOF GETS HORSE AFTER LONG LEGAL FIGHT

After a good deal of complicated procedure, involving two mortgages, a suit in replevin, a search warrant and an attachment, Edward Vanderhoof of Highland avenue, has finally secured legal possession of a brown horse he bought last June and Judge Schenck awarded him a verdict of $130 damages in the Somerset County Circuit Court yesterday for the value and detention of the animal since the purchase. V. W. Nash, Jr., was the attorney for Vanderhoof and secured his verdict yesterday afternoon after a two days' hearing. The suit was against Richard Baldwin, of the borough, who claimed a right to the horse on two mortgages he held upon the animal through the Elizabeth Building and Loan Company. Baldwin was represented by Francis J. Blatz, attorney of record, and Horace G. Coddington and Edward P. Johnson, two Somerville lawyers. The Judge's decision was after the plaintiff's attorney had showed that the mortgages were not recorded, that no personal notice of them had been given the owner of the animal at the time it was purchased in June, and that the animal was bought in good faith as free of any such claims.

Vanderhooof bought the horse from Mrs. Florence Drake, wife of Charles Drake, of Harrison street, last June, paying $70 for the animal. The purchaser knew nothing about the mortgages when the deal was made. The first night of possession, the animal was taken from the barn of Vanderhoof and was later recovered by Constable John Manley on a search warrant. Baldwin, who holds the mortgages, was the man who had the horse in his possession, and it was unharnessed from a load of bricks he was carting along Hillside avenue and led back to Vanderhoof's barn.

Vanderhoof immediately went to law about the seizure, claiming that he had bought the animal and paid for it. He immediately secured a writ of replevin from the Somerset County Circuit Court, demanding the horse. Sheriff Cooper was served with a notice of the claim of ownership by Baldwin demanding that the horse be left with him, and this was done. The matter was then brought into the courts.

Tea for Mrs. W. H. Daggert.

An informal tea for a few friends was given by Mrs. William H. Murray, of Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Walton H. Daggert, until recently of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Daggert was Miss Eva Porter, daughter of General Fitz John Porter, and at one time she was a pupil of Miss Kenyon at the Seminary. Her visit here suggested the idea of giving some of her friends an opportunity to meet her, and the occasion was a delightful one.

A Kindly Act.

Some forty or fifty unemployed men who have been given temporary work by the city and who have been levelling Midway avenue to grade are sounding the praises of Mrs. Adams, of Johnson avenue. She has taken it upon herself to prepare hot coffee for them every day and when the noon hour arrives the beverage is in waiting. The expense has been borne entirely by Mrs. Adams but she has been more than repaid by the appreciation the men have expressed.

M'GRAW FOR CONGRESS

Morris County Man Appears to be Likely Successor of Charles N. Fowler.

LEADERS FAVORABLE TO HIM.

No Authority For Use of Senator Ackerman's Name in Connection With Possible Candidates for Nomination.

Provided he will allow his name to be used in that connection, it is said to be quite certain at this stage of the political game in the Fifth Congressional district that John H. McGraw, the wealthy publisher and editor, will be the Republican nominee to succeed Charles Newell Fowler, who is now rounding out his seventh term, Union county's leaders, who had many misgivings when Fowler wanted to be returned in 1906, now confess that in their opinion he would lose this section and would probably bring defeat in the district were he allowed to run for an eighth term. Although normally Republican by more than 5,000, the Fifth district sent Mr. Fowler back to Washington with a majority of but 552 over James E. Martine, a radical Democrat who used as his slogan that the Republican representative had during all his career being an absentee servant of the people.

It is said by his intimate political friends that the contribution of Hamilton F. Kean towards the campaign in Morris county in 1906 is supposed to have given Mr. Fowler a continued lease on his seat at Washington. Morris polled an unexpectedly high majority for Fowler while Union did the landslide act into the Democratic column for his adversary, who even carried Fowler's own home, Elizabeth. This is the argument now being used quietly by the Republican powers that be against any further nominations for Mr. Fowler.

The talk of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman being a candidate for the Congressional honors is branded by his friends here as sheer nonsense and is considered as a gross injustice to him. Mr. Ackerman has not yet said whether he will accept a second term as State Senator, but his friends declare that he has no ambition to go to Washington. It is reliably reported that if the Senator will allow his name to be used again for State Senator he will be tendered an unanimous nomination for a Daily Press reporter has it from the powers that be in Union county that they consider him a worthy successor of Magie, Voorhees, Cross and the other brilliant Jerseymen who have heretofore honored Union as its representatives in the upper house.

Mr. McGraw is solid, it appears with all factions in Union and the argument is used that this section cannot afford to be greedy by asking for title in fee to the nomination. It is expected that "Uncle Dan" Voorhees would favor Mr. McGraw and that there would be no opposition from Warren. The political leaders in Union it is said do not pretend to claim that Mr. Fowler is not a capable man and a worthy representative but they argue that he is not popular and that his last campaign showed that he has lost his powers as a vote getter.

An Active S. S. Class.

The young women, members of Henry Seader's Sunday-school class at Trinity Reformed church, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Sheppard, on Westervelt avenue, last night, for the purpose of forming an organization to nelarge the membership and otherwise promote its welfare. An effort will be made to have the members present every Sunday. Arrangements have been made to hold four social gatherings during the year. These officers were chosen for the coming year: President, Mrs. William Trembath; secretary, Mrs. E. F. Sheppard; treasurer, Mrs. Nettie Huff. The class under the leadership of Mr. Seader is one of the most active in the Sunday-school and the steps taken last night to promote its interest are very promising. The present membership of the class is about fifteen.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

The annual meeting of the Mayors' League of Seashore Cities will be held at Wildwood next Thursday.

Postmaster Edward E. Sutton, of Ocean City, has been appointed to the executive committee of the New Jersey Association of Postmasters.

William Stevens, a negro, who recently shot William Harrison, also a negro, at Woodbury, and then escaped, has surrendered himself to Sheriff Wilson.

Catching his hand in an embossing machine at a metal works in Camden, Thomas Hubbard, of 316 Cole street, lost three fingers. A year ago he lost three fingers of his left hand in a similar manner.

Members of the Atlantic City Church of Christian Scientists have started a crusade to interest visitors by establishing a congregation in a Boardwalk hall. Services will be held in the new church next Sunday morning.

Whirled about by machinery at a licorice works in Camden, George Hutchinson, of 1920 South Seventh street, Camden, was believed to have been dangerously hurt, until Dr. O. W. Saunders found that no bones had been broken.

Improvements costing thousands of dollars, having been completed, employes of shop No. 1 at the East Burlington plant of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company have been notified to report for work Monday.

Charles Foulker, of the Second ward, and Lawrence Doran, of the Seventh ward, Camden, have been appointed game wardens. They succeed Charles Wilbur, who has been appointed a policeman, and William Guthridge, deceased.

Camden City Council last night adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee of five to confer with the Board of Freeholders with the object of establishing a workhouse in which vagrants may be employed.

Unable to hear distinctly because of earmuffs, James Purdy, sixty-two years old, of 707 Fairview street, Camden, was struck by a train and instantly killed yesterday at the Florence street crossing of the Atlantic City Railroad, in Camden.

Announcement was made yesterday of what promises to be the biggest building boom that has come to Burlington in years. A syndicate of Philadelphia capitalists is said to be behind the project, which includes the erection of 100 or more concrete houses in West Burlington.

Protests have been made by property owners in Ocean City against the proposed bridge from Somers Point to Beesley's Point, connecting Cape May and Atlantic counties. There appears to be decided opposition to having the bay thus cut up. A possibility of widening the present trolley bridge sufficiently to permit running autos over it is talked of.

Pleading guilty to bigamy John Gillespie at Mt. Holly yesterday was sentenced to one year in the State prison by Judge Horner. Gillespie and Miss Elizabeth Dietrich, of Riverside, went to the office of Justice of the Peace Stevenson, at Beverly, at midnight, on October 12 last, and routing him out of bed, were married. News of the marriage reached Bethlehem, Pa., where Gillespie's first wife lived. The first wife was Lillian Bishop, of Mt. Holly, who wed Gillespie here in 1888. The two women met and compared notes, and the criminal charge was preferred.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

A comedy drama, "Oak Farm," will be presented in the Reformed church at Three Bridges by local talent Friday and Saturday evenings, February 21 and 22.

Mrs. J. A. Powelson entertained the Ladies' Missionary Society connected with the Presbyterian church at her home at Pluckemin yesterday afternoon.

Miss Helen Hall, of South Branch, has organized a singing class of girls and boys, who meet at her home every Saturday afternoon.

Frank N. Du Mont, of North Branch Depot, has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. David Hartman, of Somerville, for a few days.

Malcolm Thurston, a former resident of Neshanic, died a few days ago at his home in Ambridge, Pa.

Miss Bessie Hall, of South Branch, has returned from a visit to relatives in Newark.

Harry Williams, of North Branch, has returned from a visit to relatives at Valley.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

After spending several weeks at Atlantic City, Mrs. J. J. Bach and daughter, Miss Dorothy Bach, have returned to their home in Mountain avenue, Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Dewey Drake are entertaining Miss Aimee Drake, of Elizabeth, at their home at Union avenue and Prospect place, Beachwood Heights.

The Raritan river at this place is frozen from shore to shore for the first time this winter.

Mrs. John McGarrague, of Lincoln, is spending several days with relatives in Philadelphia.

Mrs. A. S. Phelps, of Union avenue, Bound Brook, is visiting friends in New York.

WESTFIELD.

Westfield and Garwood masons and bricklayers have prerented the bosses with a new scale, increasing their wages from $4.40 to $4.80 per day. No meeting has as yet been held by the employers to consider the matter, but individual employers venture the opinion that the raise of forty cents per day will not be granted.

The home of Eduard Sisserton, Rahway road, Westfield, has been placed under quarantine on account of a case of scarlet fever in the family, Eduard Sisserton being ill with the disease.

The Garwood Board of Education held a meeting last night at the schoolhouse to consider plans for additional school facilities, to be presented by the Building Committee of the Board.

Martin Swayne, of Bound Brook, a hay carter, was so nearly overcome with the cold Thursday night that he had to be assisted from his wagon when he reached here. Both his feet and his hands were frostbitten. His team was stabled in Westfield and he went home by train.

The I. O. S. A., a social organization of Westfield, held its annual dinner at the Hotel Hungary, New York, last night.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The thirty degree rise in temperature of last night spoiled all chances of cutting ice and finished the skating possibilities. The local ice dealers are now beginning to be anxious about the winter's crop and feel that they have lost a chance to cut at least some ice. The pond was coated with an eight inch thickness and plans had been made to begin cutting the first of the week.

By a vote of the congregation at the First Baptist church last Sunday night, the special services of the week-end which marked the week of prayer were continued again this week. A mass meeting for men will again be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow afternoon and the revival meeting of the evening will be preceded by a young people's rally at the church as last week.

Tomorrow is Candlemass Day and the ceremony of blessing the candles for the year will be a part of the morning mass at St. John's church. In the afternoon will come the blessing of throats and this will be continued Monday, when a special mass will be held for St. Blasius Day.

Mrs. J. Edward Dix, of New Market, is entertaining her cousin, Mrs. James J. Head and family, of Freeport, L. I.

The Central Railroad gang has been busied in repairing the fences bordering the railroad tracks.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

There will be a special musical service at the First M. E. church tomorrow night.

"Why Should a Business Man Be a Christian?" will be the subject of the special sermon at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow night by Rev. A. E. Finn, the pastor.

"Jesus and Islam" will be the topic for the special discourse at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring. This will be the third discourse in the course on comparative religions.

Mrs. George W. Randolph, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Little Miss Marjorie Conboy, of the "Wine, Woman and Song" company, which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday afternoon and night, was chosen to impersonate Maude Adams in the first act of "Wine, Woman and Song" owing to her remarkable resemblance to that charming actress, and in her "Peter Pan" costume, Miss Conboy is as near like the great star as "two peas," and her entrance is always greeted with lengthy applause by the many admirers of "Peter Pan." Later in the entertainment Miss Conboy most ably demonstrates her ability as an entertainer, and her singing and dancing at the head of one of the big numbers is one of the pleasing hits of that merry musical extravaganza.

Eddie Foy, the eccentric comedian who never fails to evoke laughter, is to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night, in his latest and grandest success, "The Orchid," which is direct from a six months run at the Herald Square theatre, New York. The piece is described as an English musical entertainment, and is said to be lively, dressy and girly. In Foy's support will be such popular favorites as Flavia Arcaro, Rose Botti, Ada Gordon, Jean Salisbury, Marietta di Dio, George C. Boniface, Jr., William Cameron, Knute Erickson, Roy Atwell, David Bennett and 60 front row chorus belles. La Petite Adelaide, the dancer, is a special added feature.

"A Poor Relation" is the type of play that is perhaps the very best seen on the road. It is comedy pure and sweet, and at the same time amusing and interesting. It teaches a wholesome lesson; it leaves no bad impressions, but rather an abiding pleasure that benefits and inspires and rests those who see and hear it. Few better things will be seen here the coming season. "A Poor Relation" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night.

One of the most promising of the coming attractions at the New Plainfield theatre is Daniel Sully's new play, "The Golden Rule," in which the distinguished actor and comedian is winning the greatest success of his long and brilliant career. It is a comedy-drama in four acts, and for dramatic force, richness of comedy, cleverness of construction and general excellence, is by far the best play Mr. Sully has ever produced. It will be seen here next Saturday afternoon and night.

REV. E. B. SAUNDERS DELIVERS AN IMPRESSIVE DISCOURSE.

Rev. E. B. Saunders, of Ashaway, R. I., corresponding secretary of the Seventh-Day Baptist Missionary Society, occupied the pulpit of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, this morning. His text was from Amos 8: 11, "I will send a famine, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst of water, but of hearing the word of the Lord." The discourse was a strong one and filled with great interest. Mr. Saunders also had charge of the devotional service at the church last night. He came here in the interest of the society which he represents, and before returning to Rhode Island, will also visit some of the churches in the Western Association, which is composed of some twenty churches of the same denomination located in the central and western portions of New York State.

Bound Suicide Identified.

Bayonne, Feb. 1.—The man found dead on Wednesday hanging from a tree in West Thirty-ninth street, this city, with his hands tied behind him, was identified last night as Patrick Kane, thirty-nine years old, single, of 254 Fulton street, New York. His brother, who claimed the body, could give no reason for his committing suicide.

ANOTHER VOTE FOR SCHOOL.

Westfield Board of Education Will Set Date for New Election Tuesday Night.

At the regular meeting of the Westfield Board of Education, to be held in the Washington School Tuesday night next, the question of issuing a second call to the voters to act on a resolution providing for a site for the new school building will be the principal item of business. It is said that the board will decide to again suggest the Washington school grounds as the most available for present needs.

The citizens of the Fourth ward, who succeeded in defeating the plan of the board to place the new building on the Washington grounds at the meeting on Monday night, declare the measure will again be defeated, and that ultimately a new school will be built in the Fourth ward. While there is no disposition on the part of the school authorities to act arbitrarily in the matter, it is expected that a majority of the voters will be found on their side when the question is put to vote. The defeat of the project on Monday night is attributed to the indifference of the voters of the First ward, the majority of whom, not anticipating a contest, did not attend the meeting.

If the requirements of the law are to be met a new school must be erected before the opening of the fall term and this will necessitate immediate action. The question of the site must be definitely settled within the next six weeks.

AMUSEMENTS.

Victor Moore will begin his tenth week in "The Talk of New York" at the Knickerbocker theatre next Monday evening. The success of this talented actor in Mr. Cohan's very interesting play is so marked that he is likely to finish the current season at this playhouse. "The Talk of New York" is one of the greatest hits of the year. Mr. Cohan, the author of this play, has just returned from a trip abroad and is at work on a new piece called "The Man Servant," which he will present at the new Klaw & Erlanger-Cohan & Harris Gaiety theatre, Broadway and 46th street, to open about April first.

When the 400th performance of "Miss Hook of Holland was reached recently in London, Messrs. Paul A. Rubens and Austin Hurgon, composer and author, were congratulated upon the fact that not a line or song had been cut from or added to the original. This same fact is true of the American production made by Charles Frohman. "Miss Hook of Holland," in libretto and score, is just as it was when first put into Mr. Frohman's hands. This record is remarkable when the constant pruning and trimming that is so usual with musical comedies is recalled. "Miss Hook of Holland" is a marvellously complete as well as entertaining person.

At Proctor's Newark theatre during the week of February 3, a program of unusual variety will be offered. The lengthy bill includes Carlyle Moore, Ethelyn Palmer and Co. in a comedy entitled "The Man's the Thing." The reappearance of Julian Rose, the clever Hebrew character; Agnes Scott in a semi-musical sketch, with Horace Wright, a native ..ewarker, whose sweet tenor voice still lingers in our memory. The Ellis troupe star acrobats; Clifford and Burke, two black face comedians, will sing and dance their way into favor; Arthur Whitelaw, "The Irish American," promises a new budget of songs of the Celtic brand of humor; Urlein Ott Brothers and Nicholson are a quartette of the musicians who play various instruments in a pleasing manner; Harlen Brothers, two of England's foremost comedy acrobats; new animated pictures.

When Mr. David Belasco announced his intention of building the Stuyvesant theatre, he stated that he would hold one of his New York theatres open to any independent attraction that might desire to appear there. This was two years ago. The new Stuyvesant was opened October 16 last, and on January 17 an agreement was entered into between Mr. Belasco and Harrison Grey Fiske, by which Mrs. Fiske and Bertha Kalich, under Mr. Fiske's management, will hereafter be presented in the metropolis at the Belasco theatre. The arrangement goes into effect next October, and time will be allotted Mrs. Fiske and Mme. Kalich to February, 1909. The remaining time at the Balasco will be held for Mr. Belasco's own attractions, and the Stuyvesant will be occupied exclusively by Belasco stars and productions. The arrangement is regarded as of great benefit to both managements.

After having played for over a year at the Bijou theatre in a series of Ibsen plays including "Hedda Gabler," "Doll's House," "The Master Builder," all of which had the longest runs ever accorded an Ibsen play, and presenting successfully, for the first time in America, Bracco's comedy "Comtosse Coquette," and lately, Owen Johnson's three act drama "The Comet," Madame Mazimova, the talented Russian actress closes her engagement at this theatre on Saturday evening, February 15, to appear in Philadelphia and Boston. Having contracted for her appearance in those cities over a year ago, her managers, the Messrs. Shubert, are no longer able to postpone her appearance in the above mentioned cities. It is the intention to bring Madame Mazimova back to New York early netx season to a theatre further up Broadway where she will be seen in a new play of a highly emotional character adapted from a foreign source by Mr. Rupert Hughes.

ROAD CONTRACTORS IN LEAGUE, SAY PROBERS.

Trenton, Feb. 1.—The committee appointed last year, under the Robbins resolution in the Legislature, to investigate the increasing cost of stone roads and the desirability of State ownership of quarries, reported to the Governor.

The committee finds that there is reason to believe that there has been a pool among contractors, who have profited at the expense of the counties.

It is urged that in California stone for roads is produced by convict labor at the cost of 20 cents a ton, and sold by the State to the counties at an advance of 10 cents a ton. In New Jersey the counties pay 85 cents a ton for stone.

The recommendations are that the State road commissioner be empowered to purchase stone at a fixed rate and sell to the counties, or that convicts now idle in county jails be put to work crushing stone in State quarries.

It is believed that this would result in a great saving and a corresponding increase in the road work done.

If you are using the kind of coal sold by V. W. Nash, Sr., of Watchung avenue, you are getting the most heat at the least possible expense.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There Is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Plainfield readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. John Driscoll, of 217 Grant avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I made a statement for publication regarding the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills, and said statement still holds good in every particular. If I were to make a single change in it, it would only be to make it stronger, for during the past few years I have known many people to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and have yet to hear of a case in which the remedy failed to do the work it is claimed to do. My own case was a dull aching pain in the small of the back and sides. It clung to me incessantly and hard work seemed to increase it. I was subject also to hard backaches, and spells of dizziness when stooping. I was generally weak and depressed. I tried plasters and used many different remedies without finding relief, and was finally led to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's pharmacy. I began using the remedy, finding, at length, the relief I have described in the testimonial given for publication in 1898."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

We are Going to Outdo Last Week's Efforts at this White Sale this Week and last week's showing wasn't half bad, you'll admit, if you were here—but many new things came in since. These were all added to the list, and nothing has been withdrawn, for we want this to be a WHITE SALE to be remembered.

It's the beginning of a campaign with better merchandise at "little" prices for those who appreciate such—and who don't like to save on their purchasing. Of course we could never do that and give trading stamps, too, they cost 3½ per cent. on every dollar's worth of goods sold—and this business must be conducted with a Conservative Expense, to give you the greatest possible value.

You will decide with us when you see just how we are beginning this year's campaign for more of your patronage. The White sale is just the first step toward it.

This Section is a magazine in every sense of the word, with all the literary and art quality that any monthly could possibly have, and in addition a timeliness that no monthly in the world could possess.

For example, its fashion pages contain the very latest creations secured direct from Paris through the staff of trained specialists maintained at the Herald's Paris headquarters. And because they do not have to be prepared three or six months in advance, as in the case of a monthly, the styles shown are actually up to the minute.

It's the same with every other Herald Magazine feature. Whether it's a real life romance or a political discussion, every article is authoritative, informative, interesting and timely.

Yet you can buy the entire New York Sunday Herald, including the great Magazine Section, the Art and Literary Section, the Comic Section—famous as the home of Little Nemo, Buster Brown and the Tiny Tads—for 5 cents, only one-fifth to one-third the price of a monthly that can't be better.

Order the Herald next Sunday whether you want to take part in the Competition or not.

It's a dividend-paying investment.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Comiskey intends to shift George Davis to third base and play Parent at short, by which arrangement he expects to strengthen his infield. Davis is no stranger to third base.

Randall, the outfielder of the Boston Nationals, who hurt his leg badly at the Polo Grounds last summer, has been sold to the Milwaukee club of the American Association.

Frank Isbell reiterates his decision to stay in Wichita and not play any more big league ball. But he adds that he will feel as badly as ever when the White Sox lose.

Ty Cobb declares he will not sign with the Detroits unless they come to his terms. "I have an offer as coach in a Southern college and another to play with a Chicago semi-professional team, both of which will pay me more than Detroit offers," he says.

T. C. Noyes, president of the Washington club, is in Chicago, and before he leaves here is is believed there will be a hatchet burial between him and Ban Johnson.

Fred Knowles was busy yesterday laying in a supply of training paraphernalia for the New York Nationals, including push ball, medicine ball and bats, balls and base bags. Murphy, the Polo Grounds groundkeeper, will start for Marlin Springs, Tex., today, taking the "props" with him. He will begin at once to get the training grounds in shape. McGraw will join Murphy about the middle of February and will have his young bloods report to him a week or so ahead of the main squad.

Jap Barbeau, formerly of the Clevelands, has invented a new headgear. It is an aluminum helmet covered with a wig, to fit closely and to be worn throughout the game without any inconvenience to the wearer. Instead of looking like a comic opera comedian, Barbeau says the device will have a natural appearance and that the casual spectator will not be able to detect its presence. If necessary a player can have a couple of these hirsute helmets made and have his hair match both of his uniforms.

Although Johnny Kling remarked casually that he would like to play in New York, as many another ball player has done, that does not mean that he is dissatisfied with his present berth.

Garry Herrmann, the baseball weathervane, is jubilant over the receipt of a telegram from H. C. Pulliam that the latter will accept Garry's invitation to be present at the national bowling tournament to be held in Cincinnati next week. But since answering Herrmann's invitation Pulliam has sent out a circular letter to all the National League club presidents which may make the Cincinnati magnate change his present policy of making peace with the president of the old organization. Baseball fans will be glad when the big league teams begin to get into shape, for then there will be no time to pay attention to the schoolboy vaporings of Pulliam, Herrmann or any other baseball promoter.

GOLF.

The next championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association will be held over the links of the Essex County Country Club. This was settled at the annual meeting of the association held Thursday at the residence of Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, 128 East Thirty-sixth street, New York. Although the exact dates were not fixed it is practically settled that the tournament will be held either the last week in May or the first week in June.

Thursday's meeting was probably the best attended in the history of the organization. In addition to the thirty-two voting delegates many other well known women golfers were present. There was a discussion as to the advisability of changing the date of the championship from the spring to the fall. The only objection to the spring was that some of the women had too short a time for practice. On the other hand, a good many are away in the early autumn, consequently it was deemed advisable to let well enough alone.

It is by no means certain that district team matches will be repeated during the coming season. This is a matter which has been left to the discretion of the executive committee, and the latter will be guided entirely in its movements by the amount of general interest displayed.

The advisability of attending the next tri-city contest to be held over Boston way next summer was put to a vote. This unusual procedure was prompted by a recollection of the showing made by the Metropolitan team last spring when it went to Atlantic City short handed. There were those who argued that it would be better to stay at home than to send a team that would not be representative. When the matter was put to a vote the count stood 24 to 8 in favor of sending a team. The women then did more by pledging themselves then and there to stand by the ship. Just how strong the team will be is largely a matter of conjecture at this time, but the hopes of the women were not raised any when they learned that Miss Georgianna Bishop, the Metropolitan champion, and Miss Elsa Hurlbut will not be available. Miss Bishop intends to spend most of the year in the West, while the Morris County girl will sail for Europe in April.

Word was received that the Baltusrol Club would hold a three days tournament for women in the fall, while several other clubs sent assurances of their willingness to have the women make use of their links for one day affairs. The officials urged the delegates to use their efforts toward promoting competitions at home, and all the clubs in the association will be asked to send their handicap lists to Miss Frances C. Griscom, who has charge of the Eastern rating.

The following ticket as presented by the nominating committee was unanimously elected: President, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany; vice president, Mrs. E. P. Sanford; secretary, Miss Marie Harrison; treasurer, Miss M. E. Irving; fifth member of the executive committee, Mrs. W. Fellowes Morgan.

Mrs. Tiffany succeds Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, while Mrs. Sanford, a former president, takes the place vacated by Mrs. Tiffany. Miss Harrison succeeds Miss Hurlbut and Miss Irving takes the place of Mrs. S. F. Lefferts.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew D. Sweeney, of New York, who have been spending a month with Mr. Sweeney's mother on Liberty street, returned home yesterday.

Edward Forrestel, of Eveleth, Minn., is visiting his brothers, James and William H. Forrestel, of this city. It is the first time in twenty-four years that the western man has seen his brothers and his visit is attended with unusual interest.

FOR STRICTER SUNDAYS.

Wanted by a League of Church Workers—Will Let Pastors Ride.

The New Jersey State Sabbath Association was formed at Trenton yesterday afternoon to start a movement for more strict observance of the Sabbath. About 100 prominent clergymen and church workers from all parts of the State attended, and a number of clergymen, including the Rev. Dr. Frederick J. Stanley, General Secretary of the American Sabbath Union, made addresses.

Joseph Haven of Camden introduced a resolution providing that no pastor in the State should receive a minister or speaker who had traveled in a public conveyance on Sunday. This caused considerable discussion, and was finally voted down because of the inconvenience it would cause.

The members of the new organization agreed to do all in their power to prevent the repeal of Sunday observance laws now in effect.

Elizabeth Trade Board Fears Standard Oil Plant Will Prove a Nuisance.

C. H. K. Halsey, president of the Elizabeth Board of Trade, announced yesterday the appointment of two rumored possibilities of the Standard Oil Company establishing a public nuisance at its new plant in Linden Township, and the other a committee to look into the facts and figures arguing in favor of the proposed span between Bayonne and Elizabeth over Newark Bay.

The former committee is composed of Henry H. Isham, chairman; E. D. Milford, E. D. Smith and Judge Whittemore. The committee on the Bayonne bridge is Charles A. Trimble, chairman; Warren R. Dix and James MacMaster.

CHIEF RANGERS GET BADGES FROM I.O.F.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting last night, received six applications and initiated one candidate. Visitors from other courts and a delegation of women from Companion Court, Westfield, were also present.

In the "good and welfare" a surprise was given the Court's past chief rangers. Chief Ranger Henry Hansen announced the purpose and in a brief address referred to their services since the institution of the Court. To each one he presented in the name of the Court, a badge bearing his name and year of service suitably inscribed. Those who received the badges were Past Chief Rangers John Allen, John Bird, Leroy DeCamp, Harry Buzby, Charles F. Jaeger, Francis Whitley, George Weber, Jr., Otto Moor, James M. Smith, Louis J. Feiring and James F. McCarty. The recipients thanked the Court for the badges and a social time followed, including vocal and instrumental music by the women visitors.

An adjournment was then taken to the banquet room, where refreshments were served under the direction of the good and welfare committee. The interest on the part of the members in Court Plainfield have brought it to the front and it is now one of the strongest of the order to be found in the State.

FOR BAN ON CLERGY WHO TRAVEL SUNDAYS.

Fully determined to oppose violations of the Sunday law, the New Jersey Sabbath Observance Association was organized in the State M. E. church, Trenton, Thursday, with the following officers: President, Rev. Samuel R. Price, of Camden; corresponding secretary, Rev. S. H. Hann, of Camden; recording secretary, Rev. P. Y. Schelly, of Phillipsburg.

The object of the association is to encourage a proper observance of the first day of the week, by securing an auxiliary organization in each county, which shall hold meetings, distribute literature on the Sunday question, encourage the enforcement of the Sunday laws and unite the entire State in opposition to the repeal of these laws.

One of the resolutions introduced at the meeting provided that no pastor in the State should receive into his pulpit any minister or speaker who had traveled in a public conveyance on Sunday. The resolution caused much discussion, and was finally voted down, on the ground that it would cause too much inconvenience.

Within its definition of Sunday newspaper suppression, the association takes in the Sunday-printed newspaper, and will make a strong fight to stop that, too. The aim is to have everything closed tight on Sunday, and this day devoted entirely to observance of religion. After the organization Thursday there were a number of short addresses by delegates from other States, who are interested in the work.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Stanley, of New York, declared that the proper way to get a strict observance of Sunday was to discourage the drinking of beer in homes. He referred to some of the districts of Pennsylvania where some of the stanchest Christian church people were used to their Sunday beer at home, and this, he said, was a custom acquired in childhood from their parents. He said that it was natural for these people to drink on Sunday and the proper thing was to discourage it in the parents and the children would not fall into the habit.

NINE MORE AMATEURS TRY FOR THEATRE PRIZES

Amateur numbers again held the boards of the New Plainfield theatre, last night, and as on previous occasions the attendance was on the S. R. O. order. There were nine candidates for the gold pieces and while some of them had a fair degree of talent there were others who should have been given a leather medal for the nerve they displayed in facing the crowd. If the audience had risen in its wrath and did something desperate the jury would certainly have said, "justifiable homicide."

First prize went to the Vroom Brothers, who hail from the borough, and who were about the best thing the amateur nights have produced. One played rag-time ditties on a piano and the other sang. They got a big hand from the crowd. Florenuce Rush, a little lady some four or five years old, got second money for singing the chorus of "San Antonio." Without attempting to blight Florence's prospects for an operatic career it might be said that her size had more to do with bringing her the money than her vocal ability. Third prize was awarded Lloyd Snell, who operated a harmonica and thus saved himself from having to look at the sea of faces in front of him. He extracted a lot of really good music from the instrument and was Wisenheimer enough to know that patriotic airs always get a crowd's enthusiasm. They comprised almost all of his repertoire.

Among the "also rans" were the Chippendale Brothers, who have been seen before and who came on with a new act but didn't get a chance to show it; Charles Southard, roller skating artist (he himself is authority for the statement); Harry Wilson, vocalist, and Chester Carter, who threatened to sing a song but was stopped in time to prevent a stampede toward the stage.

WHO HAS WRITTEN THE BETTER NOVEL?

Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, of America, and Max Pemberton, of England, Find Many Supporters.

New York, Feb. 1.—When the New York Herald paid Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, of America, and Max Pemberton, of England, $5,000 each for two novels fresh from those famous authors' pens and inaugurated the Anglo-American competition, that enterprising newspaper did not, perhaps, realize the full scope of its idea. Yet the second week of the great contest has developed so widespread an interest that it is becoming difficult to keep count of the votes.

From every nook and corner of the land people are sending in votes and criticisms, and every mail goes to increase the pile of envelopes in front of the busy Herald editors.

All classes are watching this contest closely. It has long been a moot question whether tales of homely life as represented by Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman's novel, or stirring stories of adventure, such as those told by Max Pemberton, are most popular in America. Now for the first tome the question is going to be answered.

The New York Herald has provided in this competition all the stimulus necessary to obtain an adequate and emphatic expression of preference from the American public.

It has agreed to pay a big cash bonus to the winning author, and it has offered seven cash prizes every week during the eighteen weeks of the contest for the best criticisms of each instalment. No greater inducements could be given or desired. And the public is responding promptly and vigorously. In fact, the response has been so remarkable that it seems almost as if the entire population were up in arms for one or the other of the competing authors.

A feature of the competition next Sunday will be the publication in the Herald of some of the criticisms sent in. These are said to be extremely interesting, showing just why readers prefer one novel to the other. They have considerable literary significance, and it is probable that more than one novelist will take into serious consideration many of the hints they contain. Certainly these criticisms are valuable as indications of the reader's viewpoint.

Next Sunday's instalments of the stories develop some exciting and impressive situations.

Brooklyn Pastor for Paterson.

The Rev. Philip H. Clifford, pastor of the Fourth Avenue Baptist church, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has accepted the call to become pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, in Paterson. He will preach his first sermon as pastor of the new charge one week from Sunday. The new pastor is thirty-three years old and has a wife and two children. He was ordained from Crozer Seminary, in Philadelphia. For four years he was pastor of the Bridge Street Baptist church, of Bridgeton, N. J. About a year ago he went to Brooklyn.

Opera Carnival for Brunswick.

Many New Brunswick persons are attending daily rehearsals for a carnival of opera to be held there in the opera house four nights next month. There will be 250 local society people in the several acts, which include dances, military scenes, etc. The affair will be given for the benefit of the day nursery.

ROOSEVELT LAUDS FORT

President's Praise of New Jersey's Governor is Considered Significant.

IF WILLIAM H. TAFT ONLY WINS.

Chief Executive Defends National Administration at Dinner at St. Paul's Church in Newark.

President Theodore Roosevelt's quotation from the inaugural address of Governor John Franklin Fort in the message he sent to Congress yesterday has revived the feeling that the Chief Executive of this State is the choice of some on the national Republican leaders for the nomination for Vice President of the United States on a ticket with Secretary of War William H. Taft in first place. In New Jersey the boom for the nomination of the Governor for second place on the Republican ticket of this year was launched several weeks ago. It has been fostered by Mr. Fort's friends and whenever he has appeared in public of late he has been cheered as the running mate to be named to succeed Mr. Roosevelt.

In the parlors of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Newark, last night, more than 100 men, gathered at a banquet in honor of the Governor, a former member of the church, cheered a suggestion that he might be Vice President of the United States. The public appearance of the Governor, following close on the heels of the President's high compliment to him, was occasion for an outpouring of enthusiasm, and his name was coupled with the Vice Presidency in the cheering.

Governor Fort has declined to be drawn into a discussion of the possibility of his name being considered by the next national Republican convention. Secretary of War Taft and the Governor were speakers at a banquet of the Essex County Yale alumni in East Orange last week, and afterward went to Washington together. It has been rumored that in a long conference with the President there Mr. Fort was asked if he would accept if nominated. The Governor declares that anyone who says that the President talked politics or the Vice Presidency with him "lies."

When asked if he would consider the Vice Presidential nomination, the Governor declined absolutely to make any comment.

Here are some pointed sentences spoken by Governor Fort at the dinner last night:

"There is no place for a man on Sunday except in some church or other, in my judgment.

"The influence of the church is needed in every life, be it Christian church or synagogue."

"No man succeeds who is not religiously grounded at bottom."

"I believe firmly that the good people must unite."

"The election of last fall doesn't mean anything if you go to sleep and stand back. If you do not hold up the hands of your Governor and fight on and on you will accomplish nothing."

"If you expect to keep the State where it belongs, if you expect to accomplish anything in the way of legislation, you must keep up the work and not stop because you won last fall."

"You have heard men criticise the present President of the United States because they do not agree with him in some of the things he does. I never have criticised him, I am pleased to say. I do not always agree with him, but I think just as much of him as when I agree with him absolutely. We like the President because he's doing something. I have no use for the fellow who never does anything, never has done anything and who stands for nothing."

More Typhoid In Trenton.

Four new cases of typhoid fever developed in Trenton this week, and there was another death from the disease. The city health authorities believe, however, that the worst of the epidemic is over and that there will be few more deaths. In the menatime the Common Council is considering the report of the Mayor's special typhoid committee relative to the purification of the Delaware River water which the city uses for domestic purposes.

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT OF Y.W.C.A. HAS EXHIBITION

Led through a series of graceful gymnastic drills and marching exercises by Miss Margaret Mosher, their physical director, fifty members of the physical department of the Y. W. C. A. won enthusiastic applause on the occasion of the first exhibition of the department held at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night. The gallery was thronged with visitors, mostly feminine, although a few fond fathers, uncles and "brothers" found their way in by special tickets. The physical culture classes have been held at the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium, recently fitted up, for the past twelve weeks. The program of exercises last night included a basketball game between the Tuesday Evening Class five and the girls' team from the North Plainfield High School. The school girls won by a margin of two points, the score being 12-10.

The first number of the program was a free work and wand drill by twenty-five members of the evening classes. This was led by Miss Mosher and the various movements were executed to music as were the other drills. Miss Florence Wyckoff was at the piano. Eighteen members of the North Plainfield High School next drill, which included some fancing turning steps and fencing poses. The class, clad in white jumpers and short skirts, won lots of applause by their work, which showed conscientious training.

Although the gymnasium class has only been meeting for the past twelve weeks, the preliminary club swinging drill by the Tuesday evening class, twenty-five strong, showed excellent training and much grace. Following this was a dumbell drill by the borough school girls' class and the appearance of seven little girls in addition to this class was greeted with sustained hand-clapping, for the entire class of twenty-five went through the difficult drill without a break. Perhaps the most successful feature of the athletic program was the final number, when the entire class of fifty appeared on the floor and went through a dainty Swedish folk dance to the music of the piano. This dance is adapted from the dances used by the Swedish village people today at their fetes and was especially well performed.

The second part of the evening's program was the basketball game. Teams of five girls each, from the North Plainfield High School and the Tuesday evening class, struggled for supremacy through two fifteen minute halves, the school girls finally winning, 12-10. At the end of the first half, the borough five had the lead 8-4, but th game was close all through the second half. Between the halves there were relay races by junior members of the association classes. The teams lined up as follows: North Plainfield High School—Miss Marjorie Cooley and Miss Annie Daly, forwards; Miss Margery Hart, centre; Miss Ida Englehart and Miss Marjory Ackor, guards. Tuesday Evening Class—Miss Myrtle Fedderman and Miss Hazel Delaney, forwards; Miss Olive Delaney, centre; Miss Elizabeth Becker, Miss Adelaide Partridge and Miss Elsa Van Dusen, guards.

Baskets from the floor: Miss Cooley, 5; Miss Hazel Delany, 3; Miss Myrtle Fedderman, 2. Goals from fouls: Miss Cooley, 2. Referee, Miss Mosher; umpire, Miss Catherine Beebe; scorers, Miss Ernstine Richter and Miss Florence Jennings; timers, Miss Hattie Nischwitz and Miss Sadie Johnson. Fifteen minute halves.

"CRAP GAME" TAKEN UP.

Grand Jury Hears Witnesses, But Not Dr. Freeman.

Witnesses were called before the Grand Jury of Middlesex county at New Brunswick in the famous Metuchen "crap game" of last September, which played an important part in the campaign for Mayor of Metuchen of Dr. Charles M. Freeman, husband of Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, authoress.

Marshal Enos Fouratt, who worked up the case; John McGuinness, the proprietor of the hotel in which the game is alleged to have started; Mr. Tighe and Mrs. Bonham, who saw the game, were called yesterday. The principal witnesses, the negroes, were not on hand.

Dr. Freeman, who has asked to be given an opportunity to tell his side of the case to the Grand Jury, was not on hand yesterday. Freeman is under bonds on a charge that he backed James A. Duane, a contractor, against George Hopkins and John Smith, negroes.

LAWYER WITHHELD MONEYS.

Arrest of Nathan C. Horton, of Orange, Causes Surprise.

On a charge of having embezzled $20,000, Nathan C. Horton, a young lawyer of Orange and a captain of the Fifth Regiment, N. G. N. J., was arrested at his offices, in the Orange National Bank building, at midnight Thursday night. Horton was released under bonds without having been taken to police headquarters. Alfonse Westee, secretary and auditor of the National Phonograph Co., makes the charge.

Horton's arrest is alleged to be due to his failure to account for certain moneys with which he was to have bought land. Horton says he is innocent and will make explanations later.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A large number of friends spent a pleasant evening, Thursday, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George May, where a party was given to celebrate the birthday of their daughter, Miss Flora May. Miss May's friends presented her with many presents. The music was furnished by Arthur Hankerson and James Moore. These were present: Nellie Hannon, Nellie Geary, John Geary, Walton Smith, Ellis Shive, Mabel, Ethel and Raymond Pace, Marion Geary, Elsie Steengrafhe, George Pace, George Germain, Mrs. William Norman and her daughters, Lillian and Grace, Mr. and Mrs. Horn Robin, Edward and Joseph Horn, Lewis, Sadie and Charles Randolph, Miss Verna Allen, Lloyd Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson, Rev. C. W. F. and Mrs. Attlee and their son, Victor.

Services will be held as usual in the Baptist church tomorrow. Rev. C. W. F. Attlee will preach. The morning topic will be "Some Fell On Thorny Ground" and in the evening "Carrying the Treasures to Jerusalem."

The consecration meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church will be held tomorrow night. President Jackson will be the leader. The subject will be "The Heart of Endeavor."

Harry Mundy, of Brooklyn, is staying here with his grandparents for the winter in order that he may enjoy the privileges of our public school.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Skating is fine on Marsh's Lake and the pond is crowded with young people every day.

The baseball team has about completed arrangements for an entertainment in the near future. "Oak Farm," which was given by Franklin Council, of Plainfield, several months ago, will probably be the play selected.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours: Morning preaching at 10:45 by the pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, following the sermon the monthly communion will be held; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15; evening sermon, 3 o'clock.

Miss Jennie Frentz is making her home with her sister, Mrs. Frank Putnam, of Plainfield, during her father's visit with relatives in the South.

The cold weather of the past few days has kept the local plumbers busy thawing out frozen water pipes, which had been neglected.

Mrs. Augusta Miller and daughter, Mrs. George L. Dunn, have returned from a visit with Newark friends.

MOROCCANS USE LOVE CHARMS.

Queer Means Employed by Women to Gain Affection.

Mrs. Mansel-Pleydell writes of the curious charms used by the women of Morocco: "Moorish women resort much to charms to gain lovers or to keep their affections when gained. There is one charm which is seldom known to fail. It consists of shredding a small piece of an undergarment which the man has worn and, after certain incantations have been said over it, of rolling the particles into the shape of a small ball. This is embedded in a larger ball of clay and, after being slightly dampened, it is kept in a pot over the embers of live charcoal. I have been assured that as soon as the heat penetrates the clay the man, whoever he may be, will lay aside whatever work he is doing at the time and fly to the arms of the woman who invokes the charms. As long as the ball is kept warm so long will the heat of love burn in the heart of the lover for that woman. Another spell much resorted to is cast by cutting off the tips of a donkey's ears, cooking them and mixing them in the man's food. He then becomes as foolish as a donkey with love for the charmer who has provided his unsavory repast."

ON THE GROUND OF ECONOMY.

Acceptance of Physician's Offer Was Lesser of Two Evils.

A Chicago medico tells of two physicians in a Wisconsin town, the one elderly, with a long record of cures, the other young, with his record still to make. The older doctor, it appears, was inclined to surrender some of his night work to the younger man. One bitter night in winter the veteran was aroused by two farmers from a hamlet eight miles away, the wife of one of whom was seriously ill. The doctor at once referred them to his young colleague, but they refused the latter's services. "Very well," replied the doctor, thinking to put a convincing argument before them. "In that case my fee is ten dollars, payable now." Whereupon there ensued a remonstrance on the part of the farmers, but the doctor was obdurate. Finally one of the men asked the other: "Well, what do you think I ought to do?" "I think you'd better pay him the ten dollars," said the other. "The funeral would cost you more."—Harper's Weekly.

Untouched Morocco.

Open your atlas at the map of Africa, and there, set like a pearl on the northwest shoulder of the continent, you will see a country called Morocco. It almost touches Europe; at the narrowest part there is but nine miles of strait between it and Spain, so you might think the Moors had become quite civilized in the course of ages through having such cultivated neighbors so near. It is not so, however. And, strange to say, the more they see of western progress, the more they despise it. It is a big country, this Morocco, and explorers have left it alone, for the natives detest Christians, fearing lest they want to take away from them their lovely land, where it is always summer, and where the soil, if just scratched with a crooked stick, responds with a teeming harvest.

A Real Luther Coin.

The collection of coins of a St. Petersburg scholar, says the Berliner Tageblatt, was recently overhauled and a unique Luther coin was discovered. It came originally from Novgorod, where it was found in an old house which was being reconstructed. On one side is the head of Luther, which is also shown when the coin is reversed, but with a fool's cap upon his head. On the reverse side there is a likeness of the pope, which also appears when the coin is reversed, but the head is ornamented on the reverse side with devil horns. The Latin inscription explains that Luther becomes a fool and the pope a devil by reversing the piece. It is believed that there is no similar coin in existence.

Where the Shoe Pinched.

"If they don't quit making that child cry," sighed the flat dweller as his sobs echoed pitifully through the court, "I am going to apply to the board of health and have it stopped. There's a limit to everything." "Why the board of health?" asked her friend. "I should think you would apply to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children." "I am not thinking so much of him," acknowledged the flat dweller contritely, "as I am of my own health. His constant sobbing is getting on my nerves so that I can't sleep."

Cautious Answer.

The caution of the Aberdonian in giving an answer to a direct question was well illustrated the other day, when one was asked: "Was not your father's death very sudden?" Slowly drawing one hand from his pocket and pulling down his beard, the interrogated one cautiously replied: "Aye, it was unco' sudden for him. I ne'er kent o' ma feyther bein' in a hurry before."—Stray Stories.

No Matter About Him.

Mr. Lendout—"Yes, sir, that horse is a beauty. You'll have to hold him in. Our terms are—pay in advance when you hire." Hon. Firstmount—"Haw—are you 'fraid—haw—I shall come back without him—haw?" "No, sir. But he might come back without you!"—Stray Stories.

POEMS WORTH READING.

Mother Magic.

In days of childhood, now long-lapsed and dim,
Often I sat within a holy place
Where mystic word and solemn-rolling hymn
Touched the tranced souls of men to thoughts of Grace.

Too small to comprehend, yet happy there
I lingered, since beside me, close and dear,
Sat the sweet mother with her rippled hair,
Her smile of angels and her color clear.

And she would hold my hand, and so express,
In some deep way, the wonder of the hour;
Our spirits talked, by silent tenderness,
As easily as flower nods to flower.

And to this day, when so I creep alone
Into some sacred corner, list the choir,
Hear some great organ's most melodious moan
And watch the windows flush daylight with fire.

Over me once again those memories steal;
I sit as in a dream, and understand
God's meaning; for, across the years, I feel
The meek, sure magic of the spirit-land.
—Atlantic.

When the Ships Come In.

Well able with fortune's tide to cope,
For stout were her sides and strong her rope
Did any one sight my ship?

Full many a frailer craft came home,
Came back from the leaping hungry foam;
Rode safely in port no more to roam.
Did any one speak my ship?

I've watched and waited the seasons through.
I've asked of many another crew
If any one heard or any one knew
Did any one cry my ship?

The world is flat the ancients said,
The course was long and the course was dread,
And she sailed over the edge instead,
For nobody hailed my ship.

—McLandburgh Wilson, in New York Sun.

Sans Souci.

Although I may drink deep to-day
A stirrup-cup of sorrow,
I'll not debate with flippant fate,
But toast a glad to-morrow.

Then here's a laugh, though I may quaff
The hemlock's poisoned potion:
The only sails untouched by gales
Cruise on a painted ocean.

Away with woe that crouches low
And whines a doleful story;
Travailing night, with dawn's gray light,
Brings forth her child in glory.

The cares that fret when ills beset
Are merely April showers,
That rain on life enough of strife
To beautify its flowers.

There blooms a rose for every rose,
And dewdrops joy in weeping;
For every heart there lives a heart
Somewhere, that love is keeping.
—The Bohemian.

Goodnight to Mother.

Say goodnight to mother, with a kiss for every kiss
That she gives you in the loving of her clasp of mother bliss!
Say goodnight to mother while your arms around her lace
And your little hand is tender with its touch upon her face!
Say goodnight to mother, that in mists of far-on years,
Through shadows of a memory that is infinite with tears,
Her thoughts may wander sweetly and her gentle dreams recall
The little lad of childhood and his goodnight kiss and all!
Say goodnight to mother in the tender childhood way
Before the little feet of weary childhood rest from play!
Say goodnight to mother when she kneels, forgetting care,
With the lips of love that murmur on the lips of childhood prayer!
—Baltimore Sun.

Roadside Flowers.

Have faith! What matters life or death
If lit by universal love?
Pray in your heart for purer breath;
Shall day or night your calmness move?
For you shall have dreams to burst all bars
If you but hold this one law true:
There is no night beneath the stars;
All the shadow is in you!

Love well! Shall shame or glory change
Your course which fate lays here and now;
Your songs of brotherhood which range
Transcendent with all love's high vow?
For you will voice life's glory song
If you but make this truth your own:
There is on earth no fatal wrong;
All defeat is yours alone!
—Transatlantic Tales.

Tuition.

I fell in love with love and learned
A host of wondrous things—
Why spring is sweet, why roses bloom
And why the linnet sings;
Yet though each happy hour I gleaned
Some knowledge glad and new,
I marvelled, as my joys I stored,
That love no wiser grew.

But when the summer's bloom was gone
And autumn's arrogance
Of red and gold lit all the trees,
Love woke from ignorance.
Then he, too, waxed so wise his heart
Solved each frail mystery
And taught him whence his waking came:
Love fell in love with me.
—Charlotte Becker in New York Sun.

The Slight Resented.

My only boy, a lad of nine,
Knelt at my feet, his hand in mine;
With mother-love I tried to teach
How he life's upper heights might reach.

Silent he heard, with down-bent head,
Until to him I gently said,
"Remember, dear, as on you plod,
Man is the noblest work of God."

Lo! with a flash the great blue eyes
Were raised to mine in pained surprise;
And this he said: "Pray, tell me true,
Sweet mother, did not God make you?"

The Cat.

The cat believes that she can sing
Like bobolinks in June;
She sticks to this like anything,
She hankers for a tune;
The lyric joys that in her throng,
She takes them for the gift of song.

I wish that she would put aside
This vanity from her;
I wish she might be satisfied
To purr, and only purr,
Seeking no operatic fame,
Quiet, domestic, void of blame.
—Arthur Colton, in Everybody's.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

Every year about 4,000 rich persons die in the United Kingdom, leaving estates worth £200,000,000.

An inhabitant of Windlesham, Surrey, was recently committed for trial for walking away when called upon by a constable to assist him "in the king's name" in making an arrest.

A member of parliament received a letter from a constituent in which he is asked if the deceased wife's sister act is compulsory. "By that I mean," the writer explains, "if my wife dies, am I forced to marry her sister?"

For the sake of the stranger in London who has no map with him the Holborn town council has had a number of outdoor charts constructed with the places of interest marked. The charts are posted throughout the borough, where they can be consulted easily.

SHORT STORIES.

It is estimated that temperate men live seventeen years longer than drunkards.

The United States owns and maintains a national cemetery at San Cosme, near the City of Mexico.

More than 3,000,000 Japanese matting plants have been recently shipped from California to Texas, Arizona, Indiana and other places.

The United States government and that of Canada are resurveying the boundary lines between the latter country and our as far east as Vermont. Many of the marks had disappeared.

There are 15,000 cords of wood at a modest estimate going to rot in York county, Me., according to John Merserve, who knows every crossroad and about every farm in the county. This wood is left by the portable mills in the shape of tops.

TALES THEY TELL.

Justus Granish, aged fifteen, was recently arrested in Philadelphia for wife desertion.

Napoleon Wood, of Leomonster, Mass., won a number of bets by swallowing twenty-eight one-cent pieces one after another and coughing them up.

Burglars entered the drug store of Thomas Halpin in St. Louis from the cellar through the furnace radiator. There was a fire in the furnace.

In his suit for divorce at St. Louis one of the complaints of Henry J. Pierce against his wife was that she said his ancestors were "of no account."

Charles Martens won a place on the Springfield (Mass.) police force by having his neck stretched three-tenths of an inch in five weeks by means of weights.

Attractive Show.

Here are a few selections from a circus poster recently displayed in Ambala, India:

"1. Some horses will make as very much better tricks.

"2. The clown will come and talk with that horses, therefore the audience will laugh itself very much.

"3. Boys will jump and roll in the mud.

"4. One man will walk on wire tight, he doing very nicely, because he is professor of that.

"5. Then will come the very much better dramatic.

"Notice—No sticks will be allowed in the spectator, and he shall not making the smoke; also we don't make it only the fourth class.

"N. B.—The circus is the very much better; therefore he come to see that."

His Repertory.

A Camden (N. J.) man recently reached the conclusion that his eight-year-old boy is a trifle too bright.

At dinner one evening the father had been entertaining a number of friends from Philadelphia with a funny story. This was at dessert. The youngster had been very quiet throughout the previous courses, but here he arose to the occasion in fine style.

When the laughter induced by his father's humor had ceased, the boy, with a fine affectation of delight, said:

"Now, dad, do tell the other one!"—Harper's Weekly.

His Idea of Lunch.

It was the hour of spelling lesson, and the teacher of the primary grade was pronouncing the words while the small persons in front of her laboriously wrote them down. According to the usual custom she called for volunteers to define each word as it was pronounced.

"Lunch. Now, who can tell me what a lunch is?"

There was a long period of silence, then a hand went up.

"Well, Johnny, you may tell us what a lunch is."

"A lunch," said Johnny—"a lunch is what you have for dinner when your father is away."—Harper's Magazine.

Corrected.

It was at a reunion of a gallant Irish regiment, and in due course a member rose to express his carefully rehearsed sentiment.

"Here's to th' ould Fifty-ninth," he began hotly, "th' last in th' field an' th' first to lave ut!"

"Ye muddler!" shouted a compatriot, springing to his feet. "Here's to th' ould Fifty-ninth, equil to none!"—Youth's Companion.

The Fighting Chance.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1906, by the Curtis Publishing Company.
Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

Sliward had never before seen Plank aroused, and he said so, smiling.

"That is true," said Plank earnestly. "I waste little temper over my likes and dislikes. But what I know and what I legitimately infer concerning the younger Quarrier is enough to rouse any man's anger. I won't tell you what I know. I can't. It has nothing to do with his financial methods, nothing to do with his business. But it is bad—bad all through! The blow his father struck at the integrity of the bench the son strikes at the very keystone of all social safeguard. I must go now. Goodby. Take care of that ankle. Any books I can send you—anything you want? No? All right. And don't worry over Amalgamated Electric, for I really believe we are beginning to frighten them badly."

It was exactly 4 o'clock when Plank was ushered into Quarrier's private suit in the great marble Algonquin Loan and Trust building, the upper stories of which were all golden in the sun against a sky of sapphire.

Quarrier was alone, gloved and hatted, as though on the point of leaving. He showed a slight surprise at seeing Plank, as if he had not been expecting him, and the manner of offering his hand subtly emphasized it as he came forward with a trace of inquiry in his greeting.

"You said 4 o'clock, I believe?" observed Plank bluntly.

"Ah, yes. It was about that—ah—matter—ah— I beg your pardon, can you recollect?"

"I don't know what it is you want. You requested this meeting," said Plank, yawning.

"Mr. Plank," Quarrier said, "there should be some way for us to come together. Have you considered it?"

"No, I haven't," replied Plank.

"I mean for you and me to try to understand each other."

"For us?" asked Plank, raising his blond eyebrows. "Do you mean Amalgamated Electric and Intercounty impersonally?"

"I mean for us personally. We are wasting opportunities. This whole matter is involving us in a tangle of litigation requiring our constant efforts, constant attention."

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Quarrier, but you take it too seriously. I have found in this affair nothing except a rather agreeable mental exhilaration."

"Mr. Plank, if you are not inclined to be serious"—

"I am," said Plank so savagely that Quarrier, startled, could not doubt him. "I like this sort of thing, Mr. Quarrier. Anything that is hard to overcome I like to overcome. The pleasure in life to me is to win out. I am fighting you with the greatest possible satisfaction to myself."

"Perhaps you see victory ahead," said Quarrier calmly.

"I do, Mr. Quarrier, I do, but not in the manner you fear I may hope for it."

Quarrier said without emotion, "I repeat that it would be easy for you and me to merge our differences on a basis absolutely satisfactory to you and to me—and to Harrington."

"You are mistaken," said Plank, rising. "Good afternoon."

Quarrier rose too. "You decline to discuss the matter?" he asked.

"It has been discussed sufficiently."

"Then why did you come here?"

"To see for myself how afraid of me you really are," said Plank. "Now I know, and so do you. Mr. Quarrier, I want to tell you something. Never before in business differences has private indignation against any individual interfered or modified my course of action. It does now, but it does not dictate my policy toward you; it merely, as I say, modifies it. I am perfectly aware of what I am doing, what social disaster I am inviting by this attitude toward you personally, what financial destruction I am courting in arousing the wrath of the Algonquin Trust company and of the powerful interests intrenched behind Intercounty Electric. I know what the lobby is; I know what judge cannot be counted on; I know my peril and my chances, every one, and I take them—every one. For it is a good fight, Mr. Quarrier. It will be talked of for years to come wonderingly, not because of your effrontery, not because of my obstinacy, but because such monstrous immorality could ever have existed in this land of ours. Your name, Harrington's, mine, will have become utterly forgotten long, long before the horror of these present conditions shall cease to be remembered."

He stretched out one ponderous arm, pointing full between Quarrier's unwinking eyes.

"Take your fighting chance—it is the cleanest thing you ever touched—and use it cleanly, or there'll be no mercy shown you when your time comes. Let the courts alone. Do you hear me? Let the legislature alone. Keep your manicured hands off the ermine. And tell Harrington to shove his own cold, splay fingers into his own pocket for a change. They'll be warmer than his feet by this time next year."

"Take your fighting chance."

For a moment he towered there—powerful, bulky, menacing—then his arm dropped heavily, the old stolid expression came back into his face, leaving it calm, bovine, almost stupid again. And he turned, moving slowly toward the door, holding his hat carefully in his gloved hand.

Stepping out of the elevator on the ground floor, he encountered Mortimer and halted instinctively. He had not seen Mortimer for weeks; neither had Leila, and now he looked at him inquiringly, disturbed at his battered and bloodshot appearance.

"Oh," said Mortimer, "you down here?"

"Have you been out of town?" asked Plank cautiously.

Mortimer nodded and started to pass on toward the bronze cage of the elevator, but something seemed to occur to him suddenly. He checked his pace, turned and waddled after Plank, rejoining him on the marble steps of the rotunda.

"Look here," he said, "I promised you something once, didn't I?"

"Did you?" said Plank, with his bland, expressionless stare of an overgrown baby.

"Oh, cut that out! You know I did, and when I say a thing I make good. D'ye see?"

"I don't see," said Plank, "what you are talking about."

"I'm talking about what I said I'd do for you. Haven't I made good? Haven't I put you into everything I said I would? Don't you go everywhere? Don't people ask you everywhere?"

"Yes, in a way," said Plank wearily. "I am very grateful. I always will be. Can I do anything for you, Leroy?"

Mortimer had attended a "killing" at Desmond's and, as usual, had provided the piece de resistance for his soft voiced host. All he wanted was a temporary deposit to tide over matters. He had never approached Plank in vain, and he did not do so now, for Plank had a pocket check book and a stylograph.

"It's little to ask, isn't it?" he muttered resentfully. "That will only square matters with Desmond. It doesn't leave me anything to go on with." And he pocketed his check with a scowl.

Plank was discreetly silent.

"And that is not what I chased you for, either," continued Mortimer. "Beverly, old boy, I've got a certain mealy faced hypocrite where any decent man would like to have him—by the scruff of his neck. He's fit only to kick, and I'm going to kick him good and plenty, and in the process he's going to let go of several things. One of 'em's yours."

Plank looked at him.

"I told you once that I'd let you know when to step up and say 'Good evening,' didn't I?"

Plank continued to stare.

"Didn't I?" repeated Mortimer peevishly, beginning to lose countenance.

"I don't understand you," said Plank, "and I don't think I want to understand you."

"What do you mean?" demanded Mortimer thickly. "Don't you want to marry that girl?" But he shrank dismayed under the slow blaze that lighted Plank's blue eyes.

"All right," he stammered, struggling to his fat legs and instinctively backing away. "I thought you meant business. I—what the devil do I care who you marry! It's the last time I try to do anything for you or for anybody else!"

Plank gazed at him for a moment. The anger in his face died out.

"I am not ungrateful," he said. "You may say almost anything except that, Leroy. I am not disloyal, no matter what else I may be. But you have made a bad mistake. So let us forget the matter."

But Mortimer, keenly appreciative of the pleasures of being misunderstood, squeezed some moisture out of his distended eyes and sat down, a martyr to his emotions. "To think," he gulped, "that you of all men should turn on me like this!"

"I didn't mean to. Can't you understand, Leroy, that you hurt me?"

"Hurt nothing!" retorted Mortimer vindictively. "You've had sensation battered out of you by this time. I guess society has landed you a few while I was boosting you over the outworks. There's another lady, that's all."

"Let it go at that, then."

"Let it go at that, then," said Plank, reddening. "And now let me ask you a question—where were you going when I met you?"

"What do you want to know for?" asked Mortimer sullenly.

"Why, I'll tell you, Leroy. If you have any idea of identifying yourself with Quarrier's people, of seeking him at this juncture with the expectation of investing any money in his schemes, you had better not do so."

"Investing!" sneered Mortimer. "Well, no, not exactly, having nothing to invest, thanks to my being swindled into joining his Amalgamated Electric gang. Don't worry. If there's any shaking down to be done I'll do it, my friend." And he rose and started toward the elevators.

"Wait," said Plank. "Why, man, you can't frighten Quarrier. What did you sell your holdings for? Why didn't you come to us—to me? What's the use of going to Quarrier now and scolding? You can't scare a man like that."

Mortimer fairly grinned in his face.

"Your big mistake," he sneered, "is in undervaluing others. I want you to understand a few things, my friend, and one of them is that I'm not afraid of Quarrier, and another is I'm not afraid of you!"

"Leroy"—

"No, not afraid of you either!" repeated Mortimer, with an ugly stare. "You keep a civil tongue in your head after this—do you understand?—and we'll get on all right. If you don't, I've the means to make you!"

"Are you crazy?"

"Not a bit of it! Too sane for you and Leila to hoodwink!"

"You are crazy!" repeated Plank, aghast.

"Am I? You and Leila can take the matter into court if you want to—unless I do. And"—here he leaned forward, showing his teeth again—"the next time you kiss her close the door!"

Then he went away up the marble steps and entered an elevator, and Plank, grave and pale, went out into the street and entered his big touring car. But the drive up town and through the sunlit park gave him no pleasure, and he entered his great house with a heavy, lifeless step, head bent, as though counting every crevice in the stones under his lagging feet. For the first time in all his life he was afraid of a man.

* * * * * * *

The man he was afraid of had gone directly to Quarrier's office, missing the gentleman he was seeking by such a small fraction of a minute that he realized they must have passed each other in the elevators, he ascending while Quarrier was descending.

Furious to think of the time he had wasted with Plank, he crawled into a hansom and bade the driver take him to a number he gave, designating one of the new limestone basement houses on the upper west side.

All the way up town as he jolted about in his seat he angrily regretted the meeting with Plank even in spite of the check. What demon had possessed him to boast—to display his hand when there had been no necessity? Plank was still ready to give him aid at a crisis, had always been ready. Time enough when Plank turned stingy to use persuasion.

He lay back, rolling about in the jouncing cab, scowling at space.

"I'll shake down Quarrier," he said to himself. "I'll make him pay for his treachery—scaring me out of Amalgamated! That will be restitution, not extortion!"

He was angry because he had been for days screwing up his courage to the point of seeking Quarrier face to face. He had not wished to do it. The scene and his own attitude in it could only be repugnant to him, although he continually explained to himself that it was restitution, not extortion.

"Oh," he groaned, "what an ass I am!" And he got out of his cab in front of a very new limestone basement house with red geraniums blooming on the window sills and let himself in with a latchkey.

The interior of the house was attractive in a rather bright, new, clean fashion. The maid, too, who appeared at the sound of the closing door and took his hat and gloves was as newly groomed as the floors and woodwork and so noiseless as to be conspicuous in her swift, silent movements.

"Anybody here?" he growled, leering into the drawing room at a tiny grand piano cased in unvarnished Circassian walnut.

"There is nobody at home, sir," said the maid.

He began to ascend the stairway, breathing heavily, thud, thud over the deep velvet strip, his fat hand grasping the banister rail.

Somewhere on the second floor a small dog barked, and Mortimer traversed the hall and opened the door into a room hung with gold Spanish leather and pale green curtains.

"Hello, Tinto!" he said affably as a tiny Japanese spaniel hurled herself at him, barking furiously, then began writhing and weaving herself about him, gurgling recognition and welcome.

Presently another maid entered, with an apple cut into thin wafers and a decanter of port, and Mortimer lay back in his chair, sopping his apple in the thick, crimson wine and feeding morsels of the combination to himself and to Tinto at intervals until the apple was all gone and the decanter three-fourths empty.

It was very still in the room—so still that Mortimer, opening his eyes at longer and longer intervals to peer at the door, finally opened them no more.

* * * * * * *

It was still daylight when Mortimer awoke, conscious of people about him. As he opened his eyes a man laughed. Several people seated by the windows joined in. He yawned, laughed, turning his heavy eyes from one to another, recognizing a couple of young girls at the window. He didn't want to get up, but there is in the society he now adorned a stringency of etiquette known as "re-finement" and which to ignore is to become unpopular.

So he got on to his massive legs and went over to shake hands with a gravity becoming the ceremony.

"How d'ye do, Miss Hutchinson? Thought you were at Asbury Park. How de do, Miss Del Garcia? Have you been out in Millbank's motor yet?"

"We broke down at McGowan's pass," said Miss Del Garcia, laughing the laugh that had made her so attractive in "A Word to the Wise."

"Muddy gasoline," nodded Millbank tersely, an iron jawed, overgroomed man of forty with a florid face shaved blue.

"We passed Mr. Plank's big touring car," observed Lydia Vyse, shifting Tinto to the couch and brushing the black and white hairs from her automobile coat. "How much does a car like that cost, Leroy?"

"About twenty-five thousand," he said gloomily. Then, looking up: "Hold on, Millbank. Don't be going. Why can't you all dine with us? Never mind your car. Ours is all right, and we'll run out into the country for dinner. How about it, Miss Del Garcia?"

But both Miss Del Garcia and Miss Hutchinson had accepted another invitation, in which Millbank was also included.

They stood about, veils floating, leather decorated coats thrown back, lingering for awhile to talk the garage talk which fascinates people of their type. Then Millbank looked at the clock, made his adieu to Lydia, nodded significantly to Mortimer and followed the others downstairs.

There was something amiss with his motor, for it made a startling racket in the street, finally plunging forward with a kick.

Lydia laughed as the two young girls in the tonneau turned to nod to her in mock despair. Then she came running back upstairs, holding her skirt free from her hurrying little feet.

"Well?" she inquired, as Mortimer turned back from the window to confront her.

"I missed him," said Mortimer.

She flung the coat over a chair, stood a moment, her fingers busy with her hair pegs, then sat down on the couch, taking Tinto into her lap. She was very pretty, dark, slim, marvelously graceful in her every movement.

"Can't you see him tomorrow?" she asked.

"Can't you see him tomorrow?" she asked.

"I suppose so," said Mortimer slowly. "Oh, Lord! How I hate this business!"

"Hasn't he misused your confidence? Hasn't he taken your money?" she asked. "It may be unpleasant for you to make him unbelt, but you're a coward if you don't!"

"I wish I'd held fast now. I never supposed Plank would take hold. It was that driveling old Belwether who scared me stiff! The minute I saw him scurrying to cover like a singed cat I was fool enough to climb the first tree. I've had my lesson, little girl."

"I hope you'll give Howard his. Somebody ought to," she said quietly.

About half past 8 they dined in a white and pink dining room furnished in dull gray walnut and served by a stealthy, white haired, pink skinned butler.

They had planned to go for a spin in Mortimer's motor after dinner, but in view of the Quarrier fiasco neither was in the mood for anything.

"Do you know, Leroy," she observed as they left the table and sauntered back into the pale blue drawing room, "do you know that the servants haven't been paid for three months?"

"Oh, for heaven's sake," he expostulated, "don't begin that sort of thing. I get enough of that at home. I get it every time I show my nose!"

"I only mentioned it," she said carelessly. "You had an opportunity to make Howard pay you back. What are you going to do?"

"Do?"

"Of course. You are going to do something, I suppose. You haven't yet told me how you intend to make Howard return the money you lost through his juggling with your stock."

"I don't exactly know myself," admitted Mortimer, still overflushed. "I mean to put it to him squarely as a debt of honor that he owes. I asked him whether to invest. He never warned me not to. He is morally responsible."

She nodded.

"I'll tell him so, too," blustered Mortimer, shaking himself into an upright posture and laying a pudgy clinched fist on the table. "I'm not afraid of him! He'll find that out too. I know enough to stagger him. Not that I mean to use it. I'm not going to have him think that my demands on him for my own property resemble extortion. I've half a mind to shake that money out of him in one way or another."

He struck the table and looked at her for further sign of approval.

"I'm not afraid of him," he repeated. "I wish to God he were here, and I'd tell him so."

She said coolly, "I was wishing that too."

For awhile they sat silent, preoccupied, avoiding each other's direct gaze. When she rose he started, watching her in a dazed way as she walked to the telephone.

"Shall I?" she asked quietly, turning to him, her hand on the receiver.

"Wait. W-what are you going to do?" he stammered.

"Call him up. Shall I?"

A dull throb of fright pulsed through him.

"You say you are not afraid of him, Leroy."

LOW SCORES THE RULE IN A TOURNEY SERIES

The Garibaldi and Roderick Dhu teams continued the bowling tourney at Campbell's alleys last night, the former winning two out of the three games. The scores were all low, the best for the night being a 189 made by Walter Crowley. Captain Meyer, who is rated one of the best pin hitters in the city, evidently forgot all he knew about the game and in the first try got a tally of 89, the lowest yet recorded in the tourney.

The scores:

GARIBALDIS.
Campbell	166	175	135
Crowley	189	167	189
Cutting	127	125	132
McLaughlin	150	160	148
Dodge	159	153	145
	791	780	749
RODERICK DHUS.
Van Emburgh	152	152	152
Vail	165	134	179
Ortleb	182	172	176
Koller	145	129	148
Meyers	89	123	155
	733	711	810

"Marty" Defeats Nicholls.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the home-bred professional of the Plainfield Country Club, has been playing great golf at Piney Woods, Pinehurst, and he recently distinguished himself at the expense of Gilbert Nicholls. In this match Nicholls secured a commanding lead at the turn, but from there home the Plainfield lad made no mistakes and finished one up. Nicholls, it will be remembered, was runner up to Alec Ross in both the National and Massachusetts open championship tournaments last year. "Marty" has also arranged a match with Alec Ross and it is understood that the betting is even money.

A Birthday Soiree.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. Stout, of Madison avenue, entertained a party of friends at their home last night in honor of the former's birthday. Music, dancing and supper at midnight were features of the affair.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES MUST APPLY FOR LICENSE.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh has notified Mayor Charles J. Fisk that the law providing for the regulation of employment agencies, applies to Plainfield, having become effective January 1 of this year, and that the power of fixing the fee and granting licenses is invested in the Mayor.

The law is very strict and states that employment agencies shall not be maintained where people sleep, eat, in a lodging house for unemployed or where liquor is sold. The applicant must furnish a complete description of the place of business, together with full name and address, together with an affidavit of good moral character. They must keep a correct book of record, which must be examined at least twice a month by the chief of police.

Other provisions of the law are that after an application for such a license is made it must be posted in the office of the city clerk for one week as a matter of public information. Anyone knowing any reason why such application should not be granted is given an opportunity to object.

The law in giving the Mayor the right to fix the license fee, says that it shall not exceed $25. It further provides the fee which such agencies are permitted to charge for securing employment to applicants. One half of the license fee goes to the chief of police, who is directly held responsible for the conduct of these agencies. The law exempts nurses' registries or bureaus for the employment of teachers. Mayor Fisk has ascertained that there are now about fifteen employment agencies in the city and the proprietors have been informed that they must apply at once for a license to do business. In the meantime the Mayor will decide upon the license fee.

Bank to Foreclose.

The Caldwell National Bank, through its cashier, James S. Throckmorton, Jr., brought action yesterday before Vice Chancellor Stevens to foreclose a mortgage on property in this city which was given as security for a loan made on notes by Walter P. Lindsley, of Newark, who left that city a year ago. The notes in question were given by the Bennett Land and Improvement Company, of which the missing lawyer was the manager.

P. H. S. Loses to Bayonne.

In a game marked by a decided tendency on the part of the visitors to "rough it up," the Plainfield High School basketball five were defeated by the Bayonne High School team, 35-28, at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

GAVE GEMS, NOT CASH, TO DETECTIVE CORBALLY

After an entire week of testimony taking the trial of Detective Sergeant Thomas Corbally, in Newark, for nonfeasance in office, was closed at five o'clock last night until ten o'clock Monday morning. The State has not yet presented its full case, but will probably rest on Monday afternoon. The defence will begin on Tuesday and as about fifty witnesses are to be called Samuel Kalisch and Frank McDermott expect that they will not finish for at least a week, and that the case will not get to the jury until late during the week of February 9, as it is known that the tate will call several witnesses in rebuttal.

In the expectation that Captain Jacob Scriba, Jr., would appear as a voluntary witness for the State yesterday several hundred persons endeavored to get into the court room, but all except those who had actual business in connection with the trial were excluded. Scriba did not appear, and it is said now that he will not go on the stand.

Corbally is one of a dozen police officials who were indicted for failure to suppress disreputable resorts. Captains Scriba and Daly pleaded non vult, paid a fine and resigned from the police department. Commissioners Frederick Kroeger and Henry Gardner resigned, but Commissioner Frederick Castle refused to do so, and served out his term, a trial before the Common Council having resulted in failure to depose him.

He and the others, including Detective Sergeant Fallon and Policemen Adubato, Dowd, Queenan and Lible are still awaiting trial, all the indictments having been found as the result of a vigorous anti-vice crusade made by Sheriff Sommer.

Under Sheriff Charles M. Mason, who was the active man for the Sheriff in more than a score of raids, was on the witness stand nearly all yesterday. He described each raid in detail, and though subjected to a sharp and tiresome cross-examination by counsel for Corbally, he did not alter a fact or date as given in his direct examination.

In telling of the employment of men from two private detective agencies during the Sheriff's crusade, he developed the interesting fact that the private detectives were paid for by a committee of public spirited citizens, who volunteered aid to the Sheriff in his efforts to rid the city of the vice which was flourishing on every hand and to break up a system under which such things were being protected by members of the police department who were in power at that time.

Fannie Krutzol, who kept houses in various sections of Newark for years, admitted that police officials knew what business she was in. She swore that while she did not pay any money for protection she made Corbally a present of a valuable diamond ring. She was sharply cross-examined by Mr. Kalisch, but her original statement was not shaken.

Experts Report Completed.

P. S. Suffern, the expert accountant, has completed the audit of the city books and his report will be presented to the Common Council Monday night.

PROMPT ACTION ON BILL PLEASES C. S. REFORMERS

Civil Service reformers throughout the State are elated at the prompt action of the Senate committee on the bill introduced by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union. This bill was one of the first introduced in the Senate and was reported favorably last Monday night.

Those who have read the Ackerman bill pronounce it an ideal Civil Service measure and one which, if passed, will do much to eliminate the "spoils" system in the public service. The prompt action of the committee in reporting the bill has raised the hopes of the enthusiasts who for the last three years have been endeavoring to have such a law placed on the statute books, and they feel that it will be only a short time before it is on the way to the Governor for his signature.

Professor Henry D. Thompson, of Mercer, has introduced a Civil Service measure in the House. This is the same bill which he introduced last year, and it has many good points. Those who helped frame the Ackerman bill, however, have picked out the good points of the Thompson bill and also the Colby bill of eacn year, and have incorporated them in the Union County Senator's bill. The Ackerman measure is as near an ideal Civil Service bill as it is possible to get at the present time.

The Civil Service reformers are going to concentrate their strength on the Ackerman bill, which has won the praise of all who have read it.

HOLD UP SALOONKEEPER AND ROB HIS TILL

Four men entered the saloon of Bernard Dutter, of No. 694 Springfield avenue, Newark, at noon yesterday and, while two held the saloonkeeper and threatened to shoot him if he made an outcry the other two went back of the bar and stole $50 from the cash drawer.

The saloon is west of South Nineteenth street, a short distance from the city line at Irvington. The spot was practically deserted at the time. The men had been notfced loitering about the place the greater part of the morning, but owing to the many idle men about at this time no great attention was paid to them. They waited until there was no trolley car or other vehicle in sight and then entered the saloon.

One of the men was about five feet eight inches tall, about thirty-eight years old and of medium build, with dark suit, but no overcoat and a cloth cap. He had a brown mustache and hair.

The second was about five feet nine inches tall, about forty-five years of age, with mixed gray hair and mustache. He wore a black derby hat and black overcoat. The third and fourth men were of smooth face, with dark hair and eyebrows, one man about five feet ten inches tall, and the other about five feet eleven inches. They were about twenty-six or twenty-seven years old. Both had black suits and overcoats and derbies to match. One of the latter two is a piano player, though the index and middle finger of his right hand is missing.

When the men entered the place they bought a round of drinks. The man with the missing fingers went to the piano and began playing a lively air. One of the others walked over until he was near a card room in which was Dutter's son, Frank, fifteen years old, sitting reading.

One of the two suggested to the proprietor that two water hydrants in the yard were in need of fixing. "Why should I worry about them?" said Dutter. "I don't own this property."

The strangers suggested that he ought to look them over, anyhow, and accept some of their suggestions. They induced Dutter to come from behind the bar, and while he was on his way to inspect the hydrants two of the men grabbed hold of him and flourished a revolver in his face.

The one near the small room slammed the door shut, closing the boy in. Then he and the piano player ran back of the bar and emptied the cash drawer. Dutter was warned not to give an alarm or he would be shot. He was frightened enough to obey long enough for the men to get away.

EDITOR BRISBANE AND DAVID HAND GO A HUNTING.

David Hand, of this city, and Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York American, have been spending several days hunting on Mr. Brisbane's extensive preserve near Lakewood. They are expected home tonight. Mr. Brisbane owns considerable property in the Netherwood section of the city, and he frequently visits there to renew his acquaintance among his old neighbors. He suggested the trip to Lakewood and Mr. Hand was glad of the opportunity to accompany him on a hunting trip.

—Commencing Sunday the local Western Union telegraph office will observe Western Union regulations of Sunday hours. The office will be open in the morning from 9 to 10 o'clock, between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon and between 7 and 11 o'clock in the evening.

JERSEY CITY TO CLOSE BARS, BARBERS, BUTCHERS

Another "blue Sunday" will be ordered for Jersey City tomorrow by Police Chief Monahan. He will issue another order today to the members of the force instructing them that all laws regarding Sunday closing must be enforced to the letter tomorrow. Ever Since Mayor Wittpenn's Police Board has been putting the question of Sunday violations—saloons in particular—up to the Chief he has decided not to be caught napping, and the rigid enforcement of the laws on the two last Sundays has been the result.

In their stand for the rigid enforcement of the Sunday closing laws the Police Board has the backing of the Civic Righteousness Federation, a church organization with Samuel Wilson at the head as superintendent. Aided by a large crowd of volunteers Mr. Wilson has each Sunday gathered evidence against saloons where the side door and "speakeasy" have been in operation, and he has not only had these cases submitted to the Grand Jury but has also made charges against the proprietors before te Excise Board, the law requiring that where a saloon keeper is found violating the law on Sunday his license shall be revoked and no new license granted to the same place for at least one year. The Excise Board is expected to take up these complaints at its next meeting, and it is said that several saloon keepers may find themselves deprived of their licenses.

Mr. Wilson has made a special effort to have enforced that section of the Bishops' law requiring the removal of screens from saloon windows on Sundays. He discovered that some saloon keepers were resorting to subterfuges, such as black curtains, which were placed in the interior of the saloons, thus screening off a section of the saloon from observation. In his order to the department today Chief Monahan will call special attention to this fact and will order the arrest of every saloon keeper who seeks by these means to carry on his business surreptitiously. Chief Monahan said:

"All partition screens in saloons will have to come down. Where we find that this requirement of the Excise law is not being complied with we will make arrests and keep on making them as long as the partitions remain up. Every saloon in the city will be visited to see that the law in this regard is observed."

In addition to keeping the saloons closed Chief Monahan tomorrow will endeavor to make barber shops observe the city ordinance, which requires them to close at noon on Sundays. The policemen will be cautioned against the old dodge worked by the barbers of locking the doors at noon and stating that those they were shaving came in before the noon hour.

At the request of the local Journeymen Butchers' Union butcher shops throughout the city will also be compelled to close tomorrow. Heretofore, the butcher shops have been permitted to remain open a portion of Sunday morning, but tomorrow the policemen will be ordered to see that not a single cleaver is raised.

HOSPITAL PRESIDENT RESIGNS IN A HUFF.

Resenting as a personal affront the charge that a coterie of physicians was attempting to get control of the management of the Paterson General Hospital in order the run the institution to suit their own ends, Dr. Walter B. Johnson, of Paterson, who has been the leader in affairs of the hospital for years, refused to again accept the presidency after he had been re-elected to the position.

Trouble among the members of the nospital association has been brewing for several weeks, and it came to a head at the annual meeting Thursday night, when General Joseph W. Congdon explained his opposition to an amendment to the charter reducing the medical staff from nine to seven members. He declared that there was a growing sentiment in the community against the apparent tendency of a certain few physicians to assume dictatorial control of the institution. He said he had only words of praise for Dr. Johnson and those who had assisted him in all the years he had devoted to the hospital.

"But," he continued, "there is a sentiment existing in this community which cannot be ignored—which should be recognized—which is opposed to the theory of a control of this association by a certain few physicians."

Dr. Johnson warmly declared that in the face of such criticism he would not accept the presidency again, and that he was through with the hospital. Disregarding his emphatic protests, however, Dr. Johnson was unanimously re-elected president, but he left the meeting, again declaring that in no circumstance would he accept. Carl Schrepfer, secretary of the association, also resigned, and announced that he would not accept a re-election. No action was taken on the amendment to reduce the staff. The hospital association is now without a president or secretary.

Albert De Bois Crowell Dead.

Albert De Bois Crowell, for twenty-five years manager of the Swift Beef Company's branch in Elizabeth, died yesterday morning at his home, No. 621 Madison avenue, after an illness of one month. Mr. Crowell was a native of Sagamore, Mass. He was well known in Elizabeth, and was a member of the Royal Arcanum and the National Provident Union. He is survived by a wife and two daughters.

LEWIS H. TAYLOR'S 97TH BIRTHDAY.

Lewis Hazelius Taylor, honorary president of the Taylor Iron and Steel Works, of High Bridge, celebrated his ninety-seventh birthday at his historic home, Solitude, yesterday, by entertaining informally a few friends. This remarkable man has during the last year suffered from severe rheumatic attacks, and for the last few weeks has been confined to his room. Otherwise he is enjoying the best of health. He is in possession of his full faculties, excepting that his hearing is somewhat impaired.

With the exception of two years spent in California Mr. Taylor has lived all his life at Solitude, and it was he who revived the iron industry at High Bridge, the Taylor Iron and Steel Works later becoming the Taylor Iron and Steel Company, which gives employment to thousands of workmen and is the leading industry of Hunterdon county. For fifty-six consecutive years Mr. Taylor was the active president of the company, which has grown to large proportions. Many workmen have spent their lives in his employ.

Mr. Taylor has also been actively interested in other fields of enterprise, among which was the organization and construction of several railroads. He is a member of the High Bridge Reformed church, one of its chief financial supporters, and his contributions to charity are many.

Accuses Brother of Burglary.

Rostanti Kutroski was arrested in Newark yesterday and held for the Grand Jury by Recorder Cadmus, in the Bloomfield police court, on a charge of burglary preferred by the prisoner's sister, Miss Teresa Kutroski. On Wednesday morning the two men entered the home of Leopold Donaski, in Broad street, Bloomfield, and got away with a gold watch, some pieces of jewelry and some cash. Miss Kutroski boards at the Donaski home and says that the two men entered her room. While searching the bureau drawers for plunder, she says, she recognized one of the men as her brother. Kutroski denies the charge.

TIE-UP OF R. R. TRAFFIC

Freight Train Wrecked on Newark Bay Draw Which Catches Fire.

EMERGENCY FORCE AT WORK.

All Traffic Suspended By Direct Route, Train Service Being By Way of Newark.

An eastbound freight train was wrecked as it was about to cross the Newark Bay bridge at 6 o'clock this morning. A dozen or more cars were piled up. The debris caught fire, which necessitating the calling out of the Elizabeth fire department. The blaze set fire to a section of the drawbridge and about twenty-five yards of the frame-work were destroyed before the flames were extinguished.

The wreck was caused by a broken flange of a wheel on one of the forward freight cars. The train was making good time and when the accident occurred the cars quickly piled up one on top of the other and covering all four tracks. Traffic over the main line was suspended and all trains were operated by the way of the Newark branch.

A large force of men is employed clearing away the wreckage, but it will probably be late this afternoon before the block will be removed from all four tracks. When the framework of the long bridge which extends over the Newark Bay caught fire it gave the railroad officials great anxiety. The wind was blowing in hurricane fashion and it was realized that if the blaze should get beyond control it would not take long to cut off main line communication indefinitely. No time was lost in summoning the fire department from Elizabeth and the firemen performed heroic service.

The trackage and ties for a distance of at least 200 yards were more or less damaged and it will require many hours to get the roadbed in shape, besides clearing away the great mass of wreckage.

LEONCE A. TEXIER WEDS MISS ELDORA BEEKMAN.

Leonce A. Texier, formerly assistant treasurer at the New Plainfield theatre and now treasurer at Manager Counihan's Perth Amboy playhouse, and Miss Eldora Beekman, were married at the home of the bride's parents at Martinsville, yesterday afternon. The ceremony was witnessed by a small gathering of friends, among them several from this city. Mr. and Mrs. Texier will make their home in Perth Amboy.

Both young people are very well known in Plainfield, having been former residents. The groom is the son of H. Texier, of Watchung, and was prominent for several years in local social affairs. His bride lived at one time on East Second street and was assistant in City Clerk MacMurray's office until a short time ago.

THEATRE MANAGER'S CHARGES.

Prefers Complain Against Gallery Patron Who Acted in Disorderly Manner.

Manager W. J. Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, went before Judge Runyon this morning and preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against Lewis Coriell, a local young man. He asserted that Coriell was in the gallery of the theatre when the amateur numbers were given last Friday night and yelled indecent remarks at the aspirants for prizes and also refused to be quiet when requested. He will be arraigned in court tomorrow.

Mr. Counihan stated today that some of the gallery patrons had conceived the idea that they were free to do as they pleased on amateur nights and their actions had reached the limit. He repeatedly made reqpests for them to restrain themselves but without any effect. Amateur numbers are to be given tonight and he was compelled to make complaint against Coriell in order to protect the other patrons.

Assisted at New York Tea.

Among the assistants at the second tea given on Friday by Mrs. William Broadwell Bowne at her home in the Mayfair, New York, was Miss Elsie Burke, of Netherwood. A number of Plainfield friends were present.

Board of Trade to Meet.

The February meeting of the Board of Trade will be held at the rooms on Park avenue, Thursday night, when reports on the annual banquet will be presented and other matters of interest discussed.

Miss Bertha Beekman, of this city, is ill at the home of her parents in Martinsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen G. Staats, of Bound Brook, have returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

ASK FOR INVESTIGATION

Netherwood Residents Demand that Authorities Probe as Result of Fire Loss.

WERE THE MAINS FROZEN?

If So, Who Is to Blame—Fire Chief and Water Company Superintendent Are Interviewed.

"Residents of the Netherwood district demand that you take immediate action today and report to proper authorities whether the fire hydrants in the Netherwood district are ready for use or not.

(Signed) Henry L. Hall and others."

This telegram was received this afternoon from Henry L. Hall, a prominent resident of the Netherwood section, by Fire Chief T. O. Doane. A similar telegram has also been received by Mayor Charles J. Fisk.

The dispatch was sent from New York after Mr. Hall and a number of other wealthy commuters had held an informal conference. Their realty holdings in that section of Plainfield aggregate $200,000, and they had requested Mr. Hall to serve notice on the authorities that a probe was desired without delay.

According to these taxpayers, there is much indignation in the Netherwood section over the failure to have the Letcher home. They had been told that it was all due to frozen fire mains and no time was lost in asking for an investigation. Joining with this paper, Netherwood residents had urgently demanded during recent months better fire protection for that vicinity. Now they are banded together to see that their requests are heeded by the authorities.

In referring to the telegram he had received Mr. Hall and others, Chief Doane said this afternoon: "It is not up to the fire department to see that these fire hydrants are in proper working order. That responsibility rests with the water company. When winter set in, I was assured by a representative of the water company that every hydrant in the city was in perfect condition. The fact is that when I arrived on the scene last night I soon found that the hydrants were frozen up. It was not a question of getting there promptly or not having all needful apparatus. It was only that the hydrants refused to do their duty. I repeat, if there was any fault, it is up to the water company to explain."

Superintendent Amos Andrews, of the Plainfield-Union Water Supply Company, said this afternoon, that as far as he was able to say no responsibility rested with his concern for the delay in putting out the fire.

"In the fall, following our custom," said Mr. Andrews, "we made a careful investigation of all hydrants in the city with the result that none was found defective. Today, I had a man test the hydrants and found that some of them worked hard to open but there was no difficulty in opening them in a short time. As a matter of fact if any single main was frozen up, the consumers in that section would not have been able to get any water. They have not had any trouble in this respect. All of this shows that the fire department should not have had the least difficulty in doing the same thing. It was not the fault of the hydrant. We invite an investigation for we know that it will show that we have not been derelict in our duty."

EX-POSTMASTER CLEARED OF ONE ARSON CHARGE.

Former Postmaster Charles T. Vail, formerly of this city, was acquitted of the charge of being implicated in the burning of a house at West Portal on the night of November 11, 1906, by a jury at Flemington, Friday night. Vail was tried for the same offense once before, when the jury disagreed.

The case went to the jury about 4 o'clock Friday, after eloquent pleas of counsel for the State and defendant. Vail was represented by Senator William C. Gebhardt, former Judge H. B. Herr and Paul A. Queen. Prosecutor George K. Large was assisted by Harry L. Stout and former Senator George H. Large.

There are still two indictments against ex-Postmaster Vail, growing out of the destruction of the Vail store at West Portal on February 24, 1907. He is being held under $4,000 bail. Prosecutor Large said Saturday that these indictments would be tried in the near future.

Y. M. C. A. Seconds Swamped.

The second team of the Y. M. C. A. were overwhelmingly defeated by the Passaic second team at Passaic Saturday night. The score was 79-12. In the second half, the home team ran up thirty-four points while the Plainfielders could score but a single basket.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, of this city, are registered at the Hotel Endicott, New York.

MR. BRYAN'S ITINERARY

Nebraskan will Meet Martine in New York on Thursday for Jersey Trip.

THREE SPEECHES PLANNED.

As Told In This Paper "Peerless One" Will Not Visit Plainfield On This Occasion.

Final plans were made yesterday by James E. Martine for William J. Bryan's visit to New Jersey on Thursday, the "farmer-orator" and "the Peerless One" agreeing yesterday on the itinerary. The Plainfielder met Mr. Bryan by appointmnt back of the stage of the Lyric theatre in Philadelphia where the Nebraskan addressed a vast crowd, including distinguished judges and other representative men. When Mr. Bryan had finished his sermon on "The Prince of Peace," under the auspices of the Central Y. M. C. A., they went to the Kensington district.

There Mr. Bryan gave a similar talk under the patronage of a branch Y. M. C. A. The two met again at the Broadway M. E. church, Camden, and after a third address there repaired to the home of the Rev. Dr. Neall. State Treasurer Berry, of Pennsylvania, who had talked with Bryan during the day, attended the reception as did also Thomas Birch, the carriage maker of Burlington. Former Mayor Nowry, of Camden, James R. Bergen, of Atlantic county, and ex-Judge Carrow, of Camden, were among the others.

Mr. Bryan requested Mr. Martine to meet him at the Hoffman House, New York, on Thursday morning. They will go directly to Jersey City where Mr. Bryan will make an address at the Majestic theatre at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. E. A. Whittier with Messrs. Bryan and Martine will then take automobile and head for Passaic where luncheon will be served. The trip to Paterson will be next in order.

It is probable that after the Paterson meeting the party will go to Mr. Ingersoll's home in Orange for a bite to eat but in any event Mr. Bryan will on hand promutly in time for the Newark meeting at the Colosseum at 8 o'clock. The Nebraskan will spend the night at Mr. Ingersoll's home.

The other speakers for the Newark meeting as already announced include Augustus Thomas, of New York; Congressman William Hughes, Mr. Martine and Senator W. C. Gebhardt.

CRANFORD MAN KILLED ON RAILROAD TRACK

David Barrie, a tea broker, of Manhattan, whose home was in Cranford, was killed Saturday night in the Jersey Central Railroad station in Jersey City. He had been to a theatre and was hurrying along the platform to reach the smoker on the midnight train. An eastbound express was just entering the station on an adjoining track. Barrie was close to this track. He missed his footing, fell in front of the incoming train and was crushed to death.

Papers in his pockets led to his identification. Yesterday afternoon F. W. Parks, of Cranford, called at the morgue and claimed the body of Barrie, who, he said, was a personal friend. Barrie, according to Parks, was an intimate friends of Sir Thos. Lipton.

All-Day Missionary Meeting.

An all-day missionary meeting under the auspices of the women of the First M. E. church will be held in Vincent chapel, tomorrow. The women will meet at 10 o'clock for sewing and at 11 o'clock the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet and the annual thank offering will be received. The topic will be "Industrial Missions." A basket lunch will be served at noon. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a business meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society. The feature will be the annual opening of the mite boxes.

All But Five Parole Men Report.

In making his report to Head Keeper George O. Osborne, Parole Agent Henry K. Straley, of New Jersey State Prison, declares that for January only five of the 150 convicts now out on parole failed to report to him relative to their whereabouts and mode of living. This is the best showing since the establishment of the parole office three years ago.

Talks to Real Estate Men.

WEALTHIEST RESIDENT DRAWN FOR PETIT JURY

A panel of sixty petit jurors were drawn at Elizabeth, thos morning, to serve for two weeks beginning Tuesday, February 11, and the selections show that Sheriff Lawrence is determined to secure high-class men for jury service. This is shown especially in the Plainfielders chosen, among whom is Harry G. Runkle, probably the wealthiest resident of the city.

The complete list follows:

MILLIONAIRE LEAVES $1,000 TO PLAINFIELDER

The will of the late Franklin B. Lord of the firm of Lord, Day & Lord, of Manhattan, was filed in the Surrogate's office Saturday afternoon. By the terms of the will one-third of the residuary estate is left to the testator's widow and two-thirds are to be divided in equal shares among the testator's three sons, Franklin B. Lord, Jr., Edward Crary Lord and George De Forest Lord. Among the other beneficiaries are J. Stephen H. Higham, of this city, to whom is given $1,000. Mr. Higham, a former member of the Plainfield Common Council, as an expert accountant, had been employed for years by Mr. Lord.

The will provides that the shares of the sons shall be held in trust, the beneficiaries to receive the income when they reach the age of 21 and the principal when they reach the age of 30.

GRAND JURY WILL DECIDE CASE OF LAD HAY STEALER

Caught by his employer, A. J. Smalley, in the act of stealing hay for his horse in the stable on Craig place, Charles Gilly, a fifteen-year-old boy, who lives on Somerset place, was haled before Justice Clark Mundy after Mr. Smalley had sworn out a warrant for his arrest, and at the session of the Justice's court Saturday afternoon was placed under a bond of $100 to await the action of the grand jury. The bond was furnished by H. A. Todd, and the lad was released from custody Saturday afternoon.

Gilly is employed as driver by Mr. Smalley and keeps his horse in his employer's stable. Mr. Smalley has long expected that the lad was stealing the provender for his horse from his hay mow and caught him in the act Friday night. Saturday morning he swore out a warrant for the lad's arrest before Justice Clark Mundy and the arrest was made immediately. At the hearing in the Justice's court held at Blimm's Hotel in the afternoon, Gilly pleaded guilty to the charge brought against him by his employer and was bonded over to await the action of the grand jury.

COUNTRY CLUB MAY RAISE FEES AND DUES

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club will be held at the Casino tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock, at which time the amendment to the constitution for increasing the annual dues proposed by the trustees will be brought up for action. As this is a matter which affects every active member of the club, it is expected that the attendance will be large and that three will be an animated discussion of the subject. It is understood that there is great dissatisfaction over the proposition and in consequence it will be vigorously opposed.

At present the dues are $25 for active members, with an initiation fee of $25. It is proposed to raise the active dues to $30 and the initiation fee to $40 after May 15; also the dues of associate members (women and boys under twenty years of age) from $12 to $15.

A new class is proposed to be known as house members, for women and girls wishing house privileges only, at $10 a year. Considering that the club owns about 115 acres of land, with only a small mortgage on the property, and has a good eighteen-hole course and eight lawn tennis courts, the dues have always been low.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

John E. Goodwin Never Regained Consciousness After Runaway Accident.

DIES IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

Found in Roadway Early Saturday Morning, He Gradually Sinks Away—Was Well Known About City.

Without having regained consciousness from the time he was picked up at Central avenue and Elizabeth street, early Saturday morning, John E. Goodwin, the well known cabman, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday noon. The physicians sought in vain to arouse him to his senses but it was believed almost from the time he was taken in charge that his chances for recovery were very slight. He began sinking Sunday morning and his relatives were with him when the end came.

An investigation on the part of the police and Goodwin's employer, John Lynch, of Elizabeth street, has failed to throw any further light on the accident that caused the cabman's death. It is the belief that the spirited horse he was driving home, made a short turn and upset the carriage. When discovered by Henry Bundy, who lives nearby and who heard the crash, he was discovered pinned beneath the rig. He has been struck on the head, causing brain concussion.

Goodwin was born in Plainfield forty-two years ago and had lived here all his life. He was the son of Martha and the late George Goodwin, his mother now being a resident of Yonkers, N. Y. When a young boy he played truant from school one day and while enjoying his freedom in romping through the upper part of a house in course of construction on Somerset street, he fell through to the cellar, sustaining injuries that eventually resulted in the amputation of one of his legs. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, of Yonkers; Mrs. J. C. Martin, of New York, and Mrs. George Wyckoff, of this city. He was widely known in the city and borough.

The funeral will be held at the parlors of Runyon & Son, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

PASTOR DECLINES TO WITHDRAW RESIGNATION

Contrary to expectations, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, failed to make any reference to his recent troubles, at either service, yesterday. He delivered Gospel sermons and made not the slightest illusion to the differences said to exist between pastor and people. This is said to have been a disappointment to some of the members of the church who have taken exception to the pastor's devotion to his prize-winning spaniels.

Following the morning service a committee comprising Charles R. Vincent and David Hand from the board of deacons; J. L. Todd and John Z. Hetfield from the board of trustees and Captain H. B. Saunders from the congregation to consider the resignation of the pastor and report to a regular meeting of the church to be held at a date to be decided upon later.

Efforts have been made to persuade the pastor to withdraw his resignation, but he persists in its acceptance. He has no idea of giving up the ministry as reported by some newspapers, but says that he will continue to preach the Gospel in a larger field.

Death of Noted Lawyer.

Mrs. Mary B. Hill and daughter, Miss Juliet Hill, of 58 Westervelt avenue, have returned from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where they were called by the death of Mrs. Hill's brother, John L. Barbour, aged seventy-one years, who for a great many years was one of the leading lawyers of that place. He was the son of Oliver L. Barbour, who wrote Barbour's Supreme Court Reports, and a nephew of Chancellor Walworth.

Y. W. C. A. Vesper Service.

The vesper service at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon was largely attended and proved to be a helpful and inspiring one. Miss Emerson, of New York, made an excellent address to the young women. Miss Tapping, secretary of the association, was in charge of the meeting and Miss Elsie Goddard sang two solos. A social hour followed.

Rasores Club Meeting.

The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. Lucius L. Gilbert, 316 First place. Quotations from Scott will be given.

FIRE RAZES "THE WILDS"

THE LOSS WILL REACH $25,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and Child Escape In Night Apparel—No Water to Fight the Flames.

"The Wilds," the handsome residence of W. de L. R. Anderson on the Valley road, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning and Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, with their child, aroused by the choking smoke, had barely time to make their escape in their night apparel. The high wind spread the flames with great rapidity, and the building was reduced to ashes in an hour. The loss will reach $25,000, of which $15,000 was the cost of the building, and the remainder was the loss to furnishings, clothes, and jewelry. The insurance is about $20,000. The North Plainfield fire department was summoned by telephone at shortly before 7 o'clock, but the apparatus did not respond, because there was no water there to fight the flames.

Mr. Anderson, who with his wife and child were alone in the house with Catherine Branningam, Mrs. Anderson's maid, was awakened at about 6 o'clock by the high wind, which slammed the blinds. He smelled smoke and got up to investigate. He went downstairs, and as he opened the door from the kitchen into the cellar, a great cloud of dense smoke and flames swept out upon him. Hastily closing the door, he went outside, and looking in through a cellar window, found the cellar a mass of flames. He aroused his wife and took her to the house of his father, R. W. Anderson, about a half mile distant.

Upon his return to his house, he found the flames had made great headway. With the assistance of Miss Branningam, who insisted in helping in the burning building, and his man, Richard Davis, Mr. Anderson worked as long as he could, carrying out the valuables and such articles of furniture as he could move. He secured most of the jewelry and valuables, but considerable silverware was destroyed in the dining room, as well as a sum of money in one of the bureau drawers. The family was planning to go to the home of Mrs. Anderson's father, Robert Olyphant, of East Fifty-second street, New York, and Mrs. Anderson's trunk was partially packed. Mr. Anderson narrowly escaped injury in carrying this trunk to safety. He slipped on the stair landing and fell down the entire flight, with the heavy trunk crashing down behind him. He was not struck, but was slightly bruised by the fall. He succeeded in saving silverware and jewelry to the amount of about $800.

No attempt was made to fight the fire, because there was no water. The artesian well on the place had frozen Thursday and a plumber had commenced repairs. The neighbors rendered great assistance in the work of saving silverware and furniture. The stable, which stood near the house, was undamaged by fire. This stands on the windward side of the burning building, but the high wind carried the flames clear over the building, which was not ignted. In the barn were two horses, a cow, three carriages and a sleigh, together with harness. Davis was sleeping in the barn at the time the fire broke out.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is believed to have started from the furnace. Mr. Anderson came to this city and was fitted out with clothes at the Elks' lodge rooms. He and his wife and child are now temporarily living with Mrs. Anderson's father in New York city. Mr. Anderson said today that he would rebuild the house on the same site in the spring.

In the City Court.

Peter Ritter and Frank Fallon, two young men, were arraigned in the city court this morning, charged with disorderly conduct in an East Front street cafe, Saturday night. They acknowledged their guilt but sentence was suspended because of it being their first offense.

Will Talk on Irrigation.

George H. Isaacs, of the Plainfield Business College, will give his lecture on "Irrigation in the West and What It Will Mean to This Country," at the meeting of the Board of Trade on Thursday night. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

McAuley Mission Service.

John H. Wyburn, superintendent of the McAuley Mission, of New York, has been secured to lead a meeting at Faith chapel next Sunday night. He will bring several of his mission workers with him.

$10,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE

Hampered by Frozen Hydrants, Firemen Seek in Vain to Save Home.

ACCIDENTS DURING THE FIGHT.

Hampered by frozen hydrants and a low water pressure in addition to bitter cold weather, the city fire department sought in vain to save the handsome home of Richard H. Letcher on Belvidere avenue, from destruction last night. For six hours the men tried to stay the progress of flames that originated from a defective flue but with everything against them they were practically helpless and in the end the structure was left a heap of ruins. The blaze was one of the slow progressing kind and afforded the police and neighbors an opportunity to get out the greater part of the furniture, thus making a much smaller loss than might be expected. It is estimated at $10,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire was attended by many incidents that made all manner of excitement almost from the time it started. It was discovered at about 7 o'clock and had evidently been smoldering for hours. The first thought of the family was for Mr. Letcher, who has been ill for some time and who has been confined to his bed. Servants hurried to the home of Clifton Wharton, Jr., who lives directly across the street, and with Evarts Tracy, who was visiting him, returned to the house. The men wrapped a heavy fur overcoat about the patient and carried him to the Wharton residence. It is thought he suffered no ill effects from the brief exposure.

Late in the evening while a group of firemen were crawling about in the smoke-filled rooms of the burning house, Vincent Carroll, a member of No. 2 truck, was accidentally struck in the head with an axe. He was knocked unconscious and when carried to Mr. Wharton's was found to have sustained a severe gash just above the nose. He was attended by Dr. Corbusier previous to removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. At noon today he was reported as resting easily. A few minutes past 1 o'clock this morning as Chief Doane was making a last inspection, previous to declaring the fire out, he slipped between floor beams and was severely wrenched in the right side and back. He remained until the last thing but was kept at home today. He will probably be out tomorrow.

The first alarm headquarters received for the blaze was turned in by telephone at 7:04. Assistant Chief Jennings sent out No. 2 hose company and notified Chief Doane, the latter immediately ordering the chemical engine out as well. The chief found Captain Daley and his men at work with extinguishers when he arrived and from a hurried examination he thought the addition of the chemical engine in the fight would soon put out the flames. This apparatus was late in arriving, however, because of the icy condition of the Watchung avenue hill, compelling the driver to go in a roundabout way. The blaze then seemed to be between the beams of the second floor.

When the chemical was brought into action, the flooring was torn up in order to get at the fire and it was then found that the flames had spread from one side of the house to the other and were eating their way up to the attic. Chief Doane turned in a special call for the steamer in anticipation of low pressure and just as the chemical tanks became exhausted, it was discovered that the hydrant nearest the residence was frozen. Two more a short distance away were found in the same condition and a fouth at Belvidere avenue and Denmark road was all right. A line of hose 1,300 feet long was laid from it but when the stream was turned on the pressure was hardly sufficient to get it above the first floor. The engine was placed on it and the suction proved more than the flow and at times there was nothing to pump.

Another special call was sent in for No. 1 company in order to get more hose for the opening of another hydrant and a little later box 68 was pulled to bring the full quota of reserve men to the scene. Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield department, was on hand and also summoned the borough steamer. Even then the supply of water was inadequate and to make matters worse the second engine broke down an hour after it began pumping, due to the strain when the water failed to flow in fast enough. Chief Woolston and his men continued to remain and rendered valuable

WESTFIELD.

In line with the policy of reducing expenses all along the system, the assistant freight agent has been done away with at the Westfield freight office of the Central Railroad, and the night telegraph operator and ticket agent has been replaced by a night agent who is not an operator. This leaves Westfield without a night telegraph office. There is an operator at the signal tower, about a quarter of a mile out of town, and in case of dire necessity he might send a message, but no commercial messages are received.

Rev. William A. Rice, formerly a pastor in Westfield, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church yesterday.

A ball was given by the Anchor Post Relief Association at Britz's Hall, Garwood, Saturday evening.

Communion services were held at the Westfield Baptist church at the morning service yesterday.

Eddie Foy and a half dozen other stars comes to the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night for the first time in the massive English musical comedy entertainment, "The Orchid," which scored such a phenomenal success at the Herald Square theatre, New York, last summer. As is wont, Foy is surrounded with a chorus numbering 46, and the orchid bun pony ballet. La Petite Adelaide, the dancer, is a special added feature.

Not during the entire years of theatrical history has there been such an unqualified success in New York as Mortimer M. Thelse's "Wine, Woman and Song," which will be presented with a great cast at the

New Plainfield theatre tomorrow matinee and night. This is a musical comedy that created furore among the select patronage at the New Circle theatre on Broadway, New York city, last season to crowded houses. This attraction is one of Mr. Thelse's offerings and has been proclaimed by the New York critics as being the best that he has ever put forward.

Manager Cornelian announces that he has secured Lee D. Ellsworth in "A Poor Relation," for the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. "A Poor Relation" was first brought into prominence by the greatest of all legitimate comedians, Sol Smith Russell, and since first produced by him it has been counted one of the most staple of the American plays. As a literary composition, it is so unstudied and so faultlessly arranged that its success is not dependent upon dramatic situation. The continued success of "A Poor Relation" shows that popular taste appreciates something more than vaudeville, or the growing weariness of plays which rely upon a dazzling array of chorus girls or spectacular scenic display. The play may be aptly described as an exquisite little love romance, dealing in characters of everyday life.

American plays by American authors should ever be interesting events in a community where Americanism is a dominant characterization. In presenting "The Flaming Arrow" by Lincoln J. Carter, the American author, at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, theatre-goers will have a chance to see an art creation worthy of the sort. The characters are fifty and ably taken by people who know their business, some of the cleverest actors before the footlights being included in the cast. The play is one that will live as long as the American drama is in existence. It tells in the best style and most interesting and graphic manner the life of the Indian and inhabitants of the western border. The comedy is unique and original; the climaxes intensely dramatic and consistently wrought up and the love scenes sweet and romantic. It is essentially the great story of the play that has made it such a long life and it will be a difficult matter on some other author's part to produce a parallel as good as this play.

Daniel Sully, who appears at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night in his realistic reflex of Irish life in America, entitled "The Golden Rule," has won the distinction of being the representative Irish comedian of the American stage. The language to which he was born and whose fluency shaped his speech is the language of Irish comedy. The vivacity of action, the cordial grace of manner and the sense of humor which are the heritage of his brilliant countrymen, he has inherited to such a degree as to fit him peculiarly for those Irish characters which by their wit, delicacy and humor appeal to the intelligence of refined theatre-goers. Being to the manner born, Mr. Sully can give the proper coloring and effect and creates a characterization such as will command attention and respect. In "The Golden Rule" he American Prints for the American People.

Colossal Show and Sale of 150,000 Yards

We have planned this Sale of Wash Fabrics on a scale undreamt of by ordinary stores. In the quantity of goods involved, in the variety of designs presented, in the window and interior display, it will surpass any event in the history of this establishment. Big as was our last year's show and sale, this one will eclipse it.

The American Printing Co.'s Wash Fabrics have created a new era in the cotton goods field. At enormous expense this greatest of America's producers of wash fabrics has brought out an extraordinary collection of new and beautiful patterns and colorings, which so far surpass the creations of the past as to make past efforts appear insignificant.

In addition to all the solid colors, all the staple things with which most people are familiar—the checks, stripes and plaids– this company has reproduced with absolute fidelity the newest imported foulard designs in light and dark indigo shades, and the most exclusive patterns of Scotch ginghams. There are also charming bordered effects in goodly number.

The blues are dyed with pure indigo; the reds and blacks with strictly fast colors. They can be washed over and over again without harm.

The soft and brilliant colors are a continual delight, particularly to young wearers, and the trifling cost of the material permits the making of more elaborate trimming than could be thought of otherwise. Three dresses for the ordinary price of one may be had without any sacrifice of style or beauty.

These prints are 24 inches wide, the most economical widths for cutting, and, best of all, Butterick Patterns may now be had designed for use with goods of this width.

Our gigantic window display will be one of the most novel, beautiful and extensive ever made by any concern anywhere. We give over to it our entire Broad street front. Here you can see to good advantage these beautiful American Prints.

The selling began today at the remarkably

Little Price of 6c a yard

HIGHER GRADE WASH FABRICS IN THE SALE

In addition to this great sale of American Prints we will offer our tremendous new line of Foreign and Domestic Wash Fabrics—a collection unsurpassed by any store in the United States, embracing a variety of qualities, patterns and colorings simply bewildering, including hundreds and hundreds of exclusive patterns, many of them distinctive novelties, affording you a choice that makes it absolutely unnecessary to look beyond this house for anything that may be required in this line.

These among other exceptional values will be offered this week:

38c Imported Poplins—All street and evening shades - - - - - - 29c
29c Imported Dimity Best Irish product, 75 new designs - - - - - - 22c

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Since Yale has determined to pass up professional coaching for her baseball team a leading question has been who will attend to the active coaching of the diamond candidates. Baseball history at Yale shows that graduate coaching has been more successful than professional coaching, although Billy Lush's regime at New Haven has not been without its successes. Three years ago, with Lush as head coach, the Blue had a very good season, winning two out of three from Princeton after a poor start and tying Harvard in one game and winning the second Nevertheless there has been a strong demand among the alumni for a return to the old system, when Yale was more prominent in baseball than she has been in recent years.

In recent years Yale nines as a rule have not been noted for their fighting spirit, and many an alumnus has groaned when he saw the ease with which the Elis were disposed of without making a stiff battle. They have longed for the return of the times when the Yale spirit was as active in baseball as in football, when the team never was beaten until the last man was out.

It was felt that with Tad Jones, captain, the time was ripe for the return to graduate coaching and the revivification of the spirit. Two of Yale's most able players will have charge of the coaching this spring—Dutch Carter, the best pitcher the Blue ever had and an aggressive, vigorous player, and George Case, captain in the early '90s, a hard hitter, good outfielder and who at Yale made use of the much discussed squeeze play. Both Carter and Case live in New York and are within easy reach of New Haven and both know what is needed to brace up the drooping fortunes of Eli baseball. Walter Camp is to act in an advisory capacity, and the Camp-Carter-Case combination is looked on as a strong one.

Manager Donavan, of the Brooklyns, was in Boston the other day and said he was surprised to learn that Jimmy Casey had been released to the Jersey City club for $1,500. "Casey played good ball for Brooklyn the last two years," said Donovan. "I knew he was anxious to get his release, however, as he wanted to become a part owner of some minor league club." Casey, it is said, will refuse to go to Jersey City. Donovan went on to say that Alperman and Lumley are now both in shape to play ball and will go South with the team. He also stated that he felt sure that Pitcher Stricklett, reported to have jumped to the California outlaws, would be on hand. The Brooklyn manager said, too, that young Sheehan, formerly of the Pittsburgs, would succeed Casey at third base. Sheehan's batting average last season was .274, while his fielding average was .951. Big Tim Jordan, the Brooklyns' first baseman, is again dissatisfied with the terms of the contract he has just received. But Jordan will have to yield or get out of baseball.

GOLF.

An effort will be made by the executive committee of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association to avoid a clash-in dates, as was the case last year, with the men's metropolitan championship in fixing the time for its tournament. The men's tournament will be played at Baltusrol en- May 20 to 23, and the women hope to arrange their affairs so as to begin their tournament at the Essex County Country Club on Monday, May 25.

It is expected that the extension of the territorrial limits of the association will serve to stimulate interest.

At the meeting on Thursday the proposed amendment to Article 3, Section 1, of the constitution was adopted. This amendment read as follows:

The membership of this association shall be limited to the associate and allied clubs of the United States Golf Association within sixty miles of New York. Also those in New Haven, Conn., and all points in New England lying south and west of New Haven, and between it and New York and the whole of Long Island.

This extension, it will be noticed, is practically confined to New England and does not hold good in any other direction. The New Haven Country Club has always taken a keen interest in the game, and for several years its members have been desirous of getting within the metropolitan fold.

There is a growing sentiment among the women in this section in favor of taking part in the regular week-end handicaps, thus far monopolized by the men. If the women members were allowed to compete in these weekly affairs they would be certain to turn out in force. The Dunwoodie Country Club officials have come to the conclusion that it is their duty to encourage golf among the women members, and to further this end mixed foursomes are run off three times a month.

At present no one knows what woman is ahead in the contest for the cup presented by Judge Endicott, of Atlantic City. According to the conditions, this cup is being played for on the point system, and those who are members of clubs belonging to the Women's Eastern Golf Association are eligible. Play began last June, and the competition will remain open until June of this year. In order that Mrs. E. F. Sanford, president of the association, may know "who is who," it will be necessary for her to receive the list of winnings from the contestants.

The third annual championship tournament of this organization, which is to take place at the Oakley Country Club, near Boston, will fall on dates somewhere between June 1 and 15. In conjunction with this tournament will be held the inter-city matches for the Griscom trophy between Boston, Philadelphia and New York teams.

ELOPING COUPLE OFF TO SOUTH AMERICA.

Any doubts that Miss Maud Tappan, of No. 29 Patterson street, Orange, has eloped with her employer, Ralph L. Salter, of Maplewood, have been removed by the receipt of a letter from Salter directed to the young woman's parents. He announces the couple are on the way to South America and that he will divorce his legal wife, then wed his companion. The letter contains the information that Salter consulted a lawyer before eloping. His words to the parents of the young woman who left her home with him are:

"We feel that we have done perfectly right. I consulted my lawyer about the matter and he said it is no crime, but a clear case of pure love."

Salter also informed the Tappans that he had left his wife his property, valued at $600, and $100 in cash, and considered that a fair and square arrangement. He wrote to the father of the girl that he would leave to a "man of reasoning ability to judge the action as being fair and square."

The heartbroken mother of the girl has refused to disarrange the dining room table, on which were articles of her missing daughter, and the handkerchief and little trinkets left by the girl the day she went away are still undisturbed.

THREE YEARS EACH FOR SILK MILL STRIKERS.

Belvidere, Feb. 3.—Before Judge Shipman, in the Warren County Court, held here Friday, John Ports, Frank Varcano and Giovana Regis, silk mill strikers, who worked for the Standard Silk Company of Phillipsburg, and who assaulted Gustave Delcurto, an alleged "scab" workman, were called up. After a severe lecture each man was sentenced to three years in the State prison and to pay the costs of prosecution.

In the case of Annabile Rista and James Foriana, two other silk mill strikers who were tried for assaulting Joseph O'Corto because he was a nn-union worker, the jury, after deliberating twenty-eight hours, reported that no agreement could be reached. The foreman informed Judge Shipman no change in the vote of 9 to 3 in favor of conviction could be attained, despite many ballots. The jury had previously announced an inability to agree, but the court refused to discharge the twelve men at that time, hoping for a verdict. The court last night thanked the jurors for their efforts and discharged them.

Hair Burned, But Saves Gems.

Miss Dora Brody, daughter of Joseph Brody, of No. 37 High street, Paterson, had her hair badly singed and her face and hands burned while trying to extinguish a small fire in a bedroom of her home Thursday night. At first the girl tried to extinguish the flames, but when she found that she would be unable to do so she ran into another room and managed to save all the family jewelry.

FROZEN FIRE MAINS.

In justice not alone to the residents of the Netherwood section but to Fire Chief Doane, it is eminently proper that there should be an investigation of the cause for the alleged frozen hydrants which were responsible for the inability of the firement to quench the blaze that destroyed the home of Richard H. Letcher last night. It is not surprising to learn that the property-owners in the vicinity feel that they have a real grievance and that they have joined in a demand for an immediate probe.

For some time The Daily Press has called the attention of the authorities to the necessity for better fire protection in that section, suggesting that there is urgent requirement for a fire house in the vicinity. That such protection should have been afforded long ago there is no question but it is not probable in view of all the facts at hand that had there been a fire house in the locality, it could have been of any real service. The fault appears to have been with the water mains. These, it is alleged, were frozen and as a result the work of the firemen was seriously retarded.

The reason for such an alleged condition furnishes the ground for an investigation. It is taken for granted that under proper conditions, frozen water mains are next to an impossibility. Why there should have been water in the pipes should be explained so that the blame may be placed.

We respectfully suggest that Mayor Fisk give his immediate attention to the request of the complaining taxpayers in the Netherwood section. They are entitled to what they ask, that is to know who is to blame for the almost total destruction of Mr. Letcher's home.

IT SHINES AT LAST.

The Newark Star, a real live newspaper, makes its initial bow to the people of New Jersey today, although report has it that the paper has been existing for some time. Today's issue, however, gives every evidence of what a State paper should be. For some months past, it has been dragging along but it was hard to tell whether it was intended for New York or New Jersey circulation, the general appearance leading to the belief that it catered to Gotham readers. Now The Star launches out as a true Jersey paper with the whole State as its field for live news. The name of James Smith, Jr., at the head of the editorial page is a guarantee that the newcomer is going to be an ambitious sort of an article in the way of newspaper enterprise.

DR. BUCKLEY EXONERATED.

After a hearing in the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, the committee appointed by Bishop Burt to look into the charges made against the Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, editor of The Christian Advocate, by the Rev. George A. Cook, of Brandon, Vt., announced Friday that it had dismissed the charges. The commission stated that Dr. Buckley had violated no principle of morality nor broken any rule of the Church.

The charges grew out of the trial four years ago of the Rev. Dr. Borden P. Bowne, of Boston University. The complaint against Prof. Bowne was also made by Mr. Cook, and Bowne was defended by Dr. Buckley. Recently Mr. Cook charged that reports and editorials in The Christian Advocate as to the Bowne trial were untruthful and not fair to the testimony. The report exonerating Dr. Buckley means an end of the charges.

EXPLAINS MAHOMETANISM

Rev. Dr. Herring Says Mahomet's Religion Does Not Lift Men High Enough.

CHRISTIANITY IS SUPERIOR.

The Lord Triumphed Over Temptation But Mahomet Surrendered to It—The Bible Versus the Koran.

"Mahometanism or Christianity," was the subject of the discourse in the special series, delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night. In this series Dr. Herring is giving an interesting explanation of comparative religions, all of which tends to strengthen the Christian belief and faith. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"In less than half an hour we are to try to get a grip on some of the cardinal features of Mahometanism, to search out its strength, to discover its weakness and to see how the religion of Jesus surpasses it in appealing to and satisfying the real need of men.

"Mahometanism holds 233 millions of people in its grasp, and 161 millions of these are under Christian rule. It is not true today, however, as Carlyle once said that 'a greater number of God's creatures believe in Mahomet's word at this hour than in any other word whatsoever.' For the Christian religious according to the latest estimate dominates the world to the number of 530 millions.

"What do these people believe? They believe in the unity of God. 'God is one,' said Mahomet, as he saw his people steeped in idolatry. He brought his people, therefore, a better religion.

"They believe also in Islam—which means submission to God.

"They believe in prayer five times daily; in almsgiving, not the propriety of almsgiving but that a tithe of all a man possesses belongs to the poor.

"Mahomet also accomplished this good for his people. He destroyed idolatry, limited polygamy and taught temperance. The people were lifted a step higher because of his teaching.

"The first thirteen years of his teaching were fruitful of good. He deteriorated the last ten years of his ministry. The temptation of power came to him as it came to our Lord but Mahomet failed.

"Contrast it with the teaching of the Lord. Where does Mahomet fail? First, in his conception of God. To Mahomet God was great, but a wise loving Father you do not see. He is apart from men, requires obedience but He never condescends to them, all that men can do is to fear Him. Take Mahomet's teaching as a whole, where does it fail?

"I. In his thought of God. He presents the picture of an arbitrary God, who is apart from men, who requires their obedience but never condescends to them; a God that men are not to love, but rather to fear.

"In one of the commentaries on the Koran, it is said, 'that when God resolved to create the human race, He took into His hands a clod of earth, the same whence all mankind are made. He divided the clod into two equal parts, threw half to hell, and said, "This to the eternal fire, and I care not;" the other half He threw to heaven saying, "This is to Paradise, and I care not."'

"II. Mahomet fails in showing the relation in which each man stands to God. The root idea of life to him is Islam, which means submission—submission to what? Submission to an infinite despot. Christianity teaches submission but it is not submission to an arbitrary will but to a heavenly Father to whom each individual is of great value.

"Christianity teaches that God is not so infinite that He cannot come into touch with men. He is the High and Holy One that inhabiteth ternity, and likewise dwells with him of a lowly and contrite heart.

"III. Mahomet failed in that his religion antagonizes progress. It is vain that a man studies God's world, for such study does not improve his digestion nor do his wandering eyes discover Paradise. Man needs to know only the Koran. The result is tremendous illiteracy in Mahometan countries.

"We are to read our Bible for moral and spiritual light but God has invested us with a mind to study His universe and we may more and more realize how the heaven and the earth declare the glory of God.

"IV. Mohametanism is devoid of the forgiving spirit of Christianity. It inculcates revenge instead.

"After his victory at Mecca one of Mahomet's prisoners said, 'And who will take care of my little girl?' You know what Christ would have said. Mahomet said, 'Hell fire.'

"Mahametanism while it lifts men out of savage conditions does not lift them high enough. To them God is not a Father, man is not of infinite value to God, and there is no gentle spirit of forgiveness and another chance for man."

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR 27TH ANNIVERSARY OF Y.P.S.C.E.

In commemoration of the twenty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the Young People's Society of the Christian Endeavor in this country, Rev. E. P. Johnson, D. D., of New Brunswick, preached a special sermon at Trinity Reformed church last night. His topic was "The Lord Hath Need of You," and the address was a powerful appeal for Christian workers in the Christian Endeavor Society and in the church. The local Endeavorers have been active in the church for the past twenty-two years.

The lesson of the evening was descriptive of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem and the text was taken from it, Mark, 3:11, "The Lord hath need of him." The preacher spoke of the need of workers in the Christian field at home. "This church," he said, "stands for Jesus Christ here, and means Jesus Christ to the people of this community. The Master's need is the church's need, and the Christian Endeavorers' work is work for the church. The Master needs the help for his cause, and we can best give this help in helping his church and thus benefiting those for whom He died. Heaven needs our help for the realization of the church's plans. It is a call for one and all. Reward awaits those who serve faithfully, and no God-fearing man can afford to neglect the call."

Theatrical Troupe Stranded.

Belvidere, Feb. 3.—The members of the Minerva Dale Gypsy Company, a theatrical troupe, of New York, were stranded here Saturday night They gave performances for two nights, but did not draw full houses. There were sixteen persons in the troupe, and their board bill was about $50. Otto Kelser, of the Hotel Belvidere, got out an attachment and held their goods. They paid part of the amount and left their moving picture apparatus as security for the balance.

Near Death at Ninety-nine.

Gloucester City, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Mary Powell, better known as "Aunt Mary" Powell, ninety-nine years old, the city's oldest resident, is seriously ill at the old Powell homstead, corner of Sussex and Market streets, from the effects of a stroke of paralysis several days ago. Fear is entertained for her recovery.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

William Logan and Martin J. Quinlan have been removed as tenders of the draw-bridge at the foot of Gregory avenue, Passaic, and their places have been filled by George Rice and J. Hillman. This action was taken by the joint committee of the Bergen and Passaic County Boards of Freeholders.

This morning Dr. William H. White, of New York, assumed the duties of house physician of the Paterson General Hospital, succeeding Dr. La Fayette Lake, who last evening completed his sixteen months' service on the intern staff and will now take a position with the New York State Hospital at Ward's Island.

The complete success of the Saturday night early closing movement in Paterson became an assured fact Saturday afternoon, when the three largest department stores in that city voluntarily joined the movement, and hereafter will close their places of business at 9 o'clock every Saturday night.

Allen Burchett, eighteen years old, of South Vineland, and Kate Irene Holmes, seventeen years old, of Vineland, announced their wedding Friday. The knot was tied on January 15 at the Presbyterian parsonage by Rev. Dr. D. H. King. The secret was effectively kept from a large circle of friends.

Peter Burnett, manager of the Bottlers' Protective Union of Atlantic City, is strangely missing. His accounts have been examined and have been found to be correct. His wife is ill from worriment over the fear that her missing husband has met with foul play. He has been missing since last Friday.

In the Bayonne Police Court Saturday Recorder Lazarus held Morris Reubin, a butcher, for the grand jury on a charge of having assaulted Julius Edelstein. Both are well known members of the Congregation B'nai Joseph. Reubin is said to have been boycotted by the other members. Reubin and his two sons were ejected from the synagogue Saturday and the former's arrest followed.

Former Westfield Man's Job.

Frank H. Brown, formerly of Westfield, a superintendent of the Public Service street railway department, has been appointed superintendent of the street railway lines in Woonsocket and Pawtucket, R. I. He has been superintendent of the Pawtucket lines since he left the Public Service Corporation. Supervision of the lines in both cities will be turned over to him today.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

It is probable that there will be a big turnout of voters of both parties at the February Council meeting to be held tonight, for at this time the resignation of Owen Mohan, for five years marshal of the borough police, will be presented to the Mayor and Council. Janitor John W. Wagner, of the borough building, will also tender his resignation. Both men are prompted to resign because of dissatisfaction with the Mayor. At tonight's meeting it is probable that Mayor Swackhamer will propose another name for borough recorder. He appointed David S. Campbell last month, but the appointment was not endorsed by the Council.

"A Spiritual Election" was the topic of Rev. W. W. Casselberry's sermon at the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning. This sermon was preached several weeks ago, and was repeated yesterday by request. There was a large congregation and special music.

Henry S. Garretson, recently appointed postmaster to succeed Dr. P. W. Brakeley, assumed his duties at the local postoffice Saturday morning. He received his commission from Washington Tuesday, but waited until the first of the month to begin his work.

It is reported that a Newark real estate syndicate has purchased a tract of seventy acres in the heart of Stelton and will cut it into building lots, erect dwelling houses and start a real estate boom there.

The quarterly meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was held in the session room last night. The reports of the various departments showed the parish to be in a flourishing condition.

The mercury took another drop yesterday, and the ice farmers have hopes of cutting the winter's crop within a few days. By the way, the ground-hog must have seen his shadow yesterday.

Miss Mae Garretson will entertain the G. E. Club at her home tonight.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir, of Newark, were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Muir's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyer, of Park avenue.

The Port Watch Society and B. Y. P. U. held a joint meeting last night in the parlors of the Baptist church. Captain H. B. Saunders led the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Sotepel, of Brooklyn, were the guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Buckley.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

The township report is in the printer's hands and will be ready for distribution this week.

The monthly communion was held at the morning service at the Baptist church yesterday.

Mrs. Helen Flannery, who has been quite ill for two weeks, is able to be around again.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bechstein will leave on Wednesday for an extended trip through the South, and while away they expect to visit Florida, Louisanna and California. They will return home in the spring. The trip is taken chiefly for the benefit of Mr. Bechstein's health.

William Shields, who has been under the care of his aunt in Metcuchen, during a protracted seige of inflammatory rheumatism, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home in this place.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church is planning to attend the union meeting at Warren chapel, North Plainfield, Thursday night, to be held in the interest of local option.

Mrs. Theodore Van Pelt, of Grand avenue, whose condition was reported to be serious last week, rallied on Saturday and is now steadily improving.

Miss Flora Gognine spent a pleasant week-end visit with her brother at Westfield and returned to her duties as teacher in the public school this morning.

Mr. Robbie Addressed the Boys.

General Secretary Kenneth Robbie, who will resign from his work at the local Y. M. C. A. to take a position as financial secretary of the association at Springfield, Mass., addressed a meeting of the boys' department in the boys' room at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. His topic was "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth," the text being taken from Ecclesiastic 12:1. Mr. Robbie urged the boys to firmly identify themselves with the association work and to work conscientiously for the best interests of the Y. M. C. A.

HASTEN 'MESSAGE LAWS'

Governor Decides to Get Nearly all His Measures Before Legislature Quickly.

MANY TO BE PUT IN TONIGHT.

Among Them Is a Public Utilities Bill, Modifying Those Already Introduced—Others Enumerated.

Governor John Franklin Fort is understood to be prepared to do all in his power to see that his request for a short session of the Legislature is carried out, and will, accordingly, have bills ready for introduction this week covering the subjects on which he asked for the enactment of laws in his inaugural message. Tomorrow will witness the beginning of the fourth week of the session, and as the legislation which the Governor demanded covers a wide range and includes matters that will be a source for much debate, he is said to have decided to get a majority, if not all, of his measures before the Senate and House without further delay.

All four of the utilities bills now in provide for a commission that will have power to regulate rates charged by public service corporations in some degree or other. They would all do away with the present State Railroad Commission. The Robbins bill fixes an age limit that is said to have been intended as a means of keeping Borden D. Whitting, of the Railroad Commission, from being named to the proposed new board.

The measures intended to bring about the enactment of the laws sought by the Governor will, in addition to the utilities bill, include:

A bill for the creation of a civil service commission and to provide that all appointments to the civil service, State, county and municipal, shall hereafter be on the basis of merit. It is probable that the bill will provide a referendum for municipalities and counties, but will be effective in the matter of State offices when signed by the Governor. Senator Ackerman, of Union county, introduced a bill late in the session of the last Legislature providing for a State civil service board, but it failed of passage in the House because of features that were considered objectionable by some members.

A bill establishing a department of corporations, with a commissioner at its head, who shall, on approval of the Governor and the Attorney-General, grant certificates of incorporation. The proposed commissioner will be empowered to regulate the capitalization of corporations and clothed with authority to prevent stock watering.

A bill to create the distinct and separate office of commissioner of motor vehicles. There will probably be other automobile measures. In this line it is proposed to increase the license fee from the present small sum to a minimum or sufficient amount to make the income from this source something like a quarter of a million dollars annually, the funds to be expended in repaving and repairing roads as well as extending State highways.

A bill to provide that whatever voting machines are located the people shall vote at the election of next November whether or not the machines shall be retained. It will prohibit the further purchase of machines, meanwhile.

A bill to abolish the State Board of Arbitration, five members; salaries, $1,200 per year each.

A bill to create a single-headed department of riparian lands and to bring about reforms in that bureau, among other things abolishing the State Board of Riparian Commissioners, costing, with the salary of the secretary, $8,000 per year.

A bill providing for a State Board of Health of five members and a president, to be appointed by the Governor, and to have a professional medical man as secretary. The board to replace the present body and the State Sewerage Commission, which together cost the State $56,000 last year.

A bill to abolish the Potable Water Commission of five members, at $1,000 per year, established last year, and to repeal the law under which the five Passaic Flood District Commissioners hold office. In place of the ten officials, with the aggregate salaries of $17,500 per year, the new bill will provide for a State Department of Water with a single head.

A bill providing for the abolition of the three State Oyster commissions and their "dependencies," and for the creation of the Oyster and Shell Fish Department, with a single commissioner at its head. The oyster commissioners cost the State $27,000 last year.

A bill to establish a department of public reports, with a single head. It is to be the duty of the "State Editor" to censor all matter for publication at State expense and to prevent what is now considered reckless waste of money for such work.

A bill for the establishment of a department of public accounting, to be headed by a State expert, whose duty it shall be to go over the books of all departments and officials and to file an annual report, as well as special reports, on the result of his work.

A bill providing for the abolition of the county boards of taxation. This measure will be a repealer of the law of 1900, which created the boards, and will offer a new method of procedure.

Bills providing for the amendment of the State constitution. One proposed amendment would place the limit on the number of Assemblymen at 100 instead of 60. Another would divide the State into Assembly districts as in the days before the districts were abolished and provision made for the election of Assemblymen by counties. A third proposition would change the constitution so that municipal and general elections might be separated. The Governor would have matters so arranged that municipal officers would not be elected in a Gubernatorial or Presidential year. That would mean a change in the terms of some State and municipal officials. Most sweeping of the proposed amendments is that for the complete reorganization of the State judiciary. That, too, will be provided for.

A bill providing for the pensioning of members of the pudiciary who may be stricken in office or who may desire to retire at the age of 70 after twenty-one consecutive years of service.

Mr. Fort in his inaugural asked for sweeping excise reforms. All were to be aimed at securing observance of the Bishops laws of 1906 and other statutes. One law for which he asked would make provision for a simple and effective revocation of license by the granting authority in cases of violation. It is said that none of the excise measures will go in at this time.

It has been rumored that the administration bills would be opposed by men of the Governor's own party. It is probable that whatever Republican opposition there may be threshed out in caucus, as the bills looked upon as those desired by the Governor will no doubt be considered by the Senate and House majorities.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO KENNETH ROBBIE THURSDAY

Plans are being completed for a farewell reception to be tendered to General Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the Y. M. C. A., at the association Thursday night. The occasion will also give opportunity to the members to meet Herbert E. Parker, the new secretary, who will succeed Mr. Robbie February 15. While the date has not yet been definitely settled upon, Thursday night has been practically decided upon by President J. W. Gavett, of the association.

A committee of the association trustees, consisting of Albert B. Beers, Morris C. Van Arsdale and W. D. Murray, has been appointed by President Gavett to take charge of the affair. In connection with the reception, the entire building will be thrown open to the members of the association and refreshments will be served. Mr. Robbie is expected to have some sort of a farewell address on the occasion and Mr. Parker will also speak.

Y. M. C. A. Trimmed at Passaic.

In a closely fought game at the Passaic Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, the Plainfield five was defeated in the Association State League contest by a score of 30-28. The score was 15-9 in favor of Passaic at the end of the first half. A dispute as to the score was settled by Referee Charles B. Morse in favor of the Passaic five, giving them the victory. Gilmore, Jacot, Collier and Miner did the scoring for the Plainfield five.

WANTS KINDNESS IN GREETING.

Poet Objects to Salutation Without the Proper Spirit.

The poet was quite cast down. A friend met him and asked after his health, and this is what he said: "Why do people persist in saying 'Good Morning' when the spirit of Good Morning is not there? Why not give a blow? Then one could offer some resistance to this Monday morning saultation from people who care not whether the morning is good or not; who only want to thrust themselves upon you. Better, far, a silent entrance than a greeting from which the life has fled. What does 'Good Morning' mean unless it carries sympathy? So many 'Good Mornings,' and not one little bit of kindness—how hard and metallic most of them are! The first one I got was from a gruff man with a harsh voice. He has set all my nerves to jangling, why could he not leave me alone? Then, in a moment, a girl came and bent over my shoulder. Her voice was sweet and womanly. Her 'Good Morning' soothed me. One day I came along Broadway. The memory of the 'Good Morning' I received will never leave me. I looked into eyes upon which the dew of the morning had fallen—out of which the light of heaven had streamed. It made the whole day different. I believe I could have smiled back at the gruff man if I had been so greeted to-day." "But, my good poet," said his friend, in a hurt tone, "is that meant for me? Have I set your nerves to jangling?" "God be thanked, no! You are the first man I've met whom I haven't felt like murdering. Here, give me your hand, let me shake it again, and get into sympathy with my kind." "What an odd fellow," said his friend, as he watched the poet walk away.

WHAT SHE WOULD HAVE SAID.

Lucky for Poet That American Woman Was Not His Spouse.

A witty and popular American lady was recently dining with a literary coterie in London, when some one started a conversation about the methods of working adopted by authors. Among the many instances given was that of a well-known poet, who, it was said, was in the habit of writing at night and in the early morning, and who was wont to rouse his wife and exclaim about four o'clock: "Maria, get up; I have thought of a good word!" Immediately on receiving this signal, the poet's obedient helpmate would arise and make a proper note of the thought-of word. About an hour after a new inspiration would seize upon the bard, and he would then call out: "Maria, get up, get up! I've thought of a better word!" The company generally listened to the story with admiration, but the bright-eyed American remarked: "Well, if he'd been my husband, I should have replied: 'Alpheus, get up; I've thought of a bad word!'"—London Tit-Bits.

Red Tape in France.

There is now lying in the Paris morgue a mummy that is the cause of a dispute between the police, who insist that it is an unidentified corpse, and the owner, who is quite sure that it is a piece of furniture. The dispute is the sequel to a fire in a flat. The firemen found the mummy amid the ruins of a cupboard. It was placed in a sack and conveyed to the morgue "for identification." The owner of the flat has done everything possible to get it back. But the police reply to all representations with the question, "Is a mummy a corpse—yes or no?" "Yes," says the owner, "but—" "There is no but," declare the police; "a mummy is a corpse, and this is the place for corpses."

Shorter Dinners.

Nothing has done more to shorten the over-elaborate dinner than the custom of restaurant dining. In a cafe one feels easy at inviting people to steak with two vegetables, a salad and cheese and coffee. At home oysters and soup, entrees and dessert would also have been deemed necessary. So many people dine in restaurants now that this simplicity is creeping into the cheerfully selected little home dinner. One may invite even one's formal acquaintances to dinner without taxing, as someone puts it, either "the limitations of the cook, the hostess, the family purse, or the patience of the guests."

But Seeing Is Believing.

Three business men of Chicago, one of whom is said to be rather "close" in financial matters, were on their way to luncheon one day, when they were stopped by several sisters of charity, soliciting alms. Each one of the three men contributed something; but when one of the sisters inadvertently solicited from the "close" man a second time, he protested politely that he had already done his part. As the three continued on their way, one whispered in the ear of the other, "I believe him, but I did not see it." "I saw him do it," whispered back the second man, "but I don't believe it."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Very Important.

"Everybody nowadays seems to be wearing uniforms," said Mr. Sirius Barker, querulously. "The army, the navy, the police, the railroad men, the theater employes—everybody has some kind of special costume." "That's so," answered the policeman to whom he was relating his troubles. "Well, what I want to know is this: What's the use of having any plain citizens' clothes at all?" "Great Scott, man! There must be something for the detectives to disguise themselves in."

SENTENCE SERMONS.

Blowers are poor builders.

Killing hope is moral suicide.

Sow happiness and reap heaven.

Every man is made up of many men.

You can never find rest by retreating from duty.

Men are not uplifted without the lever of love.

Every time you serve a superstition you enslave your soul.

Too many of us are blaming fate for the fruitage of our fears.

Many people who pray for barrels of blessing set out only teacups.

The door of opportunity is not much use to the man who is asleep.

It's hard for the pulpit to see truth when it fixes its eyes on the treasury.

It takes more than ability to knock the church to open the doors of paradise.

Some folks think they are pious because the sight of pain gives them pleasure.

There never yet was a sermon that could have any force on a head full of fashion.

The burdens of earth demand that our hearts be nourished with the bread of heaven.

Some folks feel sure they are building on rock because their hearts are hard as flint.

The spirit of brotherhood never needs to hire billboards to have its good deeds made known.—Chicago Tribune.

SAYINGS OF SAGES.

Victory changes oft her side.—Homer.

As the mother, so the daughter.—German.

Those that are quick to decide are unsafe.—Greek.

Keep cool and you command everybody.—St. Just.

He who abandons his poor kindred, God forsakes him.—Spanish.

He is safe from danger who is on guard, even when safe.—Syrus.

Curses are like processions; they return to whence they came.—Italian.

By far the most valuable possession of all to all men for life is skill.—Hipparchus.

Death and love are two wings which bear men from earth to heaven.—Michael Angelo.

MERE OPINION.

Good cheer never passes a dividend.

High living is frequently the cause of low spirits.

That is not charity which expects a return on its investment.

The first business of spite is to damage the heart in which it was born.

Only a foolish bride will choose a prettier maid to be her guest of honor.

Any fool has sufficient inventive genius to enable him to lie most of the time.

When a man begins to get up at six o'clock on Sunday morning he may as well admit that he is growing old.

No man is justified in believing that he is unlucky. If he had not had good luck he would never have pulled through his boyhood.

"No!" he said, with an oath. "I am not. Go ahead!"

She unhooked the receiver. After a second or two her low, even voice responded. There came a pause. She rested one elbow on the walnut shelf, the receiver tight to her ear. Then:

"Mr. Quarrier, please. Yes. Mr. Howard Quarrier. No, no name. Say it is on business of immediate importance. Very well, then; you may say that Miss Vyse insists on speaking to him. Yes, I'll hold the wire."

She turned, the receiver at her ear, and looked narrowly at Mortimer.

"Won't he speak to you?" he demanded.

"I'm going to find out. Hush a moment!" and in the same calm, almost childish voice: "Oh, Howard, is that you? Yes, I know I promised not to do this, but that was before things happened. Well, what am I to do when it is necessary to talk to you? Yes, it is necessary. I tell you it is necessary. I am sorry it is not convenient for you to talk to me, but I really must ask you to listen. No, I shall not write. I want to talk to you tonight—now! Yes, you may come here if you care to. I think you had better come, Howard, because I am liable to continue ringing your telephone until you are willing to listen. No, there is nobody here. I am alone. What time? Very well; I shall expect you. Goodby."

She hung up the receiver and turned to Mortimer:

"He's coming up at once. Did I say anything to scare him particularly?"

"One thing's sure as preaching," said Mortimer. "He's a coward, and I'm glad of it," he added naively, relighting his cigar, which had gone out.

"If he comes up in his motor he'll be here in a few minutes," she said. "Suppose you take your hat and go out. I don't want him to think what he will think if he walks into the room and finds you waiting. You have your key, Leroy. Walk down the block, and when you see him come in give him five minutes."

Her voice had become a little breathless, and her color was high. Mortimer, too, seemed apprehensive. Things had suddenly begun to work themselves out too swiftly.

"Do you think that's best?" he faltered, looking about for his hat. "Tell Merkle that nobody has been here if Quarrier should ask him. Do you think we're doing it in the best way, Lydia? By God! It smells of a put up job to me. But I guess it's all right. It's better for me to just happen in, isn't it? Don't forget to put Merkle wise."

He descended the stairs hastily. Merkle, the butler, held his hat and gloves and opened the door for him.

Once on the street his impulse was to flee—get out, get away from the whole business. A sullen shame was pumping the hot blood up into his neck and cheeks. An electric hansom flew noiselessly past him. He shrank back into the shadow of a porte cochere. The hansom halted before the limestone basement house. A tall figure left it, stood a moment in the middle of the sidewalk, then walked quickly to the front door. It opened and the man vanished.

The hansom still waited at the door. Mortimer, his hands shaking, looked at his watch by the light of the electric bulbs flanking the gateway under which he stood.

There was not much time in which to make up his mind, yet his fright was increasing to a pitch which began to enrage him with that coward's courage which it is impossible to reckon with.

Fumbling with his latchkey, but with sense enough left to make no noise, he let himself in, passed silently through the reception hall and up to the drawing room floor, where for a second he stood listening. Then something of the perverted sportsman sent the blood quivering into his veins. He had him. He had run him down! The game was at bay.

An inrush of exhilaration steadied him. He laid his hand on the banister and mounted, gloves and hat brim crushed in the other hand. When he entered the room, he pretended to see only Lydia.

"Hello, little girl," he said, laughing. "are you surprised to"—

At that moment he caught sight of Quarrier, and the start he gave was genuine enough. Never had he seen in man's visage such white concentration of anger.

"Rather unexpected, isn't it?" said Mortimer, staring at Quarrier.

"Is it?" returned Quarrier in a low voice.

"I suppose so," sneered Mortimer. "Did you expect to find me here?"

"No. Did you expect to find me?" asked the other, with emphasis unmistakable.

"What do you mean?" demanded Mortimer hoarsely. "What the devil do you mean by asking me if I expected to find you here? If I had, I'd not have traveled down to your office today to see you; I'd have come here for you. Naturally people suppose that an engaged man is likely to give up this sort of thing."

Quarrier, motionless, white to the lips, turned his eyes from one to the other. He looked at Lydia, and his lips moved. "You asked me to come," he said.

"No; you offered to. I wished to talk to you over the wire, but"—her lip curled, and she shrugged her shoulders—"you seemed to be afraid of something or other."

"I couldn't talk to you in my own house, with guests in the room."

"One moment," interposed Mortimer blandly. "As long as I traveled down town to see you and find you here so unexpectedly I may as well take advantage of this opportunity to regulate a little matter. You don't mind our talking shop for a moment, Lydia? Thank you. It's just a little business matter between Mr. Quarrier and myself, a matter concerning a few shares of stock which I once held in one of his companies bought at par and rumbled to ten and— What is the fraction, Quarrier? I forget."

Quarrier thought deeply for a moment; then he raised his head, looking full at Mortimer, and under his silky beard an edge of teeth glimmered. "Did you wish me to take back those shares at par?" he asked.

"Exactly! I knew you would! I knew you'd see it in that way!" cried Mortimer heartily. "Confound it all, Quarrier, I've always said you were that sort of man; that you'd never let a friend in on the top floor and kick him clear to the cellar. As a matter of fact, I sold out at 103⅝. Wait! Here's a pencil. Lydia, give me that pad on your desk. Here you are, Quarrier. It's easy enough to figure out how much you owe me. Lydia, would you mind hunting up that check book I left here before din"—

He had made a mistake. The girl flushed. He choked up and cast a startled glance at Quarrier. But Quarrier if he heard made no motion of understanding. Perhaps it had not been necessary to convince him of the conspiracy.

When he had finished his figures he reviewed them, tracing each total with his pencil's point; then quietly handed the pad to Mortimer, who went over it and nodded that it was correct.

Lydia rose. Quarrier said, without looking at her: "I have a blank check with me. May I use one of these pens?"

So he had brought a check! Had he supposed that a check might be necessary when Lydia called him up? Was he prepared to meet any demand of hers, too, even before Mortimer appeared on the scene?

"As long as you have a check with you, Howard," said Lydia quietly, "suppose you simply add to Mr. Mortimer's amount what you had intended to offer me."

He stared at her without answering.

"That little remembrance for old time's sake. Don't you recollect?"

"No," said Quarrier.

"Why, Howard! Didn't you promise me all sorts of things when I wanted to go to your friend, Mr. Siward, and explain that it was not his fault I got into the Patroons club? Don't you remember I felt dreadfully that he was expelled—that I was simply wild to write to the governors and tell them how I took Merkle's clothes and drove to the club and waited until I saw a lot of men go in and then crowded in with the push?"

Mortimer was staring at Quarrier out of his protruding eyes. The girl leaned forward, deliberate, self possessed, the red lips edged with growing scorn.

"That is the amount," she said.

"That was a dirty trick!" said Mortimer heavily. He took the pad, added a figure, passed it to Lydia, and she coolly wrote a total, underscoring it heavily.

"That is the amount," she said.

Quarrier looked at the pad which she had tossed upon the desk. Then he slowly wetted his pen with ink and, laying the loose check flat, began to fill it in. Afterward he dried it and, reading it carefully, pushed it aside and rose.

"It wouldn't be advisable for you to stop payment, you know," observed Mortimer insolently, lying back in his chair and stretching his legs.

"I know," said Quarrier, pausing to turn on them a deathly stare. Then he went away. After awhile they heard the door close. But there was no sound from the electric hansom, and Mortimer rose and walked to the window.

"He's gone," he said.

Lydia stood at the desk examining the check.

"We ought to afford a decent touring car now," she suggested—"like that yellow and black car of Mr. Plank's."

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THE heat, which had been severe in June, driving the last fashionable loiterer into the country, continued fiercely throughout July. August was stifling.

Nobody who was anybody remained in town except some wealthy business men and their million odd employees, but the million, being nobodies, didn't count.

Quarrier's huge limestone mansion, looming golden in the sun, was tenantless. Its owner, closing even The Sedges, his Long Island house, and, driven northward for a breath of air, was expected at Shotover.

The house of Mrs. Mortimer was closed and boarded up. A caretaker apparently guarded Major Belwether's house, peeping out at intervals from behind the basement windows. As for Plank's great pile of masonry edging the outer hundreds in the north, several lighted windows were to be seen in it at night, and a big yellow and black touring car whizzed down town from its bronze gateway every morning with perfect regularity.

For there was a fight on that had steadily grown hotter with the weather and Plank had little time to concern himself with the temperature or to mop his red features over the weather bureau report. Harrington and Quarrier were after him—horse, foot and dragoons. Harrington had even taken a house at Seabright in order to be near in person, and Quarrier's move from Long Island to Shotover House was not as flippant as it might appear, for he had his private car there and a locomotive at Black Fells Crossing station, and he was within striking distance of Rochester, Utica, Syracuse and Albany, which was what Harrington thought necessary.

The noise of the fray in the papers, which had first excited then stunned the outside public, continued in a delirium of rumor, report, forecast and summing up at the week's end.

Scare heads involving everybody and everything, from the district attorney to Plank's office boy, succeeded one another. Plank's name headed column after column. Already becoming familiar in the society and financial sections, it began to appear in neighboring paragraphs.

Plank scarcely noticed what the press said of him. He was too busy; his days were full days, brimming over deep into the night. Undaunted, inexorable, slow to the verge of stupidity at times, at times swift as a startled tiger, this new, amazing personality steadily developing, looming higher, heavier, athwart the financial horizon, in stature holding his own among giants, then growing gradually, inch by inch, dominated his surrounding level sky line.

Harrington, old, hoary, seamed, scarred, maimed in onslaughts of long forgotten battles, looked long and hard upon this weird of his own dead youth which now rose towering to confront him, menacing him with the armed point of the same shield behind which he himself had so long found shelter—the law!

The closing of the courts enforced armed truces along certain lines of Plank's battle front, the adjournment of the legislature emptied Albany. Once it was rumored that Plank had passed an entire morning with the governor of the greatest state in the Union and that the conference was to be repeated. A swarm of newspaper men settled about the governor's summer cottage at Saratoga, but they learned nothing, nor could they find a trace of Plank's tracks in the trodden trails of the great spa.

Besides, the racing had begun. Desmond, Burbank, Sneed and others of the gilded guild had opened new clubhouses. There was plenty of copy for newspaper men without the daily speculative paragraph devoted to the doings of Beverly Plank. Some scandal, too—but newspapers never touch that. And after all it was nobody's affair that Leroy Mortimer drove a large yellow and black touring car, new model, all over Saratoga county. Perhaps the similarity of machines gave rise to the rumor of Plank's presence; perhaps not, because the car was often driven by a tall, slender girl with dark eyes and hair, and nobody ever saw that sort of pretty woman in Plank's car or saw Leroy Mortimer for many days without a companion of that species.

Mortimer's health was excellent. The races had not proved remunerative, however, and his new motor car was horribly expensive. So was Lydia. And he began to be seriously afraid that by the end of August he would be obliged to apply to Quarrier once more for some slight temporary token of that gentleman's good will. He told Lydia this, and she seemed to agree with him. This pleased him. She had not pleased him very much recently. For one thing she was becoming too friendly with some of his friends, Desmond in particular.

Plank, it was known, had opened his great house at Black Fells. His servants, gamekeepers, were there, his stables, kennels, greenhouses, model stock farm—all had been put in immaculate condition pending the advent of the master. But Plank had not appeared. His new seagoing steam yacht Siwanoa still lay in the East river, and at rare intervals a significant glimmer of bunting disclosed the owner's presence aboard for an hour or two.

The Ferralls were at Shotover with their first installment of guests. Sylvia was there, Quarrier expected, because Kemp Ferrall's break with him was not a social one, and Grace's real affection for Sylvia blinded neither her nor her husband to the material and social importance of the intimacy. Siward was not invited. Neither had an invitation to him been even discussed in view of what Grace was aware of and what everybody knew concerning the implacable relations existing between him personally and Howard Quarrier.

Bridge, yachting and motoring were the August sports. The shooting set had not yet arrived, of course—in fact, there was still another relay expected before the season opened and brought the shooting coterie for the first two weeks. But Sylvia was expected to last through and hold over with a brief interlude for a week's end at Lenox. So was Quarrier, and Grace, always animated by a lively but harmless malice, hoped to heaven that Plank might arrive before Quarrier left.

"Oh, to see them together in a small room," she sighed ecstatically in Sylvia's ear. "I'd certainly poke them up if they only turned around sulkily in the corners of the cage and evinced a desire to lie down."

"What a mischief maker you are!" said Sylvia listlessly.

There seemed, in fact, little to interest her that summer at Shotover House. Her interest, too, in people had seemingly been extinguished. Once or twice she did inquire as to Marion's whereabouts and learned that Miss Page was fishing in Minnesota somewhere, but would return to Shotover when the shooting opened. Somebody, Captain Voucher perhaps, mentioned to somebody in her hearing that Siward was still in New York.

The hot month dragged on. Quarrier came; Agatha Caithness arrived a few days later—scheme of the Ferralls involving Alderdene—but the Siwanoa did not come, and Plank remained invisible. Leila Mortimer arrived from Swan's Harbor toward the middle of the month, offering no information as to the whereabouts of what Major Belwether delicately designated as her "legitimate." But everybody knew he was at last to be crossed off and struck clean out, and the ugly history of the winter, now so impudently corroborated at Saratoga, gave many a hostess the opportunity long desired.

"Gad," said Alderdene, "she's well rid of him!"

"A suit before a referee would settle him," mused Voucher. "He hasn't a leg to stand on. Lord, the same cat that tripped up Stephen Siward!"

Fleetwood's quick eyes glimmered for an instant in Quarrier's direction. Quarrier was in the billiard room, out of earshot, practicing balk line problems with Major Belwether, and Fleetwood said: "The same cat that tripped up Stephen Siward. Yes. But who let her loose?"

"It was your dinner. You ought to know," said Voucher bluntly.

"I do know. He brought her," nodding toward the billiard room.

"Belwether?"

"No," yawned Fleetwood.

Somebody said presently: "Isn't he one of the governors? Oh, I say, that was rather rough on Siward, though."

Sylvia, passing the hall, glanced in through the gunroom door with an absentminded smile at the men and their laughing greeting as they rose with uplifted glasses to salute her.

Beverly Plank had no time for anything outside of his own particular business except to go every day to the big, darkened house in lower Fifth avenue where the days had been hard on Siward and the nights harder.

Siward, however, could walk now, using his crutches still, but often stopping to gently test his left foot and see how much weight he was able to bear on it, even taking a tentative step or two without crutch support. He drove when he thought it prudent to use the horses in the heat, usually very early in the morning, though sometimes at night with Plank when the latter had time to run his touring car through the park and out into the Bronx or Westchester for a breath of air.

But Plank wanted him to go away, get out of the city for his convalescence, and Siward flatly declined, demanding that Plank permit him to do his share in the fight against the Intercounty people.

When it was that he first began to like Plank very much he could not exactly remember. He was not perhaps aware of how much he liked him. Plank's unexpected fits of shyness, of formality, often and often amused him. But there was a subtler feeling under the unexpressed amusement and, beneath all, a constantly increasing substratum of respect. Too, he found himself curiously at ease with Plank as with one born to his own caste. And this feeling, unconscious, but more and more apparent, meant more to Plank than anything that had ever happened to him.

Then one sultry day toward the last week in August a certain judge of a certain court, known among some as "Harrington's judge," sent secretly for Plank. And Plank knew that the crisis was over. But neither Harrington nor Quarrier dreamed of such a thing.

Fear sat heavy on that judge's soul—the godless, selfish fear that sends the first coward slinking from the councils of conspiracy to seek immunity from those slowly grinding millstones that grind exceeding fine.

Fear sat heavy on that judge's soul.

Quarrier at Shotover, with his private car and his locomotive within an hour's drive, strolled with Sylvia on the eve of her departure for Lenox with Leila Mortimer; then when their conference was ended he returned to Agatha calmly unconscious of impending events.

Harrington at Seabright paced his veranda awaiting this same judge, annoyed as two boats came in without the expected guest. And never for one instant did he dream that his creature sat closeted with Plank, tremulous, sallow, nearing the edge of cringing avowal, only held back from utter collapse by the agonizing necessity of completing a bargain that might save himself from the degradation of the punishment that had seemed inevitable. All day long he sat with Plank. Nobody except those two knew he was there. And after a very long time Plank consented that nobody else except Siward and Harrington and Quarrier should ever know. So he called up Harrington on the telephone, saying that there was in the office somebody who desired to speak to him. And when Harrington caught the judge's first faint, stammered word he reeled where he stood, ashen, unbelieving, speechless.

HOPE Y. M. C. FIVE LOSES BY THREE POINTS TO N. B. H. S.

Although leading by a score of 11-4 at the end of the first half, the Hope Y. M. C. five lost to the New Brunswick High School team Saturday night. The Hope boys were lamentably weak on the defense in the second period, and the school boys ran up twenty-six points on them, winning out 30-27 in the last few minutes of play. McCathum, centre for New Brunswick, got six baskets from the floor, and good team work by the school boys got the victory. Snyder excelled for the local team. The lineups and summaries:

New Brunswick H. S.		Hope Y. M. C.
Denhute	right forward	Rimmer
McElhaney		Snyder
McCathum	centre	Mortimer
Van Seakle	left guard	Brownell
Atkinson	right guard	Kenney

SUMMIT HIGH WINS CLOSE GAME WITH LEAL'S, 25-20.

In a fast and closely-contested game at the Summit Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon, the Leal's school five was defeated by the Summit High School team by a score of 25-20. At the end of the first half the score was 16-9 in favor of Summit. Oakes and Asbury did the best work for the Summit five, scoring four baskets apiece. The Leal's boys took advantage of fouls called for four points, and Martin's seven baskets from the floor put him in the lead for the local five. The lineups and summaries follow:

SUMMIT.		LEALS.
Oakes	right forward.	R. Lawrence
Asbury	centre.	Rushmore
Buckley	right guard.	Duke

Goals from field: Martin, 7; Oakes, 4; Asbury, 4; Buckley, 2; Edgar, 1; R. Lawrence, 1. Free throws: R. Lawrence, 4; Oakes, 1; Buckley, 1; Asbury, 1. Referee, H. Long. Umpire, Adams. Timers, Moody and Bennis. 15 and 20 minute halves.

Israel C. Coddington.

Israel C. Coddington, a life-long resident of Mount Horeb, died at his home there Saturday. Pneumonia was the cause. Mr. Coddington was eighty-five years old and was well known throughout this vicinity. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Eugene Pope, of Mount Horeb, and Mrs. James H. Pope, of Mine Brook, both of whom formerly resided in Plainfield. He is also survived by a brother, William H. Coddington, of Mount Horeb. The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow morning at 10:30 and from the Mount Horeb M. E. church an hour later. Burial will be in the Mount Horeb cemetery.

JOHN A. NEIGHBOR FOUND DEAD IN BED

Stricken with heart failure while he was sleeping, John A. Neighbor, a well known local resident, was found dead in bed at his home on East Second street at 10:30 this morning. The discovery was made by his wife who became worried at his failure to respond to her calls for him to get up. She noticed that he had not changed his position for quite some time and summoned her son, Edwin Y. Neighbor, the latter immediately calling Drs. Blair and Buchanan. The physicians pronounced him dead, stating that he had evidently passed away about 8 o'clock.

Mr. Neighbor was fifty-one years old and was a native of Hunterdon county. He came to Plainfield about thirty years ago and was one of the first letter carriers appointed in the city. His last place of employment was with the Plainfield Cab Company and he left the office there last night without mentioning that he felt ill in any way.

The deceased was the son of Calvin and Mary Neighbor who are still living and serised on Manning avenue, both being about eighty years old. He is also survived by his wife; one son, Erwin Y. Neighbor, of Manning avenue, and three daughters, the Misses Florence, Cora and May Neighbor, who reside at home. There are two brothers, Grandin Neighbor, of Dunellen, and David Neighbor, of New York, and two sisters, Mrs. Louis Young, of Roseville, and Mrs. Anna Garrison, of Jersey City.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Vail, of Crescent avenue, are planning a trip to Jamaica and will leave this week.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of East Front street, has returned from a visit with her mother, Mrs. Ramsey, of Lebanon.

J. Van Neste Stillwell, of this city, has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. De Mott at Whitehouse.

Mrs. Charles Livingston Hyde, of Truell Hall, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. William S. Stryker, of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierson, of Jersey City, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bailey, of Duer street.

Mrs. W. H. Vactor, of Martinsville, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Willard Suydam, of this city, has returned home.

Miss Gertrude Eiskamp and Miss Edith Erickson, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue.

Rev. E. B. Saunders, of Ashaway, R. I., who preached at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Sabbath morning, left here today for New York State.

Miss Lulu Randolph, of West Eighth street, left the city a few days ago to enjoy an extended visit in Washington, Pittsburg and several cities in Ohio.

Rev. L. L. Croom, of East Third street, is detained at home by illness. With Mrs. Croom he was caught in the snowstorm of January 23 while attending the executive board meeting of the Baptist Association at Hopewell and contracted a severe cold.

J. C. Ballard, of West Fourth street, who was removed to the hospital a few days ago suffering from an attack of typhoid fever, is doing well under the care of Dr. P. B. Cregar. Mr. Ballard is a recent graduate of the engineering department of Cornell, and has been securing practical knowledge at the Pond Machine Tool Works.

ENGLAND AIDS PORTUGAL.

Gibraltar, Feb. 3.—The Second British cruiser squadron has been ordered hence to Lisbon.

Vigo, Feb. 3.—The British Atlantic fleet, which has been lying in this port, has been ordered to Lisbon. It will sail today.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Embury Smith, of Madison avenue, are parents of a son born to them this morning.

NORMAL SCHOOL SENIORS AT BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL

Paul Scarborough, of Mountain avenue, Miss Garrison, of Elmer, and Miss Conover, of Harrison, three seniors of the State Normal School, came to the North Plainfield High School this morning for practical teaching experience in the class rooms of the Somerset street school. Mr. Scarborough will make a special study of eighth grade work, Miss Garrison will study third grade work and Miss Conover will be in the fourth grade classes. The three will remain at the schools daily for the next month, boarding in North Plainfield while they have the teaching experience.

This practical work is a part of the course of State Normal school graduates. Members of the senior class are each year assigned to certain schools in the various counties for practical teaching experiences. While at the various schools, they study the work of certain grades and occasionally teach the classes. They are under direction and supervision of the regular teachers, whose work they occasionally take during their month's course in practical teaching.

While the firemen were doing their utmost to stop the progress of the blaze, Chief of Police Kiely secured as many of his officers as could be hurriedly rounded up and put them at work taking out furniture. There were numerous volunteers also on hand and nearly everything on the first and second floors was saved. The lot comprised a piano and many valuable pictures. While everybody who worked suffered from the cold, the firemen fared as badly as at any time in years. The water froze almost as soon as it landed and ice was everywhere. The men were coated with it, their hands stuck to the nozzles and the rungs of the ladders almost defied climbing. Chief Doane remained at his post with boots filled with water and hands so badly numbed it was practically impossible for him to grab hold of anything. Besides this, the smoke was heavy and thick and on more than one occasion threatened to overcome the workers. It was due to the blinding smoke that Fireman Carroll was accidentally struck.

The struggle was kept up despite the disheartening drawbacks and in the end the blaze was put out but not before the house was in ruins. The upper part caved in shortly before midnight and the only thing that could be done was to pour what water was available directly upon it. The recall was sounded at 1:10 this morning, the firemen at that time being in the last stages of exhaustion from cold and exposure.

Chief Doane was warm in his praise today for the kindness of the neighbors in opening their homes to the firemen and police and especially to Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr. Her residence was placed at the disposal of the departments as soon as they arrived and warm fires were started to help the men thaw out. Mrs. Wharton also had hot coffee made and it was greatly appreciated, at times reviving men who were about exhausted.

Mr. Letcher, the owner of the house, is practically a new-comer to Plainfield, removing here about two years ago from New York. He is the senior partner of the firm of Letcher & Norton, tin plate importers and metal manufacturers. He bought the residence from George E. Cathcart and had it entirely remodeller inside and beautifully furnished. The family was at dinner when smoke was first detected and a hurried search showed that a fire was in progress.

Ex-Assemblyman Tillman for Taft.

Rahway, Feb. 3.—Former Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of this place, now an inspector of denatured alcohol for the federal government, favors Taft for the Republican nomination for President. Tillman says Taft, as a diplomat, is the finest ever, and would make the strongest man the Republican party could nominate. For a long time Tillman has been wanting to meet Taft, and when they got within speaking distance of each other at Trenton, recently, Tillman only heard of the fact an hour after the happening. "Wasn't I mad," observed Tillman.

CHURCH GAINED 627,500

GROWTH BEHIND THAT OF 1906.

Phenomenal Growth of Various Denominations in This Country During 1907—The Estimates.

Figures compiled by Dr. H. K. Carroll, of this city, who was in charge of the religious census of 1890, and who annually compiles the statistics of all American religious bodies, shows that 1907 was a comparatively poor year for the churches; their total gains in communicants having been only about two-thirds of what they were in 1906. Dr. Carroll estimates that there are 32,983,156 Christian cummunicants in the United States, of whom a little more than one-third belong to some branch of the Catholic church. The net additions for the year, he states to have been 627,546. In the preceding year this net gain amounted to 931,740. The grand total shows 161,731 ministers and 210,199 churches.

In point of numbers of communicants, the ten leading religious bodies of the country, according to Dr. Carroll's figures, are as follows: Roman Catholic, 11,371,970 communicants; Methodist Episcopal, 3,036,667 communicants; Southern Baptist, 1,981,749; Colored Baptist, 1,778,824; Southern Methodist, 1,673,892; Northern Presbyterian, 1,312,075; Northern Baptist, 1,155,422; African Methodist, 850,000; Protestant Episcopal, 821,240. Largest proportionate gains for the year are shown by Dr. Carroll's summary to have been among the Christian Scientists, German Evangelical Synod, Lutherans, Friends, Methodists, Catholics, Presbyterians, Congregationalists and Baptists.

Episcopal leaders are expressing curiosity as to the source of the figures which Dr. Carroll publishes regarding their church and which have led him to the conclusion tat the number of Episcopal communicants fell off to the extent of 15,883 last year. Dr. Carroll credits the Protestant Episcopal church with 821,240 communicants in the United States. The "Living Church Annual," which is considered to be semi-official, gives the total number of Episcopal communicants in this country as 860,998. It states, furthermore, that there was an increase last year of 23,925, growth being at the rate of three per cent. That these latter figures are at least approximately correct is indicated by the report made to the last General Convention of the Committee on the State of the Church. It is further pointed out by Episcopal leaders that that church has been growing constantly for a number of years at the rate of form two to four per cent., and that nothing has occurred to disturb that growth or materially to change the rate.

Lutherans have no less than twenty-three different organized bodies, besides about 200 independent churches. The total Lutheran membership is 2,022,605, the net increase for the year having been more than 65,000.

HEART DISEASE FATAL TO MISS VAN BOSKERCK.

Miss Elizabeth F. Van Boskerck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. VanBoskerck, of 542 West Seventh street, died early yesterday morning, of heart failure, resulting from a severe case of nervous prostration, from which she had been suffering for a long time. Her condition, although a cause of much anxiety to her family, had not been considered dangerous until Saturday, when her heart developed alarming signs of exhaustion under which she sank rapidly. Her sudden death is a great shock to her family and many friends.

For many years Miss VanBoskerck has been prominent in all the social activities of the city. She was a member of Grace Episcopal church, and for many years active in the work of the Altar Society and of the Guild of the parish. She was at one time one of the managers of the Children's Home, and devoted much of her personal time and effort in the work of that institution. Her loss will be keenly felt by all who knew her.

Funeral services will be held at the late home tomorrow morning at 11:15 o'clock. Interment will be made at Woodlawn cemetery, New York, tomorrow afternoon.

Jones In Toils Again.

Sheridan Jones, a vagrant colored man with a love for booze, was arrested by Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope late Saturday night on Somerset street, "down and out" as a result of too many libations. At his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver this morning he was sentenced to five days' imprisonment in the North Plainfield lock-up. This is the seventh appearance of Jones' name on the borough's police docket within a year.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Runyon and Mrs. Clinton F. Randolph, of Madison avenue, leave tomorrow for Braidentown, Florida, where they will remain for some time.

COMPTROLLERSHIP FIGHT

Caucus to Choose Republican Candidate to Be Held at Noon Tomorrow.

BEGINS TO LOOK LIKE WEST.

Camden Man Already Has Twenty-five of the Twenty-seven Votes Necessary for a Choice.

There will be so much work on behalf of those who aspire to succeed State Comptroller J. Willard Morgan in his $6,000-a-year berth when the members of the Legislature get at Trenton tonight that in this immediate vicinity the grind of the law mill will be a secondary consideration. The joint caucus of the Senate and House Republican majorities will be held at noon Tuesday, and meanwhile there won't be any time lost by those who are fostering Comptrollership booms.

Essex County's G. O. P. men will be down early in the morning to look over the field and late in the day there will be a conference of the Essex Assembly delegation. It is understood that the eleven men from that county will line up actively in support of Chairman Alfred N. Dalrymple, of their county committee.

It looks very much as if State Assessor "Davy" Baird, of Camden, will find the votes for his candidate, former Sheriff Harry J. West. Baird doesn't often fall when he sets out to corral an office and he certainly has set out to make West Comptroller.

As has been published on numerous occasions, Morgan, the present Comptroller, is a candidate to succeed himself, but it is opposed by Baird and others from his own county.

It looks as if West would have the following votes in caucus: Atlantic, 2; Bergen, 2; Burlington, 3; Cape May, 2; Cumberland, 2; Middlesex, 1; Morris, 3; Ocean, 1; Passaic, 4; Union, 5, and possibly two or three more from Mercer and other counties.

There are forty Republicans in the House and fourteen in the Senate—fifty-four in joint caucus. Assemblyman George W. Housel, of Mercer, is in the South, and unless his proxy, in the hands of Assemblyman Edwin H. Ginnelly, is recognized, there will be fifty-three votes in Tuesday's caucus, with twenty-seven necessary for a choice. If the counties given cast their votes for West he will have within two of a majority, and it seems pretty certain that the necessary two will be forthcoming.

Morgan, although abandoned and opposed by his own county of Camden, claims eight votes for his own re-election in caucus. Senator John Boyd Avis, of Gloucester, is said to have some, and Essex has eleven Assemblymen and a Senator to vote for Dalrymple. It will be the aim of some of the Dalrymple men to bring about a combination of the field against West and for Dalrymple.

As a matter of fact, the Essex situation is a bit complicated in itself. George Everett Halsey, of East Orange, treasurer of the Republican County Committee, was persuaded to become a candidate for the Comptrollership some weeks ago. His name has not been withdrawn, and Dalrymple's has been added. It is said that the South Jersey men are using the fact that there have been two Essex names put forward as an argument in favor of the rest of the State getting on the West Band wagon.

Dalrymple has never declared himself a candidate. It is asserted by those who profess to have the inside facts in hand that the recent visit of County Clerk Frank F. Patterson, Jr., and J. Wesley Sells, of Camden, to Newark was with a view of deciding what should be the course of the West men in case they were unable to hold the votes sufficient to control the majority caucus.

It is understood that when Sells and Patterson discovered that there wasn't "anything doing for West in Essex" they and Baird practically agreed that if they couldn't land the Comptrollership for West their strength would be cast for Dalrymple. It hasn't hurt the West boom any to keep the State stirred up with a swarm of candidates and numerous boomlets.

CRANFORD NEGRO KILLED IN POOL ROOM QUARREL.

Following a quarrel in a Cranford pool room, Saturday night, Joseph Hewlett, a well known colored resident of that place, was struck on the head by a club in the hands of James Hunt, also colored. He dropped to the floor and died within a few minutes. Hunt fled from the place but was arrested later in Newark, the police there having received a description of him.

The body of Hewlett was brought to Cole's undertaking rooms in this city and an autopsy was performed by County Physician Westcott. It was afterward removed to his home in Cranford. He was regarded as an industrious man and a law abiding citizen. He was quite well known in Plainfield.

RECORDER FOR DUNELLEN

David S. Campbell, Endorsed by Councilmen, the Second the Mayor Proposed.

BUT THERE IS NO MARSHAL NOW

Owen Mohan's Resignation Accepted, And Office Is Left Vacant In Hopes That He May Reconsider.

David S. Campbell, Mayor Swackhamer's choice for borough recorder at Dunellen, was endorsed to the office by the legal two-thirds vote at the meeting of the Dunellen Council held in the borough building last night. The Mayor's vote for his candidate gave him the necessary majority. Mr. Campbell has already begun the work of his office, and Dunellen has a recorder for the first time in two years.

But now there is no chief marshal in Dunellen. Owen Mohan, who resigned his office at the head of the borough police force, because of his refusal to work with Mayor Swackhamer, after the latter's alleged refusal to "give first aid to the injured" in the case of William Cummings, injured near the round house Sunday, presented his formal resignation to the Dunellen fathers last night. Hoping that he may be urged to reconsider, the Council did not act upon the resignation at last night's meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Mohan came in and turned over his badge, keys to the borough building, revolver of office and club to the Mayor, quitting the job. The resignation of John W. Wagner, janitor of the borough building, was also formally presented and accepted by the Council. Wagner said that he resigned because he "couldn't get along with the Mayor." No successor was appointed, but the appointment will be made by the building committee of the Council, of which Councilman Churchill is the chairman.

Upon the suggestion of the Mayor, the Council ruled that copies of the borough ordinances in full up to date be printed for distribution, so that all Dunellenites will now shortly know just what's what in the borough. The Mayor was authorized to place the contract at a cost not to exceed $30 and will have the printed ordinances ready for distribution within two weeks. A Board of Health ordinance, providing for a Board of Health of five members in Dunellen, which had been framed in accordance to the conditions now existing, was passed by the Council. Isaac Stites, tax collector and treasurer, presented his report, which showed a neat balance on hand from taxes already collected.

The appointment of David S. Campbell as Dunellen recorder received the unexpected endorsement of the Council. At the organization meeting of the Council New Year's Day, the Mayor appointed H. L. Hathaway as recorder. The appointment was endorsed unanimously by the councilmen, but the appointee resigned from the office immediately after the meeting. At last month's meeting, the Mayor recommended David S. Campbell, but though a motion to endorse his apointment was made, it was not seconded and nothing could be done.

At last night's meeting, Mayor Swackhamer presented the same name. A motion for endorsement was made by Councilman Apgar and seconded by Councilman Churchill. These two voted "aye" when the question was brought, together with Councilman Berkheiser. Councilmen Starker and Richards voted against the endorsement of the candidate, and the Mayor's "aye" was the vote necessary for the deciding two-thirds vote. Mr. Campbell was the last borough recorder, having served consecutively for the past four years, up to a year ago, when no one was named for the office. There has been no work for a recorder in Dunellen since January 1, but the Mayor was acting in the office until an appointment was ratified.

Amateur Numbers at Theatre.

Amateur numbers were again given at the New Plainfield theatre last night and as on previous occasions a large audience was in attendance. The prizes were awarded as follows: First, Linden Journeaux, fife soloist; second, the Vroom brothers, piano and vocal artists; third, Hanrahan brothers, instrumentalists. Others who competed were Patrick Moran, vocalist, and a quartet of colored youths who dove their heads into flour in search of coins.

CITY DEPARTMENTS' PAY

Ordinance Effecting Policemen Enacted But That Concerning Firemen Held Up.

WAS REFERRED TO COMMITTEE.

Pay Proposed For Various Officers and Members of the Two Departments—Council Gets Busy.

The ordinance granting an increase in salaries to the employes of the fire department was given a temporary "knock-out" at the February meeting of the Common Council, last night. After being placed on first reading, it was referred back to the fire committee because of a dissatisfaction over the provision covering the call men. Under the new schedule a call man is required to perform ninety-per cent. duty, for which he is to receive $55 a year and if called upon to act as captain he is to receive $100 a year and $82.50 for acting as engineer.

In the opinion of Mr. Buxton the call men were well paid and there should be an adequate penalty for non-performance of duty. He had been informed that last year fully thirty men were excused at various times for the reason that they were out of town when fires occurred. He thought it an easy matter for one to be out of town at such times and such men he did not believe to be of any great benefit to the department. He favored a provision that would give the city the right to drop a call man who failed to perform less than sixty-five per cent. duty. It was on his motion that the ordinance was referred back.

Mr. Hibbard wanted it understood that from now on call men would be fined $1 for every alarm they failed to answer and he read section fifteen of the present ordinance to show that this fine can be imposed. Under the present rules a call man must perform seventy-five per cent. duty.

It was Mr. Mygatt's idea that it was not absolutely necessary to pass the ordinance at this meeting, and as the increase would date from January 1, when granted, nothing would be lost by laying it oved until another meeting. On the motion to refer the ordinance back, Councilman Buxton, Gloak, Hall, Montgomery, Mygatt and Frank Randolph voted in the affirmative and Councilmen Hibbard, C. C. Randolph, Suydam and Tolles in the negative.

The ordinance as introduced last night means an increase of about $1,100 to the fire department. It does not provide for any increase in the salary of Chief Doane, which is now $1,000. First Assistant Chief Andrew Jennings is raised from $1,000 to $1,080 and the veterinary surgeon from $150 to $165. The engineer receives $82.50 a year as at present and the captain is increased from $924 to $1,020.

The drivers, tillermen and other regular firemen are divided into five classes, similar to the police department, as follows:

Class A, five years and over, $840 to $960; Class B, four years and over, $792 to $900; Class C, three years and over, $726 to $840; Class D, two years and over, $660 to $780; Class E, one year, $720. It is also provided that in giving the call men $55 a year, they are to furnish their own clothes.

Some of the firemen are dissatisfied with the above scale, contending that it is not as fair as the one adopted for the police department. The new scale of wages in the police department which went into effect last night following the adoption of the ordinance on third reading, is as follows:

Pleads Non Vult.

Samuel W. Rushmore, proprietor of the search light plant at South avenue and Berckman street, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Health Officer Thurlow with a violation of the plumbing ordinance. It was declared that the defendant had installed a plumbing system in his new factory without first filing plans with the Board of Health and securing a permit. Rushmore entered a plea of non vult and decision in the case was reserved until tomorrow morning.

Fined for Driving Decrepit Horse.

Charged by W. A. Coddington, counsel for the local branch of the S. P. C. A., with driving a horse unfit for work, John Ingy, of New Market, was fined $10 in the city court this morning. Witnesses testified that the animal was a sorry sight and Dr. F. C. Herbert declared that he had warned Ingy last week that he was liable to be arrested if he continued using it. The defendant is employed by the Meyer family, of New Market.

JAIL FOR A PEACEMAKER

Coming Here to Get his Wife, Edward G. Wood is Arrested on Her Warrant.

SEADERS WILL PRESS CHARGES

Bound Over for the Grand Jury, Philadelphian Must Answer Bigamy Charge as Well as Cruelty.

Coming to this city from Philadelphia to try and make peace with his wife, who left him after alleged abuse at their Philadelphia home in December, Samuel G. Wood, who married Miss May Seader, daughter of Peter Seader, last June, was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss at the Seader home in the borough yesterday on a warrant which has been in the hands of the local police since Mrs. Wood left her husband after the maltreatment. At his hearing in the borough court before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy, last night, Wood was held under $200 bond to await the action of the Grand Jury. No one furnished the money, and he was taken to the county jail at Somerville this afternoon.

At the hearing, Mrs. Wood testified that about Christmas time, her husband had beaten and abused her in their home in Philadelphia, and because of this cruel treatment, she left him and came to this city, where she has since been living at the home of her parents on Steiner place. As soon as she arrived here, Mrs. Wood swore out a warrant for her husband's arrest on charges of cruelty and assault with intent to kill. Wood remained in Philadelphia, however, and was not arrested until yesterday, when he came to North Plainfield with his sister and attempted to make up with his wife, urging her to come back home to Philadelphia with him.

As a side issue in the case, Miss Wood got into a heated argument with Mrs. Seader, mother of Mrs. Wood, and the two were arrested and brought before Borough Recorder Dolliver, who suspended sentence after a warning. Because of the non-appearance of the recorder, at the hour of court, Chief Weiss summoned Mayor Townsend for the hearing, but when the Mayor arrived the recorder, who had come late, was hearing the case.

Another phase of the case, which will be brought out at Wood's hearing before the grand jury, is the alleged statement that Wood has not secured a divorce from Adam Seader's daughter, Miss Lavinia Seader, whom he married in the borough about four years ago. By this marriage there was one child, which is now being cared for by Mrs. Wood, mother of the arrested man, at her home in Philadelphia. Wood claimed that he secured a divorce some time ago, but his first wife alleges that she was deserted in Philadelphia after the child was born. Wood has been employed in Philadelphia with a paint and varnish firm.

CLOTHING CATCHES FIRE; CHILD FATALLY BURNED

As the result of terrible burns sustained through her clothes catching fire from a stove at her home, yesterday afternoon, Harriet Waldron, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Waldron, colored, of South Second street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital at 1 o'clock this morning. The child's body was affected from her head to her feet and she suffered great agony until the end.

No one but two smaller children were at home when the accident occurred and as near as they can tell, Harriet stood before the fire warming her hands. The grate door was open and her dress caught from the exposed coals. The moment she detected the flames, she ran screaming to the yard, the breeze fanning the blaze at every step. Her clothing was mostly of flannel material and in a very short time every garment was consumed.

Mrs. Mary Cline, a neighbor, attempted to extinguish the flames but had little success because of the child's terror. When they were finally put out a call was sent for Dr. Cregar and he gave temporary relief, afterward summoning the ambulance. The physicians could do little more than ease her sufferings as much as possible as the burns were seen to be fatal.

WILL INVESTIGATE FIRE

On Mayor's Recommendation, Councilmanic Committee Will Make a Probe.

THAT FIRE HOUSE COMING.

At Last, Netherwood Section Will Get Proper Protection—Were Hydrants Frozen?

Acting promptly on the suggestion of Henry L. Hall and other wealthy residents of the Netherwood section that an investigation of the water supply, the hydrants and mains in that part of the city be made at once so that there would not be a repetition of the experiences at Sunday night's fire when R. H. Letcher's house was completely destroyed, Mayor Charles J. Fisk sent a communication to the Common Council, last night, calling for immediate action.

In his communication the Mayor said that he had been informed that a number of hydrants in the Netherwood section were out of order Sunday night, that little or no water was available. He did not doubt but that the firemen had performed their full duty, but he believed the public to be entitled to a full investigation and he urged that this be made at the earliest possible time.

After the Mayor's message was read a resolution was introduced by Councilman Robert E. Hall, a member of the fire committee, and a resident of the Netherwood section, authorizing the committee to secure plans for a fire house in the East End of the Second ward, the same to be equipped with a steamer, hose cart and other necessary apparatus and appliances, and to ascertain the cost and report as soon as possible. The resolution carried with it an appropriation of a sum not to exceed $100.

In offering the resolution Mr. Hall briefly recited the facts concerning the Sunday night fire declaring that the residents in the Netherwood section are greatly exercised over the conditions which they believe call for speedy remedy. Mr. Hall was one of those who rendered assistance at the fire and he pictured the attempt of the firemen to battle with the flames against such great odds, the apparently frozen hydrants and low water pressure.

As chairman of the fire committee, Mr. Hibbard said that he favored the resolution. Mr. Gloak took exception to specifying the Second ward. He believed that the location of the proposed fire house should be left to the discretion of the committee. He said that he had always favored this improvement, but in his opinion the house should be located at some convenient point in the First ward and that would give the Second ward ample protection.

Exception was taken to Mr. Gloak's stand by Mr. Hall, who maintained that the engine house should be placed in top of the hill in the thickly settled portion; adding that it would be far easier for the department to cover the First ward from that location, as it would be down hill, instead of being compelled to ascend the hill from some point in the First ward. It was finally agreed to omit the words "Second ward" from the resolution, the question of location to be decided by the committee at a future time.

In speaking of the matter after the meeting, Mr. Hall assured a reporter for The Daily Press that a full and complete investigation would be made of Sunday night's affair and if such a thing is possible the blame for the inability to secure an adequate water supply will be placed where it belongs. He said that words could not express the indignation felt by the residents in the Netherwood district for they realize under such conditions they would be completely at the mercy of a fire should one break out on their homes.

Fleet Through the Straits.

R. H. McCullough, of the borough, received a cablegram this morning from his son, Richard McCullough, ensign on the battleship Ohio, announcing the safe passage of Uncle Sam's fleet through the Straits of Magellan. The message was dated at Parenasch and came via Colon. The passage has been awaited with much expectancy as it is the most dangerous point in the whole trip.

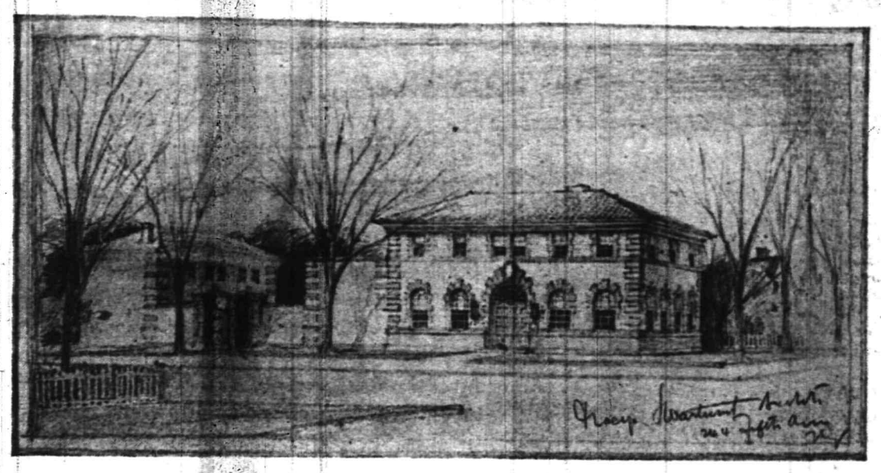
POLICE AND CITY COURT TO BE QUARTERED IN A $30,000 STRUCTURE



Accepted Design for Proposed Police Headquarters at Sycamore and Fourth Streets. Tracy & Swartout, Architects. Structure to Cost $30,000 Will Front On Sycamore Street.

Important measures were adopted by the Common Council, last night, through the police board looking toward the erection of a building exclusively for the police department and city court. Councilman Frank Randolph, as chairman of the board, offered a resolution that in view of the fact that additional facilities for the police department are needed, it had acquired the property at Sycamore and East Fourth streets, owned by Michael Quinn at an expense of $7,000 and proposed that a building for the department and city court be erected thereon.

The resolution also provided that the building should be erected in accordance with plans approved by the Common Council, and that the contract should be given to a responsible bidder who makes the most advantageous offer. The structure is not to exceed $30,000 in cost. It is proposed to issue 5 per cent. interest bearing bonds to cover the price of both the land and building and the bonds are not to extend over a period of twenty years and are not to be less than par value.

The tract upon which the new building is to be erected, was obtained several days ago. It is 60x130 and is of ample dimensions for the proposed structure and stables to be placed thereon for the keeping of the patrol wagon and horse.

After the resolution providing for the purchase of the land was adopted, another one offered by Mr. Randolph and adopted, approved the action of the board in engaging Tracy & Swartout, architects, and recommended that plans for the new building be ready for consideration at the meeting of the Common Council on Monday night, February 24.

In view of the fact that the police department intends to move before March 1, a resolution was offered by Mr. Randolph authorizing the police board to arrange with the Y. M. C. A. for the rental of the building on Sycamore street, known as the Boys' Club, for temporary headquarters for the police and city court until the new structure is ready for occupancy. The monthly rental is not to exceed $50. The resolution was adopted without objection.

This action is necessary because Henry Haurand, who has purchased the building now occupied as headquarters, wants to take possession of it on March 1, the time all liquor licenses are granted. Otherwise it would necessitate his securing a transfer later on if he should be prevented from moving at that time.

The proposed new headquarters for the police department to be erected on the city's recently acquired property at Sycamore and Fourth streets, will be a model one in every respect if the plans drawn by Tracy & Swartout, architects, are approved by the Common Council. The above picture gives an excellent idea of the exterior of the structure, together with the stables in the rear. The police board was influenced largely in the selection of the site by its close proximity to the railroad station and yet away from the busy centre of the city.

The building will be two stories in height and will be constructed of concrete, brick and stucco. The first floor will be devoted to a city court room, an office for Chief of Police Kiely, as well as one for City Judge Runyon, directly back of the court room; also reserving space for Captain Frederickson's deck, the Gamewell police system, while the cells will be located in the rear, opening into a large court. One decided advantage will be the separation of the men prisoners from the women. It is proposed to have six cells for the men and four for women. Modern toilet arrangements will be established throughout the building. The location of the chief's office will be such that he can see everything that happens on the first floor.

The second floor will be devoted to a large dormitory for the policemen who are required to sleep at headquarters, a recreation room for the members of the department and

BETTER PAY YOUR TAXES

City Fathers Authorize J. H. Cose to Enforce Collections from Delinquents.

HIS FEES HAVE BEEN FIXED.

All Personal, Poll and Dog Taxes to Be Obtained by Deputy Who Is Under a Bond.

The suggestion made in Mayor Fisk's message that special efforts be made to collect delinquent taxes, took definite form at the February meeting of the Common Council, last night, when Mr. Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, offered a resolution providing for the collection of taxes now overdue, through a deputy. John H. Cose was appointed as deputy and after he has furnished a satisfactory bond for $2,000 he will immediately begin his work of getting after all delinquents.

According to the provisions of the resolution under which he was appointed, Mr. Cose will receive fifty cents for each warrant issued, seventy-five cents for each levy, fifty cents for advertising delinquents, one dollar where he sells goods to satisfy the claim and fifty cents for each arrest that is made and 3 per cent. on collections.

The finance committee hopes through this method to secure practically all that is due the city in taxes and Mr. Cose will be instructed to be prompt and diligent in the prosecution of his work.

The taxes to be collected by Mr. Cose include personal, poll and dog where they are not paid on or before December 20 of each year. Section 43 of the laws of 1903, says that in all cases where the personal, poll and dog tax is not paid on or before the above date, the collector shall proceed in the way prescribed by law, that is he can make the collections or a deputy may be appointed for that purpose. In case of failure to settle the deputy can attach personal property and sell it and where the poll or dox tax remains unpaid he is given the right to seize the body of a person, turn him over to the county authorities and be detained in jail until the tax is paid. A copy of the tax entry and duplicate properly signed by the tax collector is sufficient authority for the deputy to proceed under the law.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEALS WITH MATTERS QUICKLY.

The Plainfield Board of Education transacted their routine business with great dispatch at the February meeting held last night at the high school. Bills amounting to about $1,000 were ordered paid, and Custodian William F. Arnold reported a balance of $55,226.73 on hand. The tax collector has turned over $4,785.67 to the school fund. Upon resolution of Mr. Lovell, chairman of the finance committee, $2,000 was ordered taken from the general fund for the manual training fund. This money is equal in amount to the State appropriation for this department, making the total amount of the manual training fund $4,000.

Mr. Abbott was the only member of the board absent. The report of the medical examiners of the schools showed that 67 pupils had been examined during the past month at the various city schools. The first report of Miss Adelaide Ball, the truancy officer, was read and highly commended by the board. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson was authorized to attend the annual convention of national school superintendents to be held at Washington, February 25.

SAVED A DROWNING BOY

Twelve-Year-Old William B. Schorb Drags Italian Lad from Raceway in Time.

HIS SECOND RESCUE IN A YEAR.

Boys Were Playing On Ice Cake Rafts When Eight-year-old Gannuzzi Falls Into Deep Water.

Prompt, heady work by William Schorb, Jr., the twelve-year-old son of William Schorb, of Front street, was the means of saving eight-year-old James Gannutz from drowning in the race-way back of French's mill yesterday afternoon. Young Schorb shoved the lad a plank as he struggled in the icy water, deserted by his other companions, with whom he had been playing "tickly bender" on the floating ice cakes, and as the lad clung weakly to it, dragged him to safety at the risk of slipping into the water himself. This is the second boy the Schorb lad has saved from drowning in the last year, for in June he rescued the five-year-old De-Nise boy in the sluiceway further up the same brook, when the little fellow had fallen in and got caught in a swirling eddy beneath the surface of the water. Schorb grabbed him by one foot and pulled him out just in the nick of time.

"Jimmie" and "the fellers," with whom his rescuer is to be reckoned, were playing "tickly" at the raceway yesterday afternoon. The water was not frozen over, but there were floating cakes of ice and the lads were "daring" each other to cross the brook by means of this floating ice as stepping stones. The water is about six feet deep where the boys were playing. "Jimmie" and another lad were riding on an ice-cake raft, when suddenly the other boy stepped off without giving him any warning. The raft immediately tipper up, and "Jimmie" went into the water. "The fellers" instantly raised the cry "Kid in!" and ran away, but young Schorb seized a heavy plank and shoving it out to where "Jimmie" was struggling beyond his depth in the icy water, shouted to him to "catch hold and hang on tight." Numbed with cold, the lad in the water could hardly grasp the plank, and it was some minutes before he was pulled to shore in safety by his young rescuer.

Having finally pulled the drowning lad ashore, Schorb took him at once to his home for dry clothes. "Jimmie" didn't want to leave the raceway, because he was anxious to recover his rubber boots, which had filled with water when he fell in, and sunk. But the rescuer insisted and Mrs. Schorb soon had him warm and dry and had sent word to his mother, who lives on Somerset street, for some dry clothes. When these arrived, "Jimmie" was sent home. The boots were recovered with a rake later in the afternoon, when the water was shut off at the dam and thus lowered sufficiently to locate them.

Funeral of Jacob Schlick.

The funeral of Jacob Schlick, the well known West End resident whose death occurred after a long illness, was held at his late home on West Third street, this afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including delegations from the Gesang and Turn Verein and Court Plainfield, I. O. F., to which he belonged. Burial was at Hilliside, the pall bearers being James Patterson, Otto Moore and Henry Hansen from the Foresters, and Adolph Barre, John Winzenreid and Carl Felber from the Gesang and Turn Verein.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Wine, Woman and Song," pronounced by both press and public to be an unqualified success and which ran for over three hundred performances at the New Circle theatre, on Broadway, New York city, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight as the annual benefit to Treasurer Sam Cunningham.

Eddie Foy, who is conceded to be America's favorite comedian, will be at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night in his latest success, "The Orchid," an English musical comedy. This piece is from the pens of six authors, the book being by James T. Tanner, Americanized by Joseph W. Herbert, lyrics by Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank, and the tuneful music by Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton. The piece is a international success, having been played two years in London, and six months in New York, at the Herald Square theatre. The world's greatest dancer, La Petite Adelaide, is a feature.

"The very best of its kind" is the universal opinion of all who have seen Lee D. Ellsworth in "A Poor Relation." From the minute Noah Vale appears on the stage until the final curtain the audience is thoroughly engrossed and interested. Lee D. Ellsworth is a joy and delight in his interpretation of "Noah Vale." His company each and every one, is said to be all that can be desired. While Ellsworth himself is pre-eminent, by reason of his exceptional ability, his company is so good that one does not feel as though he had been looking at a "one man show," such as the majority of the attractions now presented are. The play is a finished picture well put together, and skilfully planned. In addition to this the entire company presents the play in a most pleasing manner, while the clever and artistic acting of Mr. Ellsworth with his drollery, his genial simplicity, his strength and his weakness, as exemplified in "Noah Vale", makes a character study that is the dominating feature of the play. This excellent attraction will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night.

At the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night the romantic melodrama, "The Flaming Arrow," will be presented. The play is from the pen of Lincoln J. Carter, that past master in the construction of melodramas and novel effects. In addition to a company which is large and artistically strong, he has secured many novelties with which to add realism to the situation of the play. Among the features are Moon Dog, a famous warrior; Red Flash, Custer's famous Indian scout, and the man who carried Custer's last message. An interesting feature is a genuine brass band, who are graduates of Carlisle and all fine musicians. American plays by American authors should be interesting events in a community where Americanism is a dominant characteristic.

At the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, Mr. Daniel Sully will appear in his comedy-drama, "The Golden Rule," which scored tremendous success when presented for the first time a short time ago. Mr. Sully is enjoying a brilliant season with his new play, and the fact that everywhere it has been presented, the managers have insisted on a return engagement, is ample evidence that managerial judgment in this case coincides with public approval. As an example of clean, wholesome, modern American drama, "The Golden Rule" is deserving of the support of all classes of playgoers, and it is gratifying to note that Mr. Sully is meeting with the success he deserves in his efforts to present the right kind of a play to the right kind of people.

The White Sale Lasts Throughout This Week.

More New Bargains Added to the List to Make This the Greatest Week of Them All.

You can easily recognize the bargains we quote below by the well-known brands of the goods, This list added to the innumerable bargains of the WHITE SALE since the beginning will certainly make this the biggest White Sale Week you have attended in a long, long time.

The muslin underwear sale, the embroidery sale, the sheer white goods sale, are each in themselves enough to draw the economical shopper, but we add this new list as an additionel attraction for this first week in February to make a good beginning for our 1908 campaign during this recognized dullest month of the year.

EMBROIDERY FLOUNCINGS 12½c Yard.

You have had some remarkable Embroidery bargains here since the first day of this White Sale. These Flouncings at 12½c are perhaps the biggest bargain of them all, for the quality is good, both the Embroidery and the Fine Lawn they are on, and just think of the price. But Tepper's is the unusual house, for we have no money tied up on our books—Cash is always worth 6 per cent. you know, and then we discontinued trading stamps some time ago that makes 3½ per cent. more we save on every dollar's worth of goods we sell. So we CAN and DO give bargains. and these Embroideries are a good illustration, at yard ..... .12½

Sale of Furniture

Discontinued Patterns.

$30,000 Worth Choice Pieces at Lowered Prices.

Our furniture chief has just returned from one of his periodical Western trips during which he touched all the principal furniture-making points, where he picked up about $30,000 worth of handsome pieces in patterns which the makers have discontinued. It is all STRICTLY NEW FURNITURE, direct from the factory, PERFECT in every way, and as handsome as any pieces on the floor.

Each season, it should be understood, every maker cuts out of his catalogue some of the styles of the previous season, substituting therefor others that the designers have brought out—not that the discontinued ones are in any way inferior, but that they must give way to the new creations in order to maintain freshness and newness in the various lines.

Because of the fact that these patterns are discontinued they are sold to us at very low prices, and we are going to sell them to you on the same basis. The quantities are limited—$30,000 will not buy much furniture—but you will find the choice wide enough to make interesting choosing.

In the collection you will find, among other things, the following:

Dressers	Cellarettes	Toilet Dressers
Chiffoniers	Bookcases	China Closets
Brass Beds	Desks	Piano Benches
Iron Beds	Music Cabinets	Tabourettes
Sideboards	Cheval Glasses	Umbrella Racks
Parlor Suits	Bedsteads	Extension Tables

BIG BEDDING OFFER

Wherein We Present You With $13.80.

Tomorrow and throqout the week we are going to make every buyer of this bedding combination (and there will doubtless be many of them) a gift of $13.80—a straight presentation without strings to it. Read on.

One outfit consists of a Brass Bed, Box Spring, Hair Mattress and two Pillows—not inferior in character but up to our usual high standard.

The Brass Bed, which may be in all sizes, is finished in best gold lacquer, highly polished; has 2-in. continuous side posts and top rods, and seven ¾-in. filling rods in head and foot; brass husks on the corner posts, ball bearing casters.

The Hair Mattress is made in all sizes; the full size in two parts; weighing 45 lbs., filled with black hair; covered with the well-known A. C. A. ticking; also in fancy stripes, neatly tufted; edges nicely formed and bound.

The Box Spring is strongly constructed with best grade spiral springs, twines, tufts, etc., covered with best quality A. C. A. ticking or fancy striped materials.

Reg. price of Bed, $32.50; will be sold at $25
Reg. price of Mattress, $16.50; will be sold at $12.50
Reg. price of Spring, $9; will be sold at $7.50
Reg. price of Pillows, $3.80; will be sold for $3

Total regular price $61.80
This week's price $48.00
Actual saving, 20 per cent., or $13.80

SILK FLOSS MATTRESS—SPECIAL.

In conjunction with this offer we will make for one week special prices on our famous Silk Floss Mattresses. These mattresses have many good qualities. The material is a vegetable floss in which no vermin can live. They are perfectly sanitary and can be remade same as hair. They are soft and extremely light in weight, in fact the lightest mattress we know of. They are made one inch thicker than the usual mattress and may be had in one or two parts.

4 ft. 6 size, regular price $15.00, special at $11.00
4 ft. size, regular price $14.25, special at $10.50

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Within the next three weeks nearly all the star ball players of the two major leagues will pack up their traps and get under way for the sunny South. Jack Cresbro and Billy Keeler of the New York Americans will probably leave in a day or two for Hot Springs, where Clark Griffith will have the veterans of the team with him several weeks. Chesbro's early start for the Arkansas health resort has caused much favorable comment, for in other years the big pitcher remained North either coaching the Harvard varsity candidates or remaining at his home in idleness. These tactics resulted in lack of condition on Chesbro's part, and for a month or more after he joined the New York team he was of no assistance.

But after taking the baths at Hot Springs, followed by real hard work at Atlanta, Chesbro this year can have no excuse if he fails to make good. Chesbro, however, says that excuses will not be necessary, for he will be in fine physical trim when the pennant race begins and will clearly demonstrate that he is still a great dispenser of curves and shoots. Winter predicitons by ball players do not count for much, though, and friends of the New York Americans say that if Chesbro does not show his old form Griffith will be wasting time if he continues to bother with him when there are so many other pitchers on the team who are both young and ambitious.

Manager McGraw will have all his regulars and a bunch of youngsters at Marlin Springs, Tex., in a few weeks. The leader of the New York Nationals has not laid claim to the pennant, but he feels that if he can develop a good second baseman his team will make it warm for the other clubs in the circuit. Second basemen are rare nowadays—that is to say, competent ones—and managers who have such players consider themselves extremely fortunate.

Pop Anson when he lost the services of Fred Pfeffer in 1890 never found another second baseman who in his opinion came up to the standard, and yet Anson tried a dozen or more players at the bag in the years that he remained manager of the Chicago team. Many critics still insist that McGraw made an error when he let Billy Gilbert go last spring, for he has not been able to replace Gilbert with such men as Larry Doyle, Shay and Strang. Gilbert, by the way, says that he will play so fine a game with the St. Louis Nationals this year that McGraw's mistake will be amply demonstrated. That McGraw intends to have harmony among the members of the team is an accepted fact, for he has rid the team of several men who made trouble last year and also did not try their best.

GOLF.

Southern Pines Tourist, published at Southern Pines, S. C., has an interesting article under date of January 31, regarding the golf match between "Marty" O'Loughlin, the Plainfield pro, and Gilbert Nichols, the crack professional, which was won by the former by 1 up. The account of the match follows:

Before a gallery numbering up in the hundreds, and with almost ideal weather conditions, Marty O'Loughlin, professional of the Southern Pines Golf Club, defeated Gilbert Nichols, of the Woodland Golf Club, 1 up in an eighteen hole match on Thursday.

It was the occasion of the opening of the links for the season, and was fittingly celebrated after O'Loughlins great victory.

With Nichols 5 up on the turn, it looked bad for O'Loughlin, but, by a magnificant rally and the finest of uphill play, he took hole after hole and once gaining the lead, Nichols, try as he might, could not gain a lead. It was perfect golf on the second round by O'Loughlin which won the day, and the great gallery applauded and cheered as hole after hole was won by the Southern Pines lad in his uphill fight.

To beat a man of Nichols' caliber means that one has got to "travel" some, but that's just where O'Loughlin was strong and proved himself a sterling traveler. To be up against 5 up at the turn in an eighteen-hole match nearly always means defeat, but not so with "Marty" O'Loughlin, for the uphill game is his forte, and that's where he came strong.

Just to give an idea of the kind of golf that was played—Gilbert Nichols had a 33 for the first nine, the course being over 2,500 yards in length, and one requiring true golf. "Marty" O'Loughlin came back on the second round with a 32, getting the longest hole on the course, the fourth, in a 3—400 yards—how's that?

Prominent golfers from Pinehurst, among whom were Mr. W. Clark and Mr. John Peacock, and Mr. Fitzjohn, of the Country Club, and every man, woman and child interested in the great game followed the match. Carriages and riders on horseback also were in line along the roads and points of observation.

An ovation was accorded the winner after the game by his many friends and admirers, and Southern Pines in general is celebrating the fine victory.

The official scorers were Mr. J. Upton Myers and Dr. George G. Herr.

The score by holes:

O'Loughlin—4, 4, 4, 5, 4, 4, 5, 4, 5—39 3, 4, 3, 3, 3, 2, 5, 4, 5—32 Total, 71.

Nichols—2, 3, 3, 6, 4, 3, 4, 4, 4—33 4, 6, 4, 7, 4, 4, 4, 4½, 5—42 Total, 75.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Several South Jersey pastors preached on temperance Sunday, and several touched on the local option measures, as proposed by Governor Fort.

Miss Bertha Heintz, of Bridgeton, is confined to her home with a severe case of blood poisoning in one of her feet, caused by wearing a tight shoe.

A meeting of prominent Millville citizens will be held in the near future to arrange a campaign for securing an appropriation for the dredging of Maurice River.

Judge Tuller has ordered Florence Barker, the Millville girl who was found barefooted and thinly clad in a swamp a few days ago, committed to the County Hospital for the Insane.

While laughing heartily Sunday over a joke which a friend was telling, Mrs. Etta Holmes, thirty-seven years, of 137 Charles street, Camden, dislocated her jaw. She was hurried to Cooper Hospital, where her jaw was again placed in position.

Failing to see a train's approach at the Pennsylvania Railroad crossing at Wright avenue, Camden, Stanisto Rochocki, forty-eight years old, of 1056 Line street, was struck by the engine and so badly injured that he died later in the Cooper Hospital.

Former Alderman George Fischer, of Paterson, who for twenty-one years was a foreman at the mill of the National Ribbon Company, has resigned his position there and will become manager of the Etna Silk Company in the Ward street "Hamil" mill.

Under threat of expulsion no pupil in the Trenton High School will be permitted to throw snowballs near the grounds of the institution. Dr. William Wetzel, the principal, says snowballing is a bad habit to encourage, particularly near the school building.

Catching his hand in the door of a refrigerator at the Pennsylvania Railroad freightyards in Camden Sunday, Spencer Perry, forty-six years old, of 931 Lombard street, Philadelphia, was so badly injured that one of his fingers had to be amputated at Cooper Hospital.

A defective flue caused a fire at Millville Sunday in the Weatherly block, in the heart of the city, entailing a loss estimated at $18,000. The fire ruined the stock in the large department store of H. Sheffer Brothers, and badly damaged the hotel on the second floor. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Charles Tanger, residing between Clayton and Williamstown, is alleged to have struck Noble Fleming, a colored lad, without provocation, two years ago. The boy's father tried to settle the affair before a justice of the peace, but did not succeed, and in the Gloucester County courts he obtained a verdict of $100 damages.

Stricken with sciatic rheumatism while patrolling his beat Saturday night, Policeman Garrison, of Atlantic City, was found half frozen by a homeward bound citizen, who had been attracted by the officer blowing his whistle. Garrison was unable to move. The ambulance was called and he was sent to the hospital.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., February 4, 1908.

The weather man forecasts high winds, but how did he know that W. J. Bryan is due in Jersey on Thursday?

If ever the city fathers did a right thing, it occurred when they increased the salary of the city treasurer. Mr. Arnold will now draw $1,200 for his services which at that figure are cheap indeed to this municipality.

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the fire in the Netherwood section on Sunday night proved no exception to the rule. At no distant day, we are assured that that rich portion of our municipality will be properly protected for ere long a fire house will be located there.

What is the use of talking about hard times when the City of Plainfield, whose credit has always been as good as Lloyds' "A 1," is able to dispose of an issue of bonds aggregating $68,000 above par at four and a half per cent. And this at a private sale, too!

Possibly times are hard now but not for municipalities having the reputation of Plainfield—The queen city of New Jersey.

Now that the Common Council has acted promptly on the Mayor's recommendation for an investigation of the inability of the firemen to cope with the blaze at the home of Mr. Letcher on Sunday night, the councilmanic fire committee should lose no time in making its probe. As chairman of that committee, the taxpayers in general demand that he take immediate action in investigating the matter to the end that the city fathers may receive a report at the earliest possible moment. The question is, was the delay in extinguishing the flames due to the fact that the fire hydrants were frozen up or were the firemen dilatory? The whole matter should be sifted out within the next forty-eight hours for the public will brook no delay under any circumstances.

LICENSE APPLICANTS JUST NUMBER 13, YES!

Thirteen applications for liquor licenses were received at the February meeting of the Common Council, last night, one new applicant being Ellsworth C. Westcott, who seeks a license for the place to be vacated before March 1 by Henry Haurand on East Front street, adjoining the First National Bank. Mr. Haurand has purchased the building new occupied as police headquarters and proposes to move there on or before March 1.

The other new applicant is W. J. Powlison, of Red Bank, who has purchased the Hotel Kensington, succeeding J. A. Staats, who has retired from the business. No comment was made concerning the applications, last night, it being understood that they will be considered and acted upon at a meeting of the Common Council on Monday night, February 24.

Those who applied for licenses are the following:

Eastern Bottling Company and Frank Linke, wholesale; Michael Watson, Chris. Gloeckler, Alex. Findlay, Henry Windham, Jacob Blimm, Frank and George Clark, Jerome Leary, John Rafferty, W. J. Powlson, Henry Haurand and Ellsworth C. Westcott. They were all referred to the license committee, of which Councilman Suydam is the chairman, who will report on them at the appointed time.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The seventieth anniversary of the organization of the local Seventh-Day Baptist church will be observed on the coming Sabbath at the usual hour of morning service. The sixtieth anniversary was formerly celebrated in 1898, and the reports at the coming anniversary will cover in detail only for the past ten years. They will be presented by the clerk and the secretaries of the Sabbath-chool, the Young People's Society of the Christian Endeavor and the Women's Society for Christian Work.

The opening exercises will be conducted by Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, assisted by Rev. H. N. Jordan, pastor of the church at New Market. There will also be an appropriate address by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, a former pastor.

CITY ACCOUNTS AUDITED

Inspection of Finance Books in Various Municipal Departments Reported.

SOME SALARIES ARE RAISED.

City Treasurer Gets Recognition—Routine Work Transacted by the Common Council Last Night.

The complete report of Suffern & Sons, certified public accountants, covering all departments of the city was presented at the February meeting of the Common Council, last night. It is a lengthy statement of each department, giving detailed statements and figures of the financial condition of the city for the years 1906-1907. Only a small portion of the report was read and this stated that the city accounts were found to be correct in every department. Three copies of the report will be furnished the city and at the request of Mr. Mygatt, chairman of the auditing committee, he will receive one of these. Last night's report was referred to the finance committee.

In the general routine the Public Service Corporation reported that it had placed street lights on Berkeley avenue, Lyman place and Putnam avenue as ordered.

Reed & Codington, counsel for Mrs. A. B. Suydam, asked to have the sum of $27.90, an overpaid tax, returned to their client. This was referred to the finance committee. The W. C. T. U. made its annual protest against the granting of any liquor licenses, adding that the $11,000 received as fees does not compensate the city for the expense of maintaining a police department and city court. The petition was filed.

Horace M. Sherwin, whose tax of $38.36 on East Third street property had been paid twice, asked for the return of that amount. A statement from Collector W. R. Townsend attested the validity of the claim. It was referred to the finance committee, as was also a similar claim from Mrs. Eliza Maplesden, of Dunellen avenue, for the return of $1.35.

Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the district court, reported receipts for the past month to be $141.51, expenditures, $41.61, with a balance of $93.51.

Through Councilman Robert E. Hall, Daniel Dugan, of East Seventh street, reported that a light on Scott place had been out for seven nights. The matter was referred to the light committee.

Upon the request of J. A. Staats, former owner, and W. J. Powlison, the present owner of the Hotel Kensington, the liquor license was transferred from the former to the latter upon the payment of the $25 fee. It is understood that the license expires March 1 next.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that eighteen building permits were granted during the past month.

A resolution by Mr. Buxton, which was adopted, provided for an appropriation of $300 for the care of the city dump, the expenditure of the amount being left to the discretion of Mayor Fisk. Another resolution by the same member, which was adopted, approved the request of the Board of Health for an appropriation of $6,000 this year and it will be put in the annual budget and raised in the usual way. The fees, fines, etc., coming through this department, will be turned over to the city treasurer as heretofore.

The dog license for the coming year was fixed at $2 for each animal in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Buxton. Mr. Montgomery objected to this on account that the owner of a dog receives no license or tag and he was the only member who voted against the resolution.

Salaries Raised.

Still another resolution by Mr. Buxton, which was adopted without a dissenting vote, raised the salary of Overseer of the Poor Alexander D. Ayers from $600 to $800 a year and the salary of City Treasurer William F. Arnold was increased to $1,200 a year. In offering the resolution giving Mr. Arnold the additional amount, Mr. Buxton remarked that he thought all the members would be pleased to vote for the change in the treasurer's salary.

A resolution offered by Mr. Montgomery, and adopted, gave the Shade Tree Commission $500 until the time of making the annual appropriations and adoption of the budget.

An attempt was made on the part of Mr. Buxton to reconsider the vote adopting the rules of the Common Council for 1908 for the purpose of changing the name of the light and trees committee to that of street lighting committee, but Mr. Mygatt objected on the ground that previous notice was necessary before amending the rules. He thought it was a bad precedent to establish. Mr. Buxton finally agred to give notice that he would introduce his motion at the next meeting of the Council, according to the rules. The reason for the change in the name of the committee is that since the appointment of the Shade Tree Commission that body has undertaken the work of the light and trees committee so far as it refers to trees.

The sum of $65, realized from the sale of manure, was in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Hibbard, transferred from the fire fund to the pension fund of the fire department.

On motion of Mr. Montgomery the city clerk was authorized to have 100 copies of the amended rules of order of the Council printed for the use of the members.

The ordinance, introduced by Mr. Gloak at a previous meeting, providing for the vacation of Hill street, was adopted on second reading, ordered engrossed and advertised and Monday night, March 2, was fixed as the time when a public hearing will be granted prior to the final adoption of the ordinance.

A resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, and adopted, authorized City Engineer Gavett to sell the ash cans and all movable property at the city crematory on DeKalb avenue. Another resolution calling for the sale of the crematory property was offered by Councilman C. C. Randolph, but was not seconded.

In making its report, the auditing committee made a request that in the future all bills against the city be presented not later than on Wednesday preceding a regular meeting of the Common Council and that the signatures of members be affixed to bills not later than the Saturday preceding such meeting.

NEW POLICE HEADQUARTERS

a room for the police board meetings. Entrance to the building will be from Sycamore street.

Another feature of the plans to be commended is the high stone wall to be erected on Syracuse street, extending from headquarters to the rear of the property. Room will be left for a driveway and when the patrol wagon passes the gates the view of a curious crowd will be obscured by the high wall, giving the department the privacy it desires. The city proposes to expend a sum not exceeding $30,000 in the erection of a headquarters' building and stables, and in the opinion of Mayor Fisk and other members of the board, this should give Plainfield a well-equipped and finely-appointed home for the department.

John A. Neighbor's Funeral.

The funeral of John A. Neighbor, who died suddenly yesterday morning from heart disease, will be held at the home of his son, Erwin Y. Neighbor, of Manning avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. Burial will be at Hillside.

James C. Manning and Lebbeus L. Manning sailed yesterday for Jamaica, Bohama Islands, where they will remain for several weeks.

CITY FATHERS TO HEAR CITIZENS ON CONTRACT

The proposed electric lighting contract between the city and the Public Service Corporation was presented at the February meeting of the Common Council, last night, by Chairman Montgomery of the light committee. He stated that on behalf of Mr. Tyler, who could not be present owing to death in the family, that the latter wished him to say that while he believed the contract to be the best obtainable on the part of the Public Service Corporation he desired to go on record as not approving the terms.

A resolution was then introduced by Mr. Montgomery and adopted, ratifying the action of the committee in having a number of copies of the contract printed in pamphlet form and authorizing the city clerk to give notice through the Plainfield newspapers that the Common Council would meet on Monday night, February 17, to consider and act on the contract and that an opportunity would be given any citizen to be present and state his views concerning its provisions. With this understanding it was agreed that when the meeting adjourned it be to meet on Monday night, February 17. Copies of the contract are now available and can be had at the office of the city clerk.

Funeral of Miss Van Boskerck.

With a gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Miss Elizabeth F. Van Boskerck was held this morning at the home of her parents on West Seventh street. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church. During the service a quartet composed of Miss Etta Ralbert, Miss Winifred Carroll, Elmer D. Cutting and Judge William N. Runyon, sang three selections, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," "Abide With Me" and "My Faith Looks Up to Thee." Burial will be made this afternoon in Woodlawn cemetery.

Charged With Disorderly Conduct.

Charles H. Freshman, a genteel-appearing young man, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, the docket reading that he had been disorderly at Truell Court, last night. No one appeared against him and it was stated by Patrolman Nolan that the police had been called upon to lock him up after he had refused to go to his room. Freshman explained that he suffers from a nervous trouble and he became angered through an attache of the court addressing him flippantly. Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

CITY DISPOSES OF SEWER BOND ISSUE

The city has secured a purchaser for its $68,000 sewer bonds which were issued a few months ago and which were not disposed of at the time owing to the unsettled condition of the money and bond market. Business again having returned to about normal conditions, there appeared to be no trouble in getting a bidder for the bonds.

The bid received was from John D. Evart & Co., of New York, and was presented by Chairman Buxton of the finance committee. The concern bid $100.04 for the entire issue, and Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the Mayor and city clerk to negotiate the sale of the bonds to the above named firm. Mr. Fisk and the members of the Council are pleased with the offer for the bonds and consider it fortunate that the city is able to get such a good offer.

These bonds cover a great deal of sewer work that has been done during the past two or three years, the payment for which has been covered from time to time through the issuance of notes.

PATRONESSES ANNOUNCED FOR THE SONG RECITAL.

The song recital at the Casino on Tuesday night, February 11, by W. T. Carleton, the well-known baritone, under the auspices of the City Union of The King's Daughter and for the benefit of The Day Nursery, promises to be a successful affair. The members of the organization are taking an active interest in the recital especially as they are anxious to install a heating apparatus at The Nursery for which the proceeds of the recital will be devoted.

Among the patronesses for the recital are the following: Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges, Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde, Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. John P. Stevens, all of whom are using their influence to make the affair a financial and social success. Mr. Carleton's reputation is so well known that a delightful evening of music is assured. Mrs. F. W. Butler, 117 East Ninth street, in the absence of Major Maze Edwards, has consented to act as honorary treasurer and tickets can be secured through her.

MR. CORTISSOZ'S LECTURE

TO MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Portrait Work of Famous Venetian Masters Shown and Their Marvellous Powers Described.

Happy the lecturer who has a master for his theme and happy the audience who listens to the lecture delivered by a master in oratory! These congratulatory phrases were voiced yesterday afternoon at the Casino, when Royal Cortissoz, the art editor and critic of the New York Tribune, gave an illustrated lecture on the Venetian artists, Titian and Tintorello.

Mr. Cortissoz with an enthusiasm that never flagged described the artistic temperament of Titian developed in Venice under the training of Bellini and influenced by the famous artist, Giorgione, the poet and dreamer. Many pictures were exhibited, showing Titian's departure from the immobility and formality of Bellini and the transfusion into his productions of new life and vigor embodying vital human interest, spiritual power and truth to nature.

Tintorello was a different kind of man according to Mr. Cortissoz, who said that like Titian he had a wonderful grip on nature but he was less of a psychologist, had less unity of design and was not uniform in the excellence of his execution. His deep interest in human life and its representation made him the favorite of modern artists, the lecturer said.

Many illustrations of Tintorello's famous paintings were thrown on the screen, not all of them "striking twelve," the lecturer admitting. They all showed the wonderful effect the artist produced by his use of light, his figures being berthed in air and light in an effective manner that was Tintorello's own. "Light," Mr. Cortissoz said, "was Tintorello's magic key and color was Titian's magic key."

Portraits painted by both artists were shown, and of Tintorello he said in commening on his portrait of Aretino, "he had the faculty of giving away his sitter a little."

As decorators, the lecturer thought both were inferior to Raphael, who was architecturally effective while they were pictorially effective.

The lecturer concluded with some fine illustrations of Tintorello's work done for the San Rocco monks, among the most notable being "Moses Smiting the Rock," "The Crucifixion" and "Christ Before Pilate."

MOODY'S ASSIGNMENT INVOLVES PRINT SHOP

The Moody Corporation, publishers of Moody's Manual of Railroad and Corporation Securities and other books of financial reference, at No. 35 Nassau street, New York, with a printing plant at Elizabeth, has made an assignment to Guy Cary, of Wall street, New York. The business was established many years ago by John Moody. The present corporation was incorporated under New York laws on December 7, 1904, with capital stock $1,000,000, of which $350,000 was preferred and $650,000 common stock. John Moody became president, Frederick B. Adams vice president, Eliphalet N. Potter treasurer and Louis W. Holschuch secretary. Mr. Potter succeeded Mr. Moody as president some time ago. The printing plant at Elizabeth is said to have cost more than $150,000, and there are mortgage bonds on the property for $80,000.

Mr. Cary said yesterday that the assignment was caused by tight money conditions and would probably be only temporary. A plan is under way for a reorganization of the company, and the publishing business will be separated from the printing branch of the business. The Moody people assert that it takes a great deal of money to carry on the printing business, and the company was unable to raise enough to meet its obligations. The publishing business is profitable, and that also requires a great deal of money. The total liabilities are about $130,000, including the $80,000 mortgage, and most of it is to insiders.

Mr. Moody announced yesterday that the Moody corporation did not own Mody's Magazine—a publication which he said he controlled. The Moody corporation publishes, in addition to the Manual, Moody's Classified Investments and Moody's Coupon and Dividend Register. Mr. Moody is the author of the "Story of Wall Street" and "The Truth About the Trusts."

The corporation also publishes "The Pitfalls of Speculation," "Banking Publicity" and several hundred books devoted to finance. In addition there was a statistical department connected with the Moody corporation.

FORT ON PRIMARY LAWS

Governor Says He Believes in a Direct Vote for National Convention Delegates.

PRESENT ACT IS CONFUSING.

Balance of His Message Taken Up With Review of Statute Revision Work.

Governor Fort sent a special message to the Legislature in Trenton last night, in which he calls for the appointment of a commission by the Legislature to investigate the election and primary laws. After calling attention to the confused state of these laws he says:

"Primary recount is unnecessary. The extension of the primary laws to the election of delegates to conventions for the selection of delegates to the national conventions for the great political parties should be made. For myself, I prefer a direct vote for delegates to a national convention, with the right of each voter in each party to express his choice for President and Vice-President of the Republic on his ballot. Under the call of the National Committee of the Republican party for the convention, to be held in June, 1908, it is doubtful about the right to select delegates to the National Convention by direct vote. The call issued by the Democratic convention is not before me, but probably it is of the same nature.

"The State nas no control over the national conventions and the call for the Republican National Convention seems to limit the primary selections by a direct vote for delegates to States having such a law at the time of the issuance of the call. But whether this be so or not, and without considering this question further, it is clear that the general primary law for the selection of these delegates should be made applicable to the election of delegates to the district and State conventions.

"The method of holding such primaries should not be left to political committees, but should be carefully guarded by law and conducted by the election officers. No other primaries should be legal or permissible, and the law in this respect should be extended to the selection of representatives in all local political committees. I believe that if a concurrent resolution should be passed at once a commission should be appointed the present week which could report a satisfactory revision of the primary laws forthwith, and of the election laws later, so that both questions can be settled."

The rest of the message is taken up in a review of the work done to revise the statutes, and the Governor urges that a commission be appointed which will devote its whole time to the work, at considerable saving to the State.

MRS. LENA BOE SEEKS ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

An amended petition for an absolute divorce has been filed by Lena Boe against her husband, William Albert Boe, in the Chancery Court at Trenton. Mrs. Boe states that she was married at Plainfield, April 5, 1897, and that her husband lived with her and provided for her six years. She alleges in September, 1903, he deserted her and has continued to live apart from her.

Mrs. Boe declares that one child was born, whose name is Walter E. Boe, and she also states that she has no means of support. Her maiden name was Lena Webber.

Chancellor Magie has made an order referring the case to Nelson Runyon, of Plainfield, as special master. An order has been made by Vice-Chancellor Howell extending the time for Mrs. Boe to complete her testimony and for Nelson Runyon to make his report to twenty days. The testimony and Mr. Runyon's opinion must be filed within twenty days. In addition to a decree Mrs. Boe asks for the custody of the child.

CHAS. H. HAND WANTS MORTGAGE FORCLOSED

A bill to foreclose a mortgage by Charles H. Hand, of this city, has been filed at Trenton against Isabelle O. Wagstaff, also of this city, covering premises on Monroe and Gran avenue, in Asbury Park, N. J., for $3,000. Mr. Hand charges that there is unpaid interest and that judgments and attachments are against the property and for that reason he should receive his money in full. There appears in judgments and heirs, and attachments and mortgage more than $10,057.82 besides Mr. Hand's $3,000.

There also appears in the bill a charge that Mrs. Wagstaff leased the premises to a Mr. Lynch, who has the premises now. There are eight defendants and each has a lawyer. Francis J. Blatz represents Mr. Hand.

CONFIRM APPOINTMENTS

State Senate Acts Promptly on Governor Fort's Recommendations.

JUDGE ATWATER ON THE LIST.

Gummere, Chief Justice; McCarter, Attorney General—Garven Not Unanimous.

All of the eighteen nominations for State offices made by the Governor to the Senate were confirmed at the session of that body at Trenton last night. With the exception of Pierre Garven, who was nominated to succeed William H. Speer as prosecutor of pleas in Hudson county, there was no disagreement, but in this case every Democrat except Senator Silzer, of Middlesex, voted against the appointment. The opposition was led by Senator Fielder, of Hudson, who declared that while personally he had no objection to Mr. Garven, his lack of experience in criminal prosecution made him unfit for the office, as did his position as Mayor of Bayonne.

The other nominations confirmed were: Chief Justice, William S. Gummere; Attorney General, Robert H. McCarter; Judge of Circuit Court, William H. Speer, of Hudson; Judges of Courts of Common Pleas, Hudson, John Blair; Morris, Alfred E. Mills; Union, Edward S. Atwater; Warren, George M. Shipman; Prosecutors of Pleas, Mercer, William J. Crossley; Union, Charles A. Swift. Members of State Board of Assessors, Obediah C. Bogardus, to succeed Robert P. Budd, and Charles E. Hendrickson, Jr., to succeed Stephen J. Meeker. Member State Board of Equalization of Taxes, Robert Carey, of Hudson. Port Warden of Hudson County, John J. Toffey. Judge District Court of Elizabeth, Clark McWhittemore. Trustee State Home for Boys, Edward Spaeth.

MORTGAGEE SUES TO RECOVER HER LOAN

A bill to foreclose a mortgage has been filed in the Chancery Court at Trenton by Mary F. Sullivan, of Brooklyn, against John J. Allen and others on property on Lafayette place, near Front street, in this city. The bill filed shows that the property was formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Vail, of this city, and that they borrowed from Marcus Silbert $1,200 on mortgage, and that Silbert afterward sold the mortgage to Charles G. Ross, who in turn sold it to Mrs. Sullivan.

The bill also shows that when Mr. Vail sold the property a mistake was made in the description of the same and the bill seeks to correct and perfect the title also. The bill prays for an order to ascertain the amount due and to sell the same to satisfy her claim.

MYSTIC SHRINERS PLAN FOR IMPORTANT SESSION

The twenty-eighth regular session of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, of which H. W. Marshall, of this city, is the illustrious potentate, will be held in Krueger Auditorium, Newark, Friday night, at 7 o'clock. The Salaam's guest will be Illustrious Noble Frank C. Roundy, Imperial Potentate, of Chicago, who will make his official visitation. There will also be the installation of officers by Illustrious Noble Palmer H. Charlock, past potentate.

Announcement is also made of the Grand Arabian Minstrel Show by the Arab Patrol of Salaam Temple, to be held at Krueger Auditorium, on Friday night, February 28, at 7:15 o'clock. The usual good time will be provided for the members and their wives.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The borough fire department was called out to a small blaze at the home of Edwin Fancher Sunday night. A hearth fire had eaten its way beneath the hearth stone setting the beams on fire. The loss will not exceed $100, and is fully covered by insurance.

The local ice company expect to begin cutting ice Thursday. There is now nearly 9 inches of clear ice and if favorable weather continues it is expected that it will be 10 to 11 inches thick by Thursday.

The resignation of Rev. T. Moore-Smith has again called the attention of the outside world to Scotch Plains. Well, between the Bishow law and churches we certainly keep before the public.

William Harrison and family have removed from the Hetfield house to the Stryker house on Front street.

Fanwood B. and E. Co. holds its regular monthly meeting tomorrow night in the company rooms.

Mrs. Frank Hosinger is visiting relatives and friends in New York for two weeks.

Victor Miller has returned from a visit with relatives at Flemington.

THE SEGREGATION PLAN FOR BOYS.

This is an experimental age. There is nothing too seemingly impracticable to get its day in court with an opportunity to demonstrate whether or not it is deserving of serious consideration. And necessity being the parent of invention it is likewise the immediate ancestor of the experiment which precedes the invention. Some time ago a flat dweller in Manhattan discovered, as some of his predecessors had already discovered, that for various reasons it was not expedient to bring up a large family in a flat. As a consequence, not caring to give up the family, he relinquished the flat and moved to Berkeley Heights, N. J., where, after living for some time in a tent, he erected a house suited to his needs, without, however, running afoul of the building inspector, as did the Brooklynite who sought to escape the iniquitous landlord by building, in add moments, a house after a plan that was all his own.

The public did not become interested in the Berkeley Heights man until, after making the startling discovery that boys would bring in mud, leave the door open and break up furniture, he determined that either himself and his wife or the boys would have to be segregated, and proceeded to erect in his back yard a bungalow, where they might work out their own salvation or go without it, as the case might be. It is understood that the furniture placed in the new house was not of delicate design and that the quantity of it was as limited as the exigencies of the case would admit. The boys, we are told, fell in with the plan as enthusiastically as the parents, but some of the neighbors and the critical public filed protests, the former for purely personal reasons, fearful of the consequences of establishing a wild Indian camp thereabouts, and the latter because the public always loves to assist others in solving their problems, and it assumed that here was a proposition which must result disastrously for the young people, feeling that constant contact with civilization was necessary in order to prevent reversion to barbarism.

After a fair trial, extending over several months, the originator of the idea now declares it to be a success. Tolstoy's doctrine of non-interference has been the keynote of the arrangement, and the father has permitted the boys to manage their own affairs on condition that they permit him to conduct his. Put on their mettle, so to speak, he announces that the occupants of the bungalow have not only taken their responsibilities seriously but have become industrious and economical, and the older ones have a much better conception of the duties and possibilities of life than they would have had if they had been trained in the orthodox manner.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, and one successful experiment does not necessarily demonstrate the truth of a questionable proposition. There is a possibility, too, that the parent has allowed his judgment to be roseately colored by his hopes, but as the neighbors haven't risen in revolt it would appear that in any event the plan cannot be considered an entire failure.—New York Tribune.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Silvery grash, though rather perishable, is very fashionable for one's house gown.

It is considered quite the thing to purchase a ready made gown and finish it oneself with appropriate trimmings.

There are French gowns arriving from Paris with sleeves that come right down to the knuckles, with a point falling over the fingers almost to the very tips.

Ribbon was never used more than this season, and some of the highest priced princess dresses are trimmed with ribbon to an extent never imagined by the woman who looks upon ribbon as a cheap frivolity of dress.

The woman who makes a negligee these days can, if she be so inclined, construct it in such a way that it can be worn until late in the day. Even the dinner gowns are built upon the negligee lines, and it does not require such a great stretch of the imagination to fancy an empire negligee converted into a dinner gown to be worn on very nice occasions.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Easier Way.

"How I hated work in those days!" said Mark Twain, recalling his boyhood in Hannibal, Mo. "One morning my father led me into the garden and pointed to a bed of flowers that had a considerable number of weeds in it.

"'I want you,' said my father, 'to weed out this flower bed.'

"I examined the task ahead of me, and the more I looked at it the bigger it seemed to grow. Certainly I had never seen so many weeds in my life.

"'Wouldn't it be a simpler operation,' I said to my father, 'to flower out the weed bed?'"—Woman's Home Companion.

Best for Him.

"Now," said Professor Goodley, "these exercises should perfect you in the rudiments at least. Memorize the rules and"—

"But," interrupted the rich man's son, "what do you consider the best exercise of memory?'"

"Remember the poor!"

Bankruptcy Petition by James Hughes, Well-known Business Man of New Brunswick.

Trenton, Feb. 4.—The largest bankruptcy petition for the year was recorded Saturday in the United States District Court. The matter was that of James Hughes, of New Brunswick, who filed a voluntary petition and gave his liabilities as $142,192.06 and his assets as $59,-050. His unsecured claims are $50,-807. Mr. Hughes also had notes indorsed by various New Brunswick people for amounts in the aggregate of $55,671.77.

Under the item of assets Mr. Hughes included his stock in trade, which consisted of real estate to the value of $14,500 and thirty-four boats valued at $40,310. He also had open accounts amounting to $3,-700.

Mr. Hughes is one of the best-known business men in New Brunswick. For years he has engaged in the marine business in that place and has gradually become known throughout the State. Unfortunate stock speculations are given as an excuse for his failure.

MOTHER OF 25 DIES AT 100.

Mrs. Mary Bohan Passes Away at Her Home In Newark.

Mrs. Mary Bohan, mother of twenty-five children, died at the age of 100 years at her home in Newark on Saturday night. Death was due to old age. Ten of her children are living.

Mrs. Bohan had never been ill until two days before her death. Her hearing and other faculties remained perfect until her death.

She was married twice, the first time in County Galway, Ireland. She came to this country sixty-five years ago to seek her husband, who shipped as a mate of a sailing vessel bound for this country and never returned. She lived in Hackensack for fourteen years, and then went to Newark, where she was married again. Her second husband died twenty-five years ago.

IT WAS JUST THIS WAY.

How the Street Car Passenger Lost His Sixty-five Dollar Roll.

"Sir," said the tall man as he rose up and glowered down at the short man, "when I entered this car I had a roll of money amounting to $65 in my pocket."

"Yeth, sir," lisped the short man in reply.

"And now I have only this nickel."

"Thath all, thir?"

"Then someone must have picked my pocket."

"Thath don't follow thir."

"Don't follow? Of course it does. You have been sitting right beside me ever since I got on."

"It ith just your way, thir—just your way. Thath all, thir."

"What in the devil do you mean by saying it's just my way?" demanded the tall man.

"Why, thir, when the conductor came for your fare you handed him the roll instead of the nickel, and he's out there counting it over now. He thinks it's a present."—Chicago News.

The Cleanest Town.

The cleanest town in the world is said to be Broek, in Holland. It is only a few miles from the capital and has been famous for its cleanliness from time immemorial. It is also notable on account of the fanciful style of its houses and yards and gardens and streets. The people, though only peasants, are well to do, and all feel a pride in their town. It seems to be the first business of their lives to keep their houses freshly painted, their gardens in perfect order and their yards and streets as clean as a parlor. No carts are allowed in the streets and no cattle, though the raising of stock and the making of butter and cheese are their occupations.

The Race As It Was.

"I see you are here," said the tortoise.

"Yes," replied the hare. "Are you going to race?"

"No; what would be the use? People would only say we were nature fakirs."

And while they stood there arguing a man came along and threw a bag over the head of the hare and took the tortoise along to make fashionable hairpins out of his back.—Detroit Tribune.

The Poet Explains.

"But," said the beautiful girl, "you don't look the least bit like a poet."

"I realize that," replied the bard, "but I can easily explain. I know a barber who is willing to take my books in payment for professional services."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Too Soon.

"That artist is a real genius," remarked the admirer.

"No," answered Miss Cayenne. "He can't be a real genius, or people would not be saying so many complimentary things about him before he is dead."—Washington Star.

Useless.

"I see you've bought a typewriter," said McCall.

"Yes," replied Mugley, "and the bloomin' thing's a fake."

"What's wrong with it?"

"Why, it can't spell any better than I do."—Philadelphia Press.

FOR THE MARTHAS.

The Seven Real Worries of a Woman's Life.

Not half the horrors that women suppose are going to happen to them ever do happen. Yet it is in the nature of the gentle sex to expect and look out for them—to anticipate what fate may never send. The form that women nurture it, too, is so nebulous, so vague, so terrifying because so scantily defined, as to be absolutely possessive. It takes a horrible hold of the imagination and works upon the mind like subtle poison.

The chief fears to which women are prone have been numbered as seven, and the greatest are said on good authority to be, first, 'the fear of being an old maid," and, secondly, that of "growing old."

The others are fear of losing a husband's love, of accidents, of loss of money, of loss of friends and of the future generally.

The third fear is a very potent one. It is the fear of losing a husband's love. Tradition teaches women that men soon tire of their wives and that when the bloom of women's youth has worn away the love of man goes with it.

The thrill of alarm is to some curiously constituted natures a pleasant one. Upon no other hypothesis can one account for the states of wild anguish into which so many women work themselves, when, delayed by some quite trivial occurrence, the husband or son does not come home at the usual hour. As the little wife sits and waits at home for the better half she sees him in her mind's eye in street accidents of various awful kinds, herself in widow's weeds, the funeral, the breaking up of the little home, her own avalanche of grief sweeping her into an early tomb.

Or if it is not her husband who is the hero of her morbid visions it is her baby or her growing brood of children who may be killed before her eyes or when they are old enough to marry may choose some one she does not like. The last situation is about the most absurd of the whole seven, but it is nevertheless a fear that haunts hundreds of good mothers.

How British Ships Salute.

A salute in the British navy between two ships of equal rank is made by firing an equal number of guns. If the vessels are of unequal rank, the superior fires the fewer rounds. A royal salute consists, first, in firing twenty-one great guns; second, in the officers lowering their sword points, and, third, in dipping the colors.

As She Understood It.

Mr. Stubb (with illustrated weekly)—Martha, here is a picture entitled "Docking an Ocean Greyhound."

Mrs. Stubb (flaring up)—I just don't want to see it. I think there should be a law against clipping off a poor dog's tail.—Detroit Tribune.

Green Garnets.

Green garnets are more valuable than diamonds because they are so exceedingly rare. They are of an unsurpassed rich shade far beyond that of an emerald and are very brilliant. On the other hand, red garnets are so common that they cost next to nothing.

Murder in Spain.

Spain has a death penalty, but rarely imposes it, the customary sentence for premeditated homicide being penal servitude in chains for life. A parricide is punished by being imprisoned in chains "in perpetuity until death."

Harrington was an old man, a very old man, mortally hurt, but he steadied himself along the wall of his study to the desk and sank into the chair.

After a little while he passed a thin hand over his eyes, over his gray head, over the mouth that all men watched with fear, over the shaven jaw now grimly set but trembling. His hand, too, shook with palsy as he wrote, painfully picking out the words and figures of the cipher from his code book, but he closed his thin lips and squared his unsteady jaw and wrote his message to Quarrier:

It is all up. Plank will take over Intercounty. Come at once.

Plank slept the sleep of utter exhaustion that night. The morning found him haggard, but strong, cool in his triumph, serious, stern faced, almost sad that his work was done, the battle won.

From his own house he telegraphed a curt summons to Harrington and to Quarrier for a conference in his own office, then, finishing whatever business his morning mail required, put on his hat and went to see the one man in the world he was most glad for.

"It's all over, Siward," he said with a laugh. "Harrington knows it. Quarrier knows it by this time. Their judge crawled in yesterday and threw himself on our mercy, and the men whose whip he obeyed will be on their way to surrender by this time. Well, haven't you a word?"

"Many," said Siward slowly, "too many to utter, but not enough to express what I feel. If you will take two on account here they are in one phrase—thank you."

"Debt's canceled," said Plank, laughing. "Do you want to hear the details?"

The narrative exchanged by Plank in return for Siward's intensely interested questions was a simple, limpid review of a short but terrific campaign that only yesterday had threatened to rage through court after court, year after year. In the sudden shock of the cessation from battle, Plank himself was a little dazed. Yet he himself had expected the treason that ended all. He himself had foreseen it.

"Plank," said Siward at last, "there is nothing in the world that men admire more than a man. It is a good deal of a privilege for me to tell you so."

Plank turned red with surprise and embarrassment, stammering out something incoherent.

That was all that was said about the victory. Siward, unusually gay for awhile, presently turned somber, and it was Plank's turn to lift him out of it by careless remarks about his rapid convalescence and the chance for vacation he so much needed.

Once Siward looked up vacantly. "Where am I to go?" he asked. "I'd as soon stay here."

"But I'm going," insisted Plank. "The Fells is all ready for us."

"The Fells! I can't go there!"

"You once promised"—

"Plank, I'll go anywhere except there with you. I'd rather be with you than with anybody. Can I say more than that?"

"I think you ought to, Siward. A—a fellow feels the refusal of his offered rooftree."

"Man! Man! It isn't your roof I am refusing. I want to go. I'd give anything to go. If it were anywhere except where it is, I'd go fast enough. Now do you understand? If—if Shotover House and Shotover people were not next door to the Fells I'd go. Do you know what's the matter with me, Plank?"

"I think so."

"I have wondered. I wonder now how much you know."

"Very little, Siward."

"How much?"

Plank looked up, hesitated and shook his head, "One infers from what one hears."

"Infers what?"

"The truth, I suppose," replied Plank simply.

"And what," insisted Siward, "have you inferred that you believe to be the truth? Don't parry, Plank. It isn't easy for me, and I—I never before spoke this way to any man. It is likely I should have spoken to my mother about it. I had expected to. It may be weakness—I don't know, but I'd like to talk a little about it to somebody. And there's nobody fit to listen, except you. You know what a pillow is to a tired man's shoulders. I want to use your sane intelligence to rest on a moment. It's my brain that's tired, Plank."

Although everybody had cynically used Plank, nobody had ever before found him a necessity.

"Go on," he said unsteadily. "If I can be of use to you, Siward, in God's name let me be, for I have never been necessary to anybody in all my life."

Siward rested his head on one clinched hand. "How much chance do you think I have?" he asked wearily.

"Chance to get well?"

"Yes."

Plank considered for a moment, then, "You are not trying, Siward."

"I have been trying since—since March. In March Miss Landis spoke to me. I've made a better fight since."

Plank's serious face darkened. "Is she the only anchor you have?"

"Plank, I am not even sure of her. I have made a better fight since then. That is all I dare say. I know what men think about a man like me. I know they demand character, pride, self denial. But, Plank, I am driving faster and faster toward the breakers, and these anchors are dragging. For it is not in my case the physical failure to obey the will. It is the will itself that had been attacked from the first. That is the horror of it. And what is there behind the will power to strengthen it? Only the source of will power—the mind. It is the mind that cannot help me. What am I to do?"

"There is a spiritual strength," said Plank timidly.

"I have never dreamed of denying it," said Siward. "I have tried to find it through the accepted sources—accepted by me too. God knows that I desire to be decent. He must be aware, too, that all anchors save one have failed to hold me."

"You mean Miss Landis?"

"Yes. It may be weakness; it may be to my shame that the cables of pride and self respect, even the spiritual respect for the Highest, cannot hold me when this one anchor holds. She said that I might see her. I have waited a long time. I have taken my fighting chance again, and I've won out so far."

He looked up at Plank, curiously embarrassed.

"Your body is normal; your intelligence wholesome, balanced, sane, and I want to ask you if you think that perhaps without understanding how I have found in her or through her in some way the spiritual source that I think might help me to help myself?"

"You ask me if I believe it possible that she can be the medium?"

"Yes."

Plank said deliberately, "Yes, I do think so."

The silence was again broken by Plank: "Siward, you have asked me what I think. Now you must listen to the end. If you believed that through her—her love, marrying her—you stood the best chance in the world to win out, it would be cowardly to ask her to take the risk. As much as I care for you I had rather see you lose the fight than accept such a risk from her. Now you know what I think, but you don't know all. Siward, I say to you that if you are man enough to take her, take her! And I say that of the two risks she is running today the chance she might take with you is infinitely the lesser risk, for with you, if you continue slowly losing your fight, the mental suffering only will be hers. But if she closes this bargain with Quarrier, selling to him her body, the light will go out of her soul forever."

He rose, striding the length of the room once or twice, turned, holding out his broad hand.

"Goodby," he said. "Harrington is about due at my office. Quarrier will probably turn up tonight. I am not vindictive. I shall be just with them—as just as I know how, which is to be as merciful as I dare be. Goodby, Siward."

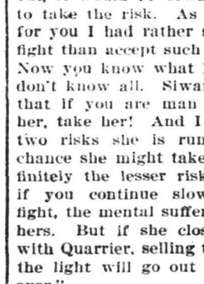
When he had gone Siward lay back in his chair, very still, eyes closed. A faint color had mounted to his face and remained there.

It was late in the afternoon when he went downstairs, using his crutches lightly. Gumble handed him a straw hat and opened the door, and Siward cautiously descended the stoop, stood for a few moments on the sidewalk, looking up at the blue sky, then wheeled and slowly made his way toward Washington square. The avenue was deserted. His own house appeared to be the only remaining house still open in all that old fashioned but respectable quarter.

A cab, driven smartly, passed through the park, the horses' feet slapping the asphalt till the echoes rattled back from the marble arch. He followed it idly with his eyes up Fifth avenue, saw it suddenly halt in the middle of the street, saw a woman spring out, stand for a moment talking to her companion, then turn and look toward the square.

She stood so long and she was so far away that he presently grew tired of watching her. A dozen ragged urchins were prowling around the fountain, casting sidelong glances at a distant policeman. But it was not hot enough that evening to permit the children to splash in the water and the policeman drove them off.

"Poor little devils!" said Siward to himself and he rose, adjusted his crutches and started through the park with a vague idea of seeing what could be done.



"Mr. Siward!"

As he limped onward, the sun level in his eyes, he heard somebody speak behind him, but did not catch the words or apply the hail to himself. Then, "Mr. Siward!" came the low, breathless voice at his elbow.

His heart stopped as he did. The sun had dazzled his eyes, and when he turned on his crutches he could not see clearly for a second. That past, he looked at Sylvia, looked at her outstretched hand, took it mechanically, still staring at her with only a dazed unbelief in his eyes.

"I am in town for a day," she said. "Leila Mortimer and I were driving uptown from the bank when we saw you, and the next thing that happened was me, on Fifth avenue, running after you—no, the next thing was my flying leap from the hansom and my standing there looking down the street and across the square where you sat

Then Leila told me I was probably crazy, and I immediately confirmed her diagnosis by running after you."

She stood laughing, flushed, sunburned and breathless, her left hand still in his, her right hand laid over it.

"Oh," she said, with a sudden change to anxiety, "does it tire you to stand?"

"No. I was going to saunter along."

"May I saunter with you for a moment? I mean—I only mean, I am glad to see you."

"Do you think I am going to let you go now?" he asked, astonished.

She looked at him; then her eyes evaded his. "Let us walk a little," she said, withdrawing her hand, "if you think you are strong enough."

"Strong! Look, Sylvia!" and he stood unsupported by his crutches, then walked a little way, slowly, but quite firmly. "I am rather a coward about my foot, that is all. I shall not lug these things about after today."

"Did the doctor say you might?"

"Yes, after today. I could walk home now without them. I could do a good many things I couldn't do a few minutes ago. Isn't that curious?"

"Very," she said, avoiding his eyes.

He laughed. She dared not look at him. The excitement and impetus of sheer impulse had carried her this far. Now all the sadness of it was clutching hard at her throat, and for awhile she could not speak—walking there in her dainty summer gown beside him, the very incarnation of youth and health, with the sea tan on wrist and throat, and he, white, hollow eyed, crippled, limping, at her elbow.

Yet at that very moment his whole frame seemed to glow and his heart clamor with the courage in it, for he was thinking of Plank's words, and he knew Plank had spoken the truth. She could not give herself to Quarrier if he stood firm. His was the stronger will, after all; his was the right to interfere, to stop her, to check her, to take her, draw her back—as he had once drawn her from the fascination of destruction when she had swayed out too far over the cliffs at Shotover.

"I came in with Leila. We're asked to Lenox for the week's end. We go to Stockbridge on the early train tomorrow morning," she said.

"I'm not going to let you go yet," said Siward.

"If I took to my heels here in the park, would you chase me, Stephen?" she asked, with mock anxiety.

"Yes, and if I couldn't run fast enough I'd call that policeman. Now, do you begin to understand?"

"Oh, I've always understood that you were spoiled. I'm partly guilty of the spoiling process too. Listen. I'll walk with you a little way"—she looked at him—"a little way," she continued gently; "then I must go. There is only a caretaker in our house, and Leila will be furious if I leave her all alone. Besides, we're going to dine there, and it won't be very gay if I don't give a few orders first."

"But you brought your maid."

"Naturally."

"Then telephone her that you and Leila are dining out."

"Where, silly? Do you want us to dine somewhere with you?"

"Want you? You've got to!"

"Stephen, it isn't best."

"It is best."

She turned to him impulsively. "Oh, I do want to so much! Do you think I might? It is perfectly delicious to see you again. I—you have no idea"—

"Yes, I have," he said sternly.

They turned, walking past the fountain toward Fifth avenue again. Furtively she glanced at his hands, with the city pallor on them, as they grasped the crossbars of the crutches, then looked up at his worn face. He was much thinner, but now in the softly fading light the shadows under the eyes and cheek bones seemed less sharp, his face fuller and more boyish; the contour of head and shoulders, the short, crisp hair were as she remembered, and the old charm held her, the old fascination grew, tightening her throat, stealing through every vein, stirring her pulses, awakening imperceptibly once more the best in her.

"There is no use," she said under her breath. "I can't go back to Leila, Stephen, the dreadful part of it is that I—I wish she were in Jericho! I wish the whole world were in Ballyhoo and you and I alone once more!"

Under their gay laughter quivered the undertone of excitement. Sylvia said:

"I'd like to talk to you all alone. It won't do, of course. But I may say what I'd like, mayn't I? What time is it? If I'm dining with you we've got to have Leila for convention's sake if not from motives of sheer decency, which you and I seem to lack, Stephen."

"We lack decency," said Siward, "and we're proud of it. As for Leila, I'm going to arrange for her very simply, but very beautifully. Plank will take care of her. Sylvia, there's not a soul in town, and we can be as imprudent as we please."

"No, we can't. Agatha's at the Santa Regina. She came down with us."

"But we are not going to dine at the Santa Regina. We're going where Agatha wouldn't intrude her colorless nose—to a thoroughly unfashionable and selectly common resort overlooking the classic Harlem, and we're going to whiz thither in Plank's car and remain thither until you yawn for mercy, whence we will return thence"—

"Stephen, you silly! I'm perfectly mad to go with you!" Then with sudden self reproach and quick solicitude: "Am I making you walk too far? Wouldn't you like to go in now?"

"No, I'm not tired. I'm millions of years younger, and I'm as strong as the nine gods of your friend Porsena. Besides, haven't I waited for this?" And under his breath fiercely, "Haven't I waited?" he repeated, turning on her.

"Do—do you mean that as a reproach?" she asked, lowering her eyes.

"No. I knew you would not come on 'the first sunny day.'"

"Why did you think I would not come? Did you know me for the coward I am?"

"I did not think you would come," he repeated, halting to rest on his crutches. He stood, balanced, staring dreamily into the dim perspective, and again her fascinated eyes ventured to rest on the worn white face, listless, somber in its fixedness.

The tears were very near her eyes; the spasm in her throat checked speech. At length she stammered, "I did not come b-because I simply couldn't stand it."

His face cleared as he turned quietly. "Child, you must not confuse matters. You must not think of being sorry for me. The old order is passing—ticking away on every clock in the world. All that inverted order of things is being reversed. You don't know what I mean, do you? Ah, well, you will know when I grow into something of what you think you remember in me and when I grow out of what I really was."

"Truly I don't understand, Stephen. But then—I am out of training since you went—went out of things. Have I changed? Do I seem more dull? I—it has not been very gay with me. I don't see—looking back across all the noise, all the chaos of the winter—I do not see how I stood it alone."

"Alone?"

"N-not seeing you—sometimes."

He looked at her with smiling, skeptical eyes. "Didn't you enjoy the winter?"

"Do you enjoy being drugged with champagne?"

His face altered so quickly that, confused, she only stared at him, the fixed smile stamped on her lips; then, overwhelmed in the revelation:

"Stephen, surely, surely, you know what I meant! I did not mean that! Dear, do you dream for one moment that—that I could"—

"No. You have not hurt me. Besides, I know what you mean."

After a moment he swung forward on his crutches, biting his lip, the frown gathering between his temples.

They were passing the big, old fashioned hotel with its white facade and green blinds, a lingering landmark of the older city.

"We'll telephone here," he said.

Side by side they went up the great, broad stoop and entered the lobby.

"If you'll speak to Leila, I'll get Plank on the wire. Say that we'll stop for you at 7."

She gave her number; then, at the nod of the operator, entered a small booth. Siward was given another booth in a few moments.

Plank answered from his office. His voice sounded grave and tired, but it quickened, tinged with surprise, when Siward made known his plan for the evening.

"Is Mrs. Mortimer in town?" he demanded. "I had a wire from her that she expected to be here, and I hoped to see her at the station tomorrow on her way to Lenox."

"She's stopping with Miss Landis. Can't you manage to come?" asked Siward anxiously.

"I don't know. Do you wish it particularly? I have just seen Quarrier and Harrington. I can't quite understand Quarrier's attitude. There's a certain hint of defiance about it. Harrington is all caved in. He is ready to thank us for any mercies. But Quarrier—there's something I don't fancy, don't exactly understand, about his attitude. That's why I've expected to spend a quiet evening, studying up the matter and examining every loophole."

"You've got to dine somewhere," said Siward. "If you could fix it to dine with us— But I won't urge you."

"I'll go. Will you say that we'll stop for them at 7?"

"I don't want to urge you," repeated Siward.

"You're not. I'll go. But—wait one moment—tell me, did Quarrier know that Mrs. Mortimer was to stop with Miss Landis?"

"Wait a moment. Hold the wire."

He opened the door of the booth and saw Sylvia waiting for him, seated by the operator's desk. She rose at once when she saw he wished to speak with her.

"Tell me something," he said in a low voice. "Did Mr. Quarrier know that Leila was to stay overnight with you?"

"Yes," she answered quietly, surprised. "Why?"

Siward nodded vaguely, closed the door again and said to Plank:

"Yes, Quarrier knows it. Do you think he'll be there tonight? I don't suppose Miss Landis and Mrs. Mortimer know he is in town."

Y.M.C.A. BOYS FORM FIVE TEAM BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. have organized a basketball league of five teams and a series of games have been scheduled between the various teams to be played Tuesday afternoons and Saturday mornings after the boys' classes. Play in the league begins this afternoon, when two games are to be played.

The five teams formed will be known as "Yale," "Harvard," "Columbia," "Cornell" and "Princeton." Physical Director George L. Listman has appointed five captains and arranged a list of six boys for each team, thus allowing one substitute. Two games will be played after each meeting of the boys' department class and the league will conclude with the games played Tuesday, February 18. It is planned to have some sort of a social affair at the association in honor of the championship team.

The teams, captains and players, as selected by Mr. Listman, follow: "Yale," Hochberger, captain, Cramer, Walker, Putnam, Parker, Van Deventer. "Harvard," C. B. Vail, captain, Manley, Schwed, Bennett, Lerirs, Brown. "Columbia," Vanderbeek, captain, Boice, Goldsmith, Hoagland, J. Manning, Green. Princeton," A. Manley, captain, S. Hochberger, Buckle, Harrigan, Stiglitz, Ulmer. "Cornell," F. Line, captain, Taylor, F. Hochberger, Mair, Naylor, Zook.

The schedule follows: Tuesday, February 4, "Harvard" vs. "Princeton;" "Yale" vs. "Cornell." Saturday, February 8, "Harvard" vs. "Columbia;" "Princeton" vs. "Cornell." Tuesday, February 11, "Yale," vs. "Columbia;" "Harvard" vs. "Cornell." Saturday, February 15, "Cornell" vs. "Columbia;" "Princeton" vs. "Yale." Tuesday, February 18, "Princeton" vs. "Columbia;" "Harvard" vs. "Yale."

B. D. Newell, of Westervelt avenue, is quite ill at his home.

MRS. H. L. HALL HEAD OF WOMEN'S EXCHANGE

The retirement of Mrs. O. T. Waring as president of the Plainfield Exchange for Women's Work, at the annual meeting held in Grace church parish house, this morning, was discussed as a source of deep regret on the part of the members. She has been connected with the exchange since its organization about twelve years ago and has been its president the greater part of that time. Although she retires as the head and as a member of the board, it is said she will continue to be a subscriber and do all in her power to further the interest of the exchange.

These officers were elected this morning for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. Henry L. Hall; first vice-president, Miss Elizabeth R. Cook; second vice-president, Mrs. William M. Stillman; recording secretary, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Greenleaf; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Terry; chairman consignors' committee, Mrs. Howard C. Tracy; chairman housekeeping committee, Mrs. C. H. Tompkins; chairman auditing committee, Mrs. William M. Stillman; chairman nominating committee, Mrs. S. D. Lounsbery; chairman notions committee, Mrs. Burton P. Hall.

The reports showed the exchange to be in excellent financial condition and free from debt. There are now 111 consignors. Most of the money received for the support of the exchange comes from subscribers, but fifteen per cent. being its share from the sale of goods.

Kidded the Amateurs.

On complaint of Manager Counihan that he had shouted unsavory remarks from the gallery of the New Plainfield theatre at an amateur night performance, Louis Nestor, who is also known as Louis Coriell, was arrangned in the city court this morning. He admitted that he had applied some personal phrases to the amateur performers but denied that any of them were out of the way. Judge Runyon suspended sentence with a warning not to overstep the limit at future shows.

P. H. S. Won from Y. M. C. A. 2nd.

The Plainfield High School basketball five won from the Y. M. C. A. second team by a score of 40-39 in a closely fought game at the association gymnasium last night. The school boys were in the lead throughout the game.

BOROUGH HEALTH BOARD RECEIVES YEARLY REPORTS.

Reports from all departments under its supervision were presented at the annual meeting of the Borough Board of Health held last night in the Borough Council Chamber, and they showed that the health of that municipality is in excellent condition.

Dr. A. H. Dundon, as secretary, presented his report, showing that the milk supply is excellent, the qualityity improved and as a result the death rate of infants has been correspondingly lower. Special attention has been devoted to the test of bottled milks. Health Officer O'Brien's report supplimented that of Dr. Dundon, attesting to improved conditions.

The reports showed that at present there are seven cases of diphtheria, nine of typhoid fever, three of measles, eight of scarlet fever and six of tuberculosis in the borough.

During the past year there were seventy births, thirty marriages and eighty-one deaths, a decrease over the preceding year. It was also reported that six permits were granted to scavangers, fifty to milk dealers, three to icemen, three to collect fat and one to maintain a slaughter-house.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FRENCH HELD AT HER LATE HOME.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah J. French, widow of Phineas M. French, was held at her late home on Somerset street, yesterday afternoon. The service was private and was conducted by Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlburt, of Bloomfield, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle, of Summit, who are former pastors of the church. Two selections, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "Crossing the Bar," were sung by Judge William N. Runyon.

The floral tributes were numerous and handsome. They included set pieces from the Ladies' Aid Society and the Home and Foreign Mission societies of the First M. E. church in which Mrs. French had been a prominent worker.

Burial was made in the Methodist cemetery, the honorary pall bearers being Henry A. McGee, James R. Joy, Daniel Davis, Alex. Thorn, Judge Runyon and George Hallock.

Defeat Moxon Bill.

The Assembly at Trenton last night, by a vote of 26 to 31, refused to pass the bill of Assemblyman Moxin, of Union county, that ordinances creating excise boards in third class cities shall not be repealed by councils until they shall have been submitted to a vote of the people. This bill was designed to effect Rahway, where a Democratic council threatens to abolish a Republican excise board. Several New Idea men voted against the bill.

SIX FORT BILLS GO IN.

Many of the administration bills were introduced in the Senate last night at Trenton. Senator Samuel K. Adams, of Burlington, leader of the Republican majority in the upper branch; Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland, and William J. Bradley, of Camden, introduced the measures that are intended to carry out the recommendations of the State's Chief Executive.

Four bills introduced by Mr. Robbins provide, respectively, for the abolition of the State Board of Sewerage Comissioners; conferring the powers and duties of the commission on the State Board of Health; for the abolition of the State Board of Health, and for the creation of a State board to take over the powers and duties of both bodies and to have increased authority. The new board will have six members, named by the Governor, one to be designated as president and one as secretary. The secretary must be a medical man of at least four years' standing. The salary of the members will be $2,000 each per year, with $500 additional for the secretary.

The Minch administration bill would wipe out the State Board Riparian Commissioners and would establish a single-headed department, the commissioner to receive $3,000 per year. The bureau is to be known as the Department of Riparian Lands.

The Bradley bill seeks to create the Department of Public Accounting, with an expert at its head, to go over all books and State accounts. The proposed expert's salary is fixed at $3,000 per year.

Members of the Board of Estimate.

According to the custom at this time, the Board of Education informed the Common Council last night that it had named L. N. Lovell and C. F. Abbott as members of the Board of School Estimate for the coming year, and later in the evening, Mr. Mygatt presented a resolution, which was adopted, appointing Councilman Charles C. Randolph and Herbert Buxton to represent the city on the school board. The appointment is for one year.

CALKINS HEAD OF P.C.C.

DEFEAT FOR INCREASED FEES.

Sunday Golf Also Frowned Down—Officers and Committees Are Selected.

The proposed amendment to the constitution providing for an increase in dues and other changes in the classes of members, was defeated at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club held at the Casino, last night. The proposition was lost by a vote of 70 to 16, decisive enough to leave no question as to the attitude of a majority of members regarding the change. The amendment was presented by the board of trustees, who desired to put the question up to the members of the club.

There was a feeling on the part of some of the members that it would be best to increase the income so that the service at the club might be improved. The increased amount desired was $3,150. The majority of the members expressed themselves as being satisfied with the present service. The change proposed was to raise the initiation fee from $25 to $40 and the dues from $25 to $30. It was also suggested that a class to be known as house members be established, who for $10 a year might enjoy the privileges of the clubhouse. This was to substitute the junior associate class. All of these propositions were defeated and the club will continue under the old constitution.

The original proposition to raise the initiation and dues having failed an effort was made to ascertain how the members would feel about increasing the club's revenue through a different plan and under modified conditions. This was not favorably received and it was decided to drop the matter for the coming year at least.

There was a slight stir when E. E. Iremonger attempted to again introduce the question of opening the club on Sundays. It got no further than a suggestion and nothing came out of the proposition, it being clearly expressed that the majority of the members were against such a move.

Leighton Calkins, Julius E. Erickson and Frederick W. Butler were elected trustees for the coming year and E. T. Barrows, R. S. Rowland and Charles A. Reed were named as the nominating committee for 1909. After the annual meeting the trustees elected the following officers and heads of committees for the coming year:

President, Leighton Calkins; vice-president, Thomas M. Day; secretary, James P. Murray; treasurer, Joseph M. Shellabarger; chairman Green committee, George F. Schoonmaker; chairman of Golf committee, Julius E. Erickson; chairman House committee, Lewis G. Timpson; chairman Tennis committee, Thomas M. Day; chairman buildings and grounds committee, Henry L. Hall.

In the selection of Mr. Calkins as president to succeed Elliot T. Barrows, the continued progress of the club is assured. He has been identified with golf affairs for several years, being president of the New Jersey Golf Association and secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association. He is considered an authority of golf and his system of handicapping used by the Metropolitan Golf Association is pronounced to be the best yet proposed. The club expressed its appreciation of the past services of Mr. Barrows, who has been a zealous worker for the club.

The club's finances were reported to be in excellent condition and the outlook for the coming year is promising. Within a short time the heads of committees will announce the other members and then the work of preparing a schedule for the season together with other details will be commenced. In the election of Mr. Calkins as president, he retires from the chairmanship of the Green committee, the place being filled by the election of George Schoonmaker, who has devoted much time to the game. Julius E. Erickson succeeds J. Whitney Baker as chairman of the Golf committee, while the other chairmanships remain about the same.

Mr. Stricklett to Sing at Concert.

G. Morgan Stricklett will sing a number of songs,—old and new, at the Granville-Smith concert to be given in the Plainfield High School auditorium Saturday night. Mr. Stricklett is well known in this city, where he was for many years a member of the quartet in the Crescent Avenue church choir.

HEIRS WANT ESTATE OF MRS. LAING DIVIDED

A friendly bill has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by Mrs. Elizabeth H. Knapp, of Brooklyn, and others against Eugene M. Laing, of this city. The complainants are the children of Jacob G. Laing, deceased, who was the husband of the late Sarah Ann Laing. At his death on December 23, 1883, he was the owner of a dwelling houhe and lot on West Fourth street and that besides his wife and the daughters he left two sons, Eugene M. Laing and Nathan Laing, and that Nathan Laing died July 9, 1897.

The friendly bill asks for a reference to a special master to report on a division of the estate. An order referring this case to Special Master John H. Van Winkle was made by Chancellor Magie and ordered the report to be made December 31, 1907, but another order was made by Chancellor Magie extending the time for the master to report to January 28, 1908. A supplemental bill has been filed that shows that Mrs. Sarah Ann Laing died December 16, 1907, and that William F. Arnold was appointed as her administrator by Surrogate Parrot. Craig A. Marsh appears as solicitor for the complainants and Coddington & Swackhamer represent Eugene M. Laing.

COMPANY FORMED TO DEVELOP AN INVENTION

The Putona Manufacturing Company, a concern intended to develop an invention for which patents have been granted to Joseph Miller, of Union street, was organized in this city yesterday afternoon. The interested men are David D. Kramer, of New York; Joseph Miller and Vernon Waters, of Plainfield. Robert Newton Crane, who took care of the preliminary work, was appointed as counsel.

The invention is an improvement on the "timer," or as it is termed in the patent office, the spark regulator on an automobile engine. It is claimed that it does away with all vibrators and all plain coils but one and will reduce the cost of cars from $150 to $500, according to the number of cylinders used. A patent expert at Washington pronounced the invention A-1, and Mr. Miller has already had several offers for it from manufacturers and patent brokers.

The company will be duly incorporated and arrangements made to put the contrivance on the market.

Rushmore Fined $25.

After a full investigation of the facts in the case, Judge Runyon announced this morning that he would impose a fine of $25 on Samuel W. Rushmore, the factory owner charged by the Board of Health with violating the plumbing ordinance. He stated in court that the defendant had not acted in the wrong intentionally and the fine he imposed was the lowest that could be made. The amount was promptly paid.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bennett, of Watchung avenue, North Plainfield, last night. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing progressive pinochle. Those present included friends from this city and Somerville. Refreshments were served at midnight.

ZERO WEATHER HERE; 4 BELOW THIS MORNING

To the discomfort of pedestrians and many householders but to the delight of the icemen and coal dealers, the temperature dropped below the zero mark last night, and some thermometers registered as low as 4 degrees below zero. Conservative John Neagle, the weather prophet, gives the official figure as two degrees below, registered at 6:30 this morning, but the coldest night of the winter made some thermometers, or rather some thermometer observers, record the temperature record as several degrees lower.

Despite the fact that the weather bureau forecasts warmer weather, maximum official temperature in the last twenty-four hours has been 10 degrees, and this morning at 9 o'clock the mercury stood at only 4 above. As the day progressed, the cloudiness increased and the mercury rose. The official forecast is snow and warmer tonight, rain and warmer tomorrow. Maybe the fire hydrants will work now, and perhaps Mayor Townsend of the borough will soon have the thaw he is waiting for to scrape Somerset street.

WHAT AUTO AMENDMENT MEANS TO UNION COUNTY

The automobile amendment introduced last night in the Senate by Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, if passed by the Legislature, will prove of financial benefit to Union county. Under the present law the county receives but something like $200 from the automobile tax which does not begin to cover the damage done to Union county's roads by the underdraft of the high-power machines.

If Senator Frelinghuysen's bill becomes a law Union county's share will probably figure up to from $7,000 to $8,000, and to that extent will reduce the county's annual appropriation for the maintenance of our fine system of stone roads. "It is proper," said a prominent man today, "that the State should take this affirmative action in recognition of the county's work in building its roads practically without State aid."

UNION SENATOR'S BILL FIXES ELECTION FEES.

Senator Ackerman, of Union county, on Monday night in the Senate at Trenton, introduced a bill effecting Elizabeth particularly. It would remedy the trouble the election officers had in getting the $30 fee that was intended for them instead of the $25 they did get because of the doubt as to the provisions of the law. In one place in the law $25 was allowed; in another place $30. The $25 law was passed and the $30 was not repealed, or at least taken off the statute books.

The new bill provides that all doubt be removed as to the right of election officers getting at least $30 for services in cities of 30,000 or more inhabitants.

STATE BOARD APPORTIONS SCHOOL MONEYS FOR YEAR

At the meeting of the State Board of Education held at Trenton yesterday the annual apportionment of the school moneys for the year was made between the counties.

Thirteen are in the class of receiving counties, seven in class of paying counties and one, Passaic, a medium county. The apportionment follows:

RECEIVING COUNTIES.

Counties.	Apportioned from reserve fund.	Total apportionment.	Amount per teacher.	Amount in.	Amount of tax in.
Cumberland	$10,326.77	$97,709.84	$371.52	$5,500	$11.39

HORSE SHOW DATES SET

Fourth Annual Exhibition at Riding and Driving Club Park, June, 6, 7 and 8.

O. T. WARING NEW PRESIDENT.

Former President McCutchen Now Vice—E. S. Hooley Re-elected Treasurer—Fairbairn Horse Show Chief.

Encouraging reports together with the election of officers comprised the principal business transacted at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club held at the Casino, last night. There was a large attendance of members and considerable enthusiasm was shown in the success of the organization. It was announced that the dates, June 6, 7 and 8, have been secured for the annual horse show and that efforts would be made to excell previous exhibitions. Assurances have been received from practically all of last year's exhibitors that they would return to Plainfield this year. This means a high-class show.

In the choice of officers for the coming year O. T. Waring was elected president to succeed Charles W. McCutchen. The latter was made vice president, while Edwin S. Hooley was re-elected treasurer and Lewis G. Timpson secretary. Robert A. Fairbairn was re-elected chairman of the horse show committee and Lewis E. Waring was again chosen chairman of the finance committee. The other members of these committees will be announced soon after which plans for the 1908 show will be considered.

The reports for the past year showed that great success had attended the efforts of the club and there is a good balance in the treasury. Many improvements have been made at the show grounds and others are contemplated to make it one of the best in this part of the country.

P.H.S. GIRLS PLAN FOR NOVEL LEAP YEAR DANCE

Speaking in behalf of the girls of the Plainfield High School, Miss Esther Crampton, president of the Girls' Athletic Association, today extended to the boys of the school an invitation to attend a leap year dance to be held in the auditorium Saturday evening, February 29. The affair is to be of a most novel character, and the dancers will be entirely members of the school.

The girls are taking the initiative at this dance and are making up the dance cards for the boys. Each is to invite a lad to go to the dance with her and will supervise the scheduling of his dance. There will be ten dances on the card, and features appropriate to leap year and February 29, will be introduced into the cotillion and grand march.

LOCAL OPTION BILL INTRODUCED AT TRENTON

The Legislature's session at Trenton yesterday resulted in fixing next Monday afternoon for hearing in the Senate views of people for and against the pending public utilities measure, postponing the House hearing on the public utilities measure until February 18, and the introduction in the House of the Local Option bill of the Anti-Saloon League.

This latter bill will be one of the features of this session. It gives the power, even to wards, to vote on local option when 30 per cent. of the legal voters apply to the County Court with a petition. The election is to be held ten days after filing the petition and prohibition to go into effect in the territory in which the vote is held thirty days after a successful vote on the proposition. The penalty for violation of the prohibition thus established is a fine of $50 to $20 for the first offense, $100 to $50 for the second offense, and three months to one year in prison.

Under the act no man could give a guest a drink of intoxicating liquor in the prohibition territory.

An Early Morning Jag.

While this morning's session of the city court was in progress, Edward Jones, a porter, was brought in by Patrolman Charles Flynn, helplessly drunk. He was too far gone to stand trial and was placed on the soft side of an iron cot to sleep his jag off, if possible, before tomorrow morning. Jones was picked up in Fairchild's alley and would undoubtedly have been badly frozen but for the cop discovering him.

FICKLE LOVER HELD FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Benjamin Estrum, a young man employed by a local tailor, was taken in custody by Sheriff Weaver, yesterday, and lodged in jail on a breach of promise charge preferred January 11 last by Miss Marie Passalsky, of this city. He had previously been arrested and when taken before Supreme Court Commissioner Isaac P. Runyon, was released in $5,000 bail, the amount being furnished by Moses Bender. A few days ago Bender became alarmed at placing so much security on Estrum's person and announced that he wished to be relieved of the responsibility. The defendant tried to get another bondsman but without success.

According to Miss Passalsky, Estrum entered into a contract under the old Mosaic law to marry her and she began preparing her trousseau. Just before the date set for the wedding, Estrum, it is alleged, underwent a change of heart and decided that Miss Passalsky was not his ideal, emphasizing his decision by running away in order to be relieved from his contract. The young woman determined to punish her fickle lover and preferred the breach of promise pending a damage suit to soothe her aching heart.

DEATHS EXCEED BIRTHS FOR THE LAST MONTH

Reports showing the sanitary condition of the city to be good, were presented at the February meeting of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon. On February 1 there were five cases of scarlet fever. During January four cases of typhoid fever were reported. The source of infection in these cases could not be traced; however, it was learned that all the patients had been out of town and the disease was undoubtedly contracted outside of Plainfield. One of these cases resulted in death.

During the month there were eleven marriages, thirty-eight births, two still-births and forty-one deaths.

Much work was accomplished during the month on dairy inspection and milk analysis. The inspector visited 156 dairies, bottling places, stores seling milk, etc., and forty-seven samples of milk were inspected and cream analyzed. All sources of the city's milk supply were visited with the exception of six dairies, but as these were at some distance from the city recent storms prevented the inspector from going there. Improvement was noticed in most of the dairies and all were found to be in fairly good condition.

Fats, 4.13 per cent.; solids, 13.14 per cent.; solids not fat, 9.01 per cent.; lactometer, 114; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 45,996. The average bacteria is much lower than last month, only one sample being above 100,000 per cubic centimeter.

The plumbers bonds of Samuel Rushmore, A. M. Pearson, A. L. Carney and Nicholas Cody were received and filed. Milk permits were granted to J. M. Hull and J. G. Williams & Co.

Improvements at Public Library.

Acknowledgement of the receipt of 194 volumes as a gift from the Y. M. C. A., was authorized at the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library, last night, and the thanks of the board will be sent to the secretary of the association. The library committee reported a commendable increase in the circulation of books as a result of renewed efforts and new plans recently adopted; also much work accomplished in arranging and preserving books, magazines and binding. The treasurer's report was received and placed on file.

McCaffrey In the Toils.

Frank McCaffrey, a young man of the "I - want - to - be - a - desperado" stripe, who has been in the local police court a couple of times, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was picked up as a disorderly person by Patrolman Saffron, yesterday afternoon, and when searched at headquarters, a razor and a knife were found in his pockets. He was remanded until tomorrow morning while the police look up some old charges that have been hanging over him.

Reception Date Fixed.

A. B. Beers, chairman of the committee of Y. M. C. A. trustees in charge of the reception to be tendered General Secretary Kenneth Robbie and Herbert E. Parker, his successor, has announced the date as Thursday, February 13. The reception will be given in the Y. M. C. A. hall and Mrs. Robbie and Mrs. Parker will receive with their husbands. Members and friends of the association are invited to be present.

"NOT GUILTY" SENN IS RELEASED ON BAIL

Oliver R. Senn, the former cashier at the local office of the U. S. Express Company, was arraigned before Judge Runyon yesterday afternoon on the embezzlement charge recently preferred against him by Agent Wilson R. Frederick. Through his counsel, William A. Coddington, he entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The amount was put up in cash by John Keefer, of Morristown.

Before the bond was stipulated, Senn's counsel argued for a reduction of the amount, this having been the original sum stipulated when the arrest was made. He declared that the money alleged to have been embezzled, $351.86, had been paid to the express company and that Mr. Senn had no intention of removing from Plainfield.

In reply Judge Runyon announced that while he believed the defendant was acting in good faith, the court could take no cognizance of any restitution, being guided simply by the complaint. In the eyes of the law, he would be held responsible for the production of Senn, he said, and under the circumstances he would continue the bail at $500.

WOMAN FURNISHES BOND FOR ALLEGED BIGAMIST

Edward G. Wood, of Philadelphia, arrested in North Plainfield Monday on a warrant issued by his second wife, formerly Miss Lavinia Seader, daughter of Adam Seader, and faced with a bigamy charge by Miss Gussie Seader, daughter of Peter Seader, was released last night, when Mrs. Wade, a friend of his from Philadelphia, furnished the $200 bond imposed by Justice Clark Mundy at his hearing Monday night.

The bond was given by Mrs. Wade at a hearing held in borough police headquarters last night. In releasing the prisoner after the money was furnished, Justice Mundy warned Wood to keep away from the borough in future. "You've made a lot of trouble for the Seaders," he said, "and I warn you to give Plainfield and North Plainfield a wide berth while you are waiting to come up before the grand jury. We don't need men of your type around here. You're free now, so get out of town as soon as you can, and stay away."

Wood married Miss Gussie Seader in this city four years ago, and last June married Miss Lavinia Seader. The Seaders claim that he was never legally divorced from his first wife.

ENDEAVORERS' CALENDER FOR PRAYER MEETINGS

The officers of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union have selected the following societies to take charge of the mid-week prayer-meeting at the West End Tabernacle on the dates enumerated:

Congregational, February 13; First Presbyterian, February 20; Faith chapel, February 27; Presbyterian, Dunellen, March 5; Seventh-Day Baptist, Plainfield, March 19; Trinity Reformed, March 26; Seventh-Day Baptist, New Market, April 2; Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, April 9; Park Avenue Baptist, April 16; Hope chapel, April 23; First Baptist, New Market, April 30; South Plainfield Baptist, May 7; Warren chapel, May 14.

Arrangements for the mass meeting to be held at Warren chapel tomorrow night are complete. A chorus choir of twenty voices has been organized and the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will assist in the music. De Witt Frazee will render cornet solos. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, superintendent of the department of Good Citizenship and Sabbath Observance of the State C. E. Union. At this meeting there will be the usual award of the banner for best attendance.

Mrs. Bechtle's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Caroline Bechtle was held yesterday afternoon at the home of her son, Fred Bechtle, of West Second street. It was conducted by Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, and was followed by burial at Hillside cemetery. The pall bearers were Matthias Menzenbach, S. H. Schleif, Rudolph Spiegel, Benjamin Durr, Lawrence Fahn and Valentine Utzinger.

Waldron Child's Funral.

The funeral of Harriet Waldron, the colored child who died in Muhlenberg Hospital as a result of her clothes catching fire, will be held at Cole's undertaking rooms tomorrow afternoon.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS' PARADE

Children of Various Protestant Churches in City and Borough to Participate.

THE TEACHERS' UNION PLANS.

Expected That All Sunday-schools Will Join In Big Christian Demonstration On May Day.

The question of holding a May day parade of the combined Sunday-schools of Plainfield and North Plainfield, as suggested last year by The Daily Press, was considered at an executive committee meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union and it was decided to try and interest the co-operation of all the Sunday-school superintendents and teachers of the Protestant churches in the city and borough in the movement.

The parade will be similar to the one held in Brooklyn every year, and judging by the enthusiasm shown on the part of those who discussed the matter Monday night, it will be a success. The secretary was instructed to communicate with the superintendents and teachers and they will be invited to attend a meeting in the near future to discuss plans in detail. It is probable that the parade will be held on a Sunday. Suitable music will be engaged for the occasion.

It is fully expected that the schools from all Protestant churches will join in the demonstration and it is understood that the executive committee of the Union which proposed the parade, has received assurance of united support.

MRS. ZOOK DESCRIBES INDUSTRIAL MISSIONS

The success of industrial missions was happily told in a paper presented by Mrs. Martin A. Zook at the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. She spoke of the general recognition in all religious denominations of the value of industrial missions, not only to teach the natives of the different countries self-support but by the examples of the missionaries to take away ehe reproach from manual labor which is common in all uncivilized countries.

Mrs. Zook's account of the industrial training in Africa was full of interest, showing how the natives with no love for work are stimulated to achievement by the efforts of the missionaries. Reference was made to Lovedale in South India, where the value of the work done annually is $12,000. She described also the crafts taught in India and Burma, the work done on the Congo, the Livingstonia Institution, and the Uganda Company started by Mackey in 1878 and later the industries developed by missions in the Philippines. A missionary says of this work "We want the natives to see that Christianity touches the whole life."

The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. J. W. Musson and followed by Current Events of interest given by Mrs. Harold Serrell.

McINTYRE MUSIC CONCERT AT CASINO TOMORROW NIGHT

The fourth and last McIntyre Chamber Music Concert will be given at the Casino, tomorrow night, when the music-loving people of Plainfield will have an opportunity to enjoy a rare treat. The first appearance here of Miss Marguerite De Anderson, the famous flute player, should be an occasion of great interest. She is considered by competent critics to be an artist of exceptional ability and a great reception is predicted for her.

In addition Mr. McIntyre, pianist; Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cello, and Maurice Kaufman, violinist, will play the great Tschaikowsky trio, which was written for that noted composer by Nicholas Rubenstein, who was director of the Imperial Orchestra in Russia. The dedication is "A la memoire d' un grand artiste." The trio is pronounced to be one of the finest. Other classical and well-known numbers will complete the program.

Exams At Borough High School.

Mid-year examinations began this morning at the North Plainfield High School and will continue for the rest of the week. Two examinations will be held daily. The first will begin at 8:20 and end at 10:20. After a ten minute recess, the second examination will begin, ending at 12:30, when school will be dismissed for the day. Only those who have examinations are obliged to report at the school, for no regular classes will be held during examination time.

William L. Lusk, of South Bound Brook, has gone to Philadelphia, where he will spend several weeks with relatives.

A daughter was recently born to Mr. and Mrs. John Dederick at their home in East Main street, Bound Brook.

WESTFIELD.

Subjects for consideration at the next meeting of the Westfield Woman's Club have been announced as "Westfield Bird," and "Feltville." Feltville is a place a couple of miles from Westfield, known for many years as the deserted village. Several years ago the houses were repaired and the place received the name of Glenside Park. The meeting will be held Monday afternoon.

John Campbell and John F. Ryan, of Westfield, were drawn yesterday to serve on the Union county petit jury for two weeks, commencing next Monday.

SOMERVILLE.

An interesting lecture was given Monday evening, under the auspices of the Education Society, in the assembly room by William S. Murray, of Plainfield, on "The Plea for the Child." Music was also a feature of the program.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Second Reformed church observed Endeavor Day with special services last evening. Rev. C. Culp, of Bound Brook made an address.

Grand Secretary Robert H. Alberts, of Jersey City, with other members of the grand council, paid a fraternal visit to Bridgewater Council, Royal Arcanum, at its meeting last evening.

Captain Samuel Edelman, of the Military Academy, has returned here after a week's visit to friends in Philadelphia.

Mrs. George Schenck has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Garretson, in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Griggs spent Sunday at Rocky Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. James Creeden and daughter, of Trenton, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cassidy on Somerset street.

H. C. Pastorius, of Easton, Pa., has been here visiting Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hope for two days.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The ladies' orchestra met last night at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Trewin, of Plainfield. Renewed interest is being taken by the members of this organization and it is planned to hold regular practises at the homes of the various members, so as to bring the orchestra up to its former state of efficiency. The membership is to be increased by several local women.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market, will officiate at the services to be held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Plainfield, in commemoration of the seventieth anniversary of the founding of that church. This anniversary will be celebrated with a special service at the church Saturday morning.

The board of trustees of the First Baptist church are planning to remodel and renovate the house vacated by George Caskey, who moved to Clinton avenue last week and when the repairs are completed, the house will be used as the parsonage. The work of remodeling will be commenced at once.

There has been excellent skating on New Market pond this past week. Last night a party of nine Plainfielders braved the cold to spend the evening skating. The ice is now about ten inches thick and cutting will begin within a few days.

The monthly meeting of the trustees of the Presbyterian church will be held in the church parlors tomorrow night.

The Borough Board of Education will hold its regular meeting in the school tonight.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Public Service Corporation is not wasting any coal on the main line trolley cars. Hardly a car is in commission that is warm enough to keep the frost off the windows.

Treasurer Sam Cunningham's benefit performance, "Wine, Woman and Song," at the New Plainfield theatre last night, was well attended by the local amusement lovers.

The blacksmiths have been enjoying their first real harvest of the winter this week, the rain several days ago leaving the roadbed in some places a bed of ice.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Sheelen, who were married a week ago, have returned from their trip to Washington, D. C.

H. C. Smith and Lynus Walpole, Jr., who have been spending two weeks in Boston, returned home yesterday.

Frank Carona, Briant Johnson and Christopher Keuhn have returned from a two weeks' southern trip.

Miss Cora Miller has returned from a two weeks' visit with relatives at Trenton.

HEARTILY ENDORSE COOPER REMEDIES

Dealer and Patient at Hallowell, Maine, Make Statements Under Oath

In connection with the intense interest manifested by the public at large in the theory of L. T. Cooper as to the human stomach being the source of nearly all ill health, the statements of Mr. W. D. Spaulding, of Hallowell, Me., one of the oldest and best-known druggists in that state, and of Mrs. Frederick Harvey, a well known nurse living in the same place, will be interesting to thousands of persons who are today suffering from ailments directly traceable to the stomach. The fact that these statements are made voluntarily, under oath, removes all element of doubt. The statements follow:

"HALLOWELL, MAINE, July 20, 1907.

"To THE COOPER MEDICINE CO.,
"Dayton, Ohio.

"Gentlemen—The policy at Spaulding's drug store is to gain the perfect confidence of the public by never recommending any medicine or treatment until its virtues have been fully established. The Cooper Remedies were to us an unknown quality, we were very skeptical of their medicinal value, and it was not until several of our customers had received such beneficial results from their use that we could no longer doubt their value that we consented to take the agency for the Cooper Remedies in this territory, heartily endorsing the same.

"Herewith we give the testimonial of a lady whose case came under our personal observation from her being a regular customer, and she says:—

"'Gentlemen of the Cooper Medicine Co., Dayton Ohio: It is with pleasure I recommend your New Discovery medicine, of which I have taken the contents of three bottles, and can today eat anything without inconvenience to myself. For a number of years I had suffered intensely with severe headaches, sour stomach, indigestion, pains in my side, and complications which made it exceedingly hard for me to accomplish even my household work. Physicians had given me dozens of prescriptions, which failed to accomplish a cure or even relief. Your New Discovery medicine advertisement attracted my attention, and I purchased a bottle of the medicine, which I took according to directions and before it was half gone, I felt very much better; when I had taken the contents of two bottles I gained courage to eat many things which for years I had denied myself, and found they caused me no ill effects. Today, after having used three bottles of the New Discovery, I can eat anything and feel that I am a well woman once more, and therefore would advise anyone to take Cooper's New Discovery, for I feel sure it will cure them.'—Mrs. Frederick Harvey, Hallowell, Me.

"We endorse the above testimonial, under oath, as being correct.

"W. D. SPAULDING.

"Testimony before me under oath this 22nd day of July, 1907.

"GEO. A. SAFFORD,
(SEAL.) "Notary Public."

The Cooper remedies have proven eminently satisfactory wherever introduced. We will be pleased to explain their nature to anyone wishing to know about them. We are agents.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Haven't you opened that account at the Plainfield Savings Bank yet? Better do it today and thereby get the benefit of the liberal interest paid on all accounts.

TenEyck & Harris, the coal dealers, have the reputation for selling the kind of anthracite that gives the most heat. It is well screened and full weight is always given.

Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler, sells the best watches, the kind that keep accurate time and need little repairing. He also carries an exceptional stock of jewelry, gold and silverware.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, carries a stock of drugs and medicines second to none, including the famous Rexall remedies. First-class prescription work promptly attended to and prices reasonable.

Besides selling the best grade of groceries, S. Scheuer & Co., of West Front street, conduct a first-class meat department and they always have a fresh supply of fruits, vegetables in season. You can save money by trading with this firm, why not begin now?

CLOSED PORTALS.

There will be initiation at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., tomorrow night.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet Friday night, receive three applications for membership and initiate two candidates.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet Tuesday night and after the business session will enjoy an informal program of music and short addresses.

ANOTHER STIR AT "NO. 73."

This Time It's Metal Beds—A Big Money Saver For All.

There is always a vast amount of "goin's on" at one Newark establishment, and the present month is no exception to the rule. The store referred to is known as "Old 73" though its more dignified title is, Cowperthwait & Van Horn Co., the furniture house that has long since made Market street famous for its furniture and carpet enterprise. Just now the Cowperthwait people are carrying on a stirring movement among their metal beds, offering a remarkably broad collection of newly arrived patterns in white enameled iron and all brass bedsteads at astonishingly little prices. The character of the designs, excellence of construction and the very apparent values throughout the line are doing more to further popularize this already popular house than most any event at "No. 73," the past few years.

To out of town residents with whom metal beds are especially popular, this sale is appealing with particular force, and a trip to Newark would certainly be justified if for nothing else than to investigate this sale. All the other furniture, carpets, and stove departments are reported as full of activity owing to the mid-winter reductions very generally distributed throughout the stocks, the easy credit terms so liberally granted, continue to prove inviting to careful buyers from every section of the State. Cowperthwait & Van Horn truly deserve the title "Everybodys Store."

Held On a Charge of Murder.

James Hunt, who was arrested by the Newark police on Saturday night for the murder of Joseph Hewlett, and who was brought to Cranford Monday, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace W. W. Mendell at Cranford Monday night. The justice of the peace held him on a charge of murder, to await the action of the grand jury. Five other negroes—John Banks, Melvin Johnson, William Scott, Leonard Meade and James Bailey—who had been locked up, were held as witnesses, and also were committed to the county jail.

Railroad Safeguards Trap.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has at last taken steps to safeguard the grade crossings at Dark lane in Linden Township, where two persons were recently killed within ten days. The railroad company has placed a flagman and a flag shanty at the death-trap. Elizabeth undertakers, who have fought for this, reported their victory Monday night at Newark to the meeting of the Essex and Union Funeral Directors' Association, and were congratulated by their Essex brethren.

Westfield Tax Budget Reduced.

The Westfield tax budget for the year of 1908 was cut $4,250 at the regular meeting of the Town Council Monday night. The ordinance, passed on first reading two weeks ago, was for $48,260, and, after several appropriations had been reduced Monday night, the budget amounted to $44,010. The largest cuts were in the street lighting and sinking fund appropriations. They were $1,500 and $900 respectively.

The White Sale Lasts Throughout This Week.

More New Bargains Added to the List to Make This the Greatest Week of Them All.

You can easily recognize the bargains we quote below by the well-known brands of the goods, This list added to the innumerable bargains of the WHITE SALE since the beginning will certainly make this the biggest White Sale Week you have attended in a long, long time.

The muslin underwear sale, the embroidery sale, the sheer white goods sale, are each in themselves enough to draw the economical shopper, but we add this new list as an additionel attraction for this first week in February to make a good beginning for our 1908 campaign during this recognized dullest month of the year.

EMBROIDERY FLOUNCINGS 12½c Yard.

You have had some remarkable Embroidery bargains here since the first day of this White Sale. These Flouncings at 12½c are perhaps the biggest bargain of them all, for the quality is good, both the Embroidery and the Fine Lawn they are on, and just think of the price. But Tepper's is the unusual house, for we have no money tied up on our books—Cash is always worth 6 per cent. you know, and then we discontinued trading stamps some time ago that makes 3½ per cent. more we save on every dollar's worth of goods we sell. So we CAN and DO give bargains. and these Embroideries are a good illustration, at yard 12½

SALE OF SPRING STYLES MISSES' SILK

PRINCESS and JUMPER DRESSES.

Misses and Small Sized Women will be delighted with these pretty Princess and Jumper Dresses which have just arrived and will go on sale tomorrow.

These dresses are made of fine quality taffeta silk in solid colors, embracing navy, brown, green, Copenhagen and black, and in dainty stripes and checks of brown, navy, and black and white; made in a number of pretty styles too numerous to describe here; trimmed with contrasting colors of taffeta strappings and footholds; generously plaited skirts, sizes 14, 16 and 18, skirt lengths 36 to 39, well worth 16.50; take you choice of them at only 10.50

SMARTEST SPRING SUITS $25.

WE VALUE THEM AT $49.50.

Were it not for the fact that manufacturers have been compelled to lay off many hands, and that materials can be bought so advantageously, we could not begin to make you an offering such as this.

We went into the market and bought a big lot of splendid materials—mannish mixtures, hard twisted serges, fancy and individual stripes and fancy checks in red, green, tan, gray, reseda, Oxford, brown and blue at a very low price. Then we went to one of the best makers we know of and he, glad to put some of his people to work, offered to make up this lot of suits far below what he would ordinarily do the work for, happy only to employ his people and thinking little of profit.

So we are able to present these handsome Spring suits cut in the improved

Single and Double Breasted, Prince Chap, Three and Four Button Cutaway and Hip Length Styles.

The coats are lined with Skinner's satin; some have velvet collars with satin facing and pique vestee; skirts are cut in new circular, sectional plait, and kilt styles, with and without folds. These are the smartest suits we have seen this season, you cannot infagine their real beauty without seeing them and will certainly marvel at the price.

We count them worth 49.50. We are going to sell them at $25.

MEN'S UNDERWEAR at Half and Less.

These are samples pieces and seconds from the celebrated Standard Mills, well known as makers of first-class knit underwear.

There are no more particular makers than the Standard folks and they require every garment sent out from the mills to be absolutely perfect, else they call it a second.

In going over this lot we find it difficult in many cases to find any imperfection; in some cases there is a slight defect in the weaving; in others simply a soiled spot which will come out in the first wash; so the wear in any case will not be affected.

It was late in the season when we bought these and we made an offer that we did not expect would be accepted; but we got the goods, and now will treat you to an unusual underwear bargain.

Lot 1. Men's Natural Wool Shirts and Drawers; heavy and medium weights; various styles; shirts in sizes 34 to 46; drawers in sizes 32 to 44; excellent in style and finish; regular price $1 a garment; to go at just half 50

Lot 2. Men's Natural Wool and Camel's Hair Shirts and Drawers—2-3 to 3-4 wool; some Austrian wool in the lot; some double breasted; full line of sizes; usually $1.25 to $1.75 a garment; priced for this sale 75

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The signing of Pitcher Glade, according to President Frank J. Farrell, of the New York Americans, means that the team has at last been wonderfully strengthened where it has always been weak. "Glade will be one of the stars of the season," said Mr. Farrell yesterday. "There isn't a ball player who has ever seen Glade work who does not pronounce him in a class with Bill Donovan, Mathewson and other great boxmen of the present day. We would never have had a chance to get this man if it hadn't been for the fact that the St. Louis club was convinced that he intended to retire. Then they were perfectly willing to trade him to us. But when we sent Glade a contract for more money than he had ever received before we landed him.

"I do not see how we could be better fixed for pitchers with such men as Glade, Orth, Chesbro, Newton, Hogg, Doyle, Hughes, Neuer, Lake and others. To me it looks as if Manager Griffith would certainly be able to stand off the enemy with at least half a dozen good slabmen, which if accomplished will give us a chance for the pennant, barring accidents of course. But, mind you, we do not claim the pennant at all; we only hope that the team can play fast ball, and if luck is with us finish on top. That is what New Yorkers want in the baseball line, and we hope that we can supply the demand."

Connie Mack, the manager of the Philadelphia Americans, has returned to Philadelphia after a trip to California. He stopped over in Buffalo the other day and was well pleased to find that Jimmy Collins, his crack third baseman, had recovered from the game leg which made his work unsatisfactory last year. Collins has had an operation performed by a specialist and by means of the baking process his leg has recovered its former strength. Collins has also been working steadily in a gymnasium and has taken off twenty pounds. If he can play his old game the Philadelphia Americans will be more formidable than in 1907.

Jack Thoney, the outfielder secured by the Boston Americans from Toronto, is so much impressed with his importance that he wants an exorbitant salary to play in the Hub this year.

McGraw, who is in Los Angeles, writes that he will begin the season with Larry Doyle at second base but that he may give Merkle, the new first baseman, a trial at the middle bag later. McGraw thinks that Merkle is a coming ball player who is too good a man to keep on the bench. But such uncertainty as to the second base, the key to the infield, is generally avoided by other major league managers.

GOLF.

There are murmurings of discontent among the golfers over the selection of courses for two of the national championship tournaments to be held this year. The Boston, Philadelphia and New York women have not yet ceased to discuss the action of the United States Golf Association officials in awarding the women's tournament to the Chevy Chase Club, of Washington. They refer to the action as a "slap in the face."

So far as can be learned the only persons who preferred Chevy Chase to the Philadelphia Country Club were a few Western women who had a curiosity to visit the capital of the United States. They argued that the awarding of the tournament to Chevy Chase would give them an opportunity to kill two kirds with one stone. If the annual team match between the women's associations of the East and West is decided immediately prior to the national contest and over the same course, the chances are that the Chicago district will be fairly well represented.

As for the women living along the Atlantic seaboard, it is difficult at this time to make predictions with any degree of certainty. For the present at least they certainly do not appear much inclined to attend. Possibly, however, after they have had time to think it over calmly wiser heads will prevail, which will result in the entry at Chevy Chase comparing favorably with previous ones. Just at present some of the women are talking of organizing a national association of their own. Apparently all that is lacking to bring the matter to a crisis is the want of a leader courageous enough to make the first step.

Even if the women are piqued over their championship outlook, their feelings are as nothing compared with the professionals. After the last time the national open tournament was decided at Myopia a number of "pros" declared they would not compete there again. They complained of the treatment accorded them by the hunt club officials.

It seems extremely improbable that the national organization will take any action in the matter further than to hold the tournament on the dates scheduled in August and over the Myopia links. There are those who claim that the "pros," when the time comes, will hasten to enter and that they will gather at the Hamilton course in their accustomed numbers.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Miss Aimee Emmons will give a recital at a social to be held at the Congregational church Friday night.

The Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church has sent 200 books to the Baptist missionaries at Woodward, Oklahoma.

"Something in Two Plain Men Which Made the People Wonder" will be the subject of the prayer meeting at the First Baptist church, tonight.

"The Discipline of Life and the Spirit of Discipline" will be the topic for the prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight.

"Will There Be a Judgment?" will be the subject of the special discourse by Rev. A. E. Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night.

Superintendent G. E. Hall, of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school, will give a demonstration of a program as carried out at his school at the meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union in the Y. M. C. A. Monday night, February 24.

The fourth discourse in the special series will be delivered at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring. The subject will be "Jesus and Judaism." The fifth and last sermon in the series will be on "Jesus and Christianity," and will be given Sunday night, February 16.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Charles Emmons, of the borough, who has been ill for a long time, is improving.

Miss Ryan, of Howard street, who has been detained at home several weeks by illness, is much improved.

Miss Annie Smith, of Westfield, who has been visiting friends here for several days, has returned home.

R. J. Shaw, of East Second street, has completely recovered from a severe illness that detained him at home.

Miss Lulu Randolph, of West Eighth street, who has been visiting friends in Philadelphia, is now stopping in Washington. Later she will go to Pittsburg for a visit.

Michael Griffen, the telegraph operator, who was employed in the switch tower in the East End of the city, when he met with an accident resulting the double fracture of his leg, is improving steadily and he expects to be able to return to work early in March.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Mrs. L. E. Cole, who has resided on West Front street, near New, for many years, will change her residence April 1, and will probably move to the borough.

—The current number of Browning's Magazine contains two interesting pictures in the amateur photographer's department, taken by Plainfielders. One is entitled "A Fine Opening," by L. R. Gwyer, and the other, "True Hearts," by Mrs. W. Durrant.

—Another order issued by the Western Union Telegraph Company has changed the Sunday hours at the local office at the North Avenue station. The office will close at 6 o'clock in the evening for the night. Week day nights the office remains open until 11 o'clock.

—The Plainfield Mothers' Association will meet in the library of the Plainfield High School Friday afternoon, when a mothers' conference will be held at 3 o'clock on matters pertaining to the schools. An address will be made at 4 o'clock by Harold A. Nomer, of the Polytechnic Preparatory School, on "Ideals In Teaching." Those interested are invited to attend both meetings.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Slipping on the ice near Bridgeton yesterday, Wesley Flavele broke his left arm.

Falling on an icy pavement, Miss Ethel Austin, of Millville, yesterday sustained a fractured ankle.

Clarence Madara, of Swedesboro, has a broken wrist, the result of a runaway while delivering groceries.

Gloucester County Road Supervisor Lewis S. Stranger, who has been sick for several weeks, is reported in a serious condition.

Vineland Grange has passed a resolution calling on Senator and Assemblymen of Cumberland county to vote for the abolition of the County Equalization Tax Board.

Trenton's Ministerial Union yesterday adopted resolutions indorsing the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League's local option bill, which is soon to make its appearance in the Legislature.

While walking from one room to another, Mrs. Rebecca Simmerman, eighty years old, of 522 Line street, Camden, fell yesterday and besides fracturing her wrist was injured internally.

A big public euchre party was given last night in the Morriss Guards Armory at Atlantic City for the benefit of the victims of the Boyertown disaster. Five hundred took part and several hundred dollars was realized by the promoters.

Henry Crowley was buried yesterday in a new suit of clothes he bought several weeks ago especially for that purpose. After buying the clothes he laid them aside and refused all entreaties to wear them, saying: "I bought them for my funeral clothes." Crowley was a glassblower, forty-five years old.

Thomas Street, Vineland's eighty-seven-year-old acrostic poet, died yesterday after fasting for two weeks. His last meal made him ill and since then he abhored food of every kind. Street was born in England, studied for the Baptist ministry, was a Shaker for fifteen years, lectured from Maine to California as medium and clairvoyant and was a radical "greenbacker." He married Miss Lucy Browne, a blind girl, about twenty-eight years ago, thinking it his duty to bring mental sunshine into her life.

There is a slight epidemic of appendicitis in Toms River and vicinity. Mrs. T. J. R. Brown, wife of Prosecutor Brown, was operated on yesterday at the General Memorial Hospital in New York city. Miss Mabel Applegate underwent recently an operation at the Long Branch Hospital. Mrs. J. J. Parker, of Burrsville, and James D. Holman, Jr., grandson of former Sheriff Charles L. Holman, the "cranberry king," also were recently operated on at the Lakewood Hospital. William B. Penn, of Waretown, a village near here, died recently at the Cooper Hospital, Camden, from the same ailment.

"I wouldn't pay $4 to become a citizen of the United States; it isn't worth it," exclaimed Edward George Alin as he left the office of the county clerk in the Hudson County Courthouse in Jersey City yesterday afternoon after having caused excitement by charging William Launders, a clerk, and the other officials with being grafters. The office was crowded when Alin, accompanied by two witnesses, entered, and, explaining his business, was referred to Launders. When Launders had finished the application he referred Alin to clerks in the adjoining room who recorded the application, remarking that the fee would be $4. It was then the irate British subject opened on Launders and the other clerks who tried to pacify him. Business was totally suspended while Alin held the floor, and the attaches of the office had to submit to the abuse and be classed as "grafters."

NEWARK'S MAYOR WILL PRESENT W. J. BRYAN

When William Jennings Bryan addresses a Newark audience at the Colosseum, in that city, tomorrow night, he will be introduced as "that Democratic candidate for President and the next President of the United States." Mayor Haussling, after another request from a special committee of the Progressive Demorratic League, decided yesterday that he would introduce the Nebraskian, although he had previously declined to do so.

It was pointed out by the committee that inasmuch as the Mayor of Jersey City would introduce Mr. Bryan there, and the Mayor of Passaic would introduce the Nebraskan to a Passaic audience, etiquette called for his introduction in Newark by Mayor Haussling.

An orchestra has been engaged, and fireworks, consisting of red fire and Roman candles, have been purchased. It was also arranged that six automobiles, bearing the members of the reception committee, should meet Mr. Bryan at the city line. Mr. Eryan will come by auto from Passaic.

About 1,300 tickets have been sent out by the committee. Of these 300 were sent to newspapers in the State, and the remaining 1,000 to well-known Democrats in New Jersey. In addition, 150 Democrats of local and State reputation have been asked to sit on the platform with Mr. Bryan.

There will be, it is estimated, about 700 seats for the general public. The doors will be opened at 7 o'clock, and those with tickets who present them after 7:45 may encounter difficulty in securing seats, as at that hour the general public will be seated wherever there may be room. During the hour and a quarter which will intervene between th coming of the orchestra and Mr. Bryan's arrival New Jersey speakers will entertain the crowd.

SALOON MAN SENT TO JAIL BY MIDDLESEX COURT.

Judge Theodore B. Booraem, who has attracted the attention of the State by his attitude in excise cases, at New Brunswick yesterday sent Joseph Deock, of South River, to the county jail for thirty days and fined him $250 for selling liquor without a license. This is the first time that a saloon-keeper has been sent to jail on a conviction for such a charge at New Brunswick.

Doeck ran a dance hall near South River, but his place was not molested until a fight occurred there and a murder was convicted. In investigating the murder the authorities learned that liquor had been sold at the dances right along.

STRIKE NOW IS COMPLETE.

All Work on Elizabeth City Hall By Union Men Is Suspended.

Elizabeth, Feb. 5.—A general strike is on today among the mechanics at work on Elizabeth's City Hall, and the tie-up, caused in the beginning by the lathers' strike, is now complete.

Walking Delegate James Cosgrove, of the Building Trades, Monday called out all the men at work on the building. There is plenty of material now on hand but no workmen to use it. There had been a scarcity of material until last week and this delayed considerably the work of remodeling the city hall, which job should now have been almost complete.

The building committee of Council is in conference today with the contractors who are renovating the City Hall, as to what action to take in the emergency now confronting them. The non-union lathers from Newark are still at work but the strikers, it is alleged, now declare that before they return to work all the lath that has been nailed up by the Newarkers will have to be torn down.

What the city authorities will do in this contingency remains to be seen. Owing to the disturbed condition of the interior of the building, the officials in the various offices are being put to great inconvenience.

PLEADS NON VULT.

Says He Is Innocent, but Is Tired of Waiting for Trial.

Morris Weiss, formerly a clerk in the employ of Charles Herrman at South River, pleaded non vult to a charge of embezzlement in court at New Brunswick yesterday.

His counsel, former Judge C. T. Cowenhoven, declared that Weiss maintained his innocence, but took this course so as to have his case disposed of at once, having become tired of waiting in jail for trial. The prisoner has been locked up for several months.

Changes Fiscal Year.

The New Brunswick Common Council has adopted an ordinance changing the fiscal year of the Council to begin January 1, instead of April 1, as at present. This is done to comply in the change which puts the Aldermen in office on January 1, and will enable the Aldermen to make up their budget for the year at that time. The budget to be made in April this year will be for nine months only.

THE COOKBOOK.

Try flavoring an old fashioned rice pudding with a few drops of vanilla and orange water flavor.

Cold boiled rice left from a meal can be utilized by adding a beaten egg and milk and formed into cakes and fried.

By salting the water when poaching eggs they are rendered whiter and clearer than without this help. A certain French cook adds half a tablespoonful of vinegar to every two quarts of water when poaching eggs.

When making ordinary peach tarts a teaspoonful of currant jelly is sometimes put at the bottom of each mold, which is then filled with the peaches, cut in small, thin slices. When baked the top is sprinkled with sugar. Decorate with jelly and whipped cream.

The Time to Quarrel.

In Lanarkshire there lived a laird named Hamilton. He was noted for his peculiarities. On a certain occasion a neighbor waited upon his asking the favor as a neighbor with the loan of £20. It was only a bill of accommodation for three months, which led to the following reply:

"Na, na. I canna do that."

"What for no', laird? Ye have dune the same thing for ithers."

"Aye, aye, Tammas, but there's wheels within ye ken naething aboot! I canna do it."

"It's a sma' affair to refuse me, laird'."

The Orloff Diamond.

In the Russian scepter is the famous Orloff diamond, which once adorned the head of a Brahman idol. Stolen by a French soldier, it was sold to an Indian merchant for $10,000, resold for $60,000 and purchased by Catherine II. for $450,000. Wilkie Collins turned its history to good account in his weird romance, "The Moonstone."

Hindoo Fakirs.

Among the fakirs in Hindustan a peculiar custom is that of holding the hand tightly clinched and in one position so long that at last the nails grow through the palm, emerging at the back of the hand and growing thence almost to the wrist. When the wasted muscles refuse to support the arm any longer it is bound in position with cords.

The superiority of the pure blooded Arabian horse consists not in his size nor in his speed nor in his strength, for in these respects he is excelled by horses of other breeds, but in his perfection of form, symmetry of limb, clearness of muscle, beauty of appearance, for endurance of fatigue, for docility and intelliwence.

AN ORDINANCE

To Further Amend An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance to Create and Define the Duties of a Board of Police and a Police Force," Approved February 28th, 1882, As Amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 3 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, be further amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary and by resolution order to be appointed. The said Police Force shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Sergeant, Detective-Sergeant, Roundsmen, Patrolmen, Doorman.

The duties of the several members and officers of said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinance of the city and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department. The Patrolmen shall be divided into five (5) classes:

Class A—Fifth year of service and over.
Class B—Fourth year of service.
Class C—Third year of service.
Class D—Second year of service.
Class E—First year of service.

Provided, that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time, specified above, or not.

That beginning with the first day of January, 1908, the salaries of the members of the force who are regular Policemen be and are hereby fixed at the following rates, that is to say:

Chief	$1,600	per annum
Captain	1,200	per annum
Sergeant	1,140	per annum
Detective-Sergeant	1,140	per annum
Roundsmen	1,080	per annum
Patrolmen:
Class A	$1,000	per annum
Class B	960	per annum
Class C	924	per annum
Class D	864	per annum
Class E	792	per annum
Doorman	720	per annum

The times from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city are to be calculated, are the dates at which the continuous service of said policemen, respectively, commenced, and said Sergeant, Detective-Sergeant, Roundsmen, Patrolmen and Doorman, respectively, shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, in each month, except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time during which they severally shall be disabled from the performance of duty by reason of physical injuries, provided that the Board shall be satisfied that such injuries were the direct result of personal violence inflicted upon them, respectively, in the performance of their respective duties; and hereafter, each of such officers and policemen shall provide, at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for their use respectively, as from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the Department.

Adopted by the Common Council February 3, 1908; approved by the Mayor Feb uary 4, 1908.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The January honor roll of the public schools follows: Miss Corson's class, first and second grade: Anna McDonough, Stanley Phillips, Anton Phillips, Howard Norman, Lester Soper, Douglas Schenck; Miss Soper's class, second, third and fourth grades: Nellie Ryno, Tessie Hannon, Nellie Harlow, Laura Roberts, Helen Richards, Margaret Hamilton, Grace Boss, George Brower and Patrick McDonough.

Harry Sofield, who for a long time has been employed in the tower house of the Lehigh Valley railroad here, is now in charge of the company's baggage room at the station.

The topic of the prayer meeting last night was the forty-fourth psalm. The meeting was in charge of Harry J. Manning and Rev. C. W. F. Attlee spoke.

Samuel Shields, who is in charge of the local electric light plant, will move this week into the house on Front street, recently occupied by John McGuire.

John McGuire and family have moved into the large double house on Lehigh avenue, lately occupied by J. C. Rafferty.

ASK FOR LIGHTING FRANCHISE.

Company Offers Generous Concessions If Granted Privileges for Twenty Years.

At the regular meeting of the Westfield Town Council Monday night, J. W. Horton, representing the American Light, Heat and Power Company, submitted a petition requesting that body to grant a twenty-year franchise to the company, giving it exclusive right to build a plant for the lighting and heating of the town, at a cost not to exceed ten cents per kilowatt hour.

The petitioners agree to pay the town two per cent. of the net earnings and to give free lighting to the public library, firehouses and town buildings. This would mean a saving of over fire hundred dollars in the town's expenses, in addition to what would be received from the net profits.

Another important privilege the town may have is the right to purchase the plant from the corporation at the end of either the first or second ten years. A committee of three, composed of one member of the Town Council, one member of the company and one member chosen by these two, may appraise the value of the plant, at which figure it may be purchased by the town. Council will consider the proposition.

The contract case of Martin A. Rose, of this city, against Reuben Peskin and Samuel Newman, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $329.25 loaned to the defendants, was tried in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Elizabeth, yesterday. The jury gave the plaintiff $150. Mr. Rose was represented by Judge William Newcorn and John P. Owens was counsel for the defendants.

Borough Steamer Being Repaired.

The crank shaft of the North Plainfield steamer, which broke at the Letcher fire Sunday night, is now at the Pond shop for repairs. During the time that the steamer is out of commission, the Plainfield steamer will be subject to the call of the borough department.

WEST WINS CONTEST FOR COMPTROLLERSHIP

Former Sheriff Henry J. West, of Camden county, at Trenton yesterday was selected by the joint caucus of the Republican Senate and House majorities as the party nominee for State Comptroller to succeed J. Willard Morgan. Mr. West was the candidate of State Assessor Davy Baird, who in the victory won adds another feather to his cap as a political boss. Mr. Baird presides over the G. O. P. destines of South Jersey, or has a reputation for so doing. Rumor has it that Mr. West will make changes in the comptroller's office staff when he assumes his title on February 20.

Essex county's candidate, Chairman Alfred N. Dalrymple, of the Republican county committee, received the support of the Assembly delegation and Senator Everett Colby on both of the two ballots. He polled the second highest number of ballots in each instance.

It was conceded before the caucus by the West men that there was no hope of a majority for their candidate on the first roll call. Long ago the comptrollership fight started, and a number of Republican legislators were tied up to either Senator John Boyd Avis, of Gloucester county, or to Mr. Morgan.

The present comptroller is a Camden county man. He is rounding out his second three year term in office.

His formal election will take place at a session of the Legislature next Tuesday.

RAILROAD MEN IN FAULT SAYS STATE COMMISSION.

The State Railroad Commission at Trenton yesterday gave out its report on the accident at Camden on December 27, in which three persons were killed and twenty-one injured.

The commissioners find that the brakeman of the Atlantic City train was too slow in performing his duty; that the engineer of the Pemberton train was grossly negligent, and that the system of running the trains was at fault. The report puts the responsibility squarely upon the railroad and its agents, and concludes:

"The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has presented the consideration a change in the signal system at the place in question, which, in our opinion, is adequate and safe, and will prevent in the future, if properly operated, accidents of this or simiar character. Accordingly we deem no forma order necessary, provided, of course, the work proposed is promptly done."

MRS. FORT INSPECTS COTTAGE.

Wife and Daughter of Governor Suggest Changes In Dwelling at Sea Girt.

Trenton, Feb. 5.—Mrs. John Franklin Fort and Miss Margretta Fort, wife and daughter of the Governor, inspected the cottage on the State Camp grounds at Sea Girt Monday.

They went to the shore with Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray and Adjutant-General R. Heber Breintnall. The object of the visit was to determine what renovation the cottage needed and what furniture would be required for its occupancy by the Governor and his family next summer. Mrs. Fort made known what she desired and the change will be ordered.

Mrs. Fort and her daughter spent Monday night at their summer cottage in Spring Lake and yesterday afternoon the Governor's wife was the guest of honor at a tea given by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leslie R. Fort, at the latter's home in Lakewood.

Enjoyed His Lecture.

A large audience listened to Col. E. J. Parker at the Salvation Army Hall last night and much enjoyed the "travel talk" entitled "A Trip Down the St. Lawrence," which was beautifully illustrated with colored stereopticon views and motion pictures. Col. Parker will pay a return visit to Plainfield on March 5, when he will give an illustrated lecture depicting the Army's work entitled "The Problems of the Poor," in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The meeting tonight will be conducted by Superintendent Matty and the Rescue Mission. Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock Major Erickson, of New York, will speak.

First Defender Medals.

Senator Ackerman, in the Senate last night presented a joint resolution which provides for the awarding of the Civil War medal, passed with only a short debate. Mr. Ackerman explained that under the old resolution veterans who had received a "first defenders'" medal were not entitled to the other decoration, which many held carried more honor, as the "first defenders'" was awarded only to those who answered Lincoln's first call, whether they served through the rest of the war or not.

Stabbed While at Work.

Joseph Feldman, an employe at the Michelin Tire Company's big plant at Milltown, was attending to his machine yesterday morning, when a Hungarian known as Joe interfered with him. Feldman tried to send him away, when the man drew a knife and slashed him about the head several times. Felman was rushed to New Brunswick in an automobile and received medical attention. Prosecutor Berdine had his ante-mortem statement taken by Justice of the Peace Sedam and Detective Ferguson.

Bettie Shelton.

After a long illness, death came to Mrs. Bettie Shelton, colored, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Scipio Windtelon, of 806 East Second street, yesterday morning. Mrs. Shelton, who was well advanced in years, is survived by three daughters and a son. The other daughters are Mrs. P. H. Brown and Mrs. Nannie Green. The son is Charles Shelton. The funeral will be from the Calvery Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Ordinance Goes to Committee.

Elizabeth, Feb. 5.—President William J. Lansley, of the Hudson and Middlesex Telephone and Telegraph Company, submitted an ordinance at Monday night's meeting of City Council covering the route of the proposed lines through the city, and the methods to be followed in the construction and rent of the conduits. There was no discussion of the measure, as it was referred to the Committee on Streets and Highways, in order to allow for its publication before it is taken up at the next meeting.

SCHOOL TRUANT OFFICER MAKES HER FIRST REPORT

Miss Adelaide Ball, truant officer of the city schools, presented this report at the February meeting of the Board of Education held at the Plainfield High School Monday night:

"Before I began my work as Attendance Supervisor, Dr. Maxson suggested that I should become as familiar as possible with the truancy systems used in other cities of New Jersey, particularly that of Newark. Through the kindness of Charles A. McCall, supervisor of attendance, under whose management the entire truancy work of Newark is conducted, I was able to become thoroughly acquainted with the methods he has organized. The use of this elaborate system, while necessary in a large city like Newark, was considered quite undesirable in Plainfield, and a much simpler plan which has proved satisfactory was adopted.

"During the first month of my work, the number of cases referred to me was of course large, many of these cases having annoyed the teachers for years, and the number of personal calls at the homes of pupils in November was 91. St. Mary's Parochial School has co-operated with the public schools in this work, and I have investigated all the cases they have referred to me.

"Of the November cases, 13 pupils were found actual truants, 10 children had been kept at home for lack of shoes, a large number of cases were merely carelessness on the part of parents, but in 21 cases pupils had been kept at home to work or take care of younger children.

"Each 'little worker' case was investigated, and a few mothers accepted cards entitling them to send the younger children to the Day Nursery but in almost every case the parents, without appealing to the Day Nursery or Organized Aid, arranged matters so that the school children could attend their classes regularly. The two exceptions proved stubborn and had to be taken to court.

"Where children lacked shoes the Organized Aid helped fit them out, if the family was deserving, though a part payment was usually requested.

In almost every case, where the parents had no excuse for a child's absence, it was only necessary to leave a copy of the school law with my card, and the child's attendance improved immediately, though in a few cases it was deemed necessary to serve legal notice which proved effective very quickly.

"The truant cases, numbering 13 in November, 8 in December, and 7 in January, included very few actually bad boys, and these are now quite regular in school. I find that the parents of these boys seem to have little restraint over them, but the boys respond to outside influence and are trying to obey the law. None of these truant cases have had to be brought to court. It has been necessary, however, to swear out warrants for two parents who were keeping their children from school.

"One of these cases was an Italian mother who promised the court to obey the law, and has done so.

"The other case was that of Victoria Reed, a ten-year-old colored child whose father, Patrick Reed, repeatedly kept her at home to take care care of younger children, even when he himself was at home. Little satisfaction was given in the court until Reed failed to appear after a second summons. He was then arrested and locked up for 'contempt of court.'

"Comparing the three months, the number of cases referred to me in November was 97, in December 30, in January 52. After the Reed case appeared in the newspapers, there seemed to be a marked improvement in attendance, and during December I found but one child who was kept at home to care for younger children. The principals have reported better attendance this year than formerly.

"The work of taking a census of the children in Plainfield is progressing very well. During November and December, I took the census of about 1,000 families where there are children. In these homes, I found 14 cases where parents were violating the law by keeping their children from school.

"As an instance of the attitude taken by some of the parents, one father who had kept his child out of school until she is ten years old, said, 'that if he had to send her he would, but if she took any of them school diseases he would sue the city of Plainfield for making his child go to school.' This man with his wife and four children live in two small rooms.

"I hope before the end of the school year to finish the census of all the children in Plainfield."

FLOWER AND TREE.

The 762 varieties of artic flowers have but two colors, white and yellow.

An acre of forest when cut down will yield about a thousand cubic feet of timber.

The number of leaves on a large sixty foot high oak tree has been counted and found to exceed 6,000,000.

The coffee tree is to all intents and purposes a cherry tree, whose cherries grow along the stems and ripen at different times, a ripe and a green cherry standing side by side. The picking must of course be done by hand.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Eddie Foy, in his biggest and most popular success, "The Orchid," is announced for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The piece, which is described as an advanced English musical entertainment, is direct from a run of six months at the Herald Square theatre, New York. In Foy's support will be observed such important entertainers as Flavia Arcarok, Roso Botti, Marietta di Dio, Ada Gordan, Florence Martin, Jean Salisbury, George C. Boniface, Jr., William Cameron, Knute Erickson, Roy Atwell, David Dennett and 60 front row chorus girls. La Petite Adelaide, the dancer, is a special added feature.

It is becoming more and more the fashion these days to produce a play elaborately in New York, employing a cast of artists who never care to go "on the road," and having won a metropolitan reputation, to take an inferior production and cast to the other cities of the country. Some managers also have the annoying habit of bringing a good company the first time they visit us with a well-known play but sending a cheap company in seasons to follow. It is very gratifying, however, to have the positive assurance in the case of Sol Smith Russell's greatest success, "A Poor Relation," which will play here next Thursday night at the New Plainfield theatre, that we shall have the same strong company and perfect production that this play has had at every performance during its entire career. The Sol Smith Russell estate insisted that when leasing the play, everything in connection with the attraction should be kept to a high standard under penalty of immediate cancellation of the lease without notice.

Lincoln J. Carter, the noted producer and playwright, has written a thrilling and interesting play, cleverly depicting frontier life, which comes to the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, showing the American aborigine as he lives in his wigwam, his habits, mode of living, his character and temperament. The name of this play is "The Flaming Arrow." A company of stirling worth, including a band of sixteen full blooded Indians, together with cow-boys, scouts, ex-United States soldiers and four bronchos. An Indian band is with the attraction. The play is not as might naturally be expected, a blood and thunder production, abounding in gun shots and other hair-rising episodes, unpleasant to an audience, but is a faithful picture of life on the frontier, and in one of the famous Government posts. It tells a beautiful love story, is replete with thrilling scenes and its characters are all taken from living prototypes, true in character and costume. As "Away Down East" is a typical play of the old east, so is "The Flaming Arrow" of the far west. It is claimed that in it, is produced one of the truest pictures of western life the stage has ever seen, depicting army and frontier life in and about the famous historical Fort Reno, the scene of so many stirring incidents in the pioneer days of the great west, when Indians and buffalos were as plentiful as they now are scarce. The story of the love of Chief White Eagle for Mary Fremont, daughter of the commander of the post, is founded on an actual fact. All of the other characters are drawn from living prototypes.

Daniel Sully, the most natural of actors, known to his friends as "Genial Dan," is not only one of America's foremost character actors, but a prince of good fellows, and if any actor deserves the unqualified approval and gratitude of lovers of pure, wholesome plays, it is he. Throughout his entire career, he has devoted his time to the production of clean plays, and that this has been appreciated by the theatre-goers of this country is evident from the prosperity which has rewarded his efforts and the prominent position which he occupies on the American stage today. Mr. Sully is without doubt the greatest actor of clerical roles living, and as Father O'Neill in "The Golden Rule" he is the "soggartharoon" ideal. He can not be compared with any other actor. He is the only one of his kind. He has that happy faculty of blending tears and smiles, and is so natural that one forgets he is acting. It is safe to say that his interpretation of the clergyman will live for years as one of the most notable characterizations of the American stage. "The Golden Rule" will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night.

GOVERNOR FORT'S WIFE IS A CHARMING WOMAN.

Mrs. John Franklin Fort, wife of the Governor, is a woman of charming and gracious personality, very retiring in disposition.

Before her marriage she was Miss Lottie Stainsby, daughter of William Stainsby, a prominent politician, of Newark. She is tall and slender with hair tinged with gray and expressive dark eyes.

Being very domestic in her tastes, she devotes most of her time to her home and children, and especially to her little grandchild, son of Franklin W. Fort. Mrs. Fort is a member of the Women's Club of Orange and the Essex Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of East Orange.

The Fort family attend the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, of East Orange, of which Dr. James M. Ludlow, who made the prayer at the inaugural ceremonies, is pastor. For some years they have resided at 51 Arlington avenue, East Orange.

There are two sons and one daughter. Recorder Franklin W. Fort, who resides in East Orange; Leslie R. Fort, of Lakewood, editor and proprietor of the Lakewood Times and Journal, and secretary to the Governor, and Margaretta Fort, a young woman of attractive personality. The two sons are married.—Trenton Times.

THE IMMIGRANTS' MONEY.

How They Dispose of It When They Return to Europe.

One of the interesting articles in the North American Review is written by Charles F. Speare and is entitled "What America Pays Europe for Immigrant Labor." In it Mr. Speare gives the statistics relating to the sums which are sent by immigrant laborers to those whom they have left at home in various countries—which in the aggregate represent a vast sum. He describes the manner in which these remittances are made, and the influence which is thus exerted from this side of the Atlantic to remote towns and villages in the Old World. He says:

"A few years ago, in the Italian village along the Mediterranean, where I spent part of the wnter, I well remember the commotion caused by the arrival of some laborers who had been two years absent in the United States. Their daily wage when they left Italy had never been more than two or three lire. In this country they had been able to command from seven to ten lire, with but a slightly increased cost of living. They sowed the seeds of discontent so deeply in the minds and hearts of their village friends that it was almost impossible for a time, to get the ordinary work of the place done. But this is not all. The inflow of foreign money into impoverished sections increases prices in every direction. This is prominently illustrated in the advance in land, for which immigrants who never before had possessed a surplus, pay two or three times the real value. As is well known, large numbers of Italian, Hungarian and Scandinavian immigrants go home each winter. Professor Pasquale Villari, a noted Italian economist, has recently pointed out that the savings which the immigrants from America bring back with them, and on which they live during the period of enforced rest, go chiefly to the taverns, and that the fruit of this ready money is increased drunkenness, epidemics of venereal diseases and a rising percentage of crime and insanity."

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

In 1572 vagrancy was punished in England by death.

Four hundred millions of sardines are taken yearly off English coasts.

Under the copyright act of 1842 the British museum receives one copy of every book published.

A Tenneyson Story.

The poet Tennyson's sympathy with animals is shown by a wee story told in his "Memoir."

A beautiful setter was given him. At the midnight it suddenly struck him that the new dog might feel hungry and lonely, so he went downstairs and stole a chicken for "Dear Old Don." Great was the consternation in the kitchen next morning as to what had become of the chicken.

The Fighting Chance.

Frank's troubled voice came back over the wire. "I don't know. I don't know what to think. I suppose I'm a little, just a trifle, overworked. Somebody once said that I had one nerve loose somewhere, and Quarrier's probably found it. That's all."

"If you think it better not to come"—

"I'll come. I'll stop for you in the motor. Don't worry, old fellow. And—take your fighting chance. Goodby."

Siward, absorbed in his own thoughts, rose and walked slowly out of the booth, utterly unconscious that he had left his crutches leaning upright in the corner. It was only the surprise dawning into tremulous delight on Sylvia's face that at last arrested him.

"See what you have done," he said laughing through his own surprise. "I've a mind to leave them there now and trust to your new cure."

But she was instantly concerned and anxious and entering the booth, brought out the crutches and forced him to take them.

"No risks now!" she said decisively.

"No risks now," she said decisively. "We have too much at stake this evening. Leila is coming. Isn't it perfectly delightful?"

"Perfectly," he said, his eyes full of the old laughing confidence again, "and the most delightful part of it all is that you don't know how delightful it is going to be."

"Don't I? Very well. Only I inform you that I mean to be perfectly happy. And that means that I'm going to do as I please. And that means—oh, it may mean anything! What are you laughing at, Stephen? I know I'm excited. I don't care. What girl wouldn't be? And I don't know what's ahead of me at all, and I don't want to know. I don't care."

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

If a man's grief does not awaken his dignity, then he has none. In that event grief is not even respectable. And so it was with Leroy Mortimer when Lydia at last turned on him. If you caress an Angora too long and too persistently it runs away. And before it goes it scratches.

Lydia Vyse left Saratoga when the financial stringency began to make it unpleasant for her to remain. She told Mortimer without the slightest compunction that she was going.

He did not believe her, and he gave her the new big yellow and black car. She sold it the same day to a bookmaker, an old friend of hers; withdrew several jewels from limbo—gems which Mortimer had given her—and gathered together everything for which if he turned ugly she might not be criminally liable.

She had never liked him. She had long disliked him. So she wrote a note to the governors of the Patroons club saying that both Quarrier and Mortimer were aware that the guilt of her escapade could not be attached to Siward; that she knew nothing of Siward, had accepted his wager without meaning to attempt to win it, had never again seen him and had on the impulse of the moment made her entry in the wake of several men. She added that when Quarrier, as governor, had concurred in Siward's expulsion he knew perfectly well that Siward was not guilty, because she herself had so informed Quarrier. Since then she had also told Mortimer, but he had taken no steps to do justice to Siward, although he (Mortimer) was still a governor of the Patroons club.

This being about all she could think of to make mischief for two men whose recent companionship had nourished and irritated her, she shipped her trunks by express, packed her jewel case and valise and met Desmond at the station.

Desmond had business in Europe. Lydia had as much business there as anywhere, and, although she had been faithless to Mortimer for a comparatively short time, within that time Desmond already had sworn at her and struck her. So she was quite ready to follow Desmond anywhere in this world or the next. And that, too, had not made her the more considerate toward Mortimer.

When the latter returned from the races to find her gone the last riddled props to what passed for his manhood gave way, and the rotten fabric came crashing into the mud.

Creditors with sharp noses scented the whirlwind afar off and hemmed him in with unsettled accounts, mostly hers. Somebody placed a lien on his horses, a deputy sheriff began to follow him about, all credit ceased as by magic, and men crossed the street to avoid meeting with an old companion in direst need.

Still, alternately stupefied by his own grief and maddened into the necessity for action, he packed a suit case, crawled out of the rear door, toiled across country and found a farmer to drive him twenty miles over a sandy road to a local railroad crossing, where he managed to board a train for Albany.

At Albany as he stood panting and sweating on the long concrete platform which paralleled track No. 1 he saw a private car, switched from a Boston and Albany train, shunted to the rear of the Merchants' express.

The private car was lettered in gold on the central panel, "Algonquin." He boarded the Pullman coupled to it forward, pushed through the vestibule, shoved aside the Japanese steward and darky cook, forcing his way straight into the private car. Quarrier, reading a magazine, looked up in astonishment. For a full moment neither spoke. Then Mortimer dropped his suit case, sat down in an armchair opposite Quarrier and leisurely mopped his reeking face and neck.

"Scotch and lithia!" he said hoarsely. The Japanese steward looked at Quarrier, then, at that gentleman's almost imperceptible nod, went away to execute the commission.

He executed a great many similar commissions during the trip to New York. When they arrived there at 5 o'clock Quarrier offered Mortimer his hand and held the trembling, puffy fingers as he leaned closer, saying with cold precision and emotionless emphasis something that appeared to require the full concentration of Mortimer's half drugged faculties.

And when at length Mortimer drove away in a hansom Quarrier's Japanese steward went with him—perhaps to carry his suit case—a courtesy that did credit to Quarrier's innate thoughtfulness and consideration for others. He was very considerate. He even called Agatha up on the telephone and talked with her for ten minutes. Then he telephoned to Plank's office, learned that Harrington was already there, telephoned the garage for a car which he always kept ready in town and presently went bowling away to a conference on which the last few hours had put an entirely new aspect.

It had taken Plank only a few minutes to perceive that something had occurred to change a point of view which he had believed it impossible for Quarrier to change. Something had gone wrong in his own careful calculations—some cog had slipped, some rivet given way, some bed plate cracked. And Harrington evidently had not been aware of it, but Quarrier knew it. There was something wrong.

It was too late now to go tinkering in the dark for trouble. Plank understood that. Coolly, as though utterly unaware that the machinery might not stand the strain, he started it full speed. And when he stopped it at last Harrington's grist had been ground to atoms and Quarrier had looked on without comment. There seemed to be little more for them to do except to pay the miller.

"Tomorrow," said Quarrier, rising to go. It was on the edge of Plank's lips to say "Today," but he was silent, knowing that Harrington would speak for him. And the old man did, without words, turning his iron visage on Quarrier with the silent dignity of despair. But Quarrier coldly demanded a day before they reckoned with Plank. And Plank, profoundly disturbed, shrugged his massive shoulders in contemptuous assent.

So Quarrier and Harrington went away, the younger partner taking leave of the older with a sneer for an outworn prop which no man could ever again have use for. Old and beaten, that was all Harrington now stood for in Quarrier's eyes. The least of his victims might now finish him with a club where he swayed in his loosened saddle or leave him to that horseman on the pale horse watching him yonder on the horizon.

For now, whether Harrington lived or died, he must be counted as nothing in this new struggle darkly outlining its initial strategy in Quarrier's brain. What was coming was coming between himself and Plank alone. The result must be attained swiftly, with secrecy and with the aid of no man. For he did not count Mortimer a man.

At the door of Major Belwether's house Sylvia's maid received Quarrier smilingly, saying that her mistress was not at home, but that Mrs. Mortimer was—which saved Quarrier the necessity of asking for a private conference with Leila, which was exactly what he had come for. But her first unguarded words on receiving him as he rose at her entrance into the darkened drawing room changed that plan, too—changed it all so utterly and so much for the better that he almost smiled to think of the crudity of human combinations and inventions as compared to the masterly machinations of fate. Leila said, laughingly: "Oh, you are too late, Howard. We are dining with Mr. Plank at Riverside inn. What in the world are you doing in town so suddenly?"

"A business telegram. I might have come down with you and Sylvia if I had known. Is Plank dining with you alone?"

"I haven't seen him," smiled Leila evasively. "He will tell us his plans of course when he comes."

"Oh!" said Quarrier, dropping his eyes and glancing furtively toward the curtained windows. At the instant a hansom drove up. Sylvia sprang out, ran lightly up the low steps, and the silent, shrouded house rang with the clamor of the bell.

Leila looked curiously at Quarrier, who sat motionless, head partly averted, as though listening to something heard by him alone. He believed perhaps that he was listening to the voice of fate again, and it may have been so, for already for the third time all his plans were changing to suit this new ally of his—this miraculous fate which was shaping matters for him as he waited. Sylvia had started upstairs like a fragrant whirlwind, but her flying feet halted at Leila's consternated voice from the drawing room, and she spun around and came into the darkened room like an April breeze.

"Leila! They'll be here at a quarter to 7"—

Her breath seemed to leave her body as a shadowy figure rose in the uncertain light and confronted her.

"You!"

He said, "Didn't you recognize the car outside?"

She had not even seen it, so excited, so deeply engaged had she been with the riotous tumult of her own thoughts. And still her hurt, unbelieving gaze widened to dismay as she stood there halted on the threshold, and still his eyes, narrowing, held her under their expressionless inspection.

"When did you come? Why?" she asked in an altered voice.

"I came on business. Naturally, being here, I came to see you. I understand you are dining out?"

"Yes, we are dining out."

"I'm sorry I didn't wire you, because we might have dined together. I saw Plank this afternoon. He did not say you were to dine with him. Shall I see you later in the evening, Sylvia?"

"I—it will be too late"—

"Oh, tomorrow then! What train do you take?"

Sylvia did not answer. He picked up his hat, repeating the question carelessly, and still she made no reply.

"Shall I see you tomorrow?" he asked, swinging on her rather suddenly.

"I think—not. I—there will be no time"—

He bowed quietly to Leila, offering his hand. "Who did you say was to dine with you—besides Plank?"

Leila stood silent, then, withdrawing her fingers, walked to the window.

Quarrier, his hat in his gloved hands, looked from one to the other, his inquiring eyes returning and focused on Sylvia.

"Who are you dining with?" he asked with authority.

"Mr. Plank and Mr. Siward."

"Mr. Siward," he repeated in surprised displeasure, as though he had not already divined it.

"Yes—a man I like."

"A man I dislike," he rejoined with the slightest emphasis.

"I am sorry," she said simply.

"So am I, Sylvia. And I am going to ask you to make him an excuse. Any excuse will do."

"Excuse? What do you mean, Howard?"

"I mean that I do not care to have you seen with Mr. Siward. Have I ever demanded very much of you, Sylvia? Very well. I demand this of you now."

And still she stood there, her eyes wide, her color gone, repeating: "Excuse? What excuse? What do you mean by 'excuse,' Howard?"

"I have told you. You know my wishes. If he has a telephone you can communicate with him"—

"And say that I—that you forbid me"—

"If you choose. Yes, say that I object to him. Is there anything extraordinary in a man objecting to his future wife dining in the country at a common inn with a notorious outcast from every decent club and circle in New York?"

"What!" she whispered, white as death. "What did you say?"

"Shall I repeat what everybody except you seems to be aware of? Do you care to have me explain to you exactly why decent people have ostracized this man with whom you are proposing to figure in a public resort?"

He turned to Leila, who stood at the window, her back turned toward them: "Mrs. Mortimer, when Mr. Plank arrives you will be kind enough to explain why Sylvia is unable to accompany you."

If Leila heard she neither turned nor made sign of comprehension.

"We will dine at the Santa Regina," he said to Sylvia. "Agatha is there, and I'll find somebody at the club to"—

"Why bother to find anybody?" said Leila, wheeling on him, exasperated. "Why not dine there with Agatha alone? It will not be the first time, I fancy."

"What do you mean?" he said fiercely under his breath. The color had left his face, too, and in his eyes Leila saw for the first time an expression that she had never before surprised in any eyes except her husband's.

"What do I mean?" repeated Leila. "I mean what I say, and if you don't understand it you can find the key to it, I fancy. Nor shall I answer to you for my guests. I invite whom I choose. Mr. Siward is one, Mr. Plank is another. Sylvia, if you care to come I shall be delighted."

"I do care to come," said Sylvia. Her heart was beating violently; her eyes were on Quarrier.

"If you go," said Quarrier, showing the glimmering edge of teeth under his beard, "you will answer to me for it."

"I will answer you now, Howard. I am going with Mrs. Mortimer. What have you to say?"

"I'll say it tomorrow," he replied, contemplating her in a dull, impassive manner as though absorbed in other things.

"Say what there is to be said now," she insisted, the hot color staining her cheeks again. "Do you desire me to free you? Is that all? I will if you wish."

"No. And I shall not free you, Sylvia. This—all can be adjusted in time."

"As you please," she said slowly.

"In time," he repeated, his passionless voice now under perfect control. He turned and looked at Leila. All the wickedness of his anger was concentrated in his gaze. Then he took his leave of them as formally, as precisely as though he had forgotten the whole scene, and a minute later the big motor car ran out into a half circle, backed, wheeled and rolled away through the thickening dusk, the glare of the acetylenes sweeping the deserted street.

Into the twilight sped Quarrier, head bent, but his soft, dark lashed eyes of a woman fixed steadily ahead. Every energy, every thought was now bent to this newest phase of the same question which he and fate were finding simpler to solve every minute. Of all the luxuries he permitted himself openly or furtively, one—the rarest of them all—his self denial had practically eliminated from the list, the luxury of punishing where no end was served save that of mere personal satisfaction. The temptation of this luxury now presented itself, and the means of gratification were so simple, so secret, so easy to command, that the temptation became almost a duty.

Siward he had not turned out of his way to injure. Siward had been in the way, that was all, and his ruin was to have been merely an agreeable coincidence with the purposed ruin of Amalgamated Electric before Intercounty absorbed the fragments. But here was a new phase. Mrs. Mortimer, whom he had expected to use, and if necessary sacrifice, had suddenly turned vicious. And he now hated her as coldly as he hated Major Belwether for betraying suspicions of a similar nature. As for Plank, fear and hatred of him were becoming hatred and contempt. He had the means of checking Plank if Mortimer did not drop dead before midnight. There remained Sylvia. Long ago, whatever of liking, of affection, of passion he had ever entertained for her had quieted to indifference and the unemotional contemplation of a future methodically arranged for. Now of a sudden this young girl he had bought—he knowing what she sold and what he was paying for—had become exposed to the infection of a suspicion concerning himself and another woman—a woman unmarried and of his own caste and numbered among her own friends.

And he knew enough of Sylvia to know that if anybody could once arouse her suspicion nothing on earth could induce her to look into his face again. Suppose Leila should do so this evening?

IT'S ALWAYS BAD.

The Best of Backs Are Bad When They Ache, and Plainfield People Know It.

A bad back is always bad.
Bad at night when bedtime comes.
Just as bad in the morning.
Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for it?
Know they cure backache—cure every kidney ill?
If you don't some Plainfield people do.
Read a case of it:
Charles H. Lippencott, painter, of 107 Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The statement made by me some years ago regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me was not only true at that time but now I am glad to confirm it. I had dull heavy pains around my groins, dreadful backache, dizzy spells and in damp weather or when I caught cold the trouble was so bad I could not get about. I tried my best to find some prescription or remedy to cure me, but without success. I was suffering intensely when I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy, but it only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. In a short time I was cured. I have used your remedy since then and with the same satisfactory results. I am glad to say anything in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HOME HINTS.

To clean silver with deep engraving use a paste made of whiting and ammonia. Apply with a brush.
To avoid washing the molding board lay over it a sheet of heavy glazed wrapping paper. If well floured, doughs are less liable to stick to it than to the board.
Never use soap in washing silk stockings. Bran in water is the proper fluid to use—four tablespoonfuls to a quart of water. Rinse in several clear waters, pressing the water out. Dry stockings in the sun.
The housekeeper has often noticed that cooking utesils and knives frequently retain the odor of mackerel and other fish after a thorough washing. Rub the utinsils and knives and forks with fresh earth.

A Pity to Destroy It.

"I suppose you think you could run the government better than we do?" said the statesman.
"I do," said the energetic citizen.
"And I do not doubt you are happy and hopeful in that belief."
"I am."
"It is a beautiful state of mind. It would be a pity to destroy it by allowing you to be elected to office."—Washington Star.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETES LOSE

Local Gym Team Defeated at Elizabeth in Last Event, by 23 to 22.

WELL IN THE LEAD AT FIRST.

Plainfielders Lead 20-7 Until Running High Jump and Potato Race.

The Y. M. C. A. gym team were defeated by a single point in a dual track meet held at the Elizabeth association gymnasium last night. The final score was 23-22. Elizabeth won the meet in the last event, the potato race, when Eaton and Klug ran the two-twenty yard race between the boxes in 1 minute 45 2-5 seconds, crossing the line together. Douglass, of the Plainfield team, finished three seconds later, winning the point for the local team.

The Plainfielders were well in the lead until it came to the running high jump, when the Elizabeth athletes took first and second places. Before this event, the score was 20-7 in favor of the local gym team. Burgess was the only Plainfielder who made points in these last two events, and he could do no better than third in each.

Lawrence made fifteen points for the local team, taking firsts in the standing broad, three standing broads, and 12-pound shot put. Klug, of the Elizabeth team, tied for first in the potato race, got two seconds and one third, making at least ten points in the meet. No records were broken. The summaries:

Standing broad jump: Won by Lawrence, P., 10 feet ⅛ inch; second, Klug, E., 9 feet 6¾ inches; third, Banks, P., 9 feet, 4¼ inches. Three standing broad jumps: Won by Lawrence, P., 30 feet 7¾ inches; second, Klug, E., 30 feet 6 inches; third, Martin, P., 28 feet 8¼ inches.

Shot put (12-pound shot): Won by Lawrence, P., 48 feet 3 inches; second, Payne, P., 30 feet 6 inches; third, Klug, E., 33 feet 6 inches.

Running high jump: Won by Loeser, E., 5 feet 2 inches; second, Hoff, E., 5 feet 1 inch; third, Burgess, P., 5 feet.

Potato race (220 yards): Eaton, E., and Klug, E., tied for first place, 1 minute 45 2-5 seconds; Douglass, P., third, 1 minute 48 4-5 seconds.

WASHINGTON BOWLERS BREAK TWO RECORDS

Hitting the pins about the best that any team has done since the tourney started at Campbell's alleys, the Washington five took three straight games from the Lafayettes, last night, and established a new team score. Warming up at the beginning of the series, they banged out a total of 981, the nearest to the 1,000 mark that has yet been recorded. The Washington's captain, V. W. Nash, Jr., also developed an unusual streak and made three double centuries, one of them a 247, which has been the high score. This was beaten, however, by William Skinner, who awoke from the lazy streak that has held him all winter and chalked up 257. The 200 mark was in all probability passed more times than in any three games at the alleys this season.

The Lafayettes were compelled to roll with only three men because of the inability of John Wirth and "Jim" Edwards to be on hand. It helped in their defeat as both had low averages. Their captain, Louis Skelly, rolled a fair game while Fred Hillman surprised the rooters by clouting the wood for two double centuries. "Tune" Hewitt was unable to take the pace and went on record with an average of 137.2.

The sweeping victory places the Washingtons hard and fast in second place and only a step from first. The Grants are at present in the lead but they cannot afford any loafing if they hope to keep there.

BUSINESS MEN WIN FROM LEADERS WITHOUT HANDICAP

The Business Men's five didn't need their ten point handicap to beat in the local league basketball game at the Y. M. C. A. last night, making twenty-nine "earned points" to their oppents' nineteen. The official score, with the ten point handicap, was 39-19, and the Leaders were unable to win because of the close guarding of their opponents. As a result of the game, the Leaders dropped to third place in the league, while the Business Men have still to lose a game.

At the end of the first half, the score was 12-11 in favor of the Leaders, but in the second period the Business Men guarded closely and kept well uncovered, so that they scored eighteen points to their opponents' seven. Smith made some pretty baskets on long-distance shots. The lineups and summaries:

BUSINESS MEN.		LEADERS.
Spicer	right forward.	Thompson

Smith	right guard.	Sampson

Field goals, Doane, 4; Smith, 5; Spicer, 3; Thompson, 3; Collins, 3; Line, 2; Stone, 2. Goals from fouls, Line, 3; Smith.

PARKS END BOWLING BY LOSING TO CRANFORD

The Park Club five wound up the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, as far as they are concerned, with three games against Cranford Casino, on the latter's alleys last night. The Parks managed to win one game, the last one by a score of 840 to 813. The Cranford bowlers had it in for the locals and extended themselves to the limit. They took the first game by a score of 902 and then run up a score of 1002 against 778 for the Parks in the second game. Saphar was the star bowler in this game, putting up 257, while Royce was second high man with 214. Crane came next with 190.

The Elizabeth-Roselle match was postponed last night, and the county seat team must now win three games from Roselle, on the latter's alleys, to tie the Parks for first.

The Parks did good work last night in all three games. In the first Ball put up a double century, while in the second, Lyman rolled a 215. Long came within two of the 200 mark in the third game. Barlow distinguished himself by rolling a score of 193 in the first and third games. The scores:

MORTIMER AND SNYDER WIN FOR HOPE Y. M. C. FIVE.

Mortimer and Snyder together scored twenty-eight of the thirty points made by the Hope Y. M. C. five against the First Baptist team at the Hope Y. M. C. last night, when the Hope boys won by a score of 30-23. Mortimer scored seven baskets from the floor, and Snyder six, the latter adding two points from the foul line. Hunter's single basket was the only other score by the Hope five.

The Baptists played a fighting game, but were out-played both in individual playing and team work. Lee Manning, who made four baskets, did the best work. The Hope five kept a few points in the lead throughout the game. The summaries and lineups:

Hope Y. M. C.		1st Baptists.
Hunter	left forward	L. Manning
Snyder		J. Manning
Mortimer	right forward	Mackey
Kenney, Brownell	centre	Farr

Boys' League Basketball Starts.

The first games in the boys' department basketball league were played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium after the boys' classes yesterday afternoon. "Cornell" beat "Yale," 18-13, and "Princeton" had an easy time with "Harvard," winning out handily, 31-5.

P. H. S. Sophomores Defeated.

The boys' department team of the Y. M. C. A. trimmed the basketball five of the sophomore class of the Plainfield High School by a score of 21-8 in a one-sided game at the association gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

MOTHER DIES AFTER DAUGHTER GOES TO EUROPE

Mrs. Sarah Ann Vanderbilt, widow of Peter Vanderbilt, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Abbott, of West Front street. She was in her eighty-fifth year and had resided in Plainfield a long time.

Mrs. Vanderbilt had been enjoying good health and up to five days ago was feeling as well as ever. She was taken ill then and though it was not considered serious she died shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday. Apoplexy is given as the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott are at present in England and the sad news was conveyed to them by cablegram. Mrs. Abbott sailed early in December and Mr. Abbott followed on January 9, the visit being made on account of the illness of Mr. Abbott's sister. Mrs. Vanderbilt leaves one other daughter, Mrs. William G. Chase, of Princeton, and four sons, Jeremiah, Cornelius and Edward, of Ellensburg, Wash.; Russell, of Amsterdam, N. Y., and Peter, of New York city.

The funeral will be held at the residence Friday afternoon at 1:30.

HOTEL GUESTS TAKE CLOTHING OF WESTFIELD HOTEL MAN.

After the departure of a party of four guests, yesterday, who registered as "Mrs. Mathewson and family, of New York," J. H. Willett, proprietor of Willett's Hotel, Westfield, discovered that about $400 worth of clothing, belonging to his wife and daughters, had been taken. The clothing, which was mostly new, was in a locked cupboard in the suite which the Mathewsons occupied. The loss was discovered at 7 o'clock last night and the police were immediately notified. No trace has yet been found of the people.

The party has been at the hotel for the past two weeks, and was composed of Mrs. Mathewson, her daughter and young son, and a nephew. This nephew is believed by the police to have been implicated in some second-story robberies in Westfield within the past few weeks.

TRENTON LIKED IT.

Newspapers in the Capitol City Declare "The Orchid" Is a First Rate Show.

The production of "The Orchid," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre tonight with Eddie Foy and a host of good supporting people, was presented at Trenton last night and according to the papers in that city, published this morning, it made a distinctive hit. In a criticism of the show the True American says:

"It was notable for its diversified methods of entertainment. It was no one-person, one-song show. There was a liberal sprinkling of tuneful lyrics, excellent and eccentric dances and other attractions in the show, and it went with a snap and dash that pleased its auditors and was commendable. The chorus work was more than ordinarily good, which may also be truthfully said of the costumes and mounting."

STRIKE NOW IS COMPLETE.

All Work on Elizabeth City Hall by Union Men Suspended.

A general strike is on today among the mechanics at work on Elizabeth's city hall, and the tie-up, caused in the beginning by the lathers' strike, is now complete.

Walking Delegate James Cosgrove, of the Building Trades, yesterday called out all the men at work on the building. There is plenty of material now on hand but no workmen to use it. There had been a scarcity of material until last week and this delayed considerably the work of remodeling the city hall, which job should now have been almost completed.

DISTRICT COURT BILLS.

One Increases Jurisdiction, Another Gives Extra Clerk.

Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson county, leader of the Democratic minority in the House, introduced a bill at yesterday's session that aims to increase the jusdiction of the district courts from $300 in civil cases to not more than $500.

Another district court bill was introduced by Assemblyman Rudolph A. Braun, of Essex. It would create the office of assistant clerk in such courts in cities of more than 100,000 population.

Not Hard to Beat.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN LAMBASTS MONOPOLISTS.

William Jennings Bryan, speaking before the Civic Forum at Carnegie Hall in New York last night, had his turn at lambasting monopolists, Stock Exchange gambling and predatory wealth. His speech sounded almost like an echo of the president's message. The Stock Exchange came in for the hardest pounding. Bryan characterized the game there as being played with loaded dice and marked cards—1 per cent. legitimate and 99 per cent. gambling. There is no form of swindling unknown and unpracticed there. To the distinguished Nebraskan it is a surprise that the 80,000,000 of people in this country do not rise in their honest wrath and drive these New York Stock Exchange gamblers either into honesty or out of the country.

Measured by the number of suicides caused, Monte Carlo is an innocent pleasure resort compared with the New York Stock Exchange, and when it comes to the amount of money changing hands and the effect on other people, the notorious island gambling resort is still more insignificant in comparison.

Bryan put the monopolist on a par with the highwayman who points a revolver at his victim's head and says, "Money or your life," and the lawyer who helps him to keep out of jail is no better than the man who aids the highwayman to escape.

Carnegie hall was well filled, but the audience was far from being the regular Bryan type. There was only one real demonstration and that was when Bryan called upon the country to march 80,000,000 strong against the Stock Exchange. The cheering then lasted for two or three minutes.

SENATOR EVERETT COLBY SEES NEGRO'S EXECUTION.

As the sequel to a murder resulting from a quarrel over a ten cent debt, George Stewart, a negro, died in the electric chair in the State prison, at Trenton, yesterday. He was pronounced dead after two contacts had been given.

Stewart stabbed John Snell, a clairvoyant, in the Camden jail, where both were confined for minor offences, on November 29. Snell asked Stewart for ten cents the latter had harrowed, and Stewart angrily retorted that he would get even with him for dunning him.

A few days later Snell picked up a ten cent piece in Stewart's cell and kept it. Stewart drew a knife, stabbing the former.

Considerable comment was caused by the fact that Everett Colby, State Senator from Essex county, was one of the witnesses of the execution, which was conducted by E. F. Davis, State Electrician of New York. One of the jurors being absent, Senator Colby was allowed to take his place.

Senator Colby is opposed to capital punishment. His father is said to have secured the abolition of capital punishment in Wisconsin. Following the execution, Dr. Edward A. Spitzka, of Philadelphia, a brain expert, examined Stewart's brain.

MRS. FORT INSPECTS COTTAGE.

Wife of Governor Suggests in Dwelling at Sea Girt.

Mrs. John Franklin Fort and Miss Margretta Fort, wife and daughter of the Governor, inspected the cottage in the State Camp grounds at Sea Girt yesterday.

They went to the shore with Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray and Adjutant-General R. Heber Breintnall. The object of the visit was to determine what renovation the cottage needed and what furniture would be required for its occupancy by the Governor and his family next summer. Mrs. Fort made known what she desired and the change will be ordered.

Mrs. Fort and her daughter spent last night at their summer cottage in Spring Lake and yesterday afternoon the Governor's wife was the guest of honor at a tea given by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leslie R. Fort, at the latter's home in Lakewood.

RAILROADS' BIG TAXES

State Receives More Than $2,500,000 Due from Systems During 1907.

NO FURTHER CONTEST LIKELY.

Resistance of the Perkins Main Stem Law Was Based on Great Increase of Assessment on that Class of Property.

That no further contest of the Perkins "average rate main stem" tax law of 1906, recently held by the court of last resort in this State to be constitutional, was forcibly demonstrated yesterday, when State Treasurer Daniel G. Voorhees received from the big railroad systems more than $2,500,000 of the balance of $2,793,582.95 due on account of the tax of 1906 and payable during the year 1907.

The railroads combined to resist the new law because it increased the tax on their main stem property for the year 1906 to $3,503,529.70, levied at a rate of $18.01 on each $1,000 valuation, that being the average tax of the State on all other property in the State, instead of $950,991.21 as it would have been under the old fixed rate of $5 on each $1,000 valuation, which prevailed from 1884 to 1905, inclusive.

The fight against this increase of $2,533,867.35, which was more than two hundred per cent. of an increase, began in February last year before the main branch of the Supreme Court, then consisting of Supreme Court Justices Fort, Pitney and Hendrickson, in the Essex County Courthouse, where the court, because of the importance of the case, ignored the Saturday half-holiday law and devoted two Saturdays to the hearing of oral argument and receipt of briefs. Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter, who conducted the case for the State, had as associates former Supreme Court Justice Bennett Van Syckel, of Trenton, and John R. Hardin, of Newark. The railroads were represented by a long array of general and special counsel, among the latter being Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark.

The court, in an exhaustive opinion, declared the act constitutional, and the railroads immediately appealed to the Court of Errors, which heard argument on appeal at the November term. Several days were devoted to the argument, and on January 7 of this year the court unanimously affirmed the Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the "average main stem tax rate" and declared unconstitutional a companion law which required second-class railroad property to be assessed by local assessors instead of the State assessors. During the progress of the argument in the Court of Errors some of the counsel for the railroads intimated an appeal to the United States courts if the Fort-Pitney decision was upheld. This was not taken seriously by the State, and the fact that the railroads had paid on account of the tax $709,946.75 was regarded as an indication that they would abide by the decision of the State courts.

Some of the smaller roads paid the tax in full and others an amount equal to what the tax would have been had the old rate of $5 on each $1,000 valuation prevailed. Of the larger systems, $16,424.50, and consequently was the heaviest contributor in the list of delinquent companies which are now making final payment. Fourteen of the thirty-four companies assessed, paid in full last year, and the twenty who left a balance with the amount due from each are included in the following list:

Pennsylvania Railroad System	$1,061,088 63
Central Railroad System	552,833 99
Philadelphia and Reading Railroad System	122,152 19
Erie Railroad System	176,556 31

Trenton, Lawrenceville and Princeton Railroad Extension Railroad Company	509 68
Trenton and New Brunswick Railroad Company	4,049 92
West Shore Railroad Co.	57,193 36
Total	$2,793,582 95

Of the total amount named above $2,530,867.35, or all in excess of an amount of the total main stem tax equal to $5 on each $18,000 valuation is by virtue of chapter 146, of the laws of 1906 appropriated for the support and maintenance of the free public schools of the State, to be apportioned to each municipality

WEST ENDER'S ARGUMENT

Jacob Kriney Gives Some Figures to Show Why Another School is Needed.

WANT IT BEYOND GRANT AVE.

Some Children In That Section Have Never Attended School Despite the Compulsory Law.

What is considered as one of the strongest arguments in favor of another public school in the West End of the city below Grant avenue, is contained in the statistics just compiled by Jacob Kriney, of West Front street, one of the most enthusiastic advocates in the movement for additional school facilities. During the past few days he has taken a complete census of all the children of school age, living between Grant and Jefferson avenue, northwest of the railroad to the city line. Green brook, and between Clinton and Rock avenues and southwest of the railroad to the city line, and he has found 399 in all.

This disputes the statement of a school official who said that he did not believe that more than twenty children would be found in a portion of this territory. Between Grant and Jefferson avenues Mr. Kriney found 105 children who are from 5 to 12 years of age and 81 between Clinton and Rock avenues who are of the same age, making a total of 186.

Despite the fact that the law is compulsory as to attendance Mr. Kriney found a number of children between seven and eight years who have never attended school. The list completed by Mr. Kriney and which has been left at the office of the city clerk for the information of the Common Council and others who are interested in the proposition. This contains the names of parents, addresses of each and the number of children of school age.

The number of children and their ages, residing between Grant and Jefferson avenues, northwest of the railroad to the city line, are as follows:

Number Children.	Age.

The number of children and their ages, residing between Clinton and Rock avenues and southwest of the railroad to city line, follow:

The figures gathered by Mr. Kriney do not include that part of the West End in which the Irving school is situated, yet his house-to-house visits disclosed the fact that many of the children from the section covered by him are obliged to walk great distances to school, which could be obviated if another school is built in the vicinity of West Front street and Clinton avenue, as advocated by a large number of citizen in that part of the city as well as the Board of Trade.

Hope Endeavorers Plan Dramatics.

Plans for a dramatic entertainment to raise funds for missionary work were discussed at a meeting of the Hope Chapel Christian Endeavorers held last night. President Rimmer, of the society, referred the matter to the entertainment committee, composed of Peter Sweeney, chairman, Wesley Morris Hunter, Eunice Eckert and Elsie Rimmer, and this committee will report at the next meeting of the society, to be held next Wednesday night. At the conclusion of last night's business session, refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

PRESENTED HIS OWN CASE

Colored Man Tries His Hand at Law and Secures a Conviction.

BESTED DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL

Fired "Hot Shot" At Attorney Who Attempted to Belittle Him In Appeal to City Judge For Woman's Acquittal.

Though he has never studied Blackstone or been in a position to observe legal argument, Winfield Monroe, a well-known West End colored man, preferred a complaint in the city court, this morning, and gave the lie to the expression that the man who acts as his own lawyer has a fool for a client. Monroe not only secured a conviction but bested learned counsel for the defense when the latter indulged in personal remarks during his plea for an acquittal.

The defendant was Mrs. Sarah Scott, a colored woman who lives on South Second street at the head of what used to be known as "Gossip Row," and who has been before Judge Runyon on several occasions. Monroe boarded at her home and has frequently done favors for the family. One of them was the loaning of $2 to the woman's husband some years ago and the non-payment of this led to an argument last Monday night.

Bad blood between the two has existed for some time and when Monroe entered the Scott home to discuss the money matter he alleges that Mrs. Scott set upon him in anything but a ladylike way. She not only used abusive language, he told the court, but attempted to throw red pepper in his eyes. In his testimony he claimed that this was a scheme on her part to prevent his seeing Abram King, white, an insurance agent, who was visiting there at the time. The argument grew as hot as the pepper and Monroe alleges that he was threatened by the entire Scott family, one daughter threatening to hit him with a quart bottle that stood on a table. King got between the disputants and no casualties occurred.

Monroe preferred a charge against Mrs. Scott because of the names she had called him and accusations she made while her temper was at its top-notch. She engaged J. Henry Crane to represent her and the lawyer handler her side when the case was called in court. Monroe presented the facts from his own standpoint and they were given in a clear and concise manner. He also cross-examined the witnesses brought by the defense and succeeded in tangling King when he was called to corroborate the defendant's version. Witness admitted that Mrs. Scott had used some pretty warm remarks and informed the court that Monroe had started it but when the complainant pinned him down on this statement, he said he "thought he had."

When Laywer Crane summed up, he asked for the discharge of his client on the ground that she was in her own home when the affair took place and had a right to protect herself. He described her as a "poor, weak woman" while Monroe, was a "great, big, burly, buck dark man who had appealed to the whole police department of Plainfield to help him fight her."

Monroe had maintained a dignified silence all through the proceedings but this remark of the counsel angered him very much. He interrupted the lawyer by asking what he meant by it but Crane ignored him and kept on after asking Chief Kiely to keep the complainant back. As soon as the lawyer concluded, Monroe stepped forward and addressing him directly said:

"I'm a citizen of Plainfield and I'm here to give my side of this case as a matter of right and not for the $5 that brought you. I don't know what you mean by the remark you make but I say to you and to the court that it's not up to me to strike a woman. The police are here to give protection and that's what I'm after."

Judge Runyon took the case at this point and after stating that he had known Monroe for years as a peaceful, law-abiding citizen and that the defendant already had a jail term hanging over her head, he sentenced Mrs. Scott to twenty days in jail. Three daughters and a son were in court with her and they set up such an awful howl when they realized she had to go to Elizabeth that the court officers had to shoo them out.

Mothers' Meeting Tomorrow.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association will meet in the library of the Plainfield High School tomorrow afternoon, when a mothers' conference will be held at 3 o'clock on matters pertaining to the schools. An address will be made at 4 o'clock by Harold A. Nomer, of the Polytechnic Preparatory School, on "Ideals In Teaching." Those interested are invited to attend both meetings.

INVESTIGATION TO START

Chairman Hibbard of the Fire Committee Calls First Meeting for Probe.

MAYOR'S OFFICE TOMORROW.

Many Witnesses Requested to Be Present Including Fire Chief and Water Company Representatives.

In compliance with the demand of the residents in the Netherwood section and the suggestion of Mayor Fisk to the Common Council, the Councilmanic fire committee has decided to make an immediate investigation of the blaze at the home of Richard J. Letcher, in Belvidere avenue on Sunday night. The purpose will be to fix responsibility for failure to extinguish the flames within a reasonable time. The first sitting of the committee will take place tomorrow night at the mayor's office.

Chairman Hibbard already has requested the presence of a dozen or so as witnesses. Among the number will be many of Mr. Letcher's neighbors, Fire Chief Doane and Assistant Fire Chief Jennings as well as Superintendent Andrews and Secretary Whalen, of the water company.

Chief Doane's contention is that the fire hydrants were all frozen up and that the delay in thawing them out was responsible for the five hours blaze. The water company's representatives declare that the hydrants were in perfect working order.

ALLEGED BIGAMIST STILL LINGERS IN JAIL

Mrs. Annie Mary French, who was held in $300 bail at Easton, Pa., on Tuesday, on a charge of bigamy and is still in jail for want of a bondsman, is said to be the lawful wife of Owen Gulick, of Mt. Bethel. The wedding to Gulick is alleged to have taken place at the Somerset county village on July 20, 1892.

Mr. French, who formerly resided at New Village, N. J., made the charge of bigamy against the woman, alleging that his marriage to her took place at No. 118 North Thirteenth street, Easton, on May 10, 1900. He declares that he but recently learned of her former marriage.

EXAMINATION SHOWS ONE BOROUGH HYDRANT FROZEN

In company with Chief Howard Woolston, of the borough fire department, and Superintendent Amos Andrews, of the water company, Councilman Edward Smith, chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee of the North Plainfield Common Council, made an inspection of the fire hydrants of the borough yesterday afternoon. Twelve hydrants were opened and tested and the men found that in all but one of them, the water was ready for use.

The one case where water could not be drawn was the hydrant on E. S. Hooley's property on Rockview avenue. This hydrant had been reported leaking, and the running water from the leak has frozen solid, so that no water could be drawn.

It is said that the Councilman was unsuccessful in his efforts to open the hydrant valves so that water would come and reported several of the valves to be frozen, but this was due to the fact that he was turning the valve the wrong way, merely tightening the hydrant. On being set right by the water company, it is alleged, that no trouble was experienced. The drivers of the borough sprinkling carts have been responsible for some trouble in opening the valves, for it was found that in some cases the valves had not been shut off tight and the dripping water had frozen, making the valve hard to open.

Mission Band Meeting.

Mrs. J. C. Allen, secretary of the Women's Board of Domestic Missions, will be present at the annual meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be election of officers for the ensuing year and light refreshments will be served. Everybody will be welcome.

Leap Year Dance Tonight.

About a hundred of the younger set will take part in an informal leap year dance to be held tonight at Truell Hall. The committee in charge of the affair is composed of the Misses Julia Mackenzie, Eudora Sullivan, Eva Kelly and Fannie Cahoone.

BRYAN INVADES JERSEY

"Peerless One" in Tow of the "Farmer-Orator" Enters "Enemy's Country."

FIRES ORATORICAL BROADSIDES

Nebraskan Distributes His "Glittering Generalities" in Jersey City, Passaic and Newark.

Did you hear the earth rumble shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon? The shock was not produced by any earthquake. It only recorded the fact that William Jennings Bryan and James E. Martine had landed on Jersey soil after a safe passage across the Hudson river in a Pennsylvania Railroad ferryboat. Of course the boat wabbled once or twice, but how could it help it when two such heavyweights in the political world were its burden.

The "farmer-orator" stroked his hair as usual and incidently took a reporter into his confidence to let it be known that his Democracy is his religion and that "by the very gods, Mr. Bryan will be the next president." The Nebraskan did't waste any time talking about "predatory wealth," "the enemy's country," and such like, but joined with Mr. Robert Davis, the Hudson statesman, who footed the bills by "hiring a hall."

"The Peerless One" was greeted by a vast crowd at the Majestic theatre. After being introduced by Mayor H. Otto Wittpen, he let fire with all his oratorical zeal at the people who are sending this country fast to the bow-wows.

From Jersey City the distinguished Democrat will go to Passaic, where he is due to speak at 6 o'clock.

If the program mapped out is executed it will be about 8:30 when the automobiles with the Bryan aggregation aboard will reach the Newark line on the journey from Passaic. There they will be met by representatives of the big committee of Essex county men selected to receive him. Edmund A. Whittier, of East Orange, is chairman of the committee.

There will be something of a romp about the reception of the Nebraskan in Springfield avenue. A platoon of mounted police, under Sergeant William H. Stucky, will act as escort, and Detective Sergeants Ryan, Long and Farrell have been assigned by Captain of Detectives Carrell as a special bodyguard. Bad weather would be a serious handicap and might necessitate a change of plans.

Mr. Bryan will be the guest of Charles H. Ingersoll, of Scotland road, South Orange, tonight. Mr. Ingersoll was the nominee of the Independent Citizens' party for assembly in 1906.

Senator William C. Gebhard, of Hunterdon; Mr. Whittier, Assemblyman Joseph P. Tumulty, of Jersey City; J. Spencer Smith, of Tenafly, and David Harvey, Jr., of Asbury ark, who make up the Progressive League's committee, have arranged to have Congressman "Billy" Hughes and Augustus Thomas speak with Mr. Bryan this afternoon and tonight.

Funeral of John A. Neighbor.

The funeral of John A. Neighbor, who died suddenly Monday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his son, Erwin Y. Neighbor, of Manning avenue. It was conducted by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. During the service two selections were sung by Elmer D. Cutting, accompanied by Judge William N. Runyon. The floral tributes were numerous and comprised set pieces from the Timon Social Club and the employes of the Plainfield Cab Company. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Daniel J. Shea, William Demarest, Dr. F. C. Herbert, Edward Toense, Charles Rice and James Kane.

Y. W. C. A. Classes.

Physical examinations for entrance to various classes will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association at 8 o'clock tonight. The afternoon class for young girls will be given a new term of work tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. The Friday evening class will meet as usual tomorrow evening and the afternoon embroidery class will hereafter meet Fridays at 4:30 beginning tomorrow.

Coasting Accidents.

While coasting on the hill at the Park Golf Club, yesterday, Bryon McClintock, of Fairview avenue, received a deep and painful cut on the hand. Dr. Dundon was obliged to take several stitches to close the wound. Ralph Goldsmith, of Fairview avenue, met with a similar accident and Dr. P. J. Zeglio attended to the injuries.

BROKE HIS WIFE'S WRIST

So Says Mrs. Olive Dunn in Sensational Testimony During Divorce Proceedings.

SAW HER KISS ANOTHER.

Wesley J. Dunn, the Husband, Tells of Catching Her In Company of "Bill Drake" At Coney Island.

Vice Chancellor Emery at Newark yesterday began hearing testimony in a suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Olive Blanche Dunn against Wesley J. Dunn, of this city, on a charge of infidelity. In her bill Mrs. Dunn alleged extreme cruelty also.

In August, 1904, Mrs. Dunn recites that her husband bent back her hand until her wrist was fractured, and six weeks later struck her on the same wrist and broke it again. As another instance of cruelty Mrs. Dunn tells that in January, 1905, her husband flourished a knife, threatening her life and forcing her to flee for safety.

The hearing was continued today when the testimony given by a doctor was flatly contradicted by a druggist. The Vice-Chancellor announced that he would examine the druggists prescription books.

When Mr. Dunn called to the witness stand he testified to meeting his wife returning from Coney Island with a man whom he declared was "Bill Drake, of a Plainfield livery stable."

"I saw him kiss her on the bridge," said Dunn.

"When they got on the ferryboat, I heard her tell him to go on the other side of the ferryboat so that people wouldn't see them together," he continued. "I pushed them apart and then she began to cry as she always did when I caught her at any of her tricks."

It is expected that the hearing will take all the day and part of tomorrow.

The Dunns were married August 11, 1902, and lived together nearly all the time with Mrs. Dunn's parents in this city until June 21, 1906. While the defendant failed to file a cross bill his answer, besides setting up a general denial of his wife's charges, charges misconduct on her part.

PORTER AND FORT ADDRESS LOYAL LEGION

Gen. Horace Porter and Governor John Franklin Fort were the principal speakers at the quarterly banquet of the New York Commandery, Military Order Loyal Legion, held at Delmonico's, New York, last night. Gen. Porter gave a brief review of the work accomplished at the Peace Conference at The Hague, in which he and Joseph A. Choate took such a prominent part.

Governor Fort devoted his remarks to lauding the achievements of the veterans of the Civil War and to the rapid growth of the great Republic. The Plainfield members of the order present were Major W. D. W. Miller, Dr. F. S. Wells, Rev. Dr. Hubbell, DeWitt C. Hubbell, Captain M. C. Dobbins and Walter C. Dobbins.

Broke Arm in Two Places.

While proceeding to his home on West Fifth street, near Division, last night, Richard Bohan, bookkeeper at A. M. Griffin's, slipped and fell on the snowy sidewalk, breaking his right arm in two places. George Griffin chanced to be with him at the time and assisted him to the house where he was attended by Dr. Norman Probasco. He passed a very restless night, but this morning was quite comfortable. The fall also gave him a bad shaking up.

Mr. Krebs to Supervise Exams.

County Supervisor of Schools Henry C. Krebs will go to Somerville tomorrow to conduct teachers' examinations at the school there. These examinations are held quarterly and those who are not graduates of a Normal School must pass them before receiving a certificate to teach. The examinations will continue for two days.

Mission's Second Anniversary.

The Plainfield Rescue Mission will observe its second anniversary tonight at 8 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. rooms, 100 Madison avenue. Howard T. Scherkler, superintendent of the Elizabeth Rescue Mission, and other good speakers will be present. A special musical program will be given.

Sentence Suspended.

Edward Jones, picked up yesterday morning with a third degree jag aboard, had sentence suspended in the city court this morning. There was no disorder connected with the case.

AUTHORITIES' CONFERENCE

Members of Common Council and Board of Education Meet Together Tonight.

AT MAYOR FISK'S OFFICE.

Pow-wow First of Its Kind in City's History An Executive Session —What Will Be Discussed?

For the first time probably in the history of the municipality, the Common Council and the Board of Education will gather together for conference. The meeting, at which every member of both bodies is expected to attend, will take place at Mayor Fisk's offices in the Smalley building.

Just what the object of the unexpected session is has not been learned but that matters of public moment will be discussed is of course certain. The educational authorities have several important plans for the betterment of school service underway. Chief among these is the proposition to erect a school house at Darrow avenue and Essex street at the cost of $100,000. There is also talk of a school building in the extreme west end.

Mayor Fisk is expected to preside at the meeting which will be attended by only sixteen others, it being intended purely as an informal conference.

ICE HARVESTING BEGUN AFTER 8 INCH SNOWFALL

An army of about 150 men went to work this morning at Watchung Lake, harvesting the ten-inch ice crop into the big ice house of the Natural Ice Company. The snowfall of last night put them somewhat behind in their work, but Manager Wilson had a gang of men busy with plows all night, and the work of actual cutting began at shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

Unemployed men thronged the offices and ice house of the company seeking for work on the pond and the company was unable to accommodate all who applied. This is due to the fact that the snow has clogged the elevator at the Crystal Lake house and work will not be commenced on that lake until next week. A member of the firm said this morning that he was sorry to have to turn away any who sought employment, but another opportunity would be offered those who have not already secured work when the cutting on the smaller pond is begun.

The night gang, with horses and snow-plows, cleared the ice for the many body of cutters, who reported at the pond early today. They worked practically all night, and by 4 o'clock this morning the ice was ready for cutting. There are already several layers of ice in the house and the cutting is to be continued as rapidly as possible.

With a rise of about thirty degrees in the temperature, the extreme cold spell was broken last night by a snowfall of seven and a half inches. The precipitation amounted to 1.05 inches. The street commissioners on both sides of the brook had an army of men employed cleaning the streets in the business section and carting away the snow. Over in the borough, Street Commissioner Barrett had four snow-plows at work last night and by 3 o'clock all sidewalks were opened up. The street force was then put to work cleaning out gutters and removing the surplus snow. This afternoon they started out to shovel the walks uncleaned by the property owners.

The trolley service was slightly crippled by slippery rails, but the cars ran regularly. The trolley plows were out over the whole line several times and kept the tracks cut out.

Weather Prophet Neagle reports that it will be fair and colder tonight and tomorrow.

Dance At St. Stephen's.

Under the auspices of the Young Men's Association of St. Stephen's church, a reception and dance was held at the parish house, last night. Despite the storm more than 100 members of the club and their friends were present. Charles Suhr's Imperial Orchestra furnished the music and the program was greatly enjoyed. During an intermission refreshments were served. J. A. Costales, as president of the club, was in charge of the affair.

Stranger Peered In Window.

B. A. Mumford, of Arlington avenue, reported to the police last night that a man had walked up on his front porch and peered into a window. When a member of the family hurried outside to investigate he had disappeared. An officer scouted around the premises but there was nothing doing.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

WESTFIELD.

At the meeting of the Westfield Board of Education Tuesday night the Committe on Buildings and Grounds reported four sites as having been offered to them upon which to locate a new school building. Henry C. Lockwood offered a plot of 200 feet on First street for $1,500. Ira C. Lambert offered a site for $5,000, and a lot belonging to the estate of Colonel Cole was offered, but the location was unsatisfactory. The Pierson lot, corner of Broad street and Euclid avenue, was offered. No decision was reached.

Westfield Council has planned for a trip to Madison on Lincoln's Birthday to inspect the workings of the water plant there, which has been owned and operated by the municipality for the past ten years.

According to the annual report of Frederick C. Decker, chief of the Westfield Fire Department, damages amounting to $17,825 was done by fires last year, when twenty-three alarms were turned in.

Work on the Westfield sewer extension has been practically stopped by the cold snap. The work is nearly completed between the retaining dam at Melton Lake and the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

WHITEHOUSE.

The new First National Bank at Whitehouse Station will be opened for business in the Cook building, on April 1. Morris R. Cook will be cashier, and John Stone assistant cashier.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Whitehouse will be entertained tomorrow afternoon at the Methodist church parsonage by Mrs. Sylvanus D. Decker.

Miss Ida Hensley, of Frenchtown, who had been a guest of friends at Lamington, during the past week, has gone to Lebanon to visit before returning home.

Mrs. Eunice E. Perry entertained the Ladies' Aid Society connected with the Reformed church at her home at Whitehouse Station, yesterday.

Mrs. William C. Swackhamer, of Whitehouse Station, has been entertaining her sister, Mrs. Abraham F. Hall, of New Germantown.

Albert Fleming, of Newark, was a recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming, at Whitehouse Station.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar has returned to her home in Plainfield, after a visit to her mother, Mrs. Ramsey, at Lebanon.

Miss Bertha Bailey, of Lakeville, Conn., was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. Stephen K. Large, in Whitehouse.

Anderson Smith, of Peapack, has been spending several days with relatives in Hackensack and New York.

Miss Ida Brown, of New York, has been spending several days with Mrs. Elizabeth S. Blazure, at Peapack.

Mrs. John Deaney is confined to her home at Gladstone by a severe attack of rheumatism.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Miss Bertha Wagner, of Newark, is being entertained at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wagner, in Union avenue, Beachwood Heights.

Mrs. Mary Trimmer has moved from South Bound Brook to Roselle, where she will make her home with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Potter.

James P. Long, of South Bound Brook, is a guest at the home of Miss Mabel Harvey, in South avenue, Westfield.

Mrs. Joseph Appleyard is ill at her home in Franklin street, Bound Brook.

RARITAN.

Mrs. Joseph Weaner, of Plainfield, was a guest here on Monday of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Smith.

Harry A. Wildsmith has gone to England with his family, where they expect to spend two months.

Mrs. Asa R. Dilts has been spending two weeks in Plainfield.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

If you have any trouble with your range, sanitary plumbing or heating system, call on A. M. Griffen, of East Front street. He is always prepared to do first-class work at short notice. His stock of hardware is second to none.

The Edison phonograph and Victor talking machine can be seen and heard to advantage at Harry K. Listel's store on North avenue. He sells the very latest records for both machines and you can hear them before you buy.

Seasonable goods in every department makes the Woodhull & Martin Company store one of the best places in the State to shop. The women will be interested in the attractive line of dress goods, embroideries, laces, white goods, flannels, while the men will find many things in the department devoted to their needs that will appeal to them. The prices are very low, in fact more attractive than offered in many New York stores.

Melancholy.

The old time herbalists did not regard melancholy as an affection of the temperament, but as an illness or disease, and many were the "secrets" they purported to cure it with. The favorite remedy was a syrup made of borage and bugloss, which took away all grief and gave the sufferer a light heart and a happy mind.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

There are very few plays produced where so many different members of the cast have an opportunity to personally distingnish themselves as in "A Poor Relation." The plot, of course, centers in Noah Vale, played by the eminent character actor, Lee Ellsworth, but it is only by splitting hairs that one can pick out of the remaining characters and say it is more important than another. The play will be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

"The Flaming Arrow," Lincoln J. Carter's original western play, which plays are now so much in vogue, is now on its tenth annual tour, and seems to be one of the few successes, that can repeat each year and please all. The same big company, Indians, band, horses, etc., are still a feature, while a new complement of scenery is being shown. "The Flaming Arrow" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

There certainly is sufficient reason for a packed house at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, when Mr. Daniel Sully will be seen as Father O'Neill in "The Golden Rule." Mr. Sully has an intense local following among his friends and acquaintances and when it becomes known to them that their old favorite is to appear as a priest in a play as strong as "The Golden Rule," there remains little doubt as to the results.

One hundred and twenty laughs

in one hundred and fifty minutes is the treat in store for those who are fortunate enough to be able to witness the performance of that clever comedian, Mr. James B. Mackie, as "Grimsey Me Boy," in that very funny musical farce, "Grimes' Cellar Door," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night.

From all accounts Arnold Daly's new play, "My Mamie Rose," which is to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre on Lincoln's Birthday, is one of the more remarkable events of the season, following in its scope and character somewhat after the lines of "Irene Wycherley," though not at all of that class. Where one was a drama of high life, the present play is of the opposite social extreme, and while both may be called soul studies of a totally different character, they have many points in common. "My Mamie Rose" is peculiarly a modern play, and yet is of a type that has come to be known as "different." Inasmuch as it holds within itself many of the latter day principles that have come to be such a feature in the life of today. Mr.

Teppers, 109-113 West Front St.

The White Sale Lasts Throughout This Week.

More New Bargains Added to the List to Make This the Greatest Week of Them All.

You can easily recognize the bargains we quote below by the well-known brands of the goods, This list added to the innumerable bargains of the WHITE SALE since the beginning will certainly make this the biggest White Sale Week you have attended in a long, long time.

The muslin underwear sale, the embroidery sale, the sheer white goods sale, are each in themselves enough to draw the economical shopper, but we add this new list as an additionel attraction for this first week in February to make a good beginning for our 1908 campaign during this recognized dullest month of the year.

EMBROIDERY FLOUNCINGS 12½c Yard.

You have had some remarkable Embroidery bargains here since the first day of this White Sale. These Flouncings at 12½c are perhaps the biggest bargain of them all, for the quality is good, both the Embroidery and the Fine Lawn they are on, and just think of the price. But Tepper's is the unusual house, for we have no money tied up on our books—Cash is always worth 6 per cent. you know, and then we discontinued trading stamps some time ago that makes 3½ per cent. more we save on every dollar's worth of goods we sell. So we CAN and DO give bargains, and these Embroideries are a good illustration, at yard ..... .12½

ROGERS' SILVER AT HALF.

Half-price for Silverware—genuine Rogers' extra plated silverware at that—is a truly startling proposition, and one lots of people won't believe. But here is a sale that will convince the most skeptical that what we advertise may always be depended upon.

It is a sale that will be a treat to every homekeeper, boarding-house keeper or hotel owner who has use for such wearable silver as this.

This genuine Rogers' extra plated ware has a guaranteed base of 21 per cent. nickel silver and a plating of full standard weight pure silver, making it superior to all other goods having a similar plate. It will give a surprising amount of wear and will prove highly satisfactory in every particular.

Stallings, it is understood, will have the pick of the New York American League club's extra players and will also have the support of Frank J. Farrell, who has practically sold the Montreal club of the Eastern League, in which he was heavily interested for the last three years. In getting out of Newark Burnham, it is said, has been forced out of baseball by the vigorous crusade against the minor league blacklist conducted recently by H. C. Pulliam, president of the National League. It was Burnham who furnished an alleged list of blacklisted players after the O'Rourke resolution was passed at the minor league's meeting last October, and in so doing he boasted that he had administered a rebuke to the National Commission.

This attitude on the part of Burnham was one of the primary causes for Pulliam's tirade which involved Garry Herrmann, P. T. Powers and J. H. Farrell. Pulliam declared openly that he would square accounts with Burnham, and now that the latter has withdrawn from the game it is believed that Pulliam will become reconciled and will reconsider his threat that he would resign from office unless the blacklist business was cleared up to his satisfaction. Stallings has not been actively engaged in baseball affairs since he sold the Buffalo club. He was mentioned as a possible manager of the Cincinnati club in December, when as a matter of fact he never applied for the job, and the proposition was quickly turned down by Herrmann.

Incidentally it is believed that Newark fans will have better baseball provided for them than for many years back, for Stallings has a remarkable ability for producing winning teams. The Montreal club for two years was practically a "farm" for Griffith's team, but it was so far away that Griffith could not get a line on the men who received salaries there. But with Newark within reach of New York city the New York club, because of an alliance with Stallings, will probably receive new benefits. The amount paid for the Newark franchise was not stated yesterday, but it is understood that Burnham and his friends received about $40,000.

SUICIDE ACCUSED WIFE.

Made Charges Against Her in a Letter and Then Hanged Himself.

Hugh Cook, a coal peddler, of 221 Orleans avenue, Jersey City, killed himself yesterday afternoon at his home, after writing a letter in which he charged that his wife had been won over to the faith of the Christian Scientists and had refused to allow him medical attention. She would only pray for him in his illness, neighbors said. He wrote that he thought she was crazy since she had adopted the new faith, and arraigned her bitterly.

He made a noose of handkerchiefs fastened it to the top of a door, and jumped from a chair. He was found dead by Mrs. Cook when she returned home late in the afternoon. She called neighbors, who got policemen, and the letter was found. It was addressed to no one, and read:

"I cannot work any longer, as I am not very strong. When my wife was sick I took care of her. Now that I am sick she is always kicking.

"I cannot carry coal as I used to. Since my wife took to Christian Science my life has been a torment. At times she acts as though she was crazy. Although I suffered much she did not think I ought to have a physician."

LOCAL OPTION DOUBTFUL.

Belief that Governor's Bill to Enforce "Bishops' Law" Will Be Only Excise Legislation.

It is believed that the local option bill introduced in the House by Assemblyman Crosby, of Ocean, Tuesday at Trenton will not pass.

Governor Fort is expected to have ready by next week the bill he intends to urge upon the members to make more effective the present laws regulating the liquor traffic, and with this it is probable the present Legislature will be content.

Mr. Crosby is a total abstainer. He is editor and proprietor of the Tuckerton Beacon, president of the Tuckerton Men's Christian Association and chief of the town's fire department. He said yesterday that he had made his canvass for election last fall without spending one cent for liquor.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded at the county clerk's office: Sarah M. Sheppard to John M. Nicholson, South avenue, 624 feet of Coriell's land, Plainfield, $1; Plainfield B. and L. Association to Agnes H. Van Nerden, lots 15-16, block E, "Map of J. D. Runyon," Plainfield, $1,100; Ida Borsum et al. to William P. Smith, Woodland avenue, 189 feet of Rahway road, Plainfield, $1; Clifford D. Manning et ux. to Mary Emily Steven, northeasterly side Grant avenue, 220 feet southerly of West Eighth street, Plainfield, $1; Harry C. Smith et ux. to Frederick S. Cutter, northerly side East Second street, 50 feet southwesterly of A. Baker, Plainfield, $1; Charlotte M. Huff to Clarence L. Murphy, lots 12, 13, 14, block B, "Map of Rockview Heights," Plainfield, $1.

Watches.

Watches occasionally get "tired" and begin to keep erratic time. A rest of a few days will often cure this.

Daly is supported by such players as Holbrook Blinn, Chrystal Herne, Helen Ware and others who make up a highly competent cast. The whole is under the direction of Liebler & Co.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

America's suggestions for the revision of the golf rules requested last fall by the rules committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews will be sent today to Scotland. The compilation of the suggestions has been done by a sub-committee of the United States Golf Association, which was named at the executive committee meeting held in Chicago during the women's championship at Midlothian. On the sub-committee were Daniel Chauncey, president of the U. S. G. A.; W. Fellowes Morgan and Leighton Calkins. The instructions were to canvass the U. S. G. A. clubs to obtain the local ideas on the rules or the changes needed in them, on which information the sub-committee was to base its suggestions to the Scotch committee. Three New Yorkers were chosen for the sub-committee to facilitate the holding of many meetings, the study of the answers from members and the preparation of the report to go to Scotland.

"The report sent to the Royal and Ancient rules committee," said President Chauncey yesterday, "will embody the views of every club in the United States Golf Association on revising the rules. There are not many radical changes, but the sub-committee has done a vast amount of labor in collecting the suggestions from all our players. Our report contains suggestions as to rearranging the rules, changes in the wording and some modifications of penalties, but no changes in the spirit of the rules or in the fundamental principals of the game. The work is complete in details, but is more of a rough draft than a finished report, as the Royal and Ancient committee cabled to make haste. The report may not be made public here; certainly not until it has been received by the St. Andrews committee. It is a codification of suggestions and sent as such by request of the St. Andrews committee. The United States Golf Association has made no demands and laid down no conditions."

As final court of appeal in golf the rules committee of the Royal and Ancient at intervals of some seven years has usually to revise the rules of the game. As a result the code is an accumulation of rules that to Americans has seemed too verbose and too often contradictory. After the last two revisions the United States Golf Association has had the rules "interpreted" by a special committee for use on our links. The additions to the rules now in use were made after the revision of 1897 by C. B. McDonald, G. H. Windeler and Walter J. Travis for the United States book. The Royal and Ancient committee said at that time the Americans would be asked for suggestions when next the rules were to be revised.

Americans have been dissatisfied with the arrangement and conflicting words in the rules. In September the United States committee wrote a notification of this state of affairs to the St. Andrews committee. In due time came a letter from Capt. Burn, chairman of the St. Andrews committee, stating that the rules were to be revised and an advance proof would be sent to the United States Golf Association for amendments. The revised rules are due in May and to facilitate the publishing the United States Golf Association has prepared its own code practically and mails it today in the form of a suggestion.

BASEBALL.

A deal was put through Tuesday by which W. W. Burnham sold the Newark Eastern League club to George Stallings, the well known baseball manager, who formerly managed the Detroit Americans and afterward owned the Buffalo club.

ATTACK ON SUPREME COURT.

In the course of his speech at the Philadelphia Trades League banquet, last night, Congressman Fowler let the country in on a great secret. Talking of his unendorsed financial candidacy, the statesman from the Fifth district let it be known that the Supreme Court of the United States erred in its decision on an important point.

The admittedly distinguished and most modest Representative from his district declared:

"I don't believe that it is function of this government to issue flat money. I believe that this decision was rendered by a packed Supreme Court, and that if they had another opportunity to guess they wouldn't do it the same again."

Does this noble man realize the seriousness of his utterance when he declares that the Supreme Court of the United States was "packed?" Methinks he on thee, Charles Napoleon Fowler!

Thanks are due Chairman Hibbard, of the Councilmanic fire committee, for the celerity in which he has acted on the request of the Netherwood section residents for an investigation of the Letcher house fire. Let the truth be known, without fear or favor, for the good of the community.

The paramount issue of the Democratic party is to get rid of Bryan.

Wreck and Storm Delay Trains.

Eastbound passenger traffic was considerably delayed this morning on the New Jersey Central because of a mail freight wreck in Vanderveer's cut, above Raritan. One of the heavily-loaded cars on an eastbound freight train jumped the track and owing to the heavy storm during the night the work of clearing the tracks moved slowly. Through passenger trains were also delayed because of a sever storm in Pennsylvania. Between 7 and 9 o'clock the regular trains were from thirty to forty minutes behind the regular schedule. Before 10 o'clock the traffic returned to normal conditions.

A Treat For Playgoers.

Wagenhals and Kemper, the New York theatrical firm, will present Leo Ditrichstein in this city on Monday night, February 17, in the new comedy, "Bluffs." It will be one of the most pretentious offerings of the present season. Mr. Ditrichstein will be supported by a brilliant cast that will include Frederick Bond, who is well known in this city; Miss Fola LaFollette, daughter of the Wisconsin governor; Miss Kenyon Bishop, Miss Lovell Taylor and Alfred Kappeler. The play is said to have a record number of laughs that entitle it to be called "a laugh a minute" comedy.

Miss Mary Barlow Surprised.

A surprise bridge whist party was given to Miss Mary Barlow, of Prospect place, last night, in honor of her birthday anniversary. There were twenty guests. Miss Ethel Murray received the first prize for the women and Harold Hegeman the first prize for the men. The booby prizes were presented to Miss Eunice Watson and William Flanders. Refreshments were served after the play.

Supt. Baxter to Speak Here.

State Superintendent of Schools Charles J. Baxter, formerly of this city, will address the pupils of the city and borough high schools tomorrow morning. At the opening of school at 8:30, Mr. Baxter will speak at the Plainfield High School, and at 10:30 o'clock will address the pupils of the North Plainfield High School. He has not announced his subjects.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Good Government, the official journal of the National Civil Service Reform League, in its current number contains the following editorial on State Senator Ackerman's civil service bill:

The civil service bill introduced in the New Jersey Senate by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, has been favorably reported by the committee on municipal corporations, to which the bill was referred. The bill was drafted by Senator Ackerman, in collaboration with Senator Frelinghuysen. Senator Ackerman has made every effort to draft an effective bill, and has had frequent consultations with E. K. Sumerwell, chairman of the legislative committee of the New Jersey Association, and Elliot H. Goodwin, secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League. In introducing this bill Senator Ackerman has proved himself not only a friend of civil service reform, but a legislator conscious of the best public sentiment and unmindful of the sordid desires of partisan politics.

The bill applies to the entire state service, and contains provisions under which any municipality may adopt the law either by ordinance of the governing body of the municipality, or by popular vote upon petition of a reasonable number of duly qualified voters. The bill provides that the Governor shall appoint a commission of three, each commissioner to serve for a term of six years, except in the case of the first commissioners, whose terms are to be so arranged as to expire at successive periods of two years each. The president of the commission is to receive a salary of $4,000 and each of the other commissioners $3,000. The commission is given broad powers of investigation. The scope of competition under the law is fairly comprehensive, and the bill contains suitable restrictions upon removals from the civil service, and salutary prohibitions against the use of political influence and the collection of political assessments from employees.

In his annual message to the present Legislature, ex-Governor Stokes recommended the passage of a civil service law as follows:

"A judicious civil service law providing that appointments—municipal, county and State—be based upon efficiency, has previously been recommended for consideration, and the arguments for it so often presented that repetition is unnecessary. The platform of both parties endorsed it in the last campaign, and the fulfillment of the party pledge now becomes a matter of good faith. Twice has a measure of this character passed the Senate. The last measure was prepared by a committee appointed by the Senate. Since the adjournment of the Legislature that committee has given further consideration to the question, and have prepared a bill as the result of their investigation.

"A civil service measure should not fail to include within its provisions, election officers, assessors and boards of original valuation. The manner in which election returns are received in the Department of State shows the necessity of improved service and the disadvantage of changing the election officers without cause. The necessity for placing assessors and boards of valuation under civil service grows out of the responsible character of their work, and their required protection from selfish interests and political influences if they are properly to perform their duties."

Governor Fort, in his inaugural message also recommended the enactment of a civil service law as follows:

"All parties in the last election declared for the enactment of an efficient civil service act. The enlightened public sentiment of our times deems that removals from public positions shall not occur for political reasons. The spoils system is both obsolete and demoralizing, and should be ended. Any fair bill intended to attain this result in State, county and municipality will meet with my approval."

The New Jersey Civil Service Reform Association is supporting this bill, as is also the New Jersey State Civic Federation. Copies of Governor Hughes' speech at the recent annual meeting of the League are being sent to members of the Legislature.

Costs of "Public Printing."

Washington, Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt yesterday discussed at length with Representative Landis, of Indiana, chairman of the House Committee on Printing the investigation into the affairs of the Government Printing Office. The report made by Dr. G. C. Havenner, at the suggestion of the President, which says that the price of government printing has greatly increased under Public Printer Stillings' administration will be sent to Congress for the use of Mr. Landis' committee in pursuing the investigation which it is now making. The formal reply of Mr. Stillings to this report is understood to be in course of preparation. When it is completed it will doubtless follow the Havenner report to Congress.

Excise Board Not Abolished.

Rahway Democratic Common Council Tuesday took no action whatever on the proposition to abolish the present Republican Excise Board. Councilman P. J. Hand, the mover of the project, was not present. The following Health Board was appointed: G. Otto Graves, W. I. Randolph, J. G. Smith, Dr. W. E. Cladek and Moses Ritter. George Conger was appointed a detective-sergeant.

according to its total tax ratables as returned for the year 1906. This apportionment was made in accordance with law in February of last year and had it not been for the contest would have been distributed to the several counties last November on the following basis:

County.	Amount.
Atlantic	$ 97,253 24
Bergen	97,723 74
Burlington	46,583 25
Camden	100,034 64
Cape May	32,460 98
Cumberland	32,903 05
Essex	670,115 65
Gloucester	30,026 47
Hudson	481,442 84
Hunterdon	31,439 78
Mercer	127,885 73
Middlesex	76,041 44
Monmouth	123,352 83
Morris	62,389 62
Ocean	22,121 26
Passaic	211,994 43
Salem	24,341 80
Somerset	36,341 44
Sussex	21,824 03
Union	171,269 15
Warren	34,311 98
Total	$2,530,867 35

Newark's share of the Essex allowance, which will be forwarded without unnecessary delay, is $532,582.41, and a somewhat smaller amount on account of a reduction in the total tax of about $250,000, occasioned by a reduction of eleven points in the average rate for 1907, will be due and paid next November. Because of this large increase in the school fund revenue, amounting as it does to about two-thirds of the total State school tax levied on the two and three-fourth-mill basis, many State officers and legislators think the latter tax should be reduced to about one mill hereafter.

BIG EXPLOSION IN DU PONT POWDER PLANT.

Gibbstown, Feb. 6.—Fire was discovered yesterday in a building of the DuPont Powder Works which is used for mixing and storage purposes. The night force of twenty men centered their efforts on saving surrounding property.

Thirty-five minutes after the fire started an explosion occurred and three buildings were destroyed. There was no loss of life, but the damage will be $6,000. The shock was felt for fifty miles.

Mt. Holly, Feb. 6.—Alarm was caused here yesterday by the shaking of houses and the rattling of furniture. With the mercury at 2 degrees above zero, people went out into the streets and, shivering from the cold, looked for the trouble. The opinion became general that the vibrations were the result of an earthquake, but later it was learned that they had occurred from the explosion of the powder mill at Gibbstown. Harvey Murdock is among those who were thrown out of bed.

AN EDITOR'S CREED.

The policy of The Tribune under the new owners may be summed up in a single sentence, viz., it will try to be a good newspaper, and these are the main articles of its creed:

A good newspaper tells the news, as faithfully and truthfully as it can, without fear and without favor, and comments on it with the best intelligence it can command.

A good newspaper is in league with all men and women who think, and with all the agencies that strive for the happiness of the people.

A good newspaper shields no wrong that ought to be exposed and stops at no truth that ought to be uttered.

A good newspaper does not lend itself to the making of strife between citizens neither rages like a demogogue nor weeps like a charlatan.

A good newspaper has ideals, believes in progress, and wins its way by courage, plain speaking, and fair dealing.

A good newspaper assembles each day as much of the good things that are done in the world as it can find and no more of the foul than it must.

A good newspaper has political opinions and may belong to a party, but it cannot be an organ and keep the high faith of the best journalism.

A good newspaper knows no boss, bows to no pretty satrap of office and owes no allegiance but to that which it believes to be true.

A good newspaper is run on business principles and should make money and prosper like any other business, but probably won't if that is its sole aim.

A good newspaper takes a cheerful view of the world, is kind to human failings, and helps men more by entertaining them than by ranting and scolding at them.

These are the ten articles which if a newspaper keep in all loyalty and good faith will make it a good newspaper. An eleventh should be added. A good newspaper does not take to itself haughty airs and deceive itself by foolishly thinking that what it says is therefore true, and what it thinks right or wrong is therefore right or wrong, or that the mere act of putting one or a hundred men's thoughts on a printed page imparts to those thoughts a weight and authority they would otherwise not possess. In other words, a good newspaper crowns its merits with the virtue of modesty. Robert D. Towne in the Scranton Tribune.

GOV. FORT GUEST OF HONOR.

New Jersey's Executive Will Attend Dinner of East Orange Republican Club.

Governor John Franklin Fort will be the guest of honor at the tenth annual dinner of the Republican Club of East Orange, which will be held in the Woman's Club House, East Orange, next Wednesday night. There will be a reception from 6:30 to 7 o'clock, when the guests will be received by President Robert W. Hawkesworth and the officers of the club. "Abraham Lincoln" will be the toast to which Rev. Dr. Lyman Whitney Allen will respond, while Rev. Dr. Winfield Scott Crowe will speak on "Lincoln the Politician."

There will be another speech by Professor Francis H. Green, who was one of the speakers at the recent bankers' convention in Atlantic City. He will select his own subject. Charles W. Haberle, secretary of the dinner committee, has received applications from many non-members of the club for tickets for the dinner.

FIRE DESTROYS A BAKERY.

Couple Living In Apartments Escape In Night Robes.

The bakery at Whitehouse Station was destroyed by fire Tuesday night. The flames were first seen by William Gasser, night operator for the New Jersey Central, and Justice of the Peace Jacob C. Voorhees, who gave the alarm.

The fire company at Whitehouse Station could do little toward saving the building, the blaze having gathered too much headway. The firemen, however, did good work in preventing adjoining houses from taking fire. Several times other buildings were threatened.

The fire is believed to have started from a stove. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bush, who lived in apartments over the bakery, escaped in their night clothes. The loss is about two thousand dollars, which is partially covered by insurance.

The building was owned by Morris Welsh, who had $800 insurance on it. C. E. Vanderbeek, the baker, had $40 insurance on his fixtures and the contents of his shop. Mr. Bush's household effects were uninsured.

LEATHER PLANT TO REOPEN.

Harrington Co. to Go On Full Time Within Sixty Days.

The Harrington Leather Company, on Magnolia avenue, Elizabeth, a subsidiary of the United States Leather Company, which shut down in October last, will start up again with its full force of 180 employes within sixty days.

J. T. George, vice president of the company, said that trade in the leather industry is increasing rapidly, and that the cutting department of the parent company, now located in Ferry street, Newark, will be transferred to Elizabeth, and will give employment to at least fifty more hands.

More Than Three Billions, Money.

Washintong, Feb. 6.—There is more money in circulation in the United States now than at any other time in the history of the country, according to a statement issued by the Treasury Department. It amounts to $3,094,362,699, an increase of $15,373,401 since January 1. The population, according to the estimates of the Treasury experts, increased 119,000 in the same time, being now 86,903,000. The per capita circulation now is $35.61, as against $35.48 on January 1.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Local Chritian Endeavor Societies have been asked to take part in the series of mid-week prayer meetings to be held Thursday evenings under the auspices of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union at the West End Tabernacle. The Presbyterian church society will be in charge of the meeting March 5; the Seventh-Day Baptist society, of New Market, April 2; and the First Baptist society, April 30. The Endeavorers of the various socities will take full delegations to these meetings.

With a temperature rise of thirty-five degrees and a three inch fall of snow, the ice cutters' plans for harvesting the winter crop from New Market this week are again frustrated. The borough snow-plow made the rounds early this morning, and the Mayor has given orders for the strict enforcement of the snow and ice ordinance.

The degree team of Goodwill Council, of New Brunswick, will be at the meeting of Friendship Council, New Market, Monday night for initiation. The good and welfare committee of the local lodge has arranged an attractive program of entertainment for the visitors after the business meeting.

Superintendent Lester Messeroll was authorized to attend the national convention of school superintendents at Washington at the recent meeting of the Board of Education. This convention will last for three days, beginning Tuesday, February 25.

The customary first Friday devotions will be held at St. John's church tomorrow evening.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Recorder Joseph Clark, who when not busy with court duties, canvasses for a well known nursery company, reports that people talk about hard times but the farmers seem to have the money, this season being the best he has had in a number of years.

Miss Edna Mown, who has been ill for several weeks with scarlet fever, has recovered and the quartine has been removed from the house by the Board of Health.

The baseball team has about decided upon the night of March 3 as the date for the entertainment the team is arranging.

Yesterday morning was the coldest of the winter, the thermometer in some places being 4 and 5 degrees below zero.

Bucket & Engine Company met last night in the company rooms. Only the regular monthly fire business was transacted.

George A. Clark, who has been seriously ill with rheumatism for two weeks, is improving nicely now.

Mrs. Harry Kyte, of Gloversville, N. Y., has been visiting Mrs. E. C. Kieb, of the borough.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A dance for the benefit of the new Roman Catholic church will take place Saturday night, February 15, in Washington Hall.

Julia Richards left yesterday to spend two months with her aunt, Mrs. Frederic Gregory, of Bound Brook.

The Young People's Social Club meets tonight at Mrs. Sumner Randolph's home.

OPPOSED TO QUAY'S STATUE.

People of Pennsylvania May Decide Its Erection in Capitol.

Because of opposition to the placing of a statue of the late Senator M. S. Quay in the rotunda of the new Pennsylvania State Capitol at Harrisburg, David H. Lane, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Republican City Committee, has suggested that the question be put to a vote of the people of the State.

The Legislature appropriated $2,000 for the erection of a statue in Capitol Park at Harrisburg, and there has been more or less criticism of the action, principally by persons who were politically opposed to Quay, Mr. Lane, a member of the commisison to carry out the Legislature's action, wants the statue erected in the Capitol rotunda.

State Tax Board Meeting.

At the offices of the State Board of Equalization of Taxes, at Trenton yesterday, it was announced that the board would meet at Newark next Monday for the purpose of hearing and considering tax appeals. Robert Carey, of Jersey City, the new member of the board, was sworn in yesterday.

Black Sworn in as Judge.

Supreme Court Justice G. Parker yesterday at Trenton administered the oath of office to Charles C. Black, of Jersey City, as a circuit court judge. Immediately after Judge Black qualified he was assigned to Passaic county, and will sit there next Monday. Judge Black is opposed to wearing the judicial robe.

EVERY-DAY PHILANTHROPHY.

A sad and seedy individual found his way into a Baltimore office building, gained admission to the offices of one of the city's best-known legal firms, and, at last, somehow penetrated to the sanctum of the senior partner.

"Well," asked the lawyer, "what do you want?"

The visitor was nothing if not frank.

"A dollar bill," he said; "although," he added, "if you don't happen to have the bill, silver will do."

The man's unusual manner caught the lawyer's curiosity.

"There you are," he said, handing out the money. "And now I should like to have you tell me how you came to fall so low in the world."

The visitor sighed.

"All my youth," he explained, "I had counted on inheriting something from my uncle, but, when he died, he left all he had to an orphan asylum."

"A philanthropist," commented the lawyer. "What did his estate consist of?"

"Ten children," said the visitor—and vanished. — Saturday Evening Post.

Breaking It Gently.

Petted daughter—Papa, what has come over you? I never had a wish you were not anxious to gratify, and you even anticipated my wants, and handed me money for all sorts of things I hadn't even thought of. But now I have to ask you for every penny I need, and now you growl and grumble, and ask if I think you are made of money, and you rail at woman's extravagance, and invariably ask me what on earth I did with the last cheque, or sovereign, or half-crown you gave me. Don't you love me any more?

Papa—My darling, I love you as much as ever, but you are soon to be married, and I am trying gradually to prepare you for the change.—Royal Magazine.

Considerate Old Gentleman.

"Why, gracious, pa," said the only daughter, "what in the world are those queer arrangements you have placed in the vestibule?"

The old gentleman rubbed his gouty foot and softly chuckled.

"Not much, dearie," he responded. "You see, I noticed how long it takes for you and that young man to say good-night, so I fitted up an electric heater to keep your feet from getting cold and a portable alarm clock to inform you of the breakfast hour."—Chicago Daily News.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Jewish population of Vineland has obtained permission from the Township Committee to establish a burying ground near the Maurice River.

A horse owned by former Mayor Anthony A. Skirm, of Trenton, developed hydrophobia yesterday and was shot. The animal was bitten by a rabid dog.

Senator Avis has been asked to have a bill passed to allow Paulsboro Borough to take from Greenwich Township the acre of land upon which the gas plant is being erected.

The total number of petitions filed with the Passaic County Board of Taxation for remissions on property valuations for 1907 was 1,115. The grand total of valuations remitted is $473,552.

Falling from a scaffold at the plant of the New York Shipbuilding Company, in Camden, yesterday, William Zannon, of 848 Grant street, sustained contusions of the shoulder and was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

For the second time within a few years efforts have been made to victimize United States Marshal Thomas J. Alcott, of Mt. Holly, with the old Spanish game of the orphan daughter with a fortune needing a guardian.

More than 300 girls and young women took part in demonstrations of class work at the gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian Association, Paterson, yesterday afternoon and last night. The exercises were arranged by Miss Nellie Leyde, physical directress of the association.

James Mariatt, an artist, was taken from his home in Hightstown to a hospital in Trenton Tuesday suffering from severe burns, which he received in falling on a stove while suffering from an epileptic fit. His head, face and hands were badly burned. He has been living alone for a number of years.

Isaac Weisenthal, who four years ago was ejected from authority as chief of Atlantic City Fire Department when the paid service was created, still wears the badge of chief, and says that he still has a suit on in regard to collecting the salary of $50 a year, as he has never legally been removed from office.

Councilman E. A. Parker, of Atlantic City, was named as commodore of the Seaside Yacht Club at the annual meeting of the organization. The other officers elected are: Vice-commodore, Thomas S. Crane; rear-commodore, Thomas Henderson; secretary, R. F. Randolph; treasurer, William A. Maupay.

When a large number of guests had gathered Tuesday evening to celebrate the nineteenth birthday anniversary of Miss Sadie Hoffman, of Vineland, her brother Joseph and Miss Marie Brown surprised all by appearing with Rev. Dr. D. H. King and announcing that their wedding "would now take place." The bride is the daughter of John F. Brown, a merchant of Rio Grande, Cape May County.

Money is now being raised for the erection of a fine new Roman Catholic church at Millville to replace the St. Mary Magdalen church, which is almost a half-century old. A novel method of raising money has been started, and the members of the church are subscribing one week's wages a year toward the church building fund. The ground will probably be broken in the spring.

Demands of Atlantic City officials for restoration of quick schedules and free transfers on the Atlantic avenue trolley line have halted the plans being made for granting the corporation franchise for curves that will allow of running cars from the Ocean City branch to the Board-walk at South Carolina avenue. Heads of the company declare that the traffic arrangements cannot be changed without heavy loss, but residents of the Inlet and Chelsea ends of the city demand their rights under threats of forcing councilmen to kill the bill.

Profit in City Ownership.

The report of the Water and Light Board to the Chatham Borough Council shows a profit from the water and light plants of $2,664.45.

FIRE IN THE ROEBLING WORKS.

Spontaneous Combustion Supposed to Have Caused Disastrous Blaze.

Fire destroyed the rope and carpenter shops of the John A. Roebling Sons' Company at Trenton yesterday, the damage being estimated at $300,000, with $100,000 insurance, the company carrying the other part of the insurance value.

Spontaneous combustion is supposed to have caused the fire, which started in the rope shop. The day shift was just going to work when the fire started. Seven hundred men were thrown out of employment, but they will be put to work soon either rebuilding the burned structure or in other parts of the works. Three acres were burned over. The Roebling works occupy fifty acres and represent an investment of $10,000,000.

Charles G. Roebling, president of the company, said yesterday: "The burned structures will be rebuilt at once. They were the least important of the buildings comprising our works. Business will not be interrupted an hour because of the fire."

SUES FOR LOSS OF HORSES.

One of Them Is "Pat Bulger," Once Raced by Caesar Young.

Suit for $25,000 was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court at Trenton by David E. Fortin, the millionaire race owner of California, against John L. Thompson, a Trenton horse owner and hotelkeeper.

The papers in the case state that Fortin loaned two horses, Pat Bulger and M. F. Tarpey, to a man named Robinson, who brought them East to race on the different courses. Robinson executed a mortgage to Thompson in September of 1905. Thompson came into possession of the horses. Pat Bulger is said to have won since that time $10,000 and the other horse $2,000.

Pat Bulger has several times been backed heavily by local plungers and was at one time owned by the late Caesar Young, who was alleged to have been murdered by Nan Patterson. Fortin sues to recover for the loss of the horses.

COMMUTERS PROTEST.

Declare the Lackawanna Service Has Improved Little Since 1862.

Commuters from Montclair and other points along the Delaware & Lackawanna Railroad are determined to have better train service, and with this end in view a "grievance committee" will soon hold a conference with President Truesdale.

It is declared that very few trains make schedule time, and that the service is in many respects no better than it was in 1862. Fifty and sixty minutes' time consumed in the trip from Montclair to New York is too long, the commuters declare. They also say that the cars are over-crowded. Several stations have been abandoned by the railroad, and they demand that trains again stop there. Everybody suggests that a double track between Montclair and Bloomfield would help solve the traffic problem.

Refused; Sizz! Boom!

Greensburg, Pa., Feb. 6.—A dynamite bomb was exploded yesterday under the general store of Samuel Letsovic, at Export, near here, demolishing the building and causing a fire which damaged adjoining property to the extent of $16,000. Recently Letsovic received letters from an alleged Black Hand society, demanding money.

Town Burns at Both Ends.

Two separate fires in the business section of Berlin, N. H., early yesterday threatened the entire business district, burning as they did at both ends, and did damage estimated at $400,000. Firemen from two outside cities were summoned to help. The Green Block and the Berlin National Bank Buildings were among those destroyed.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 9: "Help and deliverance in God." "Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Isa. xxix, 18, 19; Ps. cxlvi.

Southern educational work is the special topic for consideration this week. This in its broadest phase is an immense field to cover and a most difficult one on which to get satisfactory and adequate information.

The southern states are still largely agricultural and the population scattered over wide areas, making the task of supplying free public schools one of great difficulty and expense. The devastation of the civil war left that section in appalling destitution and without means to at once establish schools equal to those in some other sections. The cities soon had matters in good shape. The more well to do could look out for themselves, as they always had done. The problem was with the poor of both white and negro races.

The vast majority of the people had never believed in the possibility or desirability of educating the negro. The war had not changed their views on this matter. There were no resources to provide schools for the poor whites.

At this juncture the philanthropy of the north established schools for both negroes and whites. This work in our own church has always been under the care of the Freedmen's Aid society in some form. The freed slaves began with nothing except what they received from their late masters. They owned no land, no houses, clothes or food. They must earn all these and at the same time get education for their children. It was a long, hard task. The story of that time is a romance of heroic struggle.

Our schools have aimed to educate in the best possible manner. The course has included everything from the kindergarten, through college, medical school and theological school. To this has been added industrial training in every trade open to men, in dressmaking, millinery and cooking for the girls and women. The Woman's Home Missionary society has done admirable service in co-operation with the other societies of our church.

It is recognized that the great bulk of the race, colored and white, must ever be toilers with the hands and so should have training for that work. At the same time it is clearly seen that there must also be trained physicians and preachers. No race can be lifted from outside altogether. It must have leaders within. The results reached have vindicated the wisdom of the course adopted.

A disposition has been manifested in the north in recent years to withdraw support from the educational work among the negroes, with the idea that now they are able to take care of themselves. Nothing could be more erroneous and mischievous. Never before was the financial help more needed, for the work must be expanded and still kept under the oversight and leadership of the white man if the nation at large is to avoid gravest perils.

The best white men of the south are in hearty sympathy and accord with us and so far as possible assisting in the lifting of both races. Time, patience, mutual confidence and large means are the present needs. The returns justify large expenditures. The work is being put on the most substantial basis by the best methods known.

Blessed Secret.

It is a blessed secret this of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, however heavy, until nightfall. Any one can do his work, however hard, for one day. Any one can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly and purely until the sun goes down. And this is all that life ever means to us—just one little day. "Do today's duty, fight today's temptations and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them." God gives us nights to shut down the curtain of darkness on our little days. We cannot see beyond. Short horizons make life easier and give us one of the blessed secrets of brave, true, holy living.

What was the secret of such a one's power? What has she done? Absolutely nothing. But radiant smiles, becoming good humor, the tact of divining what every one wanted, told that she had got out of self and learned to think of others.—F. W. Robertson.

Keeping Friends.

Friendship is worth taking trouble about. It is one of the things about which we should remember the apostle's command, "Hold fast that which is good." Thoreau said, "The only danger in friendship is that it will end." Correspondence and conversation and social courtesies are the ways in which we throw guards around our friendships lest they end. A man who loses a friend for want of a letter now and then is like a man who loses his money for lack of a pocketbook. He is losing a very precious thing for lack of a very little expense and trouble. How carefully Jesus selected the close circle of his friends and how watchfully He guarded their mutual friendship after He had selected them! The friend who sticketh closer than a brother is always one who has taken some trouble in the matter of his friendships. Let us be careful that we do not go through life with holes in our pockets through which our friendships slip.—Epworth Herald.

Duty.

Never to tire, never to grow cold; to be patient, sympathetic, tender; to look for the budding flowers and the opening heart; to hope always; like God to love always—this is duty.—Amiel.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 9, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Ministering to strangers and the sick.—Matt. xxv, 31-46.

The life of Christ was a life of ministering. He Himself said, "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." The supreme service that Christ rendered unto the world was the giving of Himself on the cross "as a ransom for many," but He who gives the greatest was also willing to give the least, and during His public ministry Christ gave Himself in service to His fellow men. The sacred historian tells us that "He went about doing good." In this respect, as in all others, Christ is to be our example. In His name we are to be kind to strangers and to visit the sick.

The "stranger and the sick" refers, of course, to those outside of our own households. Yet we need to remember that in our wider service for Christ we are not to neglect the members of our own family circles. Christ believed in beginning at home in all things. He came first to His own people, then to the world. He healed Peter's wife's mother when she was sick with the fever. He visited Martha and Mary when Lazarus died. On the cross He provided for the future of Mary, His mother. Contrary to the spirit of Christ, many Christians speak kind words to strangers and harsh ones at home. They can carry flowers to the distant sick, but not a blossom to a loved one sick in their own household. Many a man's work in the slums and many a woman's zeal in foreign missions is entirely discounted by the well known fact that they neglect their own homes. This is a false conception of Christianity. Christianity begins at home and widens from that as a center or it has no beginning. Young people think no less of the wants and needs of outsiders, but think more of anxious fathers and wearied mothers who are giving their lives for you, and, while ministering to others, do not neglect to minister unto them by kind words and deeds and thoughtful care for their needs and desires.

But, while Christianity begins at home, it should not end there. Some people make this mistake. They have no interests beyond their own firesides. Lazarus may starve at their gates so their tables are well supplied. A neighbor may be sick, but what is that to them if only there be no sickness among those dear to them? But this is not the spirit of true Christianity. Our sympathy, prayers and ministries are to embrace the stranger and the sick beyond our own doors, even to the uttermost parts of the earth. Strangers visiting our churches and Endeavor prayer meeting are to be welcomed. The stranger to God is to be led to Him through Jesus Christ. The unsaved strangers across the seas and in our own land are to have the gospel sent to them. The sick are especially to be the objects of our care. To be sick is grievous enough, but to be sick and unremembered and unvisited makes the heart sick in addition to the body. Sin sick souls are to be led to Christ. In a word, in the name of Christ and for His sake let us be polite and kind to all and thoughtful of the rights, the feelings and the needs of all. Then Christ can say to us, "Well done."

BIBLE READINGS.

Matt. iv, 1-11; x, 40-42; xx, 28; Luke i, 53; Gen. xviii, 1-8; Luke xxiv, 28-35; Rom. xii, 9-21; Heb. xiii, 1, 2; Jas. v, 14, 15; Gal. vi, 9, 10.

Fellowship In Christian Endeavor.

General Secretary Shaw in his biennial report says: Let us stand by our fellowship, interdenominational, international and interracial, blest of God and blessing men.

One of the grandest tributes ever paid to Christian Endeavor is that given by those who are opposed to any union of the churches, even of the broken fragments of the same denomination, when they say that Christian Endeavor is responsible for the present spirit of union so manifest in many quarters. We accept the responsibility and thank God that we have been counted worthy to help on the glorious consummation of that day of which the lamented Dr. Dickinson sung:

O golden day, so long desired,
Born of a darksome night,
The waiting earth at last is fired
By thy res; lendent light.
And, hark, like Memnon's morning chord,
Is heard from sea to sea
This song: One Master, Christ the Lord,
And brethren all are we.

The noises of the night shall cease,
The storms no longer roar;
The factious foes of God's own peace
Shall vex His church no more.
A thousand thousand voices sing
The surging harmony:
One Master, Christ, one Saviour King,
And brethren all are we.

Sing on, ye chorus of the morn,
Your grand Endeavor strain
Till Christian hearts, estranged and torn,
Blend in the glad refrain,
And all the church, with all its powers,
In loving loyalty,
Shall sing: One Master, Christ, is ours,
And brethren all are we.

O golden day, the age's crown,
Alight with heavenly love,
Rare day in prophecy renown,
On to thy zenith move,
When all the world with one accord
In full voiced unity
Shall sing: One Master, Christ our Lord,
And brethren all are we.

Let us work and pray that the time may soon come when Christian Endeavor shall unite the young people of all denominations and when, in loyalty to our own church and in fellowship with others, we shall win and train for Christ and His church the young people of the whole wide world.

Endeavor.

Its mighty arm is long enough;
Young Christian hearts are strong enough;
Its noble name—Endeavor.

LARGEST LUMBER CROP GATHERED LAST YEAR.

Washington, Feb. 6.—More lumber was cut in the United States last year than in any other year in its history. The enormous amount of 37,550,736 board feet was produced and the mill value of this was $621,151,388. In addition, there were produced 11,858,260,000 shingles, valued at $24,155,555, and 3,812,807,000 lath valued at $11,490,570. On the whole, it is safe to say that the present annual lumber cut of the United States approximates 40 billion feet, and that the total mill value of the lumber, lath and shingles each year produced is not less than $700,000,000. These figures give some idea of how vast is the lumber industry and how great is the demand for its products.

A glance at the kinds of lumber produced shows very clearly the passing of white pine and oak, one the greatest softwood and the other the greatest hardwood which the forest has ever grown. Since 1899 the cut of white pine has fallen off more than 40 per cent., while that of white oak has fallen off more than 36 per cent. Today yellow pine leads all other woods in amount cut, while Douglas fir—and this will be a surprise to many—comes second. Since 1899 the cut of Douglas fir has increased 186 per cent. Louisana is the foremost yellow pine State, with Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas following in order. Washington produces by far the greatest amount of Douglas fir.

A comparison of the lumber producing States shows that since 1899 there have been many changes in their relative rank. Washington, which in 1899 stood sixth, now leads, while Wisconsin, which eight years ago led all others, is now third. In the same period Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi, Idaho and California made great strides as lumber-producing States, though, on the other hand, the amount produced in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois and Ohio fell off anywhere from 29 to 54 per cent.

The highest-priced native woods are walnut, hickory, and ash, and the cheapest are larch and white fir. From the fact, however, that since 1899 the average increase in the price of lumber has been 49 per cent., it will not be long before cheap woods are few and far between.

POSTAL NOTES.

The currency taken from misdirected letters at the dead letter office last year amounted to $67,715.69.

At the close of the fiscal year 1907 rural delivery was in operation on 37,728 routes served by 37,582 carriers.

The dead letter office handled 13,005,255 pieces of mail last year. About one-half was restored to the senders.

Badly Handicapped.

A Boston minister says that not long ago he was walking along a street in the suburbs when he came up to a little fellow, apparently about six years old, who had one thumb in his mouth and who was jumping up and down in dumb rage. He had evidently been nailing on some loose fence pickets, for a hammer and a handful of loose nails lay on the ground.

"What's the matter, my little man? Did you hurt yourself?" the minister asked.

"Kids like me ain't got no show 'tall," was the apparently irrelevant reply at the fence.

"How do you mean?" the minister asked kindly.

"Oh," was the disgusted reply, "I'm too big to cry like sis when she gets hurt, and I ain't big enough to swear like pa when he smashes his thumb!"

A Handy Iron Cleaner.

You can make a very practical little contrivance for use on ironing days, says the Delineator. It consists of a block of wood about five inches square. Five holes are bored in this block and filled with beeswax. These are covered with a piece of muslin. The other side of the block is covered with emery cloth. The emery side of the block is used to rub the iron on if the starch sticks, and the wax side gives the iron smoothness.

Certainly Quarrier had several matters to ponder over and provide for and first and foremost of all to provide for his own security and the vital necessity of preserving his name and his character untainted. In this he had to deal with that miserable judge who had betrayed him; with Mortimer, who had once blackmailed him and who now was temporarily in his service; with Mrs. Mortimer, who—God knew how, when or where—had become suspicious of Agatha and himself; with Major Belwether, who had deserted him before he could sacrifice the major and whom he now hated and feared for having stumbled over suspicions similar to Mrs. Mortimer's. He had to deal with Sylvia herself and with Siward—reckon with Siward's knowledge of matters which it were best that Sylvia should not know.

But first of all and most important of all he had to deal with Beverly Plank. And he was going to do it in a manner that Plank could not have foreseen. He was going to stop Plank where he stood, and to do this he was deliberately using his knowledge of the man and paying Plank the compliment of counting on his sense of honor to defeat him.

For he had suddenly found the opportunity to defend himself. He had discovered the joint in Plank's old fashioned armor—the armor of the old paladins, who placed a woman's honor before all else in the world. Now, through his creature, Mortimer, he could menace Plank with a threat to involve him and Leila in a vile publicity. Plank must sign the truce or face with Leila an action for damages and divorce.

First of all he went to the Lenox club and dressed. Then he dined sparingly and alone. The motor car was waiting when he came out ready to run down to the great Hotel Coronn, whither the Japanese steward had conducted Mortimer. Mortimer had dined heavily, but his disorganized physical condition was such that it had scarcely affected him at all.

Again Quarrier went over patiently and carefully the very simple part he had reserved for Mortimer that evening, explaining exactly what to say to Leila and what to say to Plank in case of insolent interruption. Then he told Mortimer to be ready at 9 o'clock, turned on his heel with a curt word to the Japanese, descended to the street, entered his motor car again and sped away to the Hotel Santa Regina.

Miss Caithness was at home, came the message in exchange for his cards for Agatha and Mrs. Vendenning. He entered the gilded elevator, stepped out on the sixth floor into a tiny, rococo, public reception room. Nobody was there besides himself. Agatha's maid came presently, and he turned and followed her into the large and very handsome parlor belonging to the suit which Agatha was occupying with Mrs. Vendenning for the few days that they were to stop in town.

"Hello!" she said serenely, sauntering in, her long, pale hands bracketed on her narrow hips, her lips disclosing her teeth in a smile so like that nervous muscular recession which passed for a smile on Quarrier's visage that for one moment he recognized it and thought she was mocking him. But she strolled up to him, meeting his eye calmly, and lifted her slim neck, lips passive under his impetuous kiss.

"Is Mrs. Vendenning out?" he asked, laying his hands on the bare shoulders of the tall, pallid girl—tall as he and as pallid.

"No, Mrs. Ven. is in, Howard."

"Now? You mean she is coming in to interrupt"—

"Oh, no! She isn't fond of you, Howard."

"You said"— he began almost angrily, but she laid her fingers across his lips.

"I said a very foolish thing, Howard. I said that I'd manage to dispense with Mrs. Ven. this evening."

"You mean that you couldn't manage it?"

"Not at all. I could easily have man-

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Vacate a Portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council, to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at 8 o'clock p. m. on Monday, the second day of March, A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Eight, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Dated Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 3, 1908.

AN ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, The portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue is shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J., 1870," filed in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield September 20, 1870, and

WHEREAS, The Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company, Union County Investment Company, Dorsey W. Hyde and Henry P. Talmadge are the sole owners of the fee and of all the property abutting anywhere on such portion of said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said City to vacate such portion of said street pursuant to Chapter CXXXIII, P. L. 1888, and other laws governing the matter, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), lying between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue, as shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J. 1870," be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

aged it. But—I didn't care to."

She looked at him calmly at close range as he held her embraced, lifted her arms and with slender white fingers patted her hair into place where his arm around her head had disarranged it, watching him all the while out of her pale, haunted eyes.

"You promised me," he said, "that you"—

"Oh, Howard! Do men still believe in promises?"

Quarrier's face had color enough now. His voice, too, had lost its passionless, monotonous precision. Whatever was in the man of emotion was astir. His impatient voice, his lack of poise, the almost human lack of caution in his speech betrayed him in a new and interesting light.

"Look here, Agatha! How long is this going to last? Are you trying to make a fool of me? What is the matter? Is there anything wrong?"

"Wrong? Oh, dear, no! How could there be anything wrong between you and me"—

"Agatha, what is the matter? Look here! Let's settle this thing now and settle it one way or the other! I won't stand it! I—I can't! Did you ever misunderstand me? Did I give you any chance to? Were you ignorant of what that meant?" with a gesture toward the splendid crescent of flashing gems, scintillating where the low lace bodice met the silky luster of her skin. "Did you misinterpret the collar or the sudden change of fortune in your own family's concerns? Answer me, Agatha, once for all. But you need not answer, after all. I know you have never misunderstood me!"

"I misunderstood nothing," she said. "You are quite right."

"Then what are you going to do?"

"Do?" she said in slow surprise. "What am I to do, Howard?"

"You have said that you loved me."

"I said the truth, I think."

"Then"—

"Well?"

"How long are you going to keep me at arm's length?" he asked violently.

"That lies with you," she said, smiling. She looked at him for a moment; then, resting her hands on her hips, she began to pace the floor, to and fro, to and fro, and at every turn she raised her head to look at him. All the strange grace of her became insolent provocation, her pale eyes, clear, limpid, harboring no delusions, haunted with the mockery of wisdom, challenged and checked him. "Howard," she said, "why should I be the fool you want me to be because I love you? Why should I be even if I wished to be? You desire an understanding? Voila! You have it. I love you. I never misunderstood you from the first. I could not afford to. You know what I am. You know what you arouse in me."

"You know what you arouse in me."

Slim, pale, depraved in all but body, she stood, eying him a moment, the very incarnation of vicious perversity.

"You know what you arouse in me," she repeated. "But don't count on it."

"You have encouraged—permitted me to count"—His anger choked him, or was it the haunting wisdom of her eyes that committed him to silence?

"I don't know," she said musingly, "what it is in you that I am so mad about—whether it is your brutality, or the utter corruption of you that holds me, or your wicked eyes of a woman, or the fascination of the mask you turn on the world and the secret visage, naked in its vice, that you reserve for me. But I love you—in my fashion. Count on that, Howard, for that is all you can surely count on. And now, at last, you know."

As he stood there it came to him slowly that deep within him he had always known this; that he had never really counted on anything else, though he had throttled his doubts by covering her throat with diamonds. Her strangeness, her pallor, her acquiescence, the delicate hint of depravity in her, the subtle response to all that was worst in him had attracted him, only to learn, little by little, that the taint of corruption was only a taint infecting others, not her; that the promise of evil was only a promise; that he had to deal with a young body, but an old intelligence, and a mind so old that at moments her faded gaze almost appalled him with its indolent clairvoyance.

Long since he knew, too, that in all the world he could never again find such a mate for him. This had, unadmitted even to himself, always remained a hidden secret within this secret man, an unacknowledged, undrawn on reserve in case of the failure which he, even in sanguine moods, knew in his inmost corrupted soul that his quest was doomed to.

Bookkeeping.

The art of bookkeeping, of keeping books as it is understood today, is supposed to have originated in Venice about the year 142. The first known writer on bookkeeping was Lucas di Borgo, who published his treatise in Italian in the year 1495. Bookkeeping by double entry was practiced in Venice, Genoa and the adjacent towns by the beginning of the seventeenth century.—New York American.

P. H. S. DEFEATS LEAL'S

Public School Five Has No Trouble in League Game with Tailenders.

CITY AND BOROUGH TIED.

Leal's Team Now Out of Interscholastic Race—Yesterday's Score 47-21.

Surpassing their opponents in team work and shooting baskets, the Plainfield High School basketball five defeated the Leal's School team by a score of 47-21 in a one-sided league game played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon. By this victory, the high school team is now tied for first place with the borough school-boys, each team having won two games out of three played. Leal's team has lost three games and won one.

The high school boys started yesterday's game with a rush and, while closely guarding their opponents, broke away time after time for baskets. When the whistle blew at the end of the half, the score was 28-19 in favor of the public school boys. In the second period Leal's improved in both defensive and offensive play, and held their opponents to three baskets, while they scored fourteen points, three from the foul line. In this half, the Leal's boys were awarded a point by the referee, for being interfered with in an attempt to shoot a basket. For the high school, Doane did the best work, making six baskets from the floor and making good on three chances from the foul line. The lineups and summaries follow:

Mortimer	right forward	R. Lawrence
Doane	right forward	Martin
Caldwell (captain)	centre	Brown
Snyder	left guard	Duke (captain)
Morris, Robins	right guard	C. Lawrence

Baskets from the floor: Doane, 6; Mortimer, 4; Caldwell, 4; Morris, 4; Snyder, 4; R. Lawrence, 3; Duke, 3; Martin, C. Lawrence. Goals from fouls: Duke, 4; Doane, 3. Referee, Charles B. Morse; umpire, Adams; scorers, Woodhull and Ladd; timers, Prior and Dallas. Twenty minute halves.

BOWLING.

The Grant and Brian Boru teams will meet in a tourney series at Campbell's alleys tonight. The former five holds the lead in the contest having won fifteen games and lost but three. The Brian Borus are making a determined fight for first money and a good series is looked for.

Entries for the endurance contest to be rolled at Campbell's alleys on Lincoln's Birthday continue to come in and the full number wanted will be received in a few days. The grind will be for twelve hours and the aggregate number of pins will figure in the award prizes. Among the teams already entered are Harris and Brundage, Kunath and Parker and Sheehan and McGullvy, of Newark; Nash and Skelly and Willet and Britton, of Plainfield.

Leonard S. Smith, of Duer street, who has been ill for several months, is very low.

NEW BRUNSWICK FIVE EASY FOR HOLY CROSS

The Holy Cross basketball five administered a sound drubbing to the New Brunswick High School team at the church parish house last night, easily winning a one-sided game by the score of 68-16. Taking the lead early in the game, the church five were ahead 32-10 when the whistle blew at the end of the first half, and added thirty-six points to their score in the second period, while their opponents were scoring three baskets.

Russel Conroy's scoring was sufficient to win the game, for he made thirty-five points, caging the ball sixteen times from the floor and adding three from the foul line. Gray added seventeen points to this score, making eight baskets. For the visitors, Samuels made the best showing in the scoring, scoring three baskets. The church five excelled in team work and the guarding of Mosher was a feature. The summaries:

HOLY CROSS.		N. B. H. S.
Overton	left forward	Garling
Gray	right forward	Samuels
Miller	centre	Hoagland
Conroy	left guard	Carman
E. Mosher	right guard	Armstrong

Baskets from the floor: Conroy, 16; Gray, 8; Overton, 4; Miller, 4; Samuels, 3; Garling, Hoagland, Carman. Goals from fouls: Conroy, 3; Carman, 3; Gray, Hoagland. Referee, Little. Scorer, I. Vail. Timer, R. Vail. Twenty minute halves.

P. H. S. May Enter Big Meet.

An invitation to enter a relay team in the fourteenth annual interscholastic track meet to be held at Franklin Field under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania, has been received by the athletic association of the Plainfield High School. The meet will be held at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 25, and there will be about 1,500 competitors from preparatory and high schools in the vicinity of New York. The question of entering a team will be brought up at the next meeting of the school athletic association directors.

Murphey Chosen Baseball Captain.

At a meeting of the directors of the Boys' Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School today, Chauncey Murphey, 1908, was temporary elected captain of the baseball team for the coming year. Wm. Rafferty is manager of the team and is already at work preparing a schedule. Several of last year's nine are still in the school, and the High School ought to have a strong team. Battery practise will begin Monday.

P. H. S. vs. Newark H. S.

The basketball team of the Newark High School will play the City High School five Friday afternoon at the local school auditorium. The Newark team will bring a big delegation of rooters to the game and have chartered a special car.

Funeral of Mrs. Sheldon.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Sheldon, colored, was held at her late home on East Third street this afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. E. E. Jackson, of Montclair, former pastor of Mount Olive Baptist church and of which Mrs. Sheldon was one of the oldest members. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

Bible Class Social.

Members of the four boys' Bible classes of the Y. M. C. A. will hold an informal social at the association building tomorrow night. Refreshments will be served.

Sons of Vets Social.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, will hold a lunch-box social and entertainment in G. A. R. Hall Wednesday night, February 12.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kriney, of East Second street, are parents of a son, born to them on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Williams, of 321 East Third street, are parents of a boy born to them yesterday morning.

Mrs. Edward Rittenhouse, of Lansdowne, Pa., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Scarborough, of Mountain avenue.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church will give a supper at the church on Grove street, Thursday night, February 13, from 6 to 9 o'clock.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, will hold its regular meeting Saturday night, at which time matters of importance will be discussed.

Milan's Markets.

The markets of Milan have been famed all over Italy for many centuries. Once a Veronese guest of a Milan nobleman for a joke bought out the Milan markets three times in one day so his host could not give him a dinner, but in spite of that the hucksters and butchers supplied the host with material for the best dinner the guest ever had.

Firm of Nischwitz & Co. Dissolved.

The firm of Henry Nischwitz & Co., dealers in flour and feed at 53 Race street, has been dissolved, Henry J. Nischwitz, the company, retiring. The business will be continued by Henry Nischwitz and his son-in-law, Richard Bellis, who has become a member of the firm.

Extra Team for Fire Truck.

As a precaution while the heavy snow is in the streets, Chief Doane has an extra team in readiness for the hook-and-ladder truck in the event of an alarm. The truck is the heaviest piece of apparatus in the dpartment and the double team is necessary.

Pastor Roberson Now An Eagle.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church; Ephraim Compton and Harry Messersmith, of this city, and Mahlon Dayton, of New Market, was initiated in the first degree at the meeting of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagles, Tuesday night.

Diamond Colors.

Diamonds may be black as well as white, and some are blue, red, brown, yellow, green, pink and orange, but there is no violet diamond, although, in addition to amethysts, there are sapphires, rubies and garnets of that color.

Have Two Wash Boilers.

It saves time on Monday to use two boilers. Even when the wash is small there is a great advantage in having two boilers. All the rubbing can be done before the rinsing begins, leaving all the tubs free.

Lead Pencils.

Lead pencils, which really contain graphite or plumbago, derive their name from the use of lead plummets for ruling faint lines on paper before the discovery of the Cumberland graphite minds.

The Lay of the Hen.

Germany's hens produce the lightest eggs. Ten will weigh a pound there, while it requires only nine Russian eggs to make that weight, eight American eggs and seven Spanish eggs.

Home-made Shoe Polish.

One pint linseed oil, eight ounces suet, six ounces beeswax, an ounce of resin. Melt together the ingredients and apply with a brush. The linseed oil is especially fine for leather.

A Japanese Custom.

A servant is never permitted to serve tea in a Japanese house. It is the privilege of the daughter to make the beverage, while the guest who has last arrived serves it.

Hartridge School Exhibition.

An exhibition of callsthenics and gymnasium work will be given by the pupils of the Hartridge School Friday afternoon, February 14, at 3 o'clock.

Burnt-Out Fuse Caused Tap.

The burning out of a fuse at the telephone office this morning caused the North Plainfield fire bell to sound a single tap at about 10:30 o'clock.

MADE HIS HOME A FORTRESS.

Tenant Had Neat Way of Shutting Out Undesirable Visitors.

"Alterations to suit tenant" was a part of the sign in a Philadelphia building, telling that a loft over the store was to let. One day lately a prospective tenant applied and expressed himself as pleased with the location and quarters, as well as the terms. As to alterations he had only one thing to suggest, namely, that the stair steps be fixed to the top floor with a pair of stout hinges, and cords be attached so that they might be raised and lowered, in a way best illustrated perhaps by the attachments of a fire escape. Anxious to get a tenant and seeing no particular objection to this arrangement, the landlord complied. His tenant, a quiet man, was wont to go to his quarters early in the forenoon and at once draw the steps up to the ceiling. A few only of his many visitors, those, in fact, who gave a peculiar whistle, were accommodated by the lowering of the steps. The others were ignored. The landlord, fearful lest some unlawful transactions might be going on in his building, called upon the tenant for an explanation. "Oh," was the reply, "my friends have the whistle. The other fellows are creditors." The hinges are still working.

ICELANDERS ARE LONG LIVED.

Average Age There Double Mean Duration of Human Life.

It would be interesting to know if any part of the world beats Iceland in the average length of life of its inhabitants. It is shown in the census of 1905 that on an average the people of that island live to the age of 61.8 years, which is very nearly double the mean duration of human life as it was computed a generation ago. Sweden and Norway are regarded as very healthful countries, but Iceland takes the palm in longevity, the mean duration of life in Sweden being 50.02 years and in Norway 49.94 years. Some of Iceland's earthquakes are nerve-racking, but on the whole the lives of most of its simple and industrious inhabitants slip along with few incidents that unduly stimulate or depress the pulse. Summer and winter the same old mail boat from Leith steams into the harbor of Reykjavik every three weeks, but very rarely brings news that touches Iceland so closely as to make excitement. In fact the little island enjoys many of the advantages of civilization and avoids most of its drawbacks.—Christian Advocate.

A Hard Task.

A Chicago man tells of a resident of that city who had been unsuccessful in one venture after another. At last, however, he made a large sum of money by means of an invention in car wheels; and very soon thereafter his family, consisting of his wife and two young daughters, were to be seen taking their daily outing in a motor car. One day the three were being driven rapidly through the park, while a look of painful self-consciousness overspread the features of the inventor's wife, as she sat bolt upright, looking straight before her. "Now, ma," came in clear tones from one of the daughters, whose keen face was alive with enjoyment, "now, ma, can't you loll back and not look as if the water was boiling over?"—Youth's Companion.

World's Oldest Republics.

So far as practical considerations go Switzerland is the oldest of surviving republics. Two puny republics, however, long antedate the Helvetic confederation and in strict accuracy one of these two must be the oldest republic of all now in existence. One of them is the republic of San Marino in Italy, on Mount Titano, the oldest state in Europe and one of the smallest in the world. The other is the republic of Andorra in the Pyrenees, made independent by Charlemagne. No fixed date can be assigned to either of these, both are mediaeval relics, and San Marino may be identified even before the middle ages began.

Woes of the Druggist.

"If you want to meet the limit of nerve," remarked a druggist, "you must keep a drug store. Most people seem to think the place is for public accommodation, without the necessity of any real patronage on their part. We have had a good many nervy requests, but one the other day capped the climax. It was raining hard and a woman we didn't know, who lived three blocks away, telephoned us to send her two two-cent postage stamps."

Why Letters Are Unwritten.

Why not keep up writing-desk supplies just as conscientiously as those for the pantry? asks a writer. Few households would get along a week without sugar, salt or soap, yet how many letters are unanswered for the lack of a good pen, a stamp or an envelope? It is not the expense, but lack of thought, that keeps an insufficient or meager supply of the necessary articles on hand.

Dignity of Ownership.

"I saw a sign in a restaurant down at Galion the other day," said a Cleveland man, "that struck me as an effective means of upholding the dignity of the establishment. The proprietor of the restaurant is a big man, weighing about 200 pounds and put up like a prize ox. His sign says: 'If You Want to Know Who Runs This Place Just Start Something.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"CHILDREN'S DAY" WITH ANTS.

Youngster's Pretty Idea of the Gathering of the Small Creatures.

"Mamma, next Sunday is to be Children's day. Shall I have my new white dress for that day? All the little girls are to be dressed in white." "Yes, Gertrude, I will promise you your dress for that day." "And shall I have my dess, too?" asked two-year-old Roy, the little sunbeam of the family. "Oh, you are only a little bit of a boy, just the 'sunbeam' of our home. You don't go to Sunday school, you know." "Can't I go Children's day, mamma? Can't I go, papa?" "Well, why not, little sunbeam, I should think you might, on this great day for children." And so it was decided that little "Sunbeam" should go, if he would promise not to get tired, and also promise to be a "good boy." It was a very pround little boy who joined with the infant class, and marched out into the main room, and tried to join in with the singing. He watched the other classes march in two by two, and it made a very great impression on him. On the following day he was playing in the grounds which surrounded his home, when he noticed what seemed to him to be an army of ants, all going in the same direction. He ran breathless to his mother, calling: "Mamma, come quick, and see! It must be children's day with the ants."

REASON FOR THE PREFERENCE.

Husband Evidently Shared in Dainties Meant for Wife.

The Lady Bountiful of the parish was going her rounds and called at a cottage occupied by a "model" peasant, whose wife had been an invalid for some years. "And how is Mary today?" inquired the visitor. "Just about the same, thankee kindly, mem," was the reply. "Did she enjoy those little things I sent her yesterday?" asked the lady. "The things come all right, mem, an' we be greatly obleeged; but, if I might make so bold, would ye not send her any more of that jelly? Some jam—strawberry jam—be much more sootable, mem." "Why, doesn't she care for the jelly?" was the natural query. "Yes, mem, she do; but I can't say as I does."—Judge's Library.

Fashion in Medicine.

A curious communication has been made to the French Academy of Medicine by Dr. Grimbert, who has a fondness for statistics. The doctor has been making inquiries with a view to finding out whether there is a fashion in medicine. He has discovered that the old-fashioned medicines, such as opium, laudanum, iodine and bismuth, are sold in about the same quantities as they have always been. The sale of leeches has diminished, in 1876 50,000 were sold by a certain number of chemists' shops in Paris, but this year the same shops sold only 12,000. The glycero-phosphates and antipyrins sold 50 per cent. less than they used to and quinine has gone down 24 per cent. As for the newer drugs—pyramidon, asperine, etc.—their sale has increased enormously.

Would Manage Finances.

"I might just as well throw money away at once as to lend it to you," she said to the artist as he came in and began to smoke a cigarette. "You pay me in driplets, and I am so surprised to get anything back that I hurry to spend it. Do you remember, not long ago, when you got paid for a water color and stopped me on the street and gave me back two dollars of that five dollars you borrowed? Well, I just went along spending that money foolishly for things I didn't need at all, I was so amazed at getting it back again." "You poor little thing," he said to her softly, "I'll never let you spend money foolishly like that again."

Dissipated Men of Genius.

There is an unpleasant side light thrown on the days of W. E. Henley and his youthful followers, by Mr. Edgar Jepson, the novelist. He defends in the London Academy the memory of the late Ernest Dowson, who, sinking under consumption, found liquor both anodyne and stimulant. "Unfortunately, too," adds Mr. Jepson, "whisky was a literary fashion, set by Henley. It was an appalling fashion, which some of the younger men of letters followed with a kind of foolish schoolboy bravado. I have seen three of the finest minds I have known drown in whisky."

Volcanic Ash Cement.

A recent number of a Nagasaki (Japan) newspaper describes a cement made from volcanic ashes, which is sometimes used alone and sometimes in combination with sand and portland cement. The ashes are much cheaper, and are said to be almost as effective as the cement, while the two are used together with still greater advantage. Dockyards, naval docks, etc., have been constructed from the ash cement, large quantities have been exported to Korea, north China, Shanghai and Formosa, and the demand is rapidly increasing.

International Courtesy.

An exceptionally pretty girl, with an English flag lieutenant at her side, was standing on a chair on the pier watching the racing. On a chair behind were two Frenchmen. The lady turned round and said in French: "I hope I do not obstruct your view." "Mademoiselle," quickly replied one of the men, "I much prefer the obstruction to the view." Can the entente cordiale grow a finer flower of courtesy than that?—The Tatler.

DR. BAXTER'S ADDRESSES

State Supt. of Public Schools Talks Before Pupils at City and Borough Schools

ON THE ELEMENTS OF SUCCESS.

Cites Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, the Martyr-Presidents, as the Signal Examples of Self-made Men.

Emphasizing the value of earnestness of purpose, culture, and push as the qualities which win success, James J. Baxter, State Superintendent of schools, addressed the pupils of the city and borough high schools today. Mr. Baxter, who was formerly a resident of this city, spoke at the Plainfield High School at 8:30 o'clock this morning, in connection with the opening exercises, and at 10:30 repeated his address at the Somerset street school, before pupils of the high school and grammar grades. Th esecond examination of the morning was postponed in order to allow the pupils to hear his remarks at the borough school. Superintendent Baxter said in part:

"In recent conversation with a friend from North Carolina, who is particularly enthusiastic about his State, I was told in a triumphant way that the State of North Carolina was just six times the size of New Jersey, and excelled New Jersey in population and school enrollment. I replied to him that the State of New Jersey expended annually six times as much money for maintaining its public school system as did his State. There are large educational interests in our State. It is a small State, perhaps, but thirteen millions of dollars are annually expended in the maintainance of its school system, which I believe to be superior to that of many of the other States. Of this money, nine millions is used for the salaries of teachers and for the running expenses of the schools. The balance is used for new buildings and for the maintainance of the present buildings by necessary repairs.

"The elements of success in life today comprise earnestness of purpose, culture and "push." Every person who follows out these ideas in the conduct of his personal daily life, will do the work, win the honors, and gain the respect from the world that he deserves because of his own culture. The three martyred presidents of our country, Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield and William McKinley, are perhaps the best examples of men who, self-made, showed in their youth these qualities of character which were destined to make them famous in later life. They had the courage, the culture capacity and the industrious spirit to meet day by day the problems which confronted them in their early life and in the course of the development of their lives which won for them the lasting honor and respect of the people of this land."

UNION COUNTY FREEHOLDERS HOLD MONTHLY MEETING.

The most important matter disposed of at the February meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, yesterday, was the letting of the contract for the cantilever bridge to be built at the foot of First street, Elizabeth, which will span the Elizabeth river. The contract was awarded to Sandford & Co., of Hoboken, its bid of $24,949 being the lowest.

A communication was received from the Roselle Council asking the board to investigate the St. George avenue crossing of the B. and O. Railroad at Roselle, which is considered dangerous. The board will take up the matter at once. No business of special interest to Plainfield was presented to the board.

Leap Year Dance.

A leap year subscription dance was given at Truell Hall, last night, nearly a hundred young people joining in the affair which proved most enjoyable in every particular. At midnight, refreshments were served in the Japanese tea room. Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished the music.

Mrs. Simon Schults.

Mrs. Emma Schults, wife of Simon Schults, colored, died this morning at her home on Park avenue in the rear of the Martin garage. She was thirty-three years old and is survived by two daughters. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

The Only Way to Get Results.

The loss of a Boston shopping bag was advertised in The Daily Press, yesterday. Within a short time after publication the article was found by Millard McAfee, of 113 Oxford place, who promptly returned it to the owner and received a reward.

—The largest assortment of evaporated fruits in the city is to be seen at Neuman Brother's. The lot comprises fancy peeled and unpeeled peaches, apricots, pitted cherries and prunes.

HIGH HONOR OFFERED TO LEWIS E. WARING

It was learned today from authoritative sources that Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, has been offered the second vice presidency of one of the five large downtown financial instiutions of New York. The institution is one of five controlled by the Standard Oil Company, which stood behind the New York Stock Exchange in the 1907 financial panic, rendering valuable assistance. This is to be a change in the directorate and because of work performed by him during the troublesome times in the money market, Mr. Waring's name has been proposed for the second vice presidency.

Mr. Waring is now associated with the firm of Sweet & Co., of New York, which has been very successful in business, and it is understood that he will not accept the position offered, preferring to continue his present business relations. Mr. Waring has been a prominent figure in the New York financial centre and his good judgment and success have attracted considerable attention.

"WHEELERS" WANTED IN BAYONNE ALSO

Charges of grand larceny were made against Mrs. Mary DeAnderson, alias MacCartin, as well as her daughters, Helen, Bessie and Florence, and son, Frank, before Recorder Hyman Lazarus yesterday at Bayonne by Mrs. Pauline Pugh, of 369 Avenue A. The DeAndersons operated in this city two years ago under the name of Wheeler as already told in these columns.

Mrs. DeAnderson is under bail and locked up at the county jail in Newark. She was arrested three weeks ago by the Sheriff's men on charges of grand larceny and receiving goods under false pretense. Her daughters, Bessie and Helen, were also taken in custody at the time as witnesses, and as a result of the latest developments were made defendants.

When the Essex county authorities are finished with the trio they will be turned over to the Bayonne police. The son is still at large.

TUMBLERS AND GYMNASTS WILL BE AT BIG CIRCUS.

Physical Director George L. Listman, of the Y. M. C. A. has secured a representative lot of gymnasts and tumblers for the circus to be given by the association Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Tuesday night will be the night for the tumbling teams. Ranals and Tier, hand to hand tumblers, from Newark, Cleason and Levine, hand to hand tumblers from New York, and Bert Hansen, of this city, who will give an exhibition of floor tumbling, will be present to take part in the performance. G. L. Flynn, the club swinger from New York University, will also give an exhibition the first night of the circus.

The New York Turn Verein team will be in the ring Wednesday night. The Germans will bring out seven men, A. Schnall, A. A. U. champion on the horizontal and parallel bars; Charles Vallmer, Adolph Balkinger, R. Leissring, John Blumler, Roy E. Moore, A. A. U. champion on the horse, and John Bessinger, retired A. A. U. all-round gymnasium champion of the country, and at present coach of the New York University gym team.

Miss Emmons' Recital Tonight.

Under the auspices of the Women's Association of the Congregational church, Miss Aimee M. Emmons will give a recital at the church tonight in connection with a social to be given in the interests of the Tribune Sunshine Society. At this affair, donations of toys and other articles will be received for the shut-ins whom the women are planning to aid, assisting the work of the newspaper's charity department. Mrs. Curtis Bates is president of the local association, and Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux is chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

Funeral of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Ann Vanderbilt was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Abbott, of East Front street, this afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery, pending the return of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott from England.

Seventieth Anniversary.

The seventieth anniversary of the organization of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be observed at the church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, when various reports will be presented from the various socities and an address will be given by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, a former pastor.

WAGNER ENTERS A PLEA

Through Counsel He Says He's Not Guilty of Assaulting Baggagemaster.

OTHERS ENTER SAME PLEA.

Gus Sutterlein and Frank Brown Both Deny Offenses For Which They Have Been Indicted By Grand Jury.

Several Plainfielders were among those arraigned this morning in the Union County Court, following indictment by the Grand Jury. James Wagner, charged with assault and battery on Baggagemaster J. F. Garretson at the North Avenue station, through his counsel, William G. DeMeza, entered a plea of not guilty. His trial was set down for Tuesday, February 18, and he was released in $200 bail, which was furnished by his father, Jacob Wagner, who was formerly assistant to Mr. Garretson, and who was discharged, it was said, because of incompetency.

The discharge of the elder Wagner is said to have caused ill-feeling between the son, James Wagner, and Mr. Garretson, which resulted in an assault upon the latter about a month ago. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Mr. Wagner, but for some reason was never executed. In the meantime the matter was laid before the Grand Jury by Mr. Garretson through his counsel, Craig A. Marsh, and Mr. Wagner was indicted.

Augustus Sutterlein, indicted on a charge of stealing a shawl from a Rahway woman, entered a plea of not guilty, through his counsel, W. G. DeMeza, and Monday, February 17, was the date fixed for trial. He was released in $250 bail furnished by John Reuter, of Elizabeth.

A plea of not guilty was entered by Frank Brown, of this city, indicted on a charge of the larceny of a satchel of barber's tools belonging to James Boling, of Central avenue. His trial was set for Friday, February 13. W. G. DeMeza is his counsel.

J. R. Dickinson, of Summit, indicted on a charge of embezzlememnt, also pleaded not guilty, and the court fixed Monday, February 17, as the date for trial. W. G. DeMeza was assigned as his counsel.

Emmic Cooper, colored, indicted on a charge of assault and battery on Louisa Long, of Union Township, pleaded not guilty and his trial was set down for Monday, February 17. He was released on $1,000 bail. The prosecutor informed the court that the Grand Jury is now considering another charge against Cooper and would report later.

Firemen Kelly Killed.

Daniel Kelly, of Somerville, an extra fireman employed by the New Jersey Central, received injuries near Bayonne, yesterday morning, which caused his death before he could be taken to Jersey City. He was sent out with Engineer Smith Watson, of Dunellen, on a special trip, the train taking the regular run of the 8:30 from this city. After crossing the Newark Bay bridge, Kelly was engaged in cleaning out the fire box, when the end of the long stoke rod caught in a west bound coal train, throwing him off the engine. In the fall his body was terribly lacerated. Kelly's brother died in Muhlenberg Hospital a year ago from injuries received at Fanwood, when he was scalded by the bursting of a flue on his engine. A widowed mother survives.

Told About the Yellowstone.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, James R. Joy gave his interesting lecture last night on "The Yellowstone Park." There was a large attendance of members and friends and the superb views, together with the interesting explanation by Mr. Joy, made the evening one of profit to all. In addition to the lecture, there was an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, including violin selections by Clarence Heaume and Charles Leland and vocal numbers by Charles Meyer. A social hour followed the entertainment.

Mrs. Euphemia Updyke.

Mrs. Euphemia Updyke, widow of Alexander Updyke, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Elliott, of Watchung avenue, near Ninth street. She was in her seventy-first year. The funeral will be held at her former home in Bordentown tomorrow afternoon.

Church Musicale.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Congregational church a musical will be given in the church on Tuesday night, February 11, at 8:15 o'clock.

—Timbo & Co. furnished 1,500 sandwiches for the big gang employed in keeping the Jersey Central tracks clear at Jersey City on Wednesday night.

TALK LIGHTING CONTRACT

Board of Trade Will Favor Yearly Agreement with the P.S.C. at Public Hearing.

EXCUSES DEPEW CIRCULAR.

President H. W. Marshall Says He Believes Its Author Acted In Perfectly Good Faith.

The subject of arc lights and the lighting contract with the Public Service Corporation was again taken up by the Board of Trade at its meeting last night. L. B. Woolston, former president of the organization, suggested that steps be taken to have the Common Council secure them for the business section in place of the incandescents and a general discussion followed.

It was explained by President Marshall that it would be practically impossible for the board to go on record as advocating the arcs as they cannot be secured on a year's contract and the board has already petitioned for the latter. It would not seem reasonable, he said, for the members to recommend one thing at a meeting and then to call for something else at the next. There was some talk of the board presenting a petition at the public hearing on the light contract which the Council has called for February 17 and the president suggested that the members first secure a copy of the proposed contract and then acquaint themselves with the provisions, thus being prepared to attend the meeting and talk on the subject. Copies can be had at the city clerk's office and every Board of Trade member is urged to get one.

Relative to the circular which was sent out by R. Henry Depew, of the Plainfield Protective Association, calling on the citizens to object to the proposed contract, Mr. Marshall said he believed he had acted in good faith but he had made a mistake in not signing the names of all the committee members of the association. Mr. Depew, he said, had evidently meant well, no matter what people term him, but the addition of the term him but the addition of the names of reputable citizens who acted with him in getting up the circular would have carried more weight.

Before the discussion closed, the sentiment prevailed that the one-year contract should be advocated by the board when the public hearing takes place.

DUNN SAYS WIFE BEAT HIM WITH A WASHSTICK

The hearing in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Olive B. Dunn, of New York, against J. Wesley Dunn, of this city, was continued yesterday by Vice-Chancellor Emery at Newark until Feb. 17, when additional testimony will be taken.

Dunn gave a long recital of martial infelicities yesterday afternoon. One episode occurred on the day of the separation.

"I was packing my trunk," Dunn told the court, "and my wife and her mother affected to be pleased over my things into my trunk in a helter-my things into my turnk in a helter-skelter fashion, and my wife, in her affected eagerness, dumped my shaving mug and brush, without stopping to empty the mug, down on a suit of clothes which I had bought only the day before. Then when I scolded she picked up a shoe and whacked me alongside the head with the heel, making me keel over.

"Once she sent me out for beer," Dunn went on to tell, "and when I got back she said that I had been gone too long and had drank some of the beer, and she took up a washstick and began to beat me with it."

According to Dunn, his wife was in the habit of going out three or four nights a week, staying out until a late hour, and coming home the worse for drink.

"She asked me to meet her at our child's grave, and once she said: 'If you think anything of our dead baby you will meet me at the grave tomorrow afternoon.'" Dunn said that he refused to accede to his wife's pleading, and she said:

"Don't you ever want to see me again?"

"'No, never,' I answered her, and I pulled away and went into the house."

Not Mrs. L. Wagstaff.

The bill filed by Charles H. Hand to foreclose a mortgage held by him covers property in Asbury Park owned by one Miss Isabelle Wagstaff, of that place, and not by Mrs. L. Wagstaff, of this city. Mrs. Wagstaff, of this city, has no interest in the matter whatever, the mortgagor being another person who has never resided here.

BOARD OF TRADE ELECTS

Harry W. Marshall Unanimously Re-elected President Amid Applause.

HE TELLS OF ITS WORK.

Concise Review of the Year's Efforts —Many More Members Added to the Roll.

The Board of Trade closed its fiscal year, last night, and in addition to hearing reports for the past twelve months, held election of officers. H. W. Marshall was again made president though he stated at the outset that he preferred not to be named for the office as he believed a change each year would be of benefit to the organization. The members would not accept his protestations and he was elected amid applause. W. R. Codington and B. Frank Coriell were returned as first and second vice presidents and A. J. Herr was made secretary in place of E. F. Feickert, who declared he could no longer act in that capacity because of removing to Dunellen. E. M. Laing was re-elected treasurer.

In the reading of reports, Secretary Feickert stated that the membership of the board at the present time is 203 and that new names are being added every month. Treasurer Laing reported the receipts for the year to have been $1,130.11 and the disbursements $1,023.16, leaving a balance of $106.65. The balance last year was $85.99. The committee in charge of the dinner given last month reported that the receipts had been $594 and the disbursements $787.92.

Following the transaction of the general business, President Marshall took occasion to thank the members of the board for their hearty support and co-operation during the year and to review in a general way what the organization had accomplished dur-1907. He specified the doubling of the membership, the placing of "Plainfield" signs at the Netherwood, Grant Avenue and Clinton Avenue stations of the railroad; the raising of a special fund for the exploitation of Plainfield's advantages, one quarter of the amount having been already expended; larger street cars on several of the city lines and above all, an awakened interest in municipal pride and large attendances at board meetings.

In closing his talk, the president remarked that despite the interest that had recently been aroused the officers had found it a hard matter to collect dues and he proposed that a committee of three be appointed to stir up the delinquents. A motion to this effect was passed and Herman Schwed, E. F. Feickert and E. M. Laing were named.

Mr. Marshall also informed the members that several matters the board had taken up in a general way had already born fruit and reports relative to them would be heard next month. He said that he wanted to see them carried to a finish and explained that it was because of these that he announced he did not wish to be re-elected president, believing that he could do as much good work without holding the chair.

MOTHER ACCUSES DAUGHTER OF STEALING FURNITURE.

Mrs. Bettie Fields, colored, who lives on West Fourth street near Plainfield avenue, appeared in the city court, this morning, to prefer complaint against her daughter, Annie E. Tobias, who she charges with stealing furniture from her valued at $42. Mrs. Fields informed Judge Runyon that while she was out working one day, the daughter carted away a birds-eye maple bureau, a wardrobe and a small table that belonged to her (Mrs. Fields). She received a tip from the neighbors as to what direction the articles had taken and she traced them to a second-hand furniture store where the proprietor said he had bought them of Mrs. Tobias for $12.

A warrant was made out for the daughter and she will be asked to explain in court how she came to tag on to the goods.

SCOTTISH LASSIE SEEKS JAS. PYM'S WHEREABOUTS

Information concerning the whereabouts of James Pym, who is believed to be living in or near Plainfield, is wanted by Miss Jeanie Bell, of 12 Melville street, Falkirk, Scotland. In a letter of inquiry to The Daily Press the writer states that Mr. Pym is a friend who has been corresponding with her, but who lately has ceased writing. At least she says she is not getting any answers.

Miss Bell says that a number of her leters have been returned through the dead letter office. She states that he must wonder why his letters are not answered, though he thoughtlessly forgets to send his address. The last time Mr. Pym was heard from was about the holidays, when New Year's cards were received by his friends in Falkirk. Miss Bell declares that those letters bore the Plainfield postmark and she hopes that through The Daily Press his present address may be learned.

Inquiry at the local postoffice fails to reveal the name of James Pym.

"BROKER" AND GIRL HELD FOR FURTHER EXAMINATION

When Horace A. Blackmur, Jr., of New York, and Edna Smith, of Dunellen, who were arrested on Wednesday by Detectives McConville and Nelson in the New York Produce Exchange Building, were arraigned yesterday in the Tombs Court, in New York, on an affidavit charging them with unlawfully converting to their own use $3,000 belonging to another person, Blackmur protested against the girl being held.

"She is a stenographer in the A. K. Hubbard Company, and in no way associated with me," he said.

"She has been associated with him for years," broke in McConville. "I had her at Headquarters five years ago. Then she was let go on her promise to get with some reputable concern—"

"I have a father and mother, your Honor, and I want to go to them," broke in the girl.

"She has told that story before," said McConville.

Magistrate Corrigan held the pair on $2,000 bail each for examination on Monday.

LEAP-YEAR SURPRISE FOR MISS CLARA GULLBERG.

In honor of the eighteenth anniversary of her birthday, a leap-year surprise party was tendered to Miss Clara Gullberg, of South avenue, last night. There were about forty guests and the evening was spent in playing hearts, dancing and enjoying a program of vocal and instrumental music by Miss Gullberg and her sisters, Miss Ethel Gullberg and Mrs. Thomas Burns. After the game of hearts it was announced that Mr. Rufus Larew had won first prize, while the booby honors were presented to William O'Loughlin.

About midnight supper was served. A feature was a large birthday cake which was decorated with eighteen candles. After supper dancing was resumed and continued until an early hour this morning. Miss Gullberg was the recipient of many handsome and useful gifts.

Gideon W. Smalley.

Gideon W. Smalley, a one time resident of Dunellen, died yesterday at his home in Orange. He was seventy-six years old and is survived by two sons, Frank Smalley, of Lincoln, and Albert Smalley, of Brooklyn. In the days when race tracks were allowed in New Jersey, Mr. Smalley conducted a stock farm near New Market and had a private track on which he trained thoroughbreds. The funeral will be held at the home of his nephew, Goldson Smalley, of Walnut and Fairview avenues, Dunellen, Sunday afternoon at 1:30. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Carroll Out of Hospital.

Vincent Carroll, the fireman injured at the Letcher fire Sunday night, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon. It will be several days yet before he can return to duty. Carroll was struck on the head with an axe held by another fireman, the latter failing to see him because of the thick smoke that prevailed. The wound inflicted is directly over Carroll's left eye and required six stitches to close it.

Loses Valuable Horse.

A horse valued at $150, belonging to Stanley Stroke, of the Plainfield Cleaning and Pressing Company, collapsed from an old injury, received in a fall, on East Front street, yesterday. On the advice of Dr. Herbert, the animal was shot by Patrolman Charles Flynn.

POW-WOW OVER SCHOOLS

Common Council and Board of Education Have a Heart to Heart Talk.

SUPT. MAXSON MAKES A PLEA.

After Mayor Talks, the School Superintendent Tells City Fathers What Improvements Should Be Made.

With a view to discussing present school needs, including the question of erecting new buildings in the West End of the city to provide for that rapidly-growing section, a joint conference of the Comon Council and the Board of Education took place last night in the office of Mayor C. J. Fisk. This was the first meeting of the kind ever held in this city and it was intended to acquaint the Councilmanic members with conditions which, it is believed, will result in better co-operation in obtaining needed school facilities. All of the members of the Board of Education were present, except Floyd T. Woodhull, while H. D. Hibbard was the only councilman absent.

Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Public Schools, attended the conference and Jacob Kirkner, a former president of the Board of Education, who has always been interested in school matters, took part in the discussion. He was to have addressed the Board of Trade meeting on school affairs but thought it best to attend the point meeting so that he could better acquaint himself with conditions. He will talk to the Board of Trade at its next meeting.

Last night's conference was held at the suggestion of Mayor Fisk, the object of which, as he expressed it, being to afford all an opportunity to become fully posted on matters concerning public schools and the needs of the city relative to new buildings. He stated that both the Common Council and Board of Education are important bodies and each has its own duties to perform. It is the duty of the Board of Education to provide proper facilities for the education of the children, but its powers are limited to a certain extent. On the other hand it is the duty of the Common Council to provide the funds for the maintenance of the schools and the erection of new buildings. For these reasons it is quite important and necessary that both bodies fully understand the situation.

It was stated that the Board of School Estimate had fixed $90,000 as the amount needed for the proposed new building at Darrow avenue and Essex street, and that when the estimates were received it was learned that they exceeded the appropriation by $15,000.

The Mayor asked Dr. J. B. Probasco, as president of the Board of Education, to explain why the Darrow avenue school is needed and to give any additional information he desired. Dr. Probasco said that Dr. Maxson was more familiar with the question and at his suggestion the latter was invited to speak.

Dr. Maxson stated that at present there is required a building with thirteen class rooms. The increased attendance of children has resulted in a doubling-up at the Irving and Whittier schools, and in consequence some of the smaller children are unable to attend. He explained that the board is doing the best it can under the circumstances, and even thought a new building should be erected at Darrow avenue and Essex street it would soon be filled and another school would be needed in the West End on the north side of the railroad, somewhere in the vicinity of Clinton avenue.

It was further explained by Charles F. Abbott, a member of the Board of Education, that the board had been careful in getting estimates for additional school facilities. Walter Cook, of New York, who makes a specialty of building schools, was engaged as a consulting architect. Five architects were selected to draw plans for the Darrow avenue school and those submitted by Hale & Rogers were accepted as meeting with the approval of the board. The consulting architect received $250 for his services. The successful architect will receive per cent. of the cost of construction. The one submitting the second best plans was given $300 and the one presenting the third best plans received $20. The plans of Hale & Rogers were considered the best in every respect. It was afterwards decided that the cost of construction could be cut down if the assembly hall was omitted. This was thought to be an unwise action, as a hall of that kind could frequently be used for public meetings and is really needed in school work.

After a full and free discussion during which school matters were thoroughly considered, it was suggested that the architects simplify their plans and that new estimates be secured with a view of bringing

WEAK FROM SUFFERING UNABLE TO PERFORM WORK

Discouraged After Spending Money Without Benefit—Found Help at Last.

Mr. Earl McCoy, living at 1506 So. Branson Street, Marion, Ind., has passed through an experience that is being duplicated every day in every town and city of any consequence in the United States. It furnishes abundant proof of the correctness of L. T. Cooper's theory in regard to the degeneracy of the human stomach, and shows conclusively the merit possessed by his New Discovery medicine to restore the weakened system to full strength and vigor.

Mr. McCoy says: "For a long time I have been a sufferrer from stomach trouble. I was unable to retain any food, and became so weak and run down that I was compelled to stop work. My system was nearly a wreck, and I had tried so many remedies and spent so much money without deriving any benefit, that I became discouraged and gave up hope of ever being well again.

"I heard a great deal of Mr. Cooper's theory and medicine, and after much hesitation decided to try it. The result was a pleasant surprise. Before I had taken half of the first bottle I was able to retain all food eaten, and my strength began to return. I have taken six or seven bottles, and am feeling fine. I eat and sleep well, do not cough at night, and am able to perform a hard day's work. I can cheerfully recommend Cooper's New Discovery, for it has done wonders for me."

The Cooper remedies are meeting with remarkable success wherever they are introduced. They are without a rival in toning up a weakened and run-down system. We sell them.—T. S. Armstrong.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The body of Mrs. Mary M. Runyon, widow of the late George L. Runyon, for many years a resident of New Market, was sent here for interment yesterday. The funeral services were held at the First Baptist church, New Market, yesterday morning, Rev. George H. Gardner officiating. Mrs. Runyon died Monday at the home of her daughter in Syracuse. She was eighty-eight years of age. She is survived by three children, a daughter and two sons. The interment was in the South Plainfield cemetery.

Iceman George A. Schenck had his plans for cutting the winter's crop on New Market pond yesterday spoiled by the snow, but he had a gang of men busy clearing the ice all day yesterday and began cutting today. The ice is about ten inches thick, and the crop is a big one.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held its annual meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. J. Nelson. The mite boxes were received and opened and officers elected for the coming year.

Local Christian Endeavorers attended the mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union held at Warren chapel last night. Joel D. DeGroff is an officer of the Union.

The regular business meeting of the trustees of the Presbyterian church was held last night at the home of George Cameron.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Dutcher visited friends in New Springfield, R. I., Wednesday.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

After spending two weeks at Jamesburg, Mrs. A. J. Bradis and daughter, Miss Winifred Bradis, have returned to their home in Rocky Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Siegrist and children, of Ogontz, Pa., were recently entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Voorhees, of Rocky Hill.

William H. Parry, of Somerville, was recently the guest of his mother, Mrs. Edward Long, at her home in Prospect street, South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Ernest Jones, of Plainfield, is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tester, of South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Ernest Miller, of Cherry street, South Bound Brook, has been spending several days with relatives in Elizabeth.

Clarence Bennett, of Bound Brook, has been visiting relatives in Rahway.

WESTFIELD.

Contracts for finishing the approaches to the Osborne avenue bridge, Westfield, have been awarded by the Council. O'Donnell Brothers have the grading, and E. W. Chamberlin the contract for the retaining walls. The bridge has stood half completed for over a year.

The Garwood Board of Education will ask the voters for an appropriation of $15,000 to build an addition to the Jefferson school. The matter will be voted on at the annual school meeting.

The annual school meeting in Westfield will be held on March 17, at which time all of the questions as to location and cost of a new schoolhouse will be submitted to the voters.

The engagement of Miss Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Hackett, of Westfield, to Sidney H. Carpenter, of New York city, has been announced.

Miss Mary Clark, of Westfield, has been appointed a teacher in the Mountainside School.

The Westfield Board of Health will hold a regular meeting at the town room, tonight.

Amateur Baseball Meeting.

The Inter-City Amateur Baseball League will hold an important meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, when plans for the coming season and a schedule will be discussed. All of the club's acceptances have not yet been received and it has not been decided just which organizations will comprise the league. It is still the fond hope of many that Somerville may be induced to join for it is realized that it would create a rivalry that would arouse the interest of the fans and bring the money into the treasury. It is definitely known, however, that Scotch Plains will not be represented in the league. That town has decided to play independent ball. The chances are bright for a strong league and good baseball during the summer.

The White Sale Lasts Throughout This Week.

More New Bargains Added to the List to Make This the Greatest Week of Them All.

You can easily recognize the bargains we quote below by the well-known brands of the goods, This list added to the innumerable bargains of the WHITE SALE since the beginning will certainly make this the biggest White Sale Week you have attended in a long, long time.

The muslin underwear sale, the embroidery sale, the sheer white goods sale, are each in themselves enough to draw the economical shopper, but we add this new list as an additionel attraction for this first week in February to make a good beginning for our 1908 campaign during this recognized dullest month of the year.

EMBROIDERY FLOUNCINGS 12½c Yard.

You have had some remarkable Embroidery bargains here since the first day of this White Sale. These Flouncings at 12½c are perhaps the biggest bargain of them all, for the quality is good, both the Embroidery and the Fine Lawn they are on, and just think of the price. But Tepper's is the unusual house, for we have no money tied up on our books—Cash is always worth 6 per cent. you know, and then we discontinued trading stamps some time ago that makes 3½ per cent. more we save on every dollar's worth of goods we sell. So we CAN and DO give bargains, and these Embroideries are a good illustration, at yard 12½

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Golf of an international character is on the programme for the coming season. The plan is none other than a proposed foreign invasion on the part of several of the foremost college players in this country, including Ellis Knowles, of Yale, president intercollegiate champion; Robert Abbott, of this city, also of Yale, a former title holder; W. T. West and Ralph Peters, Jr., of Princeton, and H. H. Wilder and W. Fellowes Morgan, Jr., of Harvard.

Little of a definite nature has been mapped out thus far, but the plan is to visit the principal or so-called "classic" links of England and Scotland, and, as the team would be representative, the players are in favor of having it compete under the colors of the Intercollegiate Golf Association. Wilder is president of the latter body; C. E. Van Vleck, of Yale, is treasurer, and F. H. McAdoo, of Princeton, secretary.

The players directly interested have been trying to determine when and where to go, but as yet nothing approaching a schedule has been arranged. It is improbable, however, that the party will be able to get away before the close of the college term. In that case it could hardly reach the other side before the latter part of June, too late for the amateur championship tournament at Sandwich and the Olympic competition at Deal.

Every year sees a number of golfers from this country competing in tournaments abroad, but their efforts have always been as individuals, and, with the single bright exception when Walter J. Travis went over in 1904 and won the amateur championship of Great Britain at Sandwich, the work of the visitors has been attended with little success.

Practically all the collegians mentioned for the proposed trip are brilliant players and, with possibly one exception, all long drivers. In the latter respect Abbott, Morgan and West are particularly prominent. It was during the last intercollegiate tournament at the Nassau Country Club that Abbott reached the second green up the hill, a matter of 500 yards, with a drive and a cleek. Morgan, whose home course is at Baltusrol, has developed wonderfully during the last year. He is the youngest member of the party.

Before the time arrives for leaving several changes may be made in the personnel of the team. In one case or two difficulty may be experienced in getting paternal consent. In discussing the proposed trip yesterday Abbott, who has been especially keen, said he feared he would not be able to go, although he could not tell positively until later.

J. E. Erickson, chairman of the Metropolitan Golf Association handicap committee, announced yesterday that no less than twenty-one clubs are in default in sending in their handicap lists. Of the other thirty-seven clubs twenty-four were received within the specified time limit, January 25, while the other thirteen were received since. Among the first lists sent to the committee was that of the Garden City Golf Club, made up by Walter J. Travis. The list, by the way, is also the largest. The clubs in default are as follows:

Arsdale Golf Club, Baltusrol Golf Club, Briarcliff Golf Club, Country Club of Westchester, Country Club of Lakewood, Cranford Golf Club, Dunwoodie Country Club, Fairfield County Golf Club, Fairview Golf Club, Hollywood Golf Club, Larchmont Golf Club, Mahopac Golf Club, Marine and Field Club, Ocean Country Club, Priceton Golf Club, Saegkill Golf Club, Seabright Golf Club, Somerset Hills Golf Club, Tuxedo Golf Club, Wee Burn Golf Club and Westfield Golf Club.

BASEBALL.

Natty Fennell, the pitcher, has been made captain of the University of Pennsylvania baseball team.

Arthur Devlin drifted in from Chicago yesterday and signed a New York National contract. Mariarkey, one of the new pitchers, sent in his signed contract.

Tommy Leach is the latest recruit to the ranks of the holdouts, of which there are not a few this winter. But it is probable they will all be performing under the tent of the big show when warm weather comes.

Catcher Clark of the Clevelands has devised a mitt which he thinks just suited to handling the spit ball. The best device for that purpose would be a sterilized rubber suit.

American League Park in Philadelphia is mentioned as a possible place for the Army-Navy football game in case that contest is not played at Franklin Field again.

A news despatch says "Jimmy Collins is working out in a gymnasium at Buffalo," reducing his weight. What with working "out" and "in" and "at" all at once he ought to be able to accomplish his purpose.

The Athletics have arranged the following games for their Southern trip: February 28 to March 16, New Orleans; March 16, Mobile; March 17 and 18, Birmingham; March 21 and 22, Memphis; March 23, Nashville; March 24 and 25, Louisville; March 26 and 27, Indianapolis; March 28 and 29, Columbus; March 31, Lancaster.

Ned Hanlon has been in Holyoke looking at a pitching machine. "It worked all right indoors, had a good out and in curve and slow ball," said Hanlon yesterday, "and it now remains to be seen how it will work outdoors, where there is some air stirring. There is only one practical use for a pitching machine, and that is in the spring, when you want to give your players batting practice at times when your pitchers don't feel like letting themselves out."

Frank J. Farrell stated yesterday that he is in no way financially interested in the Newark Club of the Eastern League, which was purchased by George T. Stallings on Tuesday from W. W. Burnham and H. C. Burnham. Stallings will manage the Newark team himself and may secure such players from the New York Americans as Catcher Rickey, Pitchers Castleton, Brockett, Keefe, Tift, Plank, Manning and Zeller, Shortstop Ball and Outfielder Bell. With the players who were members of the Newark team last year, Stallings will be able to place a formidable combination in the field.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a business and social meeting in Vincent chapel tonight.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church will give a dinner on February 18, at which time several good speakers will address the gathering.

"Ministering to Strangers and the Sick" will be the topic of the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church tonight.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church held its monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. Abram VanCleef, on Elm place, Tuesday night.

Rev. Frank Smith, formerly of Somerville, but now of Haddenfield, will give an illustrated lecture before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, Monday night, describing his trip abroad.

A social for the whole congregation will be held at the Congregational church tonight, for the purpose of promoting sociability. Miss Aimee Emmons will give a recital and there will be musical numbers. Contributions for the Tribune Sunshine Society will be received.

PERSONAL.

Miss Hazel Waters, of DeLacy avenue, is detained at her home by illness.

Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, who has been detained at home by illness, is planning a trip south.

Mrs. Charles Hebard, of Syracuse, N. Y., has returned home after a visit with her sister, Mrs. M. H. Ewart, of Fairview avenue.

Mrs. E. A. Lowe, of Fairview avenue, will entertain the whist club of which she is a member, Wednesday afternoon, February 19.

Miss Florence Smalley, of Jackson avenue, entered the State Normal School at Trenton, this week, where she will take the teachers' course.

Mrs. Walter E. Stewart and daughter, of West Seventh street, who are in Bermuda, are expected home the latter part of the month.

Dr. W. E. Stelle, of Park avenue, who recently returned home after an absence for several weeks, during which time he underwent a severe operation, is greatly improved and gaining in strength.

Pastor Jackson at Montclair.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, formerly pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist church, is now acting in the same capacity for St. Paul's Baptist church, of Montclair, and he will move to the latter place in April. A new edifice has been erected at Montclair, accommodating 800 people and the congregation has also built a parsonage for Pastor Jackson.

LIGHTING CONCESSIONS.

That the agreement reached by Mayor Fisk, Corporation Counsel Marsh, former President of the Common Council Leslie M. Daniel and the members of the Councilmanic lighting committee, on the one part, and the P. S. C., on the other, will be ratified by the city fathers is within reasonable certainty. The most tempting sort of concessions have been obtained for the city, and consequently the general public is not to be blinded by indirect attacks made on the efforts of the officials working for the best interests of the taxpayers.

Under the present contracts and agreements, the P. S. C. has the right to string high voltage wires overhead on poles on any street and the Common Council is powerless to prevent it. By provisions of ordinances of 1890 and 1898, the same company has the privilege of obtaining its power from any part of the State and can run its wires into or out of any section of the city. No provision, whatever, is made for arc lights under the arrangements now in force.

The new contract, whose term will be three years with privilege of renewal from year to year, expressly sets forth that all high voltage overhead wires must be removed within three years and that no more high voltage wires are to be placed overhead. All wiring within the city limits will have to be renewed in accordance with the National code in the safest and most workmanlike manner. All new wiring must be done underground. The city will have the power to establish self-recording voltage meters in the P. S. C. lighting station. All lamps, whether burned out or not, must be renewed at stated brief periods. Tests to prove candle power must be made both on the street and at the laboratory. An arc light district is provided for in which twenty-five or fifty lights of such type may be had for $85 a year each and for $80 if more than fifty are used. The incandescent lights are to cost $15 each a year as against $15.50 as at present. An additional feature is the penalty provided for lights out and for all incandescants under twenty candle power.

BRYAN AND MARTINE?

The suggestion made by The Daily Press some time ago that James E. Martine, to whose political creed we cannot subscribe, would be a suitable candidate for the Vice-Presidency should his bosom friend, William Jennings Bryan, head the Democratic ticket in the next campaign, has been seconded by the Newark Morning Star.

On this subject, former Senator James Smith's paper said editorially today:

"Farmer Orator Martine has been honored by a number of nominations for party candidacies and was prominent as a candidate for Governor last year. He barely missed it. What more natural, therefore, that he should be named as the Democratic candidate for Vice-President on a ticket with Mr. Bryan. If the latter is nominated at Denver an Eastern running mate will be necessary, and would not the name and fame of New Jersey's Farmer Orator spread over the land and capture the fancy of the horny-handed granger everywhere?"

100 SEEK PAROLES.

Executive Clerk Fox Will Act as Clerk to Pardons Court.

One hundred of the convicts of the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton have petitioned the Court of Pardons for release on parole. The list is now being prepared for publication in keeping with the provisions of the law, and the court will soon name a committee to investigate the merits of the different applicants. Each prisoner will be seen and talked with before his case is passed upon by the committee.

In view of the fact that Governor Fort has not yet selected a new executive clerk, former Executive Clerk Edward D. Fox will continue for this term to act as clerk to the Court of Pardons.

ROEBLING LOSS GROWS.

One Destroyed Machine Alone Cost $250,000.

Yesterday's investigation of the Roebling fire ruins at Trenton shows that the damage done to the $15,000,000 plant of the concern will reach between $500,000 and $1,000,000, instead of $300,000, as was estimated yesterday while the fire was still raging.

One of the machines destroyed cannot be duplicated for less than $250,000. This machine was used in the making of flat wire which can be produced at comparatively few plants.

PLEASED MUSIC LOVERS

Final Chamber Music Concert a Fitting Climax to Mc Intyre's Superb Series.

ARTISTS HEARTILY APPLAUDED.

Miss Anderson, Maurice Kaufman, Vladimir Dubinsky and Joseph McIntyre Provide Program.

The fourth and last Chamber Music Concert of the season was given at the Casino, last night, by Joseph McIntyre, and like the previous ones there was a capacity audience of music-lovers to enjoy the truly delightful program. The concert completed the third season for Mr. McIntyre and his efforts to give Plainfielders the very best in music have been attended with unusual success. This famed pianist has won for himself an enviable place in the music world and it is the fond hope of his patrons that they will be privileged to hear him again next season.

The stellar number of last night's program was the rendition of the great trio in A minor, by Tschaikowsky, for piano, violin and 'cello, which aroused the greatest enthusiasm. The interpretation was perfect throughout. Perhaps, in this number, more than in any other given this season, the audience had an opportunity to hear Mr. McIntyre to the best advantage. In reality it was a piano solo with stringed accompaniment, and Mr. McIntyre displayed his true genius as a master of the piano, not soon to be forgotten. Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cellist, and Maurice Kaufman, violinist, were as enjoyable as ever.

The trio was dedicated by Tschaikowsky, "To the memory of a great artist," and was written after the death of his friend and patron, Nicholas Rubenstein. Until the advent of the Rubensteins and the founding of the great conservatories at Moscow and St. Petersburg, Russian music had been dominated by the melodious Italian school, when under the leadership of Nicholas Rubenstein attention was called to the composers of their own day and nation. Tschaikowsky was considered the greatest of these and the leading influence of the Russian School. To Rubenstein's friendship and influence he owed his timely recognition as a great composer. His sorrow at the death of Rubenstein and his appreciation of the artistic qualities and attainments of his friend are fully expressed in the Trio.

The opening movement shows the composer in one of his most distinctive and characteristic moods, the depicting of deep felt grief. The heading of the movement, Pezzo Elegiaco, prepares the mind for the sad and mournful mood which is carried out to considerable length. The theme is worked up to a majestic storm of passion and gradually dies away in dull reverberation of minor chords, then, by a beautiful enharmonic change develops a new melody of great beauty telling of hope and consolation.

Changing again to the Elegiac theme in its original tempo, and developing in its former order to noble and exalted heights it gradually subsides to a plaintive pianissimo of exquisite beauty. The second part is in the form of an air with variations unusually interesting as an embodiment of the composer's memories of Rubenstein's musical life. Here are reminiscences of the latter's career as a pianist. First a violin melody with running pianoforte accompaniment and melodious 'cello counterpoints. Then a 'cello part with sustained pianoforte chords and violin counterpoints.

This is followed by a pianoforte scherzando theme with rippling rushing arpeggi between its little sentences. Then a minor chord song with imitations in the strings and melodious interweavings in all the instruments. Then a waltz in the composer's most irresistible style, followed by a pathetically expressive movement in muted strings with harp-like pianoforte accompaniment. Changing completely, a sprightly Chopinesque Makurka and finally a return to the original theme with no variation except in the method of accompaniment. The last movement is an Allegro, majestic and vigorous, followed by an andante, the Elegiac subject, for the strings, treated with enormous Arpeggios for the pianoforte. The final thirteen bars with dirge-like bass notes, melancholy chords for the pianoforte, die away into silence, and the hearer is left with a deep feeling of sorrow.

The appearance of Miss Marguerite De Forest Anderson, flautiste, was of unusual interest. Her work was of the highest order and well received. Her first number was "Concertstuck," composed by Chaminade for her. It gave her full opportunity to display her talent. As an encore she gave a delightful little selection. Her accompanist was Mr. Hassel.

The final number on the program was "Serenade," by Titl, for flute, strings and piano accompaniment, and it was, indeed, a delightful selection in conclusion. The audience was enthusiastic throughout and assured the artists of a cordial welcome should they return next season.

NEW DUNELLEN DEADLOCK

"Was Recorder Campbell's Appointment Legal?" is the Question Now.

EXCEPTION TO MAYOR'S VOTE.

"Doubtful Dunellen" Ponders Over the Legal Quandary and Ex-Marshal Mohan Furnishes a New Argument.

"Doubtful Dunellen" is again in a legal quandry. And it is Mayor Swackhamer who is once more the focus point of the difficulty. The boroughites, in their conversations around the stove since the council meeting Monday night, have arrived at the conclusion that the endorsement of the Mayor's appointment of David S. Campbell as recorder was illegal. And the illegality seems to rest on the fact that the Mayor had no right to cast the deciding vote.

A weekly newspaper published in the borough exposed these alleged illegalities in an editorial in yesterday's issue under the caption "Whither are we drifting?" After a paragraph devoted to the discussion as to whether the Dunellen Board of Health is legally constituted, the editorial takes exception to the Mayor's right to cast the deciding vote for Recorder Campbell at the last meeting and raises the question as to the legality of his election.

"Doubtful Dunellen" is divided upon this point. The faction which stands by the Mayor is in the minority, but apparently in the right, if the law books can be depended upon. Despite the editorial's assertion that the Mayor has no right to vote except in the case of a tie, the Mayor's supporters think he was in the right in voting as he did. And their line of argument, arrived at after a consultation of the law books and a discussion of the law of chance, is as follows:

Councilman Van Middlesworth was absent from the meeting. In the voting for endorsement of the Mayor's appointment of Campbell as Recorder, there were three "yeas" and two "nayes" in the balloting. The Mayor's vote was cast in order to give Mr. Campbell the necessary two-thirds majority for election. If Mr. Van Middlesworth had been present, it is assumed that he would have voted. If he voted, he must have voted either "yea" or "nay." If he had voted "nay," there would have been a tie, and the Mayor's ballot would have been necessary to decide the tie. If the Councilman had voted "yea," Mr. Campbell would have had his two-thirds majority without the extra vote, which would have been harmless, even if technically illegal.

And so "Doubtful Dunellen" ponders. It is reported that Christian Scientists will be induced to act on Owen Mohan, the resigned chief marshal, in an effort to reconsider his resignation and call at the borough building for his badge and keys. Mayor Swackhamer, it is alleged, is behind the movement. Right in connection with Mr. Mohan's resignation, the question as to who is to pay for the rig he hired from M. A. Galligher to transport William Cummings to Muhlenberg Hospital the night of January 26 again creates discussion. The bill was presented to the Piscataway Township committee at their last meeting, but was not acted upon. Mr. Mohan hired the rig on his own rsponsibility, after Mayor Swackhamer refused to allow the burned man to be taken to the borough building until the ambulance could be summoned. The amount of the bill is $4.

J. W. Wagner, formerly janitor of the borough building, who tendered his resignation at the last meeting because he "couldn't get along with the Mayor," has been paid off and John Peter, Jr., is at present acting as janitor of the building, pending an appointment.

CUPID BESTS PROSECUTOR.

Defendant's Sweetheart Wins Over the Principal Witness Against Him and Case Falls Through.

New Brunswick, Feb. 7.—Cupid played Prosecutor George Berdine a trick Wednesday when he interfered with the trial of the case of Albert Hoffman, of Keasbey, on charges of assaulting Andrew J. Smith and Trickland Smith, at Perth Amboy. Hoffman's sweetheart is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, and her mother was to have been the principal witness against Hoffman. The latter's sweetheart, however, won over her mother, and Mrs. Smith's evidence Wednesday was so different from what the prosecutor expected that he had no option, he said, but to ask the jury to acquit. "I do not want to interfere with the smooth course of true love," he said. Hoffman, however, will have to take his punishment on charges of carrying concealed weapons and of assaulting Thomas Cosgrove. He has pleaded non vult and will be arraigned for sentence Saturday.

REMORSE OF CONVERT LED TO HIS SUICIDE.

Pennington, Feb. 7—Grief over his past is supposed to have prompted William H. Moore to commit suicide by hanging himself yesterday. Moore had been taken into the Methodist church on probation, following his announced desire at recent revival meetings to become a church member. He had lately appeared despondent over his fancied misdeeds.

He had been employed in N. R. Blackwell's grocery store, and was found suspended from a rafter in the barn by Ivan Horner, another employe. Moore had fastened the loop about his neck and then kicked a barrel from under him. Coroner Nutt, of Trenton, took the body in charge. He stated that the body had been suspended for six or seven hours. Moore leaves a widow and four children.

While skating on the pond at Mullica Hill yesterday Miss Mary Nicholson broke through and would have drowned but for the timely assistance of Howard Smith, who pulled her out.

PROF. ISAAC'S LECTURE

Delivers Address on Irrigation in the West and its Vast Importance.

BEFORE BOARD OF TRADE.

Tells of What the Gigantic Work Means to the Future Welfare of the United States.

At the conclusion of regular business of last night's meeting of the Board of Trade, Professor H. G. Isaacs, of the Plainfield Business College, addressed the members on "Irrigation in the West and what is means to this country." Professor Isaacs was at one time connected with the Bureau of Fisheries and made a study of the reclaiming projects the government is conducting in the West, in this way becoming thoroughly informed. His address was followed closely by his hearers and proved of far more interest to the members than might be implied by the subject. The talk in part was as follows:

"If I were to ask the average person I meet as to what he considers the greatest project the U. S. Government now has under way, he would undoubtedly point out to me the Panama Canal. The Panama Canal is one of the most stupendous projects ever undertaken, and no man can estimate the amount of good it will do this country, both politically and economically. But this project so gigantic and beneficial will involve, it is estimated, about one seventh the amount of capital and labor that will be required to reclaim the arid section of this country, which is about two-fifths of the total area, and contains some of the richest soil on the globe. A few extracts taken from a circular which came direct from the Department of the Interior at Washington will give reliable information on some of the largest projects now being completed.

"Arizona: Salt River Project.—This project involves the construction of a storage dam 276 feet in height at Roosevelt, Arizona, which will impound 1,284,000 acre feet of water which will create a reservoir having a superficial area of 16,300 acres or 25.5 square miles. This structure will be completed in 1909 and will regulate the supply of water in Salt River. Forty miles below the dam the water is to be diverted by means of a low dam into the main stems of a system of canals, one on each side of the river, and covering about 160,000 acres of land in the vicinity of Phoenix and Mesa.

"California: Yuma Project.—This project contemplates diversion of the waters of the Colorado River, by means of the proposed Laguna dam and sluiceways, about 10 miles northeast of Yuma, Arizona, into two canals, one on each side of the river. In Arizona these canals will irrigate all the bottom lands of Colorado and Gila Rivers, between the Laguna dam and the Mexican boundary. A complete system of levees to protect the bottom lands from overflow is being constructed and a pumping system to remove the surplus water from the low lying areas will be utilized later. Work on the Laguna dam and sluiceways is progressing vigorously, and the construction of the Yuma dikes is under way.

"Idaho: Minidoka Project.—This project provides for the reclaimation of about 130,000 acres of land lying on both sides of Snake River in southern Idaho. The area to be benefiteed was all government land, which was withdrawn from general entry under the provisions of the act of June 17, 1902, but subject to entry under the provisions of the Homestead Law.

"The works, which consist of a large dam in Snake River and 130 miles of main and branch canals, are completed. All the secondary laterals have been completed and water has been turned into the system and is available for use during the irrigating season of this year. Nearly 4,000 people are already on the land and there are only a few farm units on the public land open to entry.

"Wyoming: Shoshone Project.—This project, as developed to date, contemplates the diversion of a portion of the waters of Shoshone River, and the construction of an impounding dam at the head of the canyon through which the river flows. The reservoir thus created will have a storage capacity of 456,000 acre feet. When the project is completed, it will be possible to reclaim about 150,000 acres of irrigable public lands, the whole being about 75 miles east of Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming.

"Colorado: Uncompahgre Project.—This project is the most picturesque of all the works now under way. This project contemplates the diversion of waters of Gunnison River by means of a tunnel 30,580 feet in length, cross section 10½ by 11½ feet, cement lined, capacity 1,300 second-feet. The tunnel passes under a high divide and carries the water to Uncompahgre Valley, where it will be utilized for the reclaimation of 150,000 acres of land in Montrose and Delta counties. Construction of the tunnel was begun in 1904 and work thereon has since been progressing rapidly. Nearly 3½ miles are completed.

"Now the question naturally arises what good will the reclaiming of this great desert do Plainfield? We must remember that all this wealth that will be created by reclaiming this land belongs to the United States, and is within comparatively easy reach of New Jersey, and is being brought closer each year by the efforts of the big railroad companies to build faster locomotives and better roadbeds. Just recently the Pennsylvania Railroad Company constructed an engine that attained a speed of ninety-nine miles per hour and took curves with ease; this means much shorter time between us and the west. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad Company is laying steel rails at the rate of four miles per day, on their way to the Pacific Coast.

"Both the Union Pacific and the C. and N. W. are building fast as possible, and making for the same goal, why? For the simple reason that they all see the great traffic in commerce that will need to be cared for. Much of this commerce will come east, and right through New Jersey to New York city to be distributed throughout the world. So this being true, would it not be reasonable to suppose that we will be able to turn some of this prosperity into Plainfield? But to sum up, this great development in the west by irrigation will create a great demand for all things that we manufacture here in the east, and are well equipped to produce the things that a new country needs. Our mills will soon have a vast area of prosperous country in which to bid for trade."

LOCAL OPTION ARGUMENT

Rev. F. W. Johnson, Forecasts Victory for the Bill and Urges its Support.

AT C. E. UNION MASS MEETING.

Representatives of Thirteen Church Societies Hear Powerful Appeal for Local Option at Warren Chapel.

Booming the interests of local option before the Christian Endeavor Societies of thirteen churches assembled in union conference at Warren chapel last night, Rev. Frederick W. Johnson, D. D., of Washington, foretold the success of the movement in this city and urged all Christians to unite in its support. Rev. Mr. Johnson is superintendent of the good citizenship and Sabbath observance department of the State Christian Endeavor Union and in the course of his remarks said:

"The chief causes of Sabbath violation in our country today are greed and the saloon. It is the greed of the great companies and corporations that makes it necessary in many cases for the employes to work on the Sabbath day. In regard to saloons, much Sabbath violation may be traced to the liquor dealers and their influence. It was the liquor men who petitioned that the World's Fair in Chicago keep open on Sunday. One half of the people of this country have banished the saloon from their districts. The Supreme Court of the United States has declared that the saloon has no inherent rights; thus it is an outlaw."

The speaker dwelt at the outset upon the need of a day of rest for man and beast in developing his theme of Sabbath abservance. In conclusion he spoke of the glorious record that the New Jersey soldiers made during the Civil War. "With just this same spirit," he said, "the Christian men of the State today will rise up and cast out the saloon. I predict that New Jersey will soon have a local option law, but the measure cannot be secured unless all Christians of the State unite to bring it about."

The chapel was filled to its utmost capacity at the meeting and the following societies were represented: Congregational, First Presbyterian, Faith chapel, Dunellen Presbyterian, Seventh-Day Baptist, Trinity Reformed, New Market Baptist, Watchung, Park Avenue Baptist, Hope chapel, New Market First Day Baptist, South Plainfield Baptist, and Warren. The societies from each church were seated together, and were designated by signs, like delegates to the State convention. At the roll-call of societies, the banner for attendance was awarded to the Warren chapel delegation, thirty-six out of forty members being present. The meeting of the Union was in charge of Frank Stewart, chairman of the missionary committee of the Union. Short devotional services were conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, after which Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, offered prayer. The nominating committee, composed of Charles Hummer, Charles Bryan, Miss Florence Randolph, Miss Mildred Green and Frank Rimmer, was announced, and will report on the nominations for officers and chairmen of the various committees at the next meeting of the Union, to be held March 12 at the First Presbyterian church. Music for the service was by a mixed choir of twenty-five Christian Endeavorers, led by Joel D. DeGroff, vice president of the Union. Six members of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra furnished music.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Thomas Norton, who recently purchased the A. D. Beekon property on Martin avenue in the borough, has taken possession, removing from Brooklyn Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Flannery, who have been visiting Mr. Flannery's sister, Mrs. George H. Johnston, have returned to their home in New York.

Fanwood Council, R. A., will entertain the grand officers at its next meeting, which will be held Tuesday night, the 11th.

The women of All Saints' Episcopal church are arranging to hold a New England supper on the night of Lincoln's Birthday.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting will be held in the parlors of the Baptist church tonight.

Albert Meyer has taken a position with the Cranford Gas Company at Westfield.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., met last night in the Library rooms.

the cost of construction within or under $90,000. If this plan fails then the matter will be taken up later in another way.

In the meantime the Board of Education will look into the question of a site on the north side of the railroad and secure estimates on the cost of a building, the idea being to erect a school in that part of the city after the Darrow avenue structure is completed.

There was a discussion of the running school expenses for the year, with the idea of keeping them down to the lowest possible figures. Great care will be exercised in this respect in making up the annual city budget. All those present at last night's conference expressed great satisfaction that such a meeting could be held and it was the unanimous opinion that the interests of the taxpayers will be conserved as a result.

The board wishes to correct an impression that the members desire to keep their proceedings from the public. On the contrary they want the public to know that the meetings are always open to anyone interested in school matters, that they will be welcome and any information about the schools or the work will be gladly furnished inquiring persons.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

William Carney, of Salem, has completed thirty years as constable and county detective. He has nearly five thousand arrests to his credit.

County Counsel Higbee has been ordered to draft a bill giving Atlantic county freefholders the right to appoint an auditor to verify the reports of the county officers most of whom are now on a salary basis.

Falling from the roof of the powerhouse at Pitman Grove, William McFarland, of 127 Birch street, Camden, was severely bruised about the body yesterday afternoon. He was taken to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Harlan S. Miner has presented to Gloucester City's new High School laboratory a cabinet containing chemicals and minerals for laboratory work. Several other similar cabinets have been given to universities by him.

William Manliss, colored, of Audubon, was killed by the cave-in of a ditch on which he was working yesterday for the "cut-off" of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad at Audubon. Coroner Fithian gave a death certificate.

Romping home from school at noon yesterday, ten-year-old Abe Gallin, son of an Atlantic City grocer, stumbled in front of a Florida avenue trolley car and his foot was crushed beneath the wheels. The lad was dragged twenty feet before the car could be stopped.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Red Flash, the famous Indian runner, who carried Custer's last message, is one of the most interesting of a group of famous Red Men, who formed the attacking party on the fort, in "The Flaming Arrow, the romantic drama by Lincoln J. Carter, which appears at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. Red Flash, an old man now, will be seen with this attraction. He was once, and indeed for a full decade, the fastest of all Indian runners. It is said that a sprint of 100 miles a day as bearer of important messages between forces of the regular army was but a trifle. He formerly was one of the most noted blood thirsty warriors on the Dakota plains. Red Flash, however, for many years has been an earnest friend, well wisher and servant of the whites.

A welcome announcement for the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre is that of the return of Mr. Daniel Sully in his comedy-drama, "The Golden Rule," tomorrow afternoon and night. In these days of the "hurry-up" drama, when plays are hastily thrown together and put on the boards on a few days' notice, it is refreshing indeed to witness a performance which bears the marks of care and study, evidences attention to minor details and the intelligent application of those fundamental dramatic rules which make all the difference between a good performance and the kind universally described as "rotten." When a play receives the unanimous endorsement of the press, the pulpit and the public, it is safe to conclude that there is something out of the ordinary, either in the play itself, the manner of its presentation, or the actors who appear in it. In "The Golden Rule" each of these three elements of interest may be said to contribute to the success of the play, but the great drawing power of this comedy-drama comes from its faithful portrayal of the characteristics of widely diverging types of human nature. Each character in the cast is a study in itself.

As a laugh evolver and an enjoyment furnisher, the entirely new version of "Grimes' Cellar Door," in which the inimitable James B. Mackie will make his appearance at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, outclasses all its predecessors in the musical farce comedy line. There is no end of fun and its music and songs are of the brighest and catchiest order, while its pretty girls and clever dancers are irresistable in their aggregate and individual attractiveness. Mr. Mackie appeags as chief fun-maker and gives his audience no rest from laughter in the very funny character of "Grimsey Me Boy."

Considerable interest should be awakened in the new play that Arnold Daly is bringing to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday afternoon and night and which bears the title "My Mamie Rose." Mr. Daly has made a wide departure from his Shaw offerings in this new vehicle, and has adopted a totally different line of work. The play is essentially one of the primal type and deals with a phase of life that so far has seen but little exploitation upon the stage. Associated with Mr. Daly in this new enterprise are three players who will unquestionably command attention. These are Holbrook Blinn, Chrystal Herne and Helen Ware. Mr. Daly has given his personal attention to the staging and presentation of the new play, and while under the direction of Liebler & Co., he is mainly responsible for the existence of the play itself, and has given his personal attention to every detail. This engagement may be looked upon as one of the important events of the present season.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

John Winzenreid, the Lee place trucker, is always ready to attend to all orders. Great care is exercised in the movement of goods.

When you purchase milk, cream, butter and eggs at Brokaw's creamery you can rest assured that you are getting the best at reasonable prices.

Boice, Runyon & Co., sell the best coal mined and it is well screened and full weight is given. Builders' and masons' materials always in stock.

Just remember that A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber, of Watchung avenue, is an expert and it pays to engage such men when work in his line is needed.

If you cannot find ready to wear shoes to please you let George Stagaard, of Church street, make you a pair. They will give the highest satisfaction. Prices low.

"The White Store" is the ideal shopping place. The goods are always up to date and you can get anything here that is to be found in a first-class dry goods house of this character. Inspect the stock and be convinced of its merits. An excellent men's furnishing department is also conducted. Trading stamps with every purchase.

Commercial Travelers to Dance.

Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers of America, has issued invitations to a reception and dance to be given at the Casino, Friday night, February 21. This will be the second affair of the kind given by the council this winter, the first one being such a success that it was decided to plan for another.

The Fighting Chance.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1906, by the Curtis Publishing Company.
Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

And now he had no more need of secrets from himself. Now, turning his gaze inward, he looked upon all with which he had chosen to deceive himself. And there was nothing left for self deception.

"If I marry you," he said calmly, "at least I know what I am getting."

"I will marry you, Howard. I've got to marry somebody pretty soon. You or Captain Voucher."

For an instant a vicious light flashed in his narrowing eyes. She saw it and shook her head with weary cynicism.

"No, not that. It could not attract me even with you. It is really vulgar—that arrangement. Noblesse oblige, mon ami. There is a depravity in marrying you that makes all lesser vices stale as virtues."

He said nothing. She looked at him, lazily amused; then, inattentive, turned and paced the floor again.

"Shall I see you tomorrow?" he demanded.

"If you wish. Captain Voucher came down on the same train with me. I'll set him adrift if you like."

"Is he preparing for a declaration?" sneered Quarrier.

"I think so," she said simply.

"Well, if he comes tonight after I'm gone, you wait a final word from me. Do you understand?" he repeated, with repressed violence.

"No, Howard. Are you going to propose to me tomorrow?"

"You'll know tomorrow," he retorted angrily. "I tell you to wait. I've a right to that much consideration anyway."

"Very well, Howard," she said, recognizing in him the cowardice which she had always suspected to be there.

She bade him good night. He touched her hand, but made no offer to kiss her. She laughed a little to herself, watching him striding toward the elevator.

She turned leisurely, her slim hands balanced lightly on her narrow hips, and strolled into the second dressing room, where Mrs. Vendenning sat sullenly indulging in that particular species of solitaire known as "The Idiot's Delight."

"Well?" inquired Mrs. Vendenning, looking up at the tall, pale girl she was chaperoning so carefully during their sojourn in town. "What did Howard Quarrier want?"

"He knows, I think, but he hasn't yet informed me."

"I'll tell you one thing, Agatha," said Mrs. Vendenning, gathering up the packs for a new shuffle, "Grace Ferrall doesn't fancy Howard's attention to you, and she's beginning to say so. When you go back to Shotover you'd better let him alone."

"I'm not going back to Shotover," said Agatha.

"What?"

"No, I don't think so. However, I'll let you know tomorrow. It all depends—but I don't expect to." She turned as her maid tapped on the door. "Oh, Captain Voucher. Are you at home to him?" flipping the pasteboard on to the table among the scattered cards.

"Yes," said Mrs. Vendenning aggressively, "unless you expect him to flop down on his knees tonight. Do you?"

"I don't—tonight. Perhaps tomorrow. I don't know. I can't tell yet." And to her maid she nodded that they were at home to Captain Voucher.

Quarrier had met him, too, just as he was leaving the hotel lobby. They exchanged the careful salutations of men who had no use for one another. On the Englishman's clean cut face a deeper hue settled as he passed; on Quarrier's not a trace of emotion, but when he entered his motor he sat bolt upright, stiff backed and stiff necked, his long gray gloved fingers moving restlessly over his pointed beard.

* * * * * * *

The night was magnificent. Myriads of summer stars spangled the heavens. Plank, driving his big motor northward through the night, Leila Mortimer beside him, twice mistook the glimmer of a firefly for the distant lamp of a motor, which amused Leila, and her clear young laughter floated back to the ears of Sylvia and Siward, curled up in their corners of the huge tonneau. But they were too profoundly occupied with each other to heed the sudden care free laughter of the young matron, though in these days her laughter was infrequent enough to set the more merciless tongues wagging when it did sound.

Plank had never seen fit to speak to her of her husband's scarcely veiled menace that day he had encountered him in the rotunda of the Algonquin Trust company. His first thought was to do so—to talk it over with her, consider the threat and the possibility of its seriousness, and then come to some logical and definite decision as to what their future relations should be. Again and again he had been on the point of doing this when alone with Leila—uncomfortable, even apprehensive, because of their frank intimacy. But he had never had the opportunity to do so without deliberately dragging in the subject by the ears in all its ugliness and implied reproach for her imprudence and seeing that dreadful, vacant change in Leila's face which the mere mention of her husband's name was sure to bring turn into horror unspeakable.

He now feared Mortimer, but that fear struck him only through Leila or had so reached him until the days of his closing struggle with Quarrier. That threat of Mortimer's to involve Plank with Leila in one common ruin, that boast that he was able to do so could not be ignored as a possible weapon if Quarrier should by any chance learn of it.

In all his life he had taken Leila into his arms but once, had kissed her but once. But that once had been enough to arm Mortimer with danger from head to foot. Some prying servant had either listened or seen—perhaps a glimmer of a mirror had betrayed them. At all events whoever had seen or heard had informed Mortimer, and now the man was equipped, the one and only man in all the world who could with truth accuse Plank, the only man of whom he stood in honest fear.

This is the Square Pot

Patented

Found only in

Boynton Furnaces

Did you ever operate a furnace made with the old-fashioned round fire pot, with its sloping sides to catch ashes and retard combustion; its grate bars of uneven length constantly requiring raking; its big waste of fuel?

Then you will appreciate the many advantages of the square fire pot used exclusively in Boynton Furnaces. Walls are perpendicular, instead of slanting; a touch of the shaker removes all ashes without clogging or the necessity of raking.

Gives 25 per cent greater heating efficiency than any other pot of equal diameter

This is the only construction in which the grate bars operate with even motion under the whole fire bed, giving quick, perfect combustion and the fullest benefit of every ounce of fuel.

There's but one square pot—found in all Boynton Furnaces. Your plumber, steam-fitter or tinsmith will gladly show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

Bowling and General Sports

GREAT PIN SMASHING BY THE GRANT BOWLERS

Speaking of bowling, Chief Kiely's Grant team surely did some in a tourney series at Campbell's alleys last night. Pitted against Harry Radin's Brian Borus they evidently thought it was up to them to get busy and such smashing of the timber as followed went beyond anything the tourney has yet brought out. The high records made by the Washingtons Tuesday night were knocked to smithereens. In the first game the Grants made a team total of 1,010, the big tally resting on a chalk up of 267 by Chief Kiely. This individual score beats the high one made by "Bill" Skinner Tuesday night while the 1,010 is the first time a team has gone over the thousand mark.

The Grants took two of the three games in the series, losing the other in the last frame through a Brian Boru rally. The rooters claim it was due to Henry Kuehn, who made but 9 in his first try and in the second finished with three strikes, something entirely unexpected on his part. Beside Chief Kiely, Ed Laing was the only man to go over the 200 mark, the Brian Borus failing to get a double century.

Last night's series makes it practically certain that the Grants will win the tourney as the Washingtons, who are in second place, will have to take three straight from the Roderick Dhus to tie them for first money.

BRYAN'S DAY IN JERSEY

The Nebraskan Thrills Great Crowds at Jersey City, Passaic and Newark.

ESCORTED BY J. E. MARTINE.

Roosevelt Lauded by Peerless One Who Says Government Is Run In Predatory Wealth's Interests.

William Jennings Bryan addressed large audiences in three Jersey cities yesterday, being escorted about by his closest friend in the East, James E. Martine, of this city. In Jersey City three thousand persons crowded into the Majestic theatre to hear the Democratic candidate for President. Early last evening Passaic Democrats cheered the Peerless One in the crowded theatre, and when he arrived at the Coliseum in Newark, after 9 o'clock, the great auditorium was filled to overflowing and gave the distinguished visitor a rousing welcome. He spent the night at the home of Charles H. Ingersoll, in South Orange. Mr. Bryan before he left Newark last night for South Orange said that the reception he had received in New Jersey pleased him and he felt sure that the State could be swung into the Democratic column this year, if the leaders would work in harmony.

About three thousand men and women heard Mr. Bryan in the Majestic theatre, Jersey City, early in the afternoon. He spoke for an hour and forty-five minutes. The keynote of his speech was the vindication of Democratic principles, declaring that the Democratic party, founded by Thomas Jefferson, a believer in the people, is the party which aims at the greatest good of the greatest number. The Republican party, he said, is the party of Hamilton, who believed in a government by aristocracy and "in a government suspended from the top."

Mr. Bryan said the President's recent message indicated there was a conspiracy among men of wealth to prevent the enforcement of the laws. This conspiracy is a consequence of the delivery of the country to the highest bidder, of which Democratic speakers have told. The money question has been taken out of politics, not because the Republican leaders took pity on the people, but because God took pity on the people and gave them much gold."

Mr. Bryan said that Secretary Taft wanted to amend the present law against conspiracy in restraint of trade by inserting the word "unreasonable." Why not make the same amendment to the law against burglary or murder so that the burglar should be required to take only half or the murderer to slay politely.

Public opinion is getting educated on the trust business, he said. The Republicans say, "Be deliberate; go slow." Mr. Bryan told of several ancient cases of trusts, beginning with one mentioned by Josephus.

"The people are willing to take up the railroad question, but our opponents say they are not ready to deal with it." The attitude of the Democratic party, he declared, has been vindicated by the country's experience with railroads.

"My work to the end of my life shall be devoted to the returning of this government to the people from whom it has been despoiled.

Mr. Bryan asked the people to support Representative Hamill, whom he commended.

S. S. Swaekhamer spoke before Bryan arrived.

An audience of a thousand persons enthusiastically greeted Mr. Bryan at the Passaic theatre. John F. Wynne presided, and after the address had been delivered entertained Mr. Bryan at dinner. Then Mr. Bryan was taken in hand by the committee from Newark and escorted in a closed automobile to that city.

It was 9:30 o'clock when Mr. Bryan reached Newark, where a crowd of about twelve hundred persons was waiting for him at Kurz's Colosseum. Former Senator Smith and James Nugent were not there. Mr. Bryan attacked the corporations and took the Democrats to task for not supporting him. He said that he worked for Parker in 1904 and that in spite of the fact that Parker was safe and sane and had the support of all of the Democratic newspapers Parker polled a million and a quarters votes less than he did four years previous.

He declared it was wrong to blame the President for the recent panic; that the ones guilty of the wrongdoing were to blame and not the one pointing it out, and that the President should have done in five years ago. He blamed New Jersey for giving birth to corporations which he said preyed upon the people of other States, and said that its citizens would pay $100 for every dollar they get from a corporation.

TEACHERS ARE UNDERPAID

Harold Nomer Says That Higher Salaries Would Benefit Pupils in Schools.

BEFORE MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

Speaker Urges Plainfield Mothers to Secure an Increase in Salaries of Teachers—Modern Education.

Stating that it was to the interest of the parents of pupils in the local schools to secure an increase in teachers' salaries on the ground that the offer of more pay would be the means of securing more efficient work from the teachers and therefore a better education for the child, Harold A. Nomer, a graduate of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1906, and now a teacher in the Poly Prep School at Brooklyn, made a strong appeal for increase in teachers' salaries before the meeting of the Plainfield Mothers' Association held at the High School yesterday afternoon.

"Your physician, who takes care of the body of your child," said the speaker, "and your minister, who cares for his spiritual development, draw salaries from three to seven times as large as the teacher, who, in the present day, develops body, soul and mind in the public school." Better salary for the teacher means better education for the child, and this association should devote itself to the work of bringing about the increase that will make it worth while to be a teacher, and will be a means of furnishing the best in the way of education to the child. Appeal to the board of education in this matter. If you cannot gain the desired end by this means, bring the matter before the voters through the public press."

Mr. Nomer's address was listened to by a large delegation of members of the local Mothers' Association. The speaker said in part: "I want to set before you this afternoon two phases of educational work which I believe you are not fully cognizant of. The first is the attitude of the child of the present day toward study. There is too much attention paid to athletics and social life in our schools. In a recent address at Harvard, Owen Wister said that there is today no great American scholar to whom the whole world may look as an authority. This is due to the fact that in this modern, materialistic age too much attention is paid to the materialistic and the social and too little to the intellectual.

"Consider for a moment the rank of the athlete in our colleges as compared with that of the student. The present day college man cannot even tell you the names of the high standing men in his class, but he can name every member of the football and baseball teams and will turn out to cheer these men on the field and award them flattering ovations for their work for the college. The real student he terms a "grind," and such a man is awarded no share in the honors bestowed by the student body. This attitude toward curriculum perfection is the real cause of the lack of an American scholar, recognized the world over.

"The parents of school children today show an astonishing indifference about the child's education. There is no attempt made to cooperate with the teacher in the instruction of the pupil, and in but few cases does the parent know the teacher personally. If the choice of a school and the investigation of what the child is learning were attended to by the parent with as much care as is the purchase of a new automobile, for instance, teacher and parent could co-operate most efficiently for the advantage of the pupil in the school.

"More efficient instruction in our public schools can be secured by an increase in the salary of our teachers. The highest paid woman teacher in the Plainfield schools receives $1,200 a year, and $1,800 is the largest salary paid a male teacher. These are extreme figures and the majority of the teachers are underpaid. Statistics show that nine-tenths of the school teachers in this country are dependent upon their relatives, and are unemployed for two months in the summer. This matter should be taken up by the Plainfield Mothers' Association in the interests of the best education for their children."

Held on Assault Charge.

W. Miles Warrick, colored, of West Fourth street, was arraigned before Justice Hezekiah Hand yesterday afternoon, charged by Kaspar Sachar, of West Fourth street, with assaulting his nine-year-old son, Michael Sachar. The defendant admitted shaking the boy but said he did so after he had called him insulting names. After hearing a number of witnesses, the court held him in $100 bail for the Grand Jury.

7TH DAY BAPTIST EVENT

Local Congregation of That Denomination Celebrates its Seventieth Anniversary.

DR. LEWIS MAKES ADDRESS.

Retiring Pastor, Dr. Gardner, Has Charge of Program—Encouraging Reports Are Read.

Services in celebration of the seventieth anniversary of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of Christ were held this morning at which time reports from all the societies were presented, and an address was made by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, former pastor of the church. There was also a special program of music in charge of Miss Jessie Utter, organist. The occasion was also marked by the attendance of the members of the New Market Baptist church, which is the mother of the local organization, and which enjoys the distinction of being more than 200 years old.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, was in charge of the services, which opened with an organ voluntary by Miss Jessie Utter. After the invocation by Dr. Gardiner, the choir, of which David E. Titsworth is conductor, sang an anthem. Then followed devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. N. H. Jordan, of New Market.

Letters were read from former pastors, included one from Dr. A. E. Main, now dean of Alfred University, who congratulated the church upon the celebration. A message was expected from Rev. George B. Shaw, but it was delayed. Dr. Lewis the third surviving pastor, was present to speak for himself. The letter from Dr. Main was read by J. D. Spicer. Following the offertory solo by Geo. Smith, tenor, the reports from the societies were presented. Although it was the seventieth anniversary the reports were prepared to cover the last ten years more especially as the other sixty years were thoroughly covered a decade ago.

The first of these reports was from Asa F. Randolph, church clerk. This showed that the church was organized seventy years ago tomorrow, February 9, 1838, with fifty-seven constituent members. Ten years ago the membership was 299. Since then there has been added 36 by baptism and 49 by letter. Of the original fifty-seven members, but one survives, Mrs. Mary Ann Rogers, and the clerk was directed to send her a message of congratulation and fellowship.

The aggregate expenditures of the church for all purposes, including foreign and domestic missions, and local charities during the past seventy years were $90,387.58. Mention was also made of several bequests, including one of $1,000 from the late Mrs. Charles Potter, a property on West Sixth street from the late Charles Potter, $500 from the late Charles H. Stillman and $1,500 from the late J. F. Hubbard. The report of the Sabbth-school was given by Nathan Wardner.

The Christian Endeavor Society, through the recording secretary, Miss Eva Rogers, showed that much had been accomplished since its organization in 1891. There are now 47 active members. The last report was that of the Women's Society for Christian Work, given by Mrs. O. S. Rogers. There has been raised during the ten years $2,969.85 for all purposes.

After the presentation of the reports Dr. Lewis gave a short address, in which he congratulated the members of the church for what had been accomplished during the twenty years and also admonished them for what they have not done.

Song Recital Success Assured.

The song recital by W. T. Carleton, baritone, at the Casino, Tuesday night, February 11, has aroused great interest and the sale of tickets has been such as to justify the statement that the financial results will be satisfactory to all. The City Union of The King's Daughters, under whose auspices the recital will be given, as well as the patronesses, have devoted considerable energy and time to the affair. The program will include English, Scotch, Welsh, Irish songs and "The Barrack Room Ballads," by Rudyard Kipling. The proceeds from the recital will be used to install a heating system at the Day Nursery.

Boroughites' Sleigh Ride.

A merry party of borough young people took a straw ride to Scotch Plains last night. The sleighing is reported as excellent. Those who made the trip were the Misses Laura Dawe, Ethel Campbell, Elsie Debele, May Voehl, Walter Debele, Howard Debele and Edward Allen. Russell Sharpe acted as driver.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of this city, has returned to her home after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Ramsay, of Lebanon.

SHRINERS' INSTALLATION

Salaam's Banquet is Marked by a Visit of the Imperial Potentate.

H. W. MARSHALL POTENTATE.

Big Time at Krueger Auditorium In Newark—A List of the New Officers.

Frank C. Roundy, of Chicago, imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, was the guest of honor last night at the twenty-eighth annual banquet of Salaam Temple in Newark, of which H. W. Marshall, of this city, is potentate. The banquet was held in Krueger Auditorium at 5 o'clock.

The imperial potentate arrived in Newark yesterday morning, and was met at the station by a delegation from Salaam Temple. His visit here was his annual inspection of the local branch. He was accompanied by Past Potentate James T. Rogers, of Kalurab Temple, Binghamton, N. Y.

During the afternoon he was taken by the committee in an automobile on a sight-seeing trip of Newark, and, there being some time to spare, the trip was extended to the Oranges.

After the banquet a ceremonial session of Salaam Temple was held, and the officers of the temple were installed by Illustrious Noble Palmer L. Charlock. They donned fez and gorwn, and all evening long the Krueger Auditorium resounded with bugle calls and the beating of drums.

Following the installation, Louis V. Aronson, assistant rabban of the local temple, presented the imperial potentate with a handsome golden jewel. This was the gift of the local Shriners.

The officers who were installed were:

Harry W. Marshall, potentate; Alfred N. Dalrymple, chief rabban; Louis V. Aronson, assistant rabban; William C. Astley, high priest and prophet; Andrew C. Snyder, oriental guide; John C. Groel, treasurer; G. C. Ward, recorder; Samuel J. Oldroyd, first ceremonial master; Edward B. Grosgove, second ceremonial master; Jacob P. Schwartz, marshal; William G. Coats, captain of the guard; Edward S. Jackson, outer guard; Charles B. Duncan, director; W. Joseph Seder, assistant director; Charles W. Simonson, assistant director; John G. T. Shoe, assistant director; Frederick E. W. Beebe, oriental messenger; Henry L. Jenkinson, chief of arab patrol; Arthur D. Kelly, alchemist; Fredeick W. Schultz, alchemist; Frederick Schwanhausser, J., electrician; Edward M. Richman, M. D., medical diector; Clement Morris, M. D., medical director; Fred Voss, musical director; Edward Issler, musical director.

Illustrious Potentate Harry W. Marshall was presented with a handsome floral horse-shoe by the Plainfield members of the Temple. The presentation speech was made by ex-Sheriff B. Brank Corriell, and the recipient, who was completely surprised by the gift, responded in a few hearty words of thanks.

The Plainfield members present were L. B. Woolston, James F. Buckle, Henry Liefke, Chris Gloeckler, Judge William A. Coddington, J. A. Staats, Herbert Overbaugh, Nelson Y. Hull, Julius Williams, Casper Bolsterle, Frank H. Smith.

RALPH I. TOLLES IS NOW PLAINFIELD'S MAYOR

Owing to the absence of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Ralph I. Tolles, president of the Common Council, is now chief executive of the city of Plainfield. He will continue to act in such capacity for one week.

Mr. Fisk left this morning for Lakewood to take a much needed rest. Mrs. Fisk has been at the resort for a week. The mayor is expected home next Saturday. In the meanwhile it is "Mayor R. I. Tolles."

Second Bachelor Dance.

The second bachelor dance of the season will be given at the Casino Friday night, February 28, and elaborate plans are being made for the affair. The first dance earlier in the season was largely attended by many of the younger society set of Plainfield and North Plainfield; also out-of-town guests, and a feature was the music. J. Hartley Mellick and Hervey Fisk are in charge of the arrangements.

The Dog Poisoner Again.

Frank Dean, of East Fourth street, lost a valuable bird dog last night. The animal was given a dose of poison and he died in great agony. Last week the dog poisoner was at work in the West End of the city, where two pet canines were killed by this method. Mr. Dean has reported the matter and efforts will be made to get a clue to the person or persons who is following the practice of making-way with valuable dogs.

PATROLMAN PAYNE IN MORE TROUBLE

Patrolman John Payne, of the local force, was arrested last night in New York, for disorderly conduct. Reports that he attempted to resist an officer cannot be confirmed. Patrolman Payne and another officer who had leave of absence went to New York yesterday afternoon and Payne failed to show up last night for duty. He reported "off duty," however.

Payne has been up before the Councilmanic Police Board many times. He was made a special a couple of years ago but has not been successful in being raised to the position of regular patrolman although he has been doing duty continuously. No information could be obtained this afternoon from Mulberry street station, New York, as to the details of Payne's arrest, it being stated that no man of that name had been taken into custody.

FEW MEN WANT WORK ON BOROUGH STREET GANG

Despite the number of men out of employment, the North Plainfield street commissioner has had great difficulty in securing men to work in clearing away the snow after storms. At the borough Council meeting last night, Councilman Waldron, of the street committee, reported that the street work was crippled at the last snow by lack of men. This is the reason that the ordinance by which the street commissioner is to take in hand the work of cleaning sidewalks uncleaned five hours after the cessation of a storm has not been strictly enforced.

The Mayor spoke especially of the good work done by the commissioner with snow-plows immediately after the recent storms. Councilman McGee raised the question as to whether the snow-plows' work constituted the legal cleaning of the sidewalk. Mayor Townsend said that the snow-plows' work was only to open up the path, which must later be cleaned more carefully by the property owners.

In the course of the meeting the Mayor called the attention of the Council to the fact that no sinking fund provision was being made for the payment of the engine house bonds, amounting to $10,000, which will be due in 1915. He urged that some provision to meet this be made, and the matter will be taken up at the next meeting. Mayor Townsend also urged continued activity in the matter of the sewer question and urged the committe to find out accurately the cost of a plant operated in co-operation with Plainfield.

CIVIL SERVICE FRIENDS PRAISE ACKERMAN BILL

On behalf of the New Jersey State Civil Service Association, E. K. Sumerwell, chairman of its legislative committee, has given out this statement concerning the Ackerman civil service bill, the Union county legislator's measure, as favorably reported by the Senate committee:

"The Ackerman bill is really a composite bill, made up of the best features of the original Colby bill and the Thompson bill of last year, revised and improved in the light of suggestions made by our association with the aid of Elliot H. Goodwin, secretary of the National Civil Service League. Mr. Goodwin is recognized as the leading authority in this country on the practical workings of civil service laws, derived through a long experience in dealing with the federal and various State laws. His suggestions have been cordially received by the Senate committee in charge of the bill, composed of Senators Ackerman, Frelinghuysen and Gebhardt, and in addition the attorney general's office has rendered invaluable aid, respecting the constitutionality of the measure.

"We therefore believe that in view of the extreme care and attention to detail bestowed upon this bill, it offers the best civil service law yet devised for the State of New Jersey, and are of the opinion that it can with safety be adopted in its present form practically without amendment."

Boys' Department Straw Ride.

About twenty-five members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., with Boys' Secretary L. A. Soule, will take a straw ride to Westfield tonight. The party will meet at the association building at 7:30 o'clock and upon their return, hot chocolate will be served at the Y. M. C. A. building.

MISS CHANDLER A BRIDE

Mayor Townsend Officiates for First Time at Civil Ceremony in Borough.

CHARLES BARLOW THE GROOM.

Couple Wedded in Floral Bower at Home of Bride's Aunt, Mrs. L. W. Perrin, at Noon.

Married by the civil ceremony performed by Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, Miss Maud Chandler, niece of Mrs. W. L. Perrin, of Rockview terrace, became the wife of Chas. Barlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, at a home wedding performed at the house of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Perrin, of Rockview terrace, at high noon today. The bride is a member of the Society of Plymouth Brethren and moved to New York city some time ago after living for some time in the borough at the home of her aunt.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room of the Perrin home, in a bower of palms and pink roses. About seventy-five people were present, representing the relatives and immediate friends of the couple. The bride was gowned in pale blue chiffon broadcloth, trimmed with lace and hand embroidery. She wore a black velvet hat trimmed with heavy plumes and carried orchids. Attending her was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Chandler. Miss Chandler wore plum-colored panne velvet, trimmed with roses to match her gown, and she carried violets.

The bride was given in marriage by Mrs. W. L. Perrin, gowned in black lace. William Barlow, brother of the groom, was best man. At the conclusion of the ceremony, a collation was served, followed by a reception. The couple left for an extended wedding trip in the South this afternoon and upon their return will reside in this city.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION MEETS FOR BUSINESS AND LECTURE.

Mrs. S. H. Voorhees and Mrs. L. H. Gates were elected delegates to the International Congress of Mothers to be held next month, in the course of business at the meeting of the Plainfield Mothers' Association held at the Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon. The convention will be held in Washington, D. C., March 10-17. Announcement was made at the meeting that Mrs. Prior, of East Ninth street, has been appointed representative of the State Child Lobor Association to act in this city.

Mrs. William Sandford, Jr., president of the association, presided and considerable time was taken up with a discussion of the introduction of the one session plan in the lower grades. The meeting was about evenly divided on the question and the discussion will be continued at the next meting. It was decided to omit the April meeting and have the members of the association attend Miss Susan Colton's lecture on March 25 instead. At the conclusion of the business session, Harold A. Nomer spoke briefly on educational topics.

SECRETARY PARKER IS READY TO BEGIN WORK.

Herbert E. Parker, the newly appointed general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will move to this city Monday, taking up his residence on Westervelt avenue, with his wife and child. Mr. Parker will be at the local association Monday for the first and will be there "learning the ropes" of his new job until he assumes full charge of the work Monday morning, February 17. On that day, the retiring secretary, Kenneth Robbie, will leave for Springfield, Mass., where he has been appointed financial secretary of the Y. M. C. A. there.

All members and friends of the association are invited to attend the farewell reception to Mr. and Mrs. Robbie, to be held at the Y. M. C. A. next Thursday night, and at this time Mr. and Mrs. Parker will be welcomed to the city and association work.

Amateur Numbers and Cake Walk.

In connection with Salisbury's pictures, amateur numbers will again be given at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night. There will also be a new feature in the form of a prize cake walk. Several entries have already been received and there is every prospect of a large number coming in before Monday night.

Temporary Place of Worship.

On account of a leak in one of the tubes of the boiler which renders it impossible to heat the church the Park Avenue Baptist curch will hold their morning service and Sunday-school in the Y. M. C. A. hall. There will be no evening service. The steam fitters expect to have the boilers fixed in two or three days.

BOROUGH FATHERS' WORK

Big Batch of Routine Business Disposed of by North Plainfield Council.

DISCUSS DELINQUENT TAXES.

Fourteen Arrests During January—Preparations Being Made for the Annual Budget.

Routine business, in connection with the regular reports of the chairmen of the various committees, was transacted at the February meeting of the North Plainfield Council held last night. Councilman Woolston was the only absentee. The session lasted but an hour.

A report on the outstanding personal taxes in the borough for the years 1904, 1905 and 1906, made by Councilman Clifford A. McGee at the meeting showed that a total of $948.64 remains unpaid for these years. On his motion this account was transferred to the "suspense account" of the borough treasurer, meaning that the account is not to be depended upon as a borough asset, but an effort will be made to collect these taxes through the tax collector's deputy, Thomas Finney. A considerable amount of tax money has already been collected by the deputy.

In his report Mr. McGee said that his committee had gone over the tax books and found the amounts distributed as follows: 1904, $246.14; 1905, $390.63; and 1906, $311.87, with the interest figured in. This money owing the borough is on poll, dog and personal taxes, and many of the persons taxed cannot be located.

The petition of Stahl & Kinney to erect a two-story frame dwelling, 22 by 26 feet, at 15 Pearl street, was received and granted, but the petition of A. L. Carney for the removal of a building on Somerset street at Somerset place to 77 Somerset street, was laid over until the next meeting, to give the councilmanic committee opportunity to see the building and come to a decision. Residents of Jefferson avenue petitioned the Council to place two lights on that street between Greenbrook road and Walnut street, and this petition was also laid over until the next meeting.

A petition for a crosswalk at Myrtle and Willow avenues to run at an angle across the street, caused some discussion in the Council. It was reported that there were already five crosswalks in the immediate vicinity, and one of the councilmen suggested that if the petitions kept coming in, perhaps it would be cheaper in the end for the borough to lay a brick pavement there. This sally caused a general laugh and the matter was laid over until the next meeting.

In his formal report on the condition of the North Plainfield fire hydrants, Councilman Smith, of the fire, water, and lamps committee, said that the inspectors had found two fire hydrants out of commission and the Mayor suggested that a deduction be made from the next bill submitted by the water company because of inefficient service in these cases.

In connection with the report of Councilman Nichols for the laws, ordinance and tax committee, a petition was framed to the telephone company requesting that the telephone at police headquarters be exempted from local tolls. Mr. Nichols announced the distribution of a new set of rules of order for council meetings and offered them for future guidance in meetings. They will be acted upon at the next meeting. Suffern & Son, auditors of the borough treasurer's and clerk's books, reported the correctness of the accounts. This auditing is in accordance with the annual custom of the borough.

Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver's report showed fourteen arrests in the month of January and $20 in fines collected and turned over to the borough treasurer.

Preparatory to the making of the annual budget by the various committees of the council, Mayor Townsend suggested that each committee hold a meeting before the council met in March and prepare to submit figures for the budget. Copies of the expenditures of the past year will be distributed within a week as a guide in making up the various amounts necessary.

Will Discuss "The Open Saloon."

Commencing tomorrow night, Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, will preach the first of a series of three sermons on topics of live interest. The subject tomorrow night will be "The Open Saloon." The following Sunday night it will be "The Open Sunday," and the third discourse on Sunday night, February 23, it will be "The Open Church."

Funeral of Mrs. Schults.

The funeral of Mrs. Simmond Schults, who died yesterday morning, will be held at her late residence on Park avenue Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in the Methodist cemetery.

FIRE PROBERS GET BUSY

Mayor Fisk and Councilmanic Committee Investigate Into the Letcher Blaze.

MANY WITNESSES EXAMINED.

Practical Test of Water Pressure to Be Made This Afternoon—Report to Council on February 17.

Sitting as investigators, the Councilmanic fire committee met in the office of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, last night, and began an inquiry to fix responsibility for delay at the Letcher fire Sunday night, which resulted in the complete destruction of the handsome residence on Belvidere avenue. Twenty witnesses in all were called before the body and their testimony was taken separately, making it impossible for any of them to become posted before answering questions. Each councilman took his own notes of the proceedings and in addition it was decided to have a practical test of the water pressure in the Netherwood hydrants at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Two of them near the scene of the blaze on Belvidere avenue will be opened and a stream will be sent through 250 feet of hose, city officials and representatives of the water company watching the proceedings.

The taking of testimony lasted from 8 o'clock until midnight and because of the late hour, the councilmen did not enter into any discussion of what they had learned. The committee decided to make deductions from the evidence and from the hydrant test and a report will be presented to the Common Council at the special meeting on February 17.

The investigation committee comprised Chairman H. D. Hibbard, Charles C. Randolph, Robert H. Hall and H. B. Suydam. Mr. Buxton was the only member of the fire committee who was not present, another engagement calling him out of the city. Mayor Fisk examined the majority of the witnesses and Councilmen Tolles and Gloak were interested spectators, as was also Richard Letcher, Jr., son of the man whose home was destroyed. The fire and the manner in which it was finally put out was traced step by step from the moment it was discovered by members of the Letcher family until the recall was sounded at 1.15 Monday morning. Every detail was gone into and special stress was placed on points relating to the opening of hydrants and as to the manner in which the calls for the various apparatus were sent in after the first alarm was received at headquarters. There had been some criticism to the effect that had a general alarm been turned in after the arrival of the first companies at the house the result might have been different.

Another point which Mayor Fisk wished to bring out clearly and which is said to have proven entirely satisfactory to the committee was one involving the firemen's knowledge of hydrants. An assertion has been made that some of the regular men in the department have but a faint idea as to the inside plan of a water plug and that at the Letcher fire they attempted to turn valves the wrong way. The Mayor built an imitation hydrant out of a box and brass cuspidor and as firemen acting as witnesses were called in, they were instructed to take a wrench, go to the "hydrant" and open it. Without exception, the men went about the motions of doing it exactly as it should be. It was stated afterward that the committee has no further doubts on this subject.

Still another matter that was looked into carefully was a statement to an official by a bystander at the blaze that a fireman had gone into the house with a hand extinguisher and turned it upside down in order to start a stream flowing. The kind used by the department simply required the turning of a valve to be operated. The department member named said that he had carried an extinguisher into the house upside down but added they were handled anyway until it was time to start the chemicals going and then they were placed in the proper position. Enough witnesses were brought forward to satisfy the committee that this story was another of the many idle rumors that had been floating about.

Chief Doane was one of the first witnesses called and he gave a detailed account of his plan in fighting the blaze. He also explained his reasons for sending in calls for apparatus at various times and why it had been impossible for him to refill the chemical tanks after they had been discharged. Under ordinary conditions, he said, it took twenty minutes to put in the amount of water necessary and the way the hydrants were flowing on the night of the fire it would have required an hour's time before the engine could have been working again.

For clothes that fade, put one ounce sugar of lead in a pail of rainwater. Soak over night.

A spoonful of vinegar put into the water in which meat or fowls are boiled makes them tender.

To clean decanters put a teaspoonful of salt in each decanter, moisten with vinegar, shake well to clean the inside of bottle, then rinse thoroughly with cold water.

When mitures have been burned in granite ware half fill the utensil with cold water and add a little washing soda or soap powder. Heat slowly to the boiling point, then empty and wash as usual.

When a broom is beyond use for sweeping purposes it will be found excellent for scrubbing the kitchen floor. Go over the floor with the broom and hot suds, then mop with clear water. Never use a good broom for this purpose.

To obtain spinash green for puddings, icings, etc., bruise well-washed spinach leaves to a pulp in a mortar. Add a few drops of alcohol and mash and mix the two thoroughly together and then squeeze through a strong piece of white cloth.

Bureau and stand covers of barred or fleeced-lined pique are in high favor for country houses on the colonial order. They are usually scalloped all around the sides or trimmed with narrow cotton fringe. They prove practical and keep their prettiness, for they launder beautifully.

A Missouri man has invented something which, if found practical, will be useful for the housewives. It is a paper bag, perforated at the top and a string run through the perforations. There are four holes and the string is placed in a manner which is simple and eaily closes the bag and also furnishes a handle.

Any pine floor can be thus treated: Have floor cleaned dry. Buy two quarts of boiled linseed oil, add a handful of beeswax, warm on back of range until melted, keep hot by setting a pan in a pan of hot water. Fasten a thick wad of woolen cloth on mop and apply. Then shave a nickel's worth of paraffin wax and sprinkle evenly over floor. Let the children have a sliding party for an hour over it with clean shoes. The floor will be waxed and children's shoes waterproofed at the same time. —Chicago Daily News.

H. S. MARTIN WILL QUIT THE REFORMATORY.

Assurance that Harry Stone Martin, son of the superintendent of the Rahway reformatory, and employed as organist there, will leave the employ of the institution, cut short a discussion of the matter at the meeting of the reformatory commission held in the office of former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, in Elizabeth, and prevented an official investigation which would probably have otherwise followed.

The meeting was not a public one. It is understood that the charges made against Martin, and which are of a serious character, were discussed in an informal way only. Some of the commissioners were insistent that an investigation be made and the guilt or innocence of the man be ascertained, but when assurance was received from the young man's father that he would certainly quit the institution as soon as possible, it was decided to drop the matter.

The commission has been trying hard to find out just what "revelations" the Hahn committee intends to make, so as to be able to take immediate steps to remedy any wrongs and offset the effect of the revelations. No information has been forthcoming. It was said by one of the commissioners yesterday that the Hahn investigators have flatly refused to tell anything about the report they were going to make.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Plainfield Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Agnes Christiansen, of 311 Prescott place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was sick from kidney diseases and suffered all kinds of hard pains in my back and loins, and about the kidneys. I could not bend over to pick up anything, and occasionally had dizzy spells and headaches. I could not rest well at night and on the whole my condition was such that life did not seem worth living. Doctors being unable to help me I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which had been used with success in our family. I took them, finding relief in a short time and continued taking them until cured."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

An exceptionally strong company in the best comedy drama of the season is what is promised the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre for this afternoon and tonight when Daniel Sully will be seen in his new four-act play, "The Golden Rule."

There are few outright musical farces today that have met with the out and out success wherever presented, as has "Grimes' Cellar Door," with the clever comedian James B. Mackie as chief fun-maker, assisted by a notable supporting company of entertainers, which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. "Grimes' Cellar Door" has established a standard on the popular priced circuit for itself, that has gone upon record for successful business. One of the principal attributes of this success lies in the fact that there is a certain snappiness, effervescence and action both in the story and musical numbers of "Grimes' Cellar Door" not usually found in this class of attraction. Mr. Mackie gets all the fun possible out of that prominent character, "Grimsey Me Boy," and is ably assisted by his clever company and superb beauty chorus.

Arnold Daly and his excellent company of players are scheduled to appear at the New Plainfield theatre Lincoln's Birthday, afternoon and evening, in the new play "My Mamie Rose," which has undergone the course of development at Mr. Daly's own hands. The story is one of regeneration in every detail, and the principal figure is a prototype of the author himself, Owen Kildare, the novelist, who has risen to great heights in the literary world during the last twelve years. The dramatization of Kildare's life has been made by Walter Hackett and Mr. Daly, and is said to embody material of an exceptional novelty and strength. The scenes of the play are reproduced from accurate drawing of the various places in which the action of the story takes place—drawings that were made some years ago and which are now in the collection of a prominent collector in New York.

A notable member of the company supporting Leo Ditrichstein in "Bluffs," which will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre on Monday night, February 15, is Fred Bond He has been prominent in many of the casts from the time of Bronson Howard to the present day and has the gifts to make himself useful in musical comedy and vaudeville as well. For two seasons he was in "The Social Whirl" and "Fascinating Flora." Mr. Ditrichstein had him in mind when he evolved the part of a fiery Texas colonel in "Bluffs."

The White Sale Lasts Throughout This Week.

More New Bargains Added to the List to Make This the Greatest Week of Them All.

You can easily recognize the bargains we quote below by the well-known brands of the goods, This list added to the innumerable bargains of the WHITE SALE since the beginning will certainly make this the biggest White Sale Week you have attended in a long, long time.

The muslin underwear sale, the embroidery sale, the sheer white goods sale, are each in themselves enough to draw the economical shopper, but we add this new list as an additionel attraction for this first week in February to make a good beginning for our 1908 campaign during this recognized dullest month of the year.

EMBROIDERY FLOUNCINGS 12½c Yard.

You have had some remarkable Embroidery bargains here since the first day of this White Sale. These Flouncings at 12½c are perhaps the biggest bargain of them all, for the quality is good, both the Embroidery and the Fine Lawn they are on, and just think of the price. But Tepper's is the unusual house, for we have no money tied up on our books—Cash is always worth 6 per cent. you know, and then we discontinued trading stamps some time ago that makes 3½ per cent. more we save on every dollar's worth of goods we sell. So we CAN and DO give bargains, and these Embroideries are a good illustration, at yard ..... .12½

The New York Herald Anglo-American Competition

Max Pemberton, England
vs.
Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, America
Referee—The Public

START NOW AND WIN CASH PRIZES

Has England or America produced the better novel?

Does Max Pemberton's "Sir Richard Escombe" eclipse Mary E. Wilkins Freeman's "The Shoulders of Atlas?"

These are the questions which will be decided by the votes of those who read the great competing novels as the instalments appear in the New York Herald Sunday Magazine Section.

Are you taking part in the contest?

If not, start next Sunday—order the New York Sunday Herald, read the synopses and the fourth instalments, then send in your vote and your criticism.

Do this every week from now on, and win some of the cash prizes.

Last week's cash prize winners were:

First Prize—Elizabeth De Binder York, Ossining, N. Y.
Second Prize—Frederic G. Perine, 8 Ware St., Dorchester, Mass.
Third Prize—Mrs. Mary Carroll Dowell, 22 Pierrpont St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Fourth Prize—H. O. Henry, Slade Mansion, 547 Elmwood Ave., Providence, R. I.
Fifth Prize—Mrs. Frederick Stokes, 1617 Beverley Road, Flatbush, Brooklyn.
Sixth Prize—I. W. Williamson, Carthage, N. C.
Seventh Prize—Z. S. Crooker, 60 West 126th St., New York City.

No literary feature in any publication has ever aroused so much interest as has the New York Herald's Anglo-American Competition.

It is one more addition to the list of striking achievements of the New York Herald's Sunday Magazine Section.

For years the Herald's Sunday Magazine has set the pace not only for other Sunday newspapers, but also for monthly magazines.

Its articles of timely interest were the fore-runners of the semi-news articles which are now features of every modern monthly.

But no monthly can equal the Herald's Sunday Magazine in timeliness, because no monthly can be produced and distributed so quickly.

If you read the Herald's Sunday Magazine, you get the best work of the best writers and artists in the world—stirring and romantic fiction, absorbing stories of real life, interviews with men and women who do things, striking special articles and spirited pictures.

And with the magazine you get the whole great New York Herald itself—the News Sections, Comic Section, Art Section—100 pages—all for five cents.

THE NEW YORK HERALD, New York City

GOV. FORT ON AUTO LAW

Doesn't Favor Amendment for Free Use of Roads by Out-of- State Tourists.

At Newark Club's Banquet Guests Heard Decided Expressions of Opinions Concerning Jersey Legislature.

Governor Fort gave strong assurances Thursday that he will lend no support to changes of the New Jersey automobile law designed to give to residents of other States touring privileges in New Jersey without registration here, and stated most positively that he was not in favor of abolishing the speed limit laws in favor of a single provision that a vehicle shall not be run at a greater speed than is consistent with public safety.

The occasion was the annual banquet of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club in Newark, and Governor Fort's statements came as an answer to an appeal made by Judge William H. Hotchkiss, president of the American Automobile Association, that the New Jersey law as now enforced be done away with, and provisions of wide latitude substituted in its place.

Governor Fort was the first speaker of the evening, but arose at the conclusion of Judge Hotchkiss' speech with the remark that because of his official position he could not remain silent after the opinions voiced by Judge Hotchkiss, and leave the possible inference that he concurred in the judge's sentiments.

"I do not say," asserted Governor Fort, "that the provisions of the New Jersey automobile law in regard to the licensing of tourists properly licensed in the State of their residence is not unduly harsh, but I do say that I can see not the slightest reason why motorists who use New Jersey roads almost, if not quite, as much in the summer months as residents of this State, should not be required to pay some license fee for the wear and tear they cause on the roads.

"The gentlemen from New York must remember that New Jersey is situated far differently from their own State. We have Long Branch, Atlantic City, and a host of other coast resorts to which residents of New York, Pennsylvania and other States tour for three months in the summer. During this period they make as much use of the highways across the State as do motorists who live right here in Newark or the Oranges. Why should they not be made to pay at least in part for the damage they cause the roads?"

In answering a bitter attack by President Hotchkiss and Charles T. Terry, chairman of the legislative board of the American Automobile Association, upon the provision of the New Jersey law which requires motorists, residents of other States, who register here, to acknowledge the Attorney-General as his attorney for service of writs which may arise through civil suits, the Governor said:

"My friend, the judge, in claiming for foreign motorists touring in New Jersey the right to be tried in their own States for crimes alleged to be committed here, has overlooked the fact that the injured party is always a resident of this State, and therefore his right to be heard before a jury of his neighbors is higher than that of the non-resident motorist. Therefore, I must say that I am heartily in favor of this principal of the law, for it guarantees simple justice to the injured party."

President Hotchkiss, in his speech, referred to the evolution of the automobile from the caravans of the desert, and had presumed the higher right for the new vehicle. To this the Governor likewise took exception. He advised the club members that they could never attain their ends through treating the farmer as belonging to a lesser order.

"As in New York, the balance of power in the Legislature is held by the country districts," said he, "and while the influence of Newark, Jersey City and Trenton is considerable, you must bear in mind that the right way to go about attaining your ends is not to antagonize, but to counsel with the resident of the farming districts. The roads were built for him long before automobiles were thought of, and he has vested rights which must be considered."

Previous to his declaration of principles on the most mooted questions of the automobile legislation, the Governor declared himself as fully in favor of a law requiring lights on all vehicles, and was cheered to the echo for several minutes by the two-hundred-odd motorists present. He declared it to be a measure designed as much for the protection of the carriage driver as the motorist, and said there was not a single valid reason for opposition to it. The chief guest of honor also evoked applause when he asserted that he believed future years would see every tire on the road taxed, horse vehicle as well as automobile.

"The farmer now pays in taxes for road reuairs more than such a tax would amount to. By a universal tax of this sort the cost for the maintenance and building of roads would be placed upon the actual users of the highways. The roads are not used by pedestrians, and the fairest way to assess the cost of their repair is by taxing those directly interested."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will discuss the subject "Will There be a Judgment?" at the service tomorrow night, it being one of the special discourses.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church continued its study of the Bible last night under the leadership of Rev. Dr J. S. Zelie, Howard H. Williams and Miss Elsie Goddard.

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will form a Young Men's Bible class after the morning service tomorrow. Dr. Herbert E. Baright, editor of the well-known Daily Bible, has been secured as teacher. The committee in charge of the plans for forming the class comprise J. L. Brownless, G. H. Davey and S. H. Voorhees.

FORT AFTER PENNSY.

Bill to Be Put in to Stop Station Abandonment.

Governor Fort is of the opinion that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company should restore Haddon avenue station in the city of Camden, and it is not improbable that the Legislature will pass a bill making it illegal for a railroad company to abandon a station unless it shall first show to the satisfaction of the State Railroad Commission that travel does not warrant its continuance.

For a long time it has been the policy of the Pennsylvania to reduce the number of stations. In the nineteen miles between Camden and Mt. Holly seven stations have been abandoned within three years.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Eggs are on the wing, and it's not the hatching season, either.

The nest box under the dropping board is the greatest invention of man to stop hens laying. How many mites do you get from those nests every day? Do you keep a mite record?

Do you think you are something in the chicken world? Well, we don't mind your crowing, but don't scratch. Don't lie about your egg record, don't lie about your stock, don't lie about the other fellow.

For Frayed Blankets.

Notice when putting the blankets away for the summer whether they have frayed edges. If so they will soon wear out. It is the best to work the edges with a loose buttonhole stitch, using a coarse darning needle and white or colored yarn for this purpose. Small blankets can be cut from large ones which are considerably worn, and finished in this way for the children's beds.

CONCERNING MR. ACKERMAN.

Senator Ackerman of Union is a practical business man and an eminently successful one, too. He is also an experienced politician. He has served as chairman of the City Republican Committee of Plainfield and has frequently been sent to city, county and State conventions as a delegate. He is popular in Union, as was shown by his success in leading a revolt against the party managers and thus securing his position in the Senate. From every point of view the practical propositions made by the Senator are worthy of consideration. He has prepared a bill intended to help the unemployed in cities by providing one or more free employment offices with a superintendent and police supervision. At present the employment agencies are used mainly for domestic servants and the service is seldom satisfactory either to employer or employed. If every unemployed person could be registered and classified, much time, expense and suffering might be avoided. Senator Ackerman's bill should become a law.—Jersey City Journal.

Mr. Ackerman's friends will endorse the Journal's estimate of its able Senator in general but issue will be taken with that paper on one or two of its assertions. In the first place, the Plainfielder is not a politician in any sense of the word, neither does he pretend to be. Furthermore, he never "led a revolt against the party managers" to secure his election to the Senate. That honor was thrust upon him and the party's convention merely unanimously and effectively obeyed the people's wishes.

The atention of Councilman R. E. Hill, of the Netherwood section, is directed to the fact that the P. S. C. trolley workers have banked the snow in the middle of East End thoroughfares in clearing their own tracks.

GOV. FORT CHATS WITH COLONEL W. J. BRYAN

William Jennings Bryan, who spent Thursday at the home of Chas. H. Ingersoll at South Orange, made the trip to New York in a Lackawanna train, occupying a seat with Governor Fort, yesterday morning. Mr. Bryan was also accompanied by Mr. Ingersoll, Edmond A. Whittier and Colonel Joseph W. Stover, of East Orange.

Governor Fort boarded the train at East Orange, and as soon as he heard that Mr. Bryan was in another car he walked through and sat down beside him and remained talking until the train arrived at Hoboken. The meeting was the renewal of an acquaintance begun at the Gridiron Club dinner about two weeks ago. In his speech to the members the Nebraskan had spoken of the banking law passed in Oklahoma and the Governor asked Mr. Bryan to send him a copy. In return Mr. Bryan asked for a copy of Mr. Fort's inaugural address, with which, he said, he had been greatly impressed.

When Mr. Bryan and the Governor parted a friend of Mr. Fort, who had made the trip on the train and had noted the apparent intimacy of the two men, facetiously inquired of Mr. Fort:

"Weren't you, a Republican, in bad company?"

"No, I don't think so," responded the Governor.

LOCAL OPTION BILL'S FATE IS NOW SEALED.

About everybody in New Jersey is interested in the local option bill which was introduced in the legislature this week at the instance of the Anti-Saloon League. Church folk, temperance people, brewers and liquor dealers and political leaders of all faiths are discussiong the measure and wondering what the legislature will do with it.

The consensus of opinion in unbiased circles is that the measure will be defeated. The Republican majority in both branches of the Legislature is disposed to look upon the recent gubernatorial campaign in the light in which it is taken by Governor Fort, who declares he was elected on a platform pledging him to a strict enforcement of the bishops' law, with no more radical legislation until that measure has been thoroughly tried out.

It is doubtless only coincidence, but the local option law which was enacted in 1888 came from Ocean county, as did this week's measure which was introduced by Assemblyman Benjamin H. Crosby, of Tuckerton.

MAY USE NAME "THE FAYS."

Law Won't Countenance a Deception, Calls Them Rogers.

The injunction granted in the New York Supreme Court in the application of John T. Fay and another, who gave performances here some time ago, restraining Herbert Lainbourne from using the name "The Fays" or "The Phays" in the theatrical profession, was dissolved yesterday by the Appellate Division.

"Equity will not interfere," the opinion says, "to protect a party in the use of a trade mark where the name or phrase claimed as such is intended to deceive the public. Nor is it any answer to say that the defendants are themselves guilty of wrong. Equity does not adjust the difference between rogues."

CAN'T MARRY YET AWHILE.

Court Remands Youth Who Shot Policeman.

Alfred Hoffman, who expected to escape punishment for shooting Policeman Thomas Cosgrove in the ankle, so that he could marry Miss Frances Smith, of Keasbey, was disappointed at New Brunswick yesterday, when Judge Booream remanded him into the custody of the sheriff.

The court intimated that he intended to send the young man to the reformatory, but would refrain for humanity's sake, owing to the diphtheria epidemic there. Hoffman had been jilted by Miss Smith, and was looking for satisfaction when he shot the officer. Since then the girl has forgiven him and is willing to marry him.

$40,000 FIRE IN PASSAIC.

Thomas Prehn's $100,000 Residence Set Ablaze by Electric Wire.

Fire and water damaged the Villa Donita, the home of Thomas Prehn, of 195 Lafayette avenue, Passaic, to the extent of $40,000 yesterday. The residence, which was built recently, cast $100,000.

The fire started in the attic from an electric wire. The Prehn house is on the highest point in the city and low water pressure handicapped the firemen.

Paintings of great value and rare, imported musical instruments and furniture were ruined.

A large section of a ceiling fell on Detective James L. Green, Policeman Edward Bakelaar, and a man named Allen, but they were not seriously hurt.

Appointment Approved.

Trenton, Feb. 8.—Governor Fort was called upon yesterday by a delegation from Hunterdon county, who had come to urge his approval of the selection of John Shields, of Flemington to succeed the late Jarvis Wanser as commandant of the New Jersey Home for Disabled Soldiers, Sailors and the Wives at Vineland. Mr. Shields is now president of the board of managers. Governor Fort anticipated all speechmaking by the delegation by informing it that he would ratify the selection of Mr. Shields, who is himself a veteran of the Civil War. The appointment of commander is made by the managers, with the approval of the Governor. There is a bill pending in the Legislature by which the appointment would be made directly by the Governor.

Mayor Townsend's Appointments.

John Y. Barrett, who has been acting as street commissioner in the borough, was regularly appointed by the Mayor at the meeting of the North Plainfield Common Council last night. Clinton Conover was appointed a callman of the fire department, and Alfred Jardo was appointed special police officer. The men were sworn in at the Mayor's office today.

Under the auspices of the Girls' Mission Club of the Congregational church, a Martha Washington supper will be given Thursday night, February 20.

"BRYAN AND MARTINE!" -OH, WHAT "A SCREAM"

"Come on, boys, and see our next ticket!" Tyler Parmly, chairman the Essex county Democratic committee, gave the cry which attracted a crowd of passengers and deck-hands about the cab occupied by William Jennings Bryan and James E. Martine, while crossing on a Pennsylvania R. R. ferryboat from Manhattan to Jersey City on Thursday afternoon.

There they sat—"The Peerless One" and the "Farmer-orator," bosom, political and personal friends—chatting away about the Democratic rainbows they saw—or thought they saw—in the political sky. Both wore the "smile-that-won't-come-off," which was intensified, if anything, when the enthusiastic Essex county leader shrieked, "Our next ticket!"

"Of, you are too flattering in your remarks," replied the "Farmer-orator."

"Well, you've got nothing to say about this," replied Parmly.

"They seem to make plans at will, without consulting our own wishes," put in the Nebraskan, whose expression showed that he would not be disappointed at such a combination.

"Bryan and Martine"—wouldn't it be a "scream" in more than one sense of the slangy phraseology?

FAIR ACRES CLUB WILL MAKE PLANS FOR SEASON.

The annual meeting of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club will be held at the Hotel Iroquois Monday night, when plans for the coming season will be discussed and officers elected. This association had the most successful season in its history last year when matinee races were held nearly every Saturday at the track on Park avenue. Since then many new members have been added and the prospects for this year are said to be unusually bright. The membership includes owners of horses in towns along the New Jersey Central from Elizabeth to Somerville and Raritan.

At Monday night's meeting plans will be made for the racing season. Improvements will be made at the association's track on Park avenue, which has for a great many years been the scene of good sport.

Victor Houston Surprised.

A surprise party was tendered to Victor Houston at his home, 937 West Front street, last night. The affair was arranged by the Misses Edna Marsh and Myrtle Lance. The evening was spent in playing games and dancing and refreshments were served at midnight.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The petition of the Inter-State Telephone and Telegraph Company to string wires through the township was received at the last meeting of the Township Committee, and Tuesday, March 3, has been decided upon as the day for apublic hearing on the matter of granting the franchise. In the meanwhile, W. A. Coddington, of Plainfield, the township's counsel, is looking over the papers and the franchise the company desires.

Local Seventh-Day Baptists attended the seventieth anniversary service of the Plainfield Seventh-Day Baptist church this morning and on account of this service there was no morning service at the church here. Rev. A. H. Lewis, former pastor of the Plainfield church, preached at the anniversary service, which was largely attended.

"Let Me Alone, or The Sinner's Prayer" is the topic of Rev. George H. Gardner's sermon at the Baptist church tomorrow night. The service will be of an evangelistic nature. J. H. Manning, for twenty years general secretary of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., will address the men's meeting to be held at the church in the afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the Holy Name Society of St. John's church will be held tomorrow morning. At this time several new members will be received.

Mrs. W. W. Casselberry has returned after a visit with her mother at Adams, N. Y.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The joint committee of the fair to be held by the Library Association and Excelsior H. & L. Co. on the evenings of the 21st and 22d, has about completed all arrangements. It is expected that it will be one of the most successful fairs yet held.

Charles Frentz left today for a visit of several weeks with relatives and friends in Texas, from there he will go to Montana where he will have charge of a large mason contract. Mr. Frentz expects to be gone two years.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual house. Morning preaching 10:45, B. Y. P. U. 7:15, followed by the evening sermon at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith and children have taken up their residence in Boston, Mass. Mr. Smith expects to engage in the candy and cigar business at the "Hub."

The People Ice Co. started cutting ice at the "Back Pond" today. A good quality ice is being gathered about 11 inches in thickness.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Morel, of Park avenue, have been entertaining relatives from Pennsylvania.

Rev. Mr. Deitrick will lead the weekly prayer-meeting at the Methodist church tonight.

PRACTICAL EMERGENCY RELIEF PLANS READY

During the cold weather with the consequent suffering among the poor, especially the children, of the city, the Salvation Army will supply hot soup and bread free to poor children and needy families every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 11:30 o'clock to 1:30 o'clock from the Army Hall on East Second street. The first distribution will take place on next Monday and will continue as long as the present need exists.

Captain Greenaway, of the Salvation Army Industrial Home for Men, on East Third street, and Captain Hopkins, of the local corps, are cooperating in these emergency relief measures. They are hopeful that sufficient friends will be found to support them financially in this undertaking. Donations for this object will be gratefully received by them.

TRINITY MISSION BAND HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

Encouraging reports for the past year, election of officers, together with an informal talk by Mrs. J. S. Allen, secretary of the Women's Executive Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church in America, were interesting features of the annual meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon. There was a good attendance of members and friends of the Band, and one thing that especially pleased all was the announcement that twenty-one new members had joined the Band as the result of special effort during the past two months. The total membership now is sixty.

This organization is one of the most active in the church and each year it accomplishes more and more for foreign and domestic missions, besides being a great help to the church in many ways. The report of the retiring treasurer, Miss Miller, showed the receipts for the year to be $338.65, the disbursements $189.46, and abalance of $149.19, which exceeds last year's amount by several dollars. The disbursements have been chiefly for foreign and domestic missions, including work among the Indians.

These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Miss Mabel Wilson; vice president, Miss Edna Dilts; secretary, Miss Edna Cole; treasurer, Mrs. Harry F. Crawford. Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff continues as the corresponding secretary.

A letter was received and read from Mrs. Caroline Hoover, the denominational missionary at Gray Hawk, Kentucky, to whom the Band sent a box of medical supplies. Mrs. Hoover thanked the Band for its thoughtful remembrance, adding that the supplies were greatly needed as there are several cases of smallpox at Gray Hawk.

After the business was transacted Mrs. Allen was introduced and for nearly an hour she told in her usual entertaining way of the excellent work being done by the board of domestic missions among the Indians and the Mountain Whites of Kentucky. She related many amusing and pathetic incidents of this work and impressed upon all the need for even greater effort during the coming year. She said that there are so many people in the home field who are hungering for the story of the Gospel, and the only way they can learn it is through the missionaries.

Mrs. Allen described some of the difficulties with which the missionaries meet in their efforts to carry the message of Christ to those who have never heard the story and how grateful the natives are for everything that is done for them. Her talk was greatly enjoyed by all present and it afforded much encouragement to the members of the Band, who expressed the determination to do greater things this year.

A social hour was enjoyed after the meeting during which cocoa and cake were served by members of the Band and all were given an opportunity to meet Mrs. Allen.

PERSONAL.

Miss Margaret Leggett, of Madison avenue, is confined to her home with an attack of intermittent fever.

Miss Elizabeth R. Cock, of East Fifth street, who has been detained at home by illness, is able to be out again.

John H. Brennan and family, of West Point Military Academy, formerly of this city, are visiting his sister, Mrs. J. D. Frazer, of Grove street.

Class Honors Judge Runyon.

Judge William N. Runyon was tendered a reception by the members of his Sunday-school class at Hope chapel last night. A supper was a feature and at its conclusion addresses were made by G. H. Condict, Rev. L. R. Howard, M. D. Sweeney and James Penny. Ira W. Travell acted as toastmaster. During the evening, the judge was presented with a Modern Reader's Bible, the presentation address being made by George E. Firstbrook. The affair was arranged by Ben Evans and Charles Vincent.

A Chimney Fire.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 1:30 this afternoon for a chimney fire at the home of Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue. A hose wagon was sent out and the trouble was stopped in a short time.

RESCUE MISSION ENTERS UPON ITS THIRD YEAR

The Plainfield Rescue Mission has just completed its second year and services in celebration of the event were held in the W. C. T. U. rooms Thursday night. The superintendent of the Elizabeth Rescue Mission together with several other earnest Christian workers were present and addressed the gathering. There was also special music. Superintendent LeMatty was in charge and in connection with the anniversary he presented an interesting report showing what has been accomplished during the past year.

There were held 221 meetings with an aggregate attendance of 9,600 to hear the Gospel. The superintendent has made 284 calls. Thirteen persons have confessed Christ and are remaining faithful. In addition several have raised their hands for prayer.

Aside from the religious side the mission has also given material help to great many worthy persons. Between December 23 and February 1, meals have been served five nights each week and 725 persons have been served. Several families have also been assisted in different ways. The work is very encouraging and the prospects for the coming year are bright under the leadership of Superintendent LeMatty.

Gladys Hardaway.

Gladys Hardaway, the eighteen-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hardaway, of East Fourth street, died last night after a brief illness. The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. P. T. Morris.

Mrs. David Brown.

Mrs. Emily Brown, wife of David Brown, colored, of Plainfield avenue, dfed yesterday morning. The funeral will be held at her late home Monday afternoon at 1:30.

AMUSEMENTS.

Victor Moore will begin his eleventh week in "The Talk of New York" at the Knickerbocker theatre next Monday evening. The success of this talented actor in Mr. Cohan's very interesting play is so marked that he is likely to finish the current season at this playhouse. "The Talk of New York" is one of the greatest hits of the year. Mr. Cohan, the author of this play, has just returned from a trip abroad and is at work on a new piece called "The Man Servant," which he will present at the new Klaw & Erlanger-Cohan & Harris Gaiety theatre, Broadway and 46th street, to open about April first.

At the Hackett theatre, "The Witching Hour," Augustus Thomas' great telepathic drama, continues to play to the approval of crowded houses at every performance. The sensation which this dramatization of a scientific thesis caused made necessary the organization of a company to play the piece in Chicago, where the New York success is being repeated at the Garrich theatre of Chicago.

"Of course, it's hard to get the plays," declared David Warfield, between the acts of "A Grand Army Man," at the Stuyvesant. "It's always hard to get good plays even when you hark back to the old 'heroic' days for your subject. But the material for them lies all about us, and I guess they'll come. I have enough faith to believe that if I fail to fill my picture gallery it will be my fault, my own lack of ability to vitalize and make human the characters I play, not the lack of characters to play."

"The Top of Th' World," that merry musical extravaganza which has moved down from the Majestic to the Casino, for a few weeks before starting on its road tour, went into the Casino as one of the most novel tenants in the career of that historic stage. The opening at the Casino on Monday night was in celebration of the 200th performance and valuable souvenirs were given to the ladies. After the Casino, "The Top O' Th' World" will go on the road, opening with Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Boston and other leading cities.

Charles Frohman has decided that the company now playing "The Thief" at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, will continue there till May 27th. They will then travel direct to San Francisco, where they will begin a summer season at the VanNess Theatre. Kyrle Bellew and Margaret Illington will head the cast for the San Francisco production of "The Thief." Mr. Frohman will organize an entire new company for "The Thief" at the end of May, to continue the run of that play at the Lyceum Theatre when the present company leaves for California and their western tour.

Miss Olga Nethersole's approaching New York season, which begins Monday night at Daly's, will be the fulfillment of a promise once made to her by the late Augustin Daly, who, when she first appeared in London as a star, said to her: "Miss Nethersole, America must see your wonderful art and your debut must be at my beautiful theatre in New York." He made a flattering proposition to her and a contract expressly stipulating Daly's theatre in New York, was entered into. When the English actress arrived from the other side, however, she learned that Mr. Daly had incontinently changed his plans and that she was not to appear at the classic house. A strenuous objection to such cavalier treatment was made on behalf of the actress, but the debut had to take place at Wallack's, then Palmer's theatre.

The sure fire, fun and rollicking music of "A Knight for a Day" continues to crowd Wallack's. Comedian Slavin's waiter who masquerades as a Knight and May Vokes' flirtations housemaid are the big scream caricatures of the year's musical output. The extravaganza boasts more laughs to the minute than any musical production of years. Likewise its girly, musical and spectacular effects win more encores. The ladder elopement scene and the champagne-in-the-well situation provoke laugh paroxysms at every performance. Sallie Fisher, the prima donna of the company, who popularized the ballad "Dearie" two years ago, with "My Very Own," in the new piece is repeating her first triumph. Everyone of the others of the merry seventy of the company strikes the right note of gaiety.

The New York Hippodrome is the only place in the world where one may see colossal spectacle, merry musical melange, novel circus and glittering ballet all in one evening's or matinee entertainment. In the new spectacle, "The Battle of Port Arthur," the New York Hippodrome not only has the largest production ever made in the big playhouse, but one that caught popular favor immediately and made it the talk of the town. Nothing so colossal, so realistic of the actualities of war has ever been presented. A thousand people and one hundred horses appear in the two scenes, which occupy every inch of the immense stage and utilize every bit of the theatre's marvelous equipment for startling effects. The sensational finish is the capture of the fort and the retreat of the Russian cavalry, a score of horses plunging into the water.

State of New Jersey

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Whereas, the comptroller did, on the sixth day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, under the provisions of an act entitled "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act to provide for the imposition of state taxes upon certain corporations and for the collection thereof,' approved April 18, 1884," which supplementary act was approved June 3, 1905, report to the governor a list of all corporations coming under said act; and

Whereas, the following named corporations so reported have, for the two years preceding such report, failed, neglected or refused to pay the state taxes assessed against them for the year 1905, under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and made payable into the state treasury, and

Whereas, under the provisions of said act the charters of said corporations are repealed and all powers conferred by law upon such corporations declared inoperative and void, unless the governor gives further time for payment; and

Whereas, the governor has not given further time to the corporations so reported and hereinafter named for the payment of such taxes, and the same are still unpaid;

Therefore, I, Edward C. Stokes, Governor of the State of New Jersey, pursuant to the provisions of said act of the legislature, do hereby issue this proclamation that the charters of the following named corporations so reported and in default, to wit:

The Fighting Chance.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

And it was characteristic of Plank that never for one moment had it occurred to him that the sheer fault of it all lay with Leila; that it was her imprudence alone that now threatened herself and the man she loved—that threatened his very success in life as long as Mortimer should live.

All this Plank, in his thorough, painstaking review of the subject, had taken into account, and he could not see how it could possibly bear upon the matters now finally to be adjusted between Quarrier and himself, because Quarrier was in New York and Mortimer in Saratoga, and unless the latter had already sold his information the former could not strike at him through knowledge of it.

And yet a curious reluctancy, a hesitation inexplicable—unless overwork explained it—had come over him when Siward had proposed their dining together on the very eve of his completed victory over Quarrier.

It seemed absurd, and Plank was too stolid to entertain superstitions, but he could not, even with Leila laughing there beside him, shake off the dull instinct that all was not well; that Quarrier's attitude was still the attitude of a dangerous man; that he (Plank) should have had this evening in his room alone to study out the matters he had so patiently plodded through in the long hours while Siward slept.

Yet not for one instant did he dream of shifting the responsibility—if responsibility entailed blame—on Siward, who, against Plank's judgment and desire, had on the very eve of consummation drawn him away from that sleepless vigilance which must forever be the price of a business man's safety.

Leila, gay and excited as a schoolgirl, chattered on ceaselessly to Plank; all the silence, all the secrecy of the arid years turning to laughter on her red lips, pouring out in broken phrases of delight, words strung together for the sheer pleasure of speech and the happiness of her lot to be with him unrestrained.

"And would you believe it, Beverly," she said, "I formed the habit at Shotover of walking across the boundary and strolling into your greenhouses and deliberately helping myself. And every time I did it I was certain one of your men would march me out."

He laughed, but did not tell her that his men had reported the first episode and that he had instructed them that Mrs. Mortimer and her friends were to do exactly as they pleased at the Fells. However, she knew it, because a garrulous gardener, proud of his service with Plank, had informed her.

"Beverly," she said, "you are a dear. If people only knew what I know!"

He began to turn red. She could see it even in the flickering lamp shot darkness. And she teased him for awhile, very gently, even tenderly, and their voices grew lower in a half serious badinage that ended with a quiet, indrawn breath, a sigh and silence.

And now the river swept into view, a darkly luminous sheet set with reflected stars. Mirrored lights gleamed in it. Sudden bright yellow flashes zigzagged into its somber depths. The foliage edged it with a deeper gloom, over which, on the heights, twinkled the multicolored lights of Riverside inn.

Up the broad, gentle grade they sped, curving in and out among the clumps of trees and shrubbery, then on a level, sweeping in a great circle up to the steps of the inn.

Now all about them from the brilliantly lighted verandas the gay tumult broke out like an uproarious welcome after the swift silence of their journey. The stir of jolly people keen for pleasure, the clatter of crockery, the coming and going of waiters, of guests, of hansoms, coupes, victorias and scores of motor cars wheeling and turning through the blinding glare of their own headlights.

Somewhere a gypsy orchestra, full of fitful crescendoes and throbbing suspensions of caprice, furnished resonant accompaniment to the joyous clamor. The scent of fountain spray and flowers was in the air.

"I didn't know you had telephoned for a table," said Siward as a head waiter came up smiling and bowing to Plank. "I confess in the new excitement of things I clean forgot it. What a man you are to think of other people!"

Plank reddened again, muttering something evasive, and went forward with Leila.

Sylvia, moving leisurely beside Siward, who was walking slowly, but confidently, without crutches, whispered to him, "I never really liked Mr. Plank before I understood his attitude toward you."

"He is a man, every inch," said Siward simply.

"I think that generally includes what men of your sort demand, doesn't it?" she asked.

"Men of my sort sometimes demand in others what they themselves are lacking in," said Siward, laughing. "Sylvia, look at this jolly crowd! Look at all those tables! It seems an age since I have done anything of this sort. I feel like a boy of eighteen—the same funny, quickening fascination in me toward everything gay and bright and alive!" He looked around at her, laughingly. "As for you," he said, "you look about sixteen. You certainly are the most beautiful thing this beautiful world ever saw."

"Schoolboy courtship!" she mocked him, lingering as he made his slow way through the crowded place. "Mr. Plank," as they arrived and seated themselves, "Mr. Siward has just admitted that he uses crutches only because they are ornamental. Leila, isn't this air delicious? All sorts of people, too, aren't there, Mr. Plank? Such curious looking women, some of them—quite pretty, too, in a certain way. Are you hungry, Mr. Siward?"

"Are you, Mr. Siward?" mimicked Leila promptly.

"I am," said Siward, laughing at Sylvia's significant color and noting Plank's direct gaze as the waiter filled Leila's slender stemmed glass. And "nothing but apollinaris," he said coolly as the waiter approached him. But, though his voice was easy enough, a dull patch of color came out under the cheek bones.

"That is all I care for, either," said Sylvia, with elaborate carelessness.

Plank and Leila immediately began to make conversation. Siward, his eyes bent on the glass of mineral water at his elbow, looked up in silence at Sylvia questioningly.

There was something in her face he did not quite comprehend. She made as though to speak, looked at him, hesitated, her lovely face eloquent under the impulse. Then, leaning toward him, she said:

"'And thy ways shall be my ways.'"

"Sylvia, you must not deny yourself just because I"—

"Let me. It is the happiest thing I have ever done for myself."

"But I don't wish it."

"Ah, but I do!" she said, the low, excited laughter scarcely fluttering her lips. "Listen, I never before in all my life gave up anything for your sake only this one little pitiful thing.'

"I won't let you!" he breathed. "It is nonsense to"—

"You must let me! Am I to be on friendly terms with—with your mortal enemy?" She was still smiling, but now her sensitive mouth quivered suddenly.

He sat silent, considering her, his restless fingers playing with his glass in which the harmless bubbles were breaking.

"I drink to your health, Stephen," she said under her breath. "I drink to your happiness, too, and—and to your fortune and to all that you desire from fortune." And she raised her glass in the starlight, looking over it into his eyes.

"I drink to your health, Stephen."

"All I desire from fortune?" he repeated significantly.

"All—almost all"—

"No, all," he demanded.

But she only raised the glass to her lips, still looking at him as she drank.

They became unreasonably gay almost immediately, though the beverage scarcely accounted for the delicate intoxication that seemed to creep into their veins. Leila exchanged glance after glance with Plank. Siward, alternately the leader in it all, then the enchanted listener, bewitched, enthralled, felt care slipping from his shoulders like a mantle and sadness exhaling from a heart that was beating strongly, steadily, fearlessly—as a heart should beat in the breast of him who has taken at last his fighting chance. He took it now under her eyes for honor, for manhood and for the ideal which had made manhood no longer an empty term muttered in desperation by a sick body and a mind too sick to control it.

Yes, at last the lifelong battle was on. He knew it. He knew, too, whatever his fate with her or without her he must always go on with the battle for the safeguarding of that manhood the consciousness of which she had aroused.

All he knew was that, through the medium of his love for her, whatever in him of the spiritual remained or had been generated, was now awake, alive, strong, vital, indestructible—an impalpable current flowing from a sane intelligence, through medium of her, back to the eternal truth, returning always, always, to the deathless source from whence it came.

Lingering over the fruit, the champagne breaking in the glasses standing on the table between them, rim to rim, Leila and Plank had fallen into a low, desultory, yet guarded exchange of words and silences.

Sylvia sprang up and pushed her chair into the farther corner against the balcony rail, where no light fell except the radiance of the stars. Here Siward joined her, dragging his chair around so that it faced her as she leaned back, tilted against a shadowy column.

In the darkness his hand encountered hers on the wooden rail, and the tremor of the contact silenced her. She freed one finger, then let it rest with its slender fellow prisoners. There was no use in trying to speak just then—utterly useless her voice in the soft, rounded throat imprisoned by the swelling pulses that tightened and hammered and tightened.

Years seemed to fall away from her, slipping back, back into girlhood, into childhood, drawing not her alone on the gliding tide, but carrying him with her. An exquisite languor held her. Drifting deliciously, her eyes sometimes meeting his, sometimes lost in the magic of her reverie, she lay there in her chair, her unresisting fingers locked in his.

BASEBALL.

Orval Overall, the biggest ball player extant, his signed a three year contract with Charlie Murphy's champions of the universe.

Barney Dreyfus offered a 15 per cent. increase of salary to Tommy Leach. Just how much that is depends on the size of the present salary.

"It is rather early to proclaim with certainty that Yale will lose her trio of pitchers, Merritt, Van Vleck and Dunbar," says the New Haven Register. Yale will be in line with some of these men before the season is well advanced. These calamity stories do not usually hold good."

The New York American League Club has asked for waivers on Pitcher Ira Plank. A contract has been sent to Doc Hillebrand. It isn't likely that the former Princeton pitcher will sign, but the New Yorks want to hold him. It may be doubted whether he is worth the efforts major league teams have made to induce him to play.

An "all" team composed of players of means has been gotten up by a Western writer as follows: Tenney, first base; Lajoie, second base; Wagner, shortstop; Clarke, left field; F. Jones, centre field; Keeler, right field; Cy Young, pitcher; Criger, catcher. They make a pretty nifty team, these plutocrats. Who wants to qualify for the "all poor" team?

The Eastern League, which is by far the strongest minor circuit in the country, will present a more formidable front this year than ever before. With Jimmy Casey in charge of the Montreal club, controlled by local backers, baseball should receive a much needed boom in that city. Newark, under the management of George Stallings, should also enjoy increased prosperity, while Providence, with the Duffy-Doe feud at an end, will be in better shape than last year. The Baltimore club, to be owned exclusively by Ed Hanlon, Bill Clarke and Wilbert Robinson, who made the Orioles famous in 1894, will probably be a more important factor. The Toronto club will have the services of the capable Western manager, Mike Kelley, who is getting a powerful team together, while Buffalo, Jersey City and Rochester will all have improved teams. The quality of ball played in the Eastern is not far below the major league standard, while the salary hunt is decidedly liberal.

Clark Griffith and Jake Stahl of the New York Americans arrived in Hot Springs yesterday. Griffith says that he will have a dozen of his regulars with him in a few days and that all of them will take the baths. The Pittsburgs and Detroits are also going to the springs, so that the baseball colony there will be unusually large. As the Pittsburgs have a lease on the ball park the Detroits will fix up a temporary diamond not far away. Griffith will send his men to Atlanta the last of the month, but will come here to attend the American League meeting on February 25, as he is a member of the rules committee.

GOLF.

At the annual meeting of the Dunwoodie Country Club on Wednesday evening the business statement was most gratifying to the directors. The club and course, next to that at Salisbury Plains, is the youngest in the Metropolitan Golf Association territory, but although only a little over a year old Dunwoodie is going ahead as though it had been in full swing for ten years. The membership is approaching the top limit and is an assurance of a long and prosperous life for the club. The course is to be improved in many ways, with new greens constructed for the ninth, thirteenth and fourteenth holes. The following officers were elected to serve in 1908:

President, E. K. Martin; first vice-president, W. W. Lee; second vice-president, H. J. Kaltenbach; secretary, F. J. Ross; treasurer, D. H. Thomas; greens committee, W. E. Conklyn; house committee, W. R. Moon; handicap committee, A. J. Watson; tennis committee, T. I. Wood; auditing committee, Dyer B. Holmes; captain, W. E. Conklyn; lieutenant, A. J. Watson.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders the following governors were added to the board: E. K. Martin, S. B. Ayres, W. R. Moon, F. J. Ross, D. DeW. Wever, John R. Stanton, H. J. Kaltenbach, H. R. Caraway and Dyer B. Holmes.

On Wednesday the Forest Park Golf Club and the Brooklyn Golf Club filed a certificate with the Secretary of State at Albany setting forth that they had consolidated under the corporate name of the Brooklyn-Forest Park Club. The directors named were Jackson A. Nicol, James W. Kent, H. P. Kidd, Samuel Peace, George G. Baxter, Samuel Stark, James A. Thursby, F. W. Farnham and J. H. Holmes, all of Brooklyn.

A search of the reports at the Biarritz Golf Club has revealed that two of the cards in the eighteen hole medal play competition for Lord Shand's cup, the first competition over the course, appeared as 224, 50—174 and 221, 50—171, or about twelve strokes to a hole. Even the duffers of the Biarritz visitors now regard 90 as a high score for the course.

N. H. S., 76; P. H. S., 28.

Outclassed and outweighed, the Plainfield High School basketball five were defeated by a score of 76-28 in a one-sided game played at the high school gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The game was witnessed by a good-sized crowd of the local school girls, who cheered enthusiastically for the home team in the face of overwhelming odds. The game was fast throughout, and was marked by clean play by both fives. The visitors made good on lots of long shots, in a few cases caging the ball from a shot the entire length of the room.

Snyder, who drew much of the applause for the home team, started the scoring with a pretty angle shot, but it didn't take the Newark five long to locate the high school basket and they scored with painful frequency,—from the high school standpoint. At the end of the first half, the score was 36-10 in favor of the visitors and in the second period they added forty points on baskets, while Plainfield was making eighteen points. The home team was awarded a point in the second half for being interfered with in shooting. For the visitors, Siedler and Bauman excelled, each scoring ten baskets. Snyder and Mortimer did the most scoring for the home team. The lineups and summaries:

Newark High.		Plainfield High.
Baumann	right forward.	Mortimer
Siedler	centre.	Caldwell
Alverson	right guard.	Snyder

Field goals—Siedler 10, Baumann 10, Smith 8, Speary 5, Alverson 5, Snyder 6, Mortimer 4, Caldwell 2, Morris. Goal from foul, Caldwell. Referee, Paul Collier; umpire, N. W. Brooks, O. A. C.; scorer, Cahonne, N. H. S.; timekeepers, Simpson, N. H. S.; Roy Woodhull, P. H. S. Twenty minute halves.

Basketball Monday Night.

The Business Men's five, leaders of the local league of the Y. M. C. A., will play the Seniors at the association gymnasium Monday night. The Seniors give a handicap of ten points, and there opponents have not lost a game this season.

The Plainfield High School basketball five, which defeated the Y. M. C. A. team several weeks ago, has arranged another game with the same team for Monday night.

BISMARCKS LOSE A SERIES AND ALL CHANCE OF MONEY

Hard luck hit the Bismarcks another healthy crack, last night, and by dropping two out of three games to the Garibaldi team, they lost all chance of winning any prize money in the five-man bowling tourney at Campbell's Academy. The dope sheet, based on past performances, stated at the beginning of the series that Captain Britton's men were due to take three straight, and the gallery accepted the tip in good faith. When the Teutons grabbed the first try by a majority of seventy-three pins it looked as though the information was the real goods but it was a different story after that.

The Garibaldis became riled at the cries of "has beens" and "take a day off and learn the game" hurled at them and developed an unusual streak. They won out in the second go by twenty-six to the good and it so surprised Captain Britton's delegation that they failed to recover in time to pull the third their way. The Garibaldis squeezed through to the best side with only four pins to spare.

There were no records broken or no phenomenal scores made in the series. The best work for the night was accomplished by Tom Muir, who chalked up an average of 195. He also got the best individual tally, a 216. There was only one other double century made, Captain Campbell getting 203, the first time he has gone over the 200 mark since the tourney began. Captain Britton stood second best for the night in averages, landing 186. Campbell's average was 178, while Chauncey Stout, who holds the lead, was the victim of continued splits and pulled 156.1.

C. W. Runyon, of the Bismarcks, was quite ill all through the evening and as a result was unable to make a creditable showing.

The scores:

BESSIE WILL NOT RETURN TO HER HOME.

Declaring that life with her father is unbearable because of his cruelty and the hard tasks imposed upon her in his store, Bessie Cinquegrani, the 15-year-old daughter of Julian Cinquesgrani, an Elizabeth confectioner, has refused absolutely, with many tossings of her black curls and stampings of her foot, to return to her parent's home.

Bessie disappeared from her home last Saturday and a search made by the police revealed the fact that she had fled to the home of a married sister in Watchung avenue, this city. She was induced to return to Elizabeth and yesterday morning Judge Mahon tried to straighten out the tangle, and persuade her to return home, although it was apparent that her father is possessed of an ungovernable temper.

The girl, who is large for her age, and comely, showed stern determination to not return to her father's house, and no amount of argument could move her. She alleged that her parent was in the habit of beating her frequently for no cause, and that is she was forced to return home she would run away again. It was thought best to allow her to go back to this city with her sister, and she left the court room with a triumphant smile curling her lips.

Glee Club Organized.

The Y. W. C. A. Glee Club was organized at the association rooms last night under the direction of William Holmes, baritone, with a membership of twenty-eight. The first rehearsal was held and much enthusiasm shown on the part of the members. The organization was completed by the election of Miss Lillian Federmann as secretary and Miss Georgia Ricker treasurer. The club will meet once a week for rehearsals and at the end of the season a concert will be given. The gymnasium class was also started at the association yesterday and the junior class is so large that it will have to be divided.

Play in Boys' League.

Games in the Boys' Basketball League of the Y. M. C. A., played in the association gymnasium this morning, resulted in victories for "Columbia" and "Cornell." The scores: "Columbia," 13; "Harvard," 3. "Cornell," 14; "Princeton," 8.

Mrs. William McIntosh, of North Plainfield, is much improved from a tedious illness which has detained her at home.

Miss Kirkpatrick, of Jerseyville, Ill., who has been spending a part of the past year with Plainfield relatives has gone to Elizabeth to visit friends.

ICE MEN HARVESTING BIG CROP ON LOCAL PONDS

With a force of 200 men at work on Watchung Lake, the winter's crop of ice is being rapidly harvested by the Natural Ice Company. Yesterday 16,000 cakes of ice, averaging 225 pounds apiece, were taken from the big pond and stored in the company's ice house. The entire force of men will work all day tomorrow, when the company will begin cutting the ice on Crystal Lake, the smaller of the ponds.

Debele & Stahl have cleared the Maple avenue pond of snow and are continuing the ice harvest there today. In some parts of the pond, the ice is more than two feet in thickness. About a dozen men are at work there.

At Tier's pond, the work of cutting is progressing rapidly. The ice house is about three-quarters filled and with a force of thirty men at work, the cutting will be completed in a day or two. The ice averaged about a foot in thickness.

FIRE PROBERS AT WORK

mittee were reluctant to talk, a large part of the questioning was applied with the idea of either affirming or denying the reports of frozen hydrants. The fire department is a unit in declaring that they could not be opened because of ice in them, while the water company officials insist that they were not frozen. This is what led to the assertion that the firemen did not know how to open them or were attempting to turn the valves the wrong way. Several of the witnesses called related how a couple of the hydrants that could not be used when the apparatus first arrived were opened after fires had been built around them and hot water had been poured over the tops.

When one of the officials was reminded that the water company people claim that the hydrants were not frozen, he replied:

"Well, there's more than one way in which a hydrant can freeze. Iron rust can freeze it up solid if you want to put it that way."

He declined to explain his remark when pressed for its full meaning.

Assistant Chief Jennings also gave testimony as did Captain James Daley, Captain George Feiring, and Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield department. Superintendent Amos Andrews and Engineer John Schenck, stationed at the Netherwood pumping plant, were the only witnesses called who are connected with the Plainfield Water Supply Company whose duty it is to see that hydrants are in proper shape for opening at any and all times. William W. Whelan, secretary and treasurer of the company and in charge of the local office, was summoned as a witness but did not testify.

Among the other witnesses who appeared before the committee were Evarts Tracy, William Callahan, Richard Letcher, Jr., William Gaub, Edward Vail, Joseph Clark, William Jaegar, William Hobbie and William Addis.

PLAINFIELDERS ADDRESS CHARITIES' CONFERENCE

Health Officer Thurlow and Rev. Mr. Nickerson Read Papers on Organized Aid Work.

EDWARD C. STOKES ALSO TALKS

Big Two Days' Meeting At Jersey City Participated In By Prominent Jerseymen—Interesting in Philanthropy.

The New Jersey Conference of Charities and Correction began its two days' annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the Jersey City High School in that city. The Rev. Francis A. Fay, of East Nutley, president of the conference, presided. On the stage with him were ex-Governor E. C. Stokes, who was the substitute for Governor Fort; ex-Representative Marshall Van Winkle, of Jersey City; Rabbi Solomon Foster, of Newark; the Rev. Father Cornelius Clifford, of Seton Hall College; the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett, of Jersey City; George B. Wight, State Commissioner of Charities and Correction; Dr. William H. Allen, secretary of the Bureau of Municipal Research, New York; the Very Rev. Dean Smith, of Jersey City; the Rev. Father Farley, Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth; Mrs. Brice Collerd, Mrs. Alexander, Richard Stevens, probation officer for Hudson county, and Warden George Osborne, of the New Jersey State Prison. Hugh F. Fox, of Plainfield, was a prominent figure. Mr. Stokes made the chief address.

At this morning's session, Leon R. Thurlow, health officer of Plainfield, and Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, this city, were among the principal speakers. Among the others who read papers were Rev. Francis A. Fay, Dr. Charles A. Clinton, Isaac C. Ogden, Miss Louise Connolly and Dr. Frederick C. Jacobson.

Mr. Thurlow's Talk.

Mr. Thurlow's subject was "The State and Local Boards of Health in New Jersey." He said in part:

"I understand that in our own State at the present time, a re-organization of our State Board of Health is being contemplated—a re-organization, as recommended by Governor Fort, which will bring under one head all matters which relate to the public health. At present there are several boards whose duties could better be carried out by one well organized Health Department, such as the State Sewage Commission, the State Board of Health, and the State Water Commission; the duties of all these bodies relate to health conditions of the State. Naturally the authority and duties of these boards overlap and sometimes conflict, and under the existing conditions, no line can be drawn which will place the responsibility on any one particular board.

If this proposed re-organization is effected, I hope it will include a consolidation of the State Board of Health, the State Sewage Commission, the State Potable Water Commission, the State Tuberculosis Commission, dealing with tuberculosis in cattle, and that portion of the Fish and Game Commission which applies to shell fish. If these bodies were merged into one, we would then have a State Department of Health that would be, not only ideal, but practical.

"The members of the State Board of Health should be appointed by the Governor for a term of not less than four years, the appointment so arranged that no one Governor, unless he was re-elected, could appoint the majority of the Board. They should be men who are interested in public hygiene, and who would serve without salary, as I believe stronger and more capable men can be obtained to serve on an honorary board, the salary having little attraction to them. Then, too, a non-salaried board is far more likely to be free from politics.

"Under this advisory board should be the Health Commissioner, a competent sanitarian, responsible to the Board of Health and the State. He should be appointed by the Governor, preferably with the advice and consent of a majority of the advisory board; his term of office to be not less than four years.

"If our State Department of Health was organized along the lines suggested in the foregoing, one of its first duties would be a complete revision of all the health laws of the State, simplyfying them, making them more practical and bringing them up to date.

"Many of the present laws are excellent; for instance, the new Pure Food act, the law licensing health officers and sanitary inspectors, the registration of vital statistics, and many others, are equal if not better, than those of other States. However, those laws relating to sewage disposal, the protection of our public water supplies, the protection of our milk supplies, the powers and duties of local boards of health and many others, need a complete revision that will make them more concise and more practical. The work of both the State and local boards of health could then be made more effective.

"In speaking of this ideal State Department of Health, I have described only a few of the endless numbers of duties of a health commissioner. The time will not permit me to go into detail in the questions of milk supply, ice supply, food and drug inspections, registrations of vital statistics, tuberculosis, transportation of the dead, offensive and dangerous trades, and bake-shop inspections—all of which should come within the duties of a health commissioner.

"In our State Department of Health were re-organized and consolidated with the proper boards, given the necessary powers and an appropriation sufficient for the needs of such important work, removed as far as possible from politics, and then placed in the hands of a commissioner with an advisory board to assist him, I firmly believe that within a very short time New Jersey would be in the foreground in health matters."

Rev. Mr. Nickerson.

Rev. Mr. Nickerson discussed "The Alleged Coldness of Official Charity." He said in part:

"Brethren, notwithstanding the long time in which organized charity has been at work, and the quite continuous perfecting of its methods there is need of that word 'alleged' in my subject today. Not by any means are they alone the thoughtless and improvident who allege coldness on our part, and with no complimentary implication, but many others are with them in their resentment. Intelligent, kind, charitable persons even at this late day, assume a superior virtue in withholding co-operation from our carefully planned and executed work, because they say it is indifferently given. Yet these are mostly very busy people, who can rarely know accurately the needs they would meet. 'Cold as charity,' rightly directed, wisely serving and saving charity, is a far more complimentary phrase to throw at us than the flingers think. Their intended thorns are changed to roses in transit.

"The warm heartedness of the profligate temporarily in the gutter, who, doubtless would 'treat' all around, and indiscriminately, could he regain mastery of his feet and his purse; the giving to him that asks, as alms which open the door of heaven to the giver, causing countries like Italy to swarm with lusty, professional beggars, ready to exploit alms-giving to the farthest limit of human endurance; the unquestioning largess of the riotously generous millionaire, or the shrewd politician, buying favor with charitable gold, scattering his reminders to responsive poverty, to the moral undoing of many; all this is the extreme antithesis of the careful painstaking, wisely anticipative and prudent for which we stand.

"It is, of course, possible to overdo the scientific study of our problem. It is possible to spend too much money in distributing our assistance. But I gravely doubt if even excessive expenditure in training charity workers could possibly balance the money wasted on personal bestowments without consultation of public benevolencies.

"Our principle is that in common with advanced Christianity, with the best in the so-called, 'new thought,' with the doctrine of as yet untried psychical power recently advocated by Prof. William James! It is the support of personal initiative, the evolution of self help, the Kingdom of heaven within!

"The charitable society is the dynamo to which all good will should bring itself, to be enlightened. It is the social power house. It furnishes opportunity for men to bring 'their money to the exchangers' as the gospel admonishes us to do, that, later, they hay receive 'their own, with interest.' Our aim is to establish connection with all the good will in the community. 'You wire to us, we wire to you.' Our object is the general bettering of the conditions of living! Our work is the constant evolution of a great principle. The settlements are a social example of deliberate cool intention to prove our consciousness that we are 'our brother's keeper.'

"We work toward civic co-operation. Later speakers will report progress in this direction. The city or state must punish criminals when they commit crimes. But, as the innocent always suffer with the guilty we must co-operate in lessening that suffering as much as may be, the un-

ON CONTRAST IN MUSIC

J. Granville-Smith Shows in His Lecture at P.H.S. How This Improves Selections.

ILLUSTRATED AT THE PIANO.

Speaker's Extemporizations Excellent—Assisting Artists Render Program, Illustrating Lecturer's Remarks.

Illustrating his remarks on contrast in music by numerous examples at the piano, as well as by the musical numbers of the concert program rendered by the vocalists and instrumentalists present, J. Granville-Smith, of New York, won the greatest appreciation from his hearers at the Plainfield High School auditorium Saturday night. The lecture was the second and last of a course of two given to raise money to pay for the tel-electric piano player recently purchased by the pupils of the school, and about $75 was netted toward the fund.

Explaining his topic without any of that technical parlance which makes music so intangible to the average person, Mr. Granville-Smith clearly established his points in a logical manner and captivated the audience by his skill and range of musical knowledge as displayed at the piano, which he used almost constantly to illustrate the various points of his lecture. At the outset, he stated the necessity of contrast, pointing out that the National anthem was lacking in tone value because it lacked contrast in the development of the theme. The French national anthem is superior as a musical composition because of the element of contrast which increases its merit from a musical standpoint.

Contrast in music, the lecturer said, depended upon the principle of kindred yet distinct musical motifs, and may be produced in various ways. Among these he outlined change of key, altered tempo, legato and staccato and contrast in form, demonstrating fully at the piano. He spoke of timbre, or tone color, as still another method of securing contrast, demonstrating that the tone variation as produced by a violin rendition was distinct from that produced by a cornet passage in the same orchestration. Phrasing, and the part played by muted strings and brass instruments, and variation in accent by the employment of syncopation is another pleasing way of producing contrast.

Referring to the compositions of several classic musicians, Mr. Granville-Smith showed how contrast could be produced by variation in style. At the piano, he demonstrated how this same contrast could be produced by embellishment in rendition,—the use of so-called variations. Most successful and interesting in the demonstration of his remarks on contrast, was the lecturer's work at the piano by the combination of the musical styles of Bach and Gounod. Later vocal music was introduced by the High School glee and musical clubs, and the lecturer used the selections rendered as examples of his topic.

The feature of the lecture-concert was the extemporization at the piano on suggested themes. At this Mr. Granville-Smith won rounds of applause by his off-hand rendition of piano selections on the motifs of various selections. The extemporization on "The Merry Widow Waltz" was especially clever.

Among the assisting artists who rendered illustrative selections in the course of the lecture were Mrs. Guy Bender, soprano; G. Morgan Stricklett, tenor; Martin A. Korff, violin; Percy L. Mygrant, cornetist; Walter M. Sampson, and Elmer P. Wheeler, flutists; Miss Mabel Maxson, Mrs. Charles L. Lewis, L. H. Hummer, and Stephen Haff, pianists, and the High School orchestra and glee club. S. B. Howe, Jr., was musical conductor.

Missionary Meeting.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Members are requested to bring items of interest concerning China. Accounts of the work of the Women's Societies of Hope and Warren chapels will be given by Mrs. G. H. Condict and Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman and there will be balloting for nominations of officers for the coming year.

Will Talk About Washington Irving.

Rev. W. R. Mulford, of Fanwood, will give the third and last lecture on noted authors, Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Duyckinck, on Crescent avenue. The subject will be "Washington Irving."

Mr. Fox to Speak.

Hugh F. Fox, of this city, president of the State Charities' Aid Association, will speak at the Congregational church Sunday night.

INVESTIGATORS FIND A HYDARNT STEM BADLY BENT

Following up the investigation into the troubles at the Letcher blaze on February 2, the fire committee of the Common Council and other city officials, conducted an examination and test of the fire hydrants on Belvidere avenue, Saturday afternoon. Chief Doane and members of the department were in attendance.

According to statements, the hydrant in front of the Letcher house was opened and the stem which extends from the top to the bottom and releases the water from the pipe was found bent and twisted, showing that it had been turned the wrong way. It was afterward said that it was a private citizen who had attempted to open this particular one on the night of the fire and that the firemen had no knowledge of the damaged stem when they tried it. The other hydrants were found to be all right.

In the test of pressure, a stream was sent through to 250 feet of hose up the hill to where the Letcher house stood. The pressure was found to be forty pounds at the hydrant and thirty-five pounds at the nozzle. This is the ordinary register and is up to the water company's contract.

The facts learned were made note of by the investigating committee and will be used by the members in preparing their report for the Council on February 17.

DESPITE CONGREGATION, SHOWS LOVE FOR DOGS

Rev. T. Moore-Smith, the pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, who has resigned because his congregation believes that he devotes too much time to his prize-winning spaniels, has entered three thoroughbreds in the annual dog show which opens at Madison Square Garden, tomorrow. The names of his entrants are Dr. Terry, Molly Malone and Shamrock.

When questioned about the entries the parson refused to discuss the matter. He did not deny that he had made the entries, but for the sake of harmony declined to talk about his dogs.

The committee appointed a week ago to consider the pastor's resignation did not report yesterday, although the congregation expected that the committee would have something to say on the subject.

TWO SOCIETY PERSONS HURT WHILE COASTING.

Miss Margaret Goddard, of East Ninth street, and Boardman Tyler, of West Seventh street, members of a party of seven coasting on the Watchung avenue hill Saturday afternoon, were severely injured as the result of a collision between the bob and a coal wagon at Watchung and Woodland avenues.

The injured ones were carried to the home of A. M. Wilcox nearby, where Dr. Corbusier gave temporary treatment. Miss Goddard's injuries were chiefly about the back, while Mr. Tyler's face was considerably cut. Later they were removed to their homes, where they are now reported as doing well.

The coasters were traveling at a terrific speed and were nearing Woodland avenue, when suddenly a coal wagon turned from the latter avenue into Watchung. It was too late for Mr. Tyler, who was steering the bob, to change the course of the sled and it struck the rear wheel of the wagon full force, throwing the coasters off. All escaped injury except Mr. Tyler and Miss Goddard.

GOLDEN EAGLES PLAN FOR A BIG MEETING.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights preme Chief Eli Manchester and Past Grand C. George Hewitt, of New Haven, Conn., together with Past Grand Oscar M. Condict and Rev. Edward Mount, of Asbury Park, the latter past grand councilor of the Jr. O. U. A. M., A. L. Clark, grand master of records, and other Grand Castle officers will attend.

There will be delegations present from Love Oak Castle, No. 21, of Yonkers; also Castles at Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, Somerville, Orange, Passaic and South Amboy. The second degree will be conferred on four candidates, after which there will be a banquet.

Violated Hack Ordinance.

Thomas Muldowney was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Ptrolman Kelley with violating the hack ordinance at the North avenue station. Because of it being his first offence sentence was suspended.

Edward Vail, of Santa Barbara, California, son of Hugh D. Vail, formerly of this city, visited friends here last week, preparatory to sailing for Europe.

'TWAS LOCAL OPTION DAY

Passage of the Proposed Measure Advocated in the Pulpit Yesterday.

SERMONS PREACHED HERE.

Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians Urged to Support Movement for Enactment of the Law.

Throughout New Jersey yesterday the local option fight was opened by sermons in many pulpits, and the agitation will be carried on in the Legislature and throughout New Jersey for months to come. The local option bill is the most drastic that has been presented to the Legislature. It not only permits any town or city to vote prohibition by a majority, but proposes to have one ward declare itself upon petition. If the vote is for prohibition in the political section affected, no sales will be permitted.

That the Prohibition element is confident of success has been manifested. They count Governor Fort as committed to their cause, and they say Senator Colby and at least five of the Essex Assemblymen are also in favor of their propositions. Essex heretofore has been united against any form of Prohibition. They claim an easy majority in the Senate, mainly from the smaller counties, and look for help from all of South Jersey and from rural counties of the northern section besides the Essex votes.

Rev. Mr. Finn's Remarks.

Urging the voters to rally in support of the local option bill and see that it gets before the State Senate and Assembly at this session, Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, gave a powerful address at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting yesterday afternoon. The topic was "Who Owns the Liquor Traffic?" and his text was taken from Exodus 21: 29.

The verse is relative to the old laws, prescribing death to the ox who did damage and to its owner. The three points made by the speaker were: (1) Did the ox push with his horns and kill? (2) Did the owner know it? and (3) Who owned the ox? Dr. Finn spoke of the ox as the liquor trade and the analogy was simple and forceful. In reference to the first point, he quoted statistics to show the harm being done by the sale of liquor, and showed its effects as seen in the prisons and asylums of the country, claiming that drink was responsible for much of the crime committed. In reference to the second point,, he said that the liquor dealer knows the evils of his business. He brought up the fact that the saloons are closed on election day and at the time of great catastrophe, such as the San Francisco earthquake fire. If men have clearer heads for not being able to buy liquor at such times, he said, they would be able to think and work better if no liquor were sold at all.

The third and main point made was "Who owns the liquor traffic?" The speaker said that if a liquor dealer were asked the question, he would point to his framed license and say that it was controlled by law. If the Senator or Assemblyman of the State were asked, he would doubtless reply that he only favored the measure because it was urged by his constituency. This brings the matter of ownership right down to the voter. "If the voter stands firm in favor of the local option bill, it can be assured of success," said Dr. Finn, "and I would urge every man present to sit down as he gets home and write a letter to our Assemblyman, urging his support to the measure."

Miss Leila Druse sang "On the Plains of Peace," and the Hallelujah Song at the meeting.

Rev. Mr. McCrea's Words.

"The Open Saloon" was the subject of the first of three special sermons, delivered at the First M. E. church, last night, by the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea. The discourse was given in connection with a general movement throughout the State to awaken an interest in the proposed local option measure introduced in the Legislature last week.

The text for last night's sermon was taken from Isaiah 21: 12, "The Watchman said, 'The Morning Cometh.'" In part Mr. McCrea spoke as follows:

"This expression can be fittingly used in connection with the progress which the great temperance movement is making. Bishop Fowler prophesied as the nineteenth century saw in this country the abolition of the slave traffic, so the twentieth century will see the abolition of the liquor traffic. Already we see a better day.

"The present conditions are better. At least in this part of the country. I can recall when the drink evil was far worse. In the present day men must be steady if they hope to advance. In business, social and

PAYS RELATIVE'S FINE; GOES TO JAIL HIMSELF

In Joseph Sobriski, an undersized Polak who lives in the East End of the city, Plainfield can lay claim to having a modern Good Samaritan and a disciple of self denial. With John Wasaski, a relative by marriage, the two were arrested yesterday afternoon for disorderly conduct in front of the postoffice. Sobriski in addition had been waving a razor about his head and Patrolman Saffron found the weapon in his pocket.

When the case was called in the city court, this morning, Joseph Manhattan, the leader of the local Polaks, appeared in behalf of the prisoners and informed Judge Runyon that both men were "crazy." They came from a part of Poland, he said, where everybody is so light in the head that one drink of whisky makes them lose their senses.

"In that event," said Judge Runyon, "I think I had better put them where they wont bother anyone. There was some chance for them before you spoke but now I'll make it $5 or twenty days in each case."

Sobriski dove down in his pocket and pulled out a roll of bills from which he took $5. After handing it over to Chief Kiely he said something in Polish to his friend and then started toward the cells. The court inquired of Manhattan why Sobriski was going back when his fine had been paid.

"That $5 was for his friend," was the reply; "he says he believes he'd better take the twenty days as it might do him good if he's crazy. He has lots of money so he don't mind paying for Wasaski."

This form of charity upset the equanimity of the court for several minutes and Wasaski streaked it for the front door before anybody could recover in time to convince the Good Samaritan that he had done wrong. Judge Runyon took a look at the five spot and then remarked simply: "Manhattan, you're right. Sobriski is surely crazy."

Damage from Oil Stove Smoke.

A smoky oil stove threatened the home of Frank Neidig, of Manning avenue, with a fire late last night and caused about $200 damage to clothing and furnishings of the room. Fire was prevented by the prompt action of Mr. Neidig, who rushed into the room and threw the stove out of the window. The stove had been burning in a bedroom on the second floor and several hours before Mr. and Mrs. Neidig smelled the smoke, and was not discovered to be out of order until 10:30 o'clock, when they were ready to retire. Choked by the dense fumes, Mr. Neidig feared fire and his wife summoned aid from fire headquarters. By the time she returned, the stove had been thrown out and the danger was past. Mr. Neidig was slightly burned about the hands.

Highwaymen Arrested.

William Downey and William Sicker, of Elizabeth, and James McNamara, of Paterson, have been arrested charged with holding up a trolley car in Elizabeth on February 1 and robbing the conductor of $48.50. Following Downey's arrest he made a full confession and implicated McNamara and Sicker. Downey said that he remained on the rear platform of the car, while McNamara and Sicker entered the car and robbed the conductor. The trio will be arraigned tomorrow.

JOHN PAYNE SUSPENDED

Patrolman Arrested in New York to Be Given Hearing by Police Board.

FRIENDS SECURE HIS RELEASE.

After Apology to New York Policeman He Struck, Plainfield Officer Is Let Go—Prompt Action Taken.

As a result of the escapade in which he figured in New York, Friday night, Patrolman John Payne, of the local police force, has been suspended pending a full investigation by the Police Board. While all the facts in the case are not in possession of the members, enough has been secured to warrant immediate action and in justice to the other officers the matter will be sifted to the bottom.

According to the statements furnished by the New York police, Payne and another Plainfield officer who is practically blameless for the occurrence, were enjoying a night off in the uptown district where the white lights burn. It is declared that Payne was quite noisy and Patrolman Walsh, stationed at Sixth avenue and Thirtieth street, warned him to keep quiet. He alleges that the Plainfielder replied with an insulting remark and that another injunction to conduct himself properly was answered in the same way.

Walsh then placed him under arrest but Payne resisted, enforcing his objections to being taken into custody by using his fists. Walsh defended himself by striking back but as the Plainfielder has a powerful physique and has had the advantage of training from "Bob" Fitzsimmons, the bluecoat blew his whistle, bringing several other policemen to the scene. Payne was then hustled to a cell at Jefferson Market and was later arraigned before Judge Herrman in the night court. He was charged with assaulting an officer and was held in $500 bail for trial Saturday night.

Word of the arrest was sent to Plainfield and friends of the prisoner immediately took steps to secure his release. Lawyer William G. DeMeza and several residents went to Judge Herrman's home and after a long conference he agreed to release Payne in their custody until 9 o'clock Saturday evening, the time of the night court's opening. Patrolman Walsh was next interviewed and though he was at first in no mood to be lenient toward Payne he eventually stated he would not press the charge if the prisoner would apologize. The arrangement proved satisfactory to all concerned and when the case was called, Judge Herrman suspended sentence. He took occasion to remark, however, that the New York courts make it a point to protect their policemen and the leniency should not be construed as meaning that there was to be any deviation. Patrolman Walsh had relented, he said, but he himself did so only with the understanding that the defendant should be punished by his own Police Board.

Assaulting an officer is construed as an exceptionally grave offense in New York and as a general thing a man arrested for it is sent to the island. It has been generally declared since Payne was released, that he can congratulate himself on his luck as the charge appears all the more grave in view of the fact that he is a policeman himself and knows what it means. He reported at headquarters Saturday night and was informed by Chief Kiely that he was suspended until further orders.

Payne was appointed a probation officer three years ago but because of repeated infraction of the department rules has never been confirmed. He has been before the Police Board on more charges than have been preferred against any other two patrolmen combined but has always escaped with a fine or reprimand. Physically he is one of the best men in the department and has proven that he would make a good man for the force if he could keep in mind that it has rules.

WESTFIELD.

The friends of Special Policeman James Cenneran are making an effort to have him reinstated on the Westfield police force. Cenneran was called before the Police Committee Wednesday evening to explain several charges that had been made against him, but without going into the formality of a reply he handed over his badge and resigned. His friends consider that his action was hasty and that he could have successfully met any and all charges against him.

Chief of the Fire Department Fred C. Decker, of Westfield, reported to the Council that the department has only one horse fit for service, and that the efficiency of the department is crippled because they should have three horses for service at all times. The chief also reports that many of the fire hydrants in town are frozen solid and would be useless in an emergency.

A meeting of the Westfield Woman's Club will be held this afternoon, at which J. W. Lloyd, a resident of the town, will give an illustrated talk on the birds of Westfield.

Town Attorney Paul Q. Oliver has made a report to Westfield Council that there are no legal obstructions to the town building and operating its own water plant.

Rev. S. M. Wood, superintendent of the Episcopal mission work of New Jersey, spoke at the Garwood chapel yesterday afternoon, at 3:45 o'clock.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

The Misses Alice and Emily Sheals, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wilkinson, in Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook, have returned to their home in New York.

Samuel Wagner is laid up at his home at Uniondale, near South Bound Brook, with several broken ribs, the result of a fall from a load of hay.

Miss Rhea Rose, of Asbury Park, is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Powelson, in Franklin street, Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Voorhees have been entertaining Mrs. C. Garretson, of Millstone, at their home in Beachwood Heights.

Miss Aimee Wilson, of Weston, near South Bound Brook, is visiting friends in Plainfield.

Mrs. Eugene Duryea, of South Bound Brook, has been visiting relatives in Somerville.

The annual meeting of the Graduates' Association of the Somerville High School will be held Friday evening, February 28. A feature of the celebration will be an address by President W. H. S. Demarest, of Rutgers College.

Invitations are out for a reception to be given by the West End Hose Company to the women who assisted at the bazaar which the company held in the fall. This reception will be held at the rooms on Doughty avenue.

Mrs. J. Culver Voorhees, of East Main street, is entertaining her sister, Mrs. B. J. Ensigner, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Miss Mary Bolton, of Plainfield, is the guest here of her sister, Mrs. C. M. Kane.

Miss Martha Keller is visiting relatives in Newark.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The degree team from Goodwill Council, New Brunswick, will be at the meeting of Friendship Council tonight to initiate a candidate. The New Brunswick lodgemen will arrive in a body on the 8 o'clock trolley at Dunellen and will bring a band and drum corps and will be met at the car by a delegation from the local council. Together they will march to Friendship Hall for the meeting. After the business and initiation, there will be an elaborate program of entertainment, arranged by the good and welfare committee of the local lodge. P. W. Voorhees, Dr. D. C. Main and H. L. Hathaway are the general committee in charge of the affair.

Beginning today, there is a series of gospel meetings being conducted at the Randolphville school house. Rev. Henry N. Jordan and Rev. George H. Gardner will officiate at the services, assisted by delegations from the local Christian Endeavor Societies. There will be special music at all the services and an interesting set of topics has been announced.

Because of the seventieth anniversary at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Plainfield, Saturday, there was no morning service in the New Market church. Rev. Henry N. Jordan, the pastor, conducted the devotional exercises at the anniversary service, which was attended by a large delegation from the local church.

Many boroughites took advantage of the excellent sleighing Saturday and yesterday to go out with their cutters and several jolly parties on straw rides, came through town Saturday night. The work of ice cutting on New Market pond is progressing rapidly and should be finished by the middle of the week.

Ray and John Dutcher, as members of the Plainfield High School orchestra, took part in the musical program at the Granville-Smith lecture in the school auditorium Saturday night.

Frank Van Nuis, who was bitten in the leg by Fred Heilick's bull dog last week, is improving steadily, and is able to be about again.

Mrs. Noah Baerman is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Griffith, at Union Springs, N. Y.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The People's Ice Company started cutting ice at the "Back Pond" Saturday. The work was continued yesterday and by tomorrow it is expected that both of the large ice houses will be filled with a good quality of ice nearly thirteen inches thick.

The traveling public is complaining bitterly of the cold cars on the Main Line of the trolley for the past two weeks. Practically no attempt has been made to keep the cars warm during the extreme cold weather.

Funeral services of the late Octavus Knight, who died at his home in the borough, Thursday, were held Saturday afternoon at Washington, D. C.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Daniel T. Hendrickson returned today from a week-end visit with his family at Port Monmouth, N. J.

Miss Mary Westcott led the weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. held in the church parlors last night.

Charles Frentz left Saturday for a month's stay with relatives and friends in Texas.

Spencer's Hill was in fine shape for coasting Saturday afternoon.

Miss Bertha Beekman, of this city, who has been spending a week at her parents' home in Martinsville, has returned to Plainfield.

Arnold Daly, in "My Mamie Rose," at the New Plainfield Theatre Lincoln's Birthday, Matinee and Night.

BASEBALL.

Within three weeks the professional ball players will be working in the South, getting into condition for the season of 1908. On Saturday Murphy, the groundkeeper at the Polo Grounds, sailed for Marlin Springs, Tex., with a load of bats, balls, bases and other paraphernalia that the Giants will use in their training. All the young fellows who are trying "to make good" and some of the regulars will leave New York on February 12. Some of Griffith's men will be in the South by the end of this week, Jack Chesbro and Willie Keeler going to Hot Springs, Ark., to limber up. They will be joined there by Clark Griffith.

For the good of the game it is hoped that the race for the pennant in the National League will be closer than it was in 1907. There are many who think this will be the case, for some unusual trades have been made since last season. Jimmy Sheckard, the Chicago fielder, believes that there will be an interesting tussle. "Many think that the Cubs already have the pennant tucked away," he said the other day, "but to my mind the Phillies and Pittsburgs are going to be contenders. I don't mean you to infer that the Cubs will have no chance, but I don't think that they are going to have a song-and-dance time of it, like last season. The Phillies are a coming team and they should do better next season than last. The same applies to Pittsburg. In addition, New York and Boston are stronger and should win more games from us than last season, which will help the Phillies and Pittsburg. This is just what Chicago wants, as we would rather be hard pressed than have every rival in the circuit outclassed."

Sheckard's opinion of the Phillies seems pretty good. There are several stars on the Quaker team. Magee, the fielder; Doolin, the catcher, and Knabe, the infielder, are as good as they come. Bill Murray, the manager, believes that in Ed Grant he has a man who will attract no little attention in the baseball world this year. The young Harvard law student has all the markings of a great player. McQuillen, who won all four games he pitched last fall, is also looked upon as a coming star. First base is the only weak position on the team at this time. The Philadelphia Nationals will train in Savannah.

"Deacon" Jim McGuire, the old Yankee catcher, will act in the double capacity of manager and field captain of the Boston Americans. Last year the St. Louis Browns went along without a field captain.

One of the greatest surprises sprung on the baseball world for many a day was that put into effect Saturday afternoon, when Connie Mack sold "Rube" Waddell to the St. Louis Americans. The deal was a big surprise in one sense, and not in another. To many the surprise has been that Connie Mack tolerated the big southpaw for so long. It is safe betting that no other manager under the sun would have done for Waddell what Connie Mack has done, and even today, in letting the big fellow go, there is a tinge of regret back of it all to the leader of the White Elephants.

GOLF.

The annual championship tournament of the New Jersey State Golf Association will be held over the links of the Englewood Golf Club on June 4, 5 and 6. This makes the third time the Englewood club has been selected for this tournament. The only other direct application received at the annual meeting came from the Country Club of Atlantic City. Other clubs had the matter under consideration, but as they had not applied in the regular way the executive committee decided in favor of Englewood.

Leighton Calkins, president of the association, has selected the following as his associates to serve on the executive committee: J. Whitney Baker, secretary and treasurer; tournament committee, H. V. Keep, chairman, and E. N. Todd; handicap committee, M. D. W. Thurston, chairman, and Embury Palmer; honorary member, John W. Griggs.

Dates for three invitation tournaments have been assigned by the secretary of the Metropolitan Association. First on the list thus far is the Garden City Golf Club, which has been awarded May 7, 8 and 9. The rather youthful though energetic Wykagyl Country Club is also in line with June 11, 12 and 13. Last season Wykagyl first came into notice by giving an open thirty-six-hole medal play handicap, which attracted an unusually large field. The Shinnecock Hills Golf Club has been allotted August 5, 6, 7 and 8.

The Ridgewood Golf Club and the Scottish-American Golf Club have been elected to membership of the Metropolitan Golf Association, while the resignation of the Roseville Golf Club is also announced. The Roseville organization, because of the loss of its links, has disbanded.

The White Sale Lasts Throughout This Week.

More New Bargains Added to the List to Make This the Greatest Week of Them All.

You can easily recognize the bargains we quote below by the well-known brands of the goods, This list added to the innumerable bargains of the WHITE SALE since the beginning will certainly make this the biggest White Sale Week you have attended in a long, long time.

The muslin underwear sale, the embroidery sale, the sheer white goods sale, are each in themselves enough to draw the economical shopper, but we add this new list as an additionel attraction for this first week in February to make a good beginning for our 1908 campaign during this recognized dullest month of the year.

EMBROIDERY FLOUNCINGS 12½c Yard.

You have had some remarkable Embroidery bargains here since the first day of this White Sale. These Flouncings at 12½c are perhaps the biggest bargain of them all, for the quality is good, both the Embroidery and the Fine Lawn they are on, and just think of the price. But Tepper's is the unusual house, for we have no money tied up on our books—Cash is always worth 6 per cent. you know, and then we discontinued trading stamps some time ago that makes 3½ per cent. more we save on every dollar's worth of goods we sell. So we CAN and DO give bargains. and these Embroideries are a good illustration, at yard 12½

February Furniture Sale

Many Thousand of Dollars' Worth at Belittled Prices.

Just because we have a general annual furniture sale in January is no reason why we should rest on our laurels in February. We must be up and doing every month in the year—and right now we find plenty to do in clearing out the discontinued patterns and the many odd pieces and suites that are found all thru the stock. These we price very low, forgetting all about money-making, and you get the vast benefits.

These are representative values found here and there, picked at random.

If you come you'll find lots more equally good—maybe the very thing you are looking for.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

When Arnold Daly and his company, under the direction of Liebler & Co., put in an appearance at the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday afternoon and night, theatregoers of this city will be given an opportunity of seeing what is perhaps the strangest and most novel drama yet placed upon the American stage. Strange in its inception, novel in its treatment, and extraordinary in its method of holding the interest of the audience from first to last. Associated with Mr. Daly in the company are such players as Holbrook Blinn, Chrystal Herne, Helen Ware, Ruth Benson, Janet Beecher, William Harrigan and a dozen others of prominence. The scenes are laid on the lower East Side of New York, and the story is one with love as the dominant note; love that swept a man from the gutter into a knowledge of himself and what life would mean to him. Mr. Daly is so well known for his various impersonations; impersonations that have lifted him from obscurity into the lime-light of two continents, that anything he does is safe to be out of the ordinary, and it is said that this play has been stamped by his personality more than by anything he has yet done. The play has been called "My Mamie Rose."

The only thing about the "Are You a Mason" company that needs an introduction to the play going people in this vcinity is the date of its appearance. "Are You a Mason," Charles Frohman's furiously funny farce, has been in existence since June, 1891, has had more big runs than any other farce comedy ever written. Next Thursday night is the date of its appearance here at the New Plainfield theatre and this announcement is the best news to a depressed public, since the financial stringency took hold.

Broadhurst & Currie's clever farce, "Rudolph and Adolph," comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. The clever stars are surrounded by a most excellent company. There is nothing in the world like laughter. It is more over contagious. The man who cannot laugh," says Carlyle, "is not only fit for treason, stratagems, and spolic, but his whole life is already a treason and a stratagem." The one thing commendable about this new farce, "Rudolph and Adolph," is that it makes you laugh in spite of yourself. A special feature will be the musical numbers which are all new and said to be very tuneful and catchy.

"Bluffs," Leo Ditrichstein's new comedy, is said to have the longest string of complications possible in a three act play. The plot is under way with the rise of the curtain and doesn't stop working for a minute. Much may be expected of a comedy which follows in the line of "Are You a Mason" and "Before and After" and is designed to surpass either one for ingenuity and laughs. The company supporting Mr. Ditrichstein was chosen with great care, a highly important part falling to Fred Bond. Other main reliances are Miss Kenyon Bishop, Miss Fola La Follette, Miss Allson Skipworth, Eugene Redding and Alfred Kappeler. Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper will keep "Bluffs" on tour for only a brief season, as a run at their New York theatre, the Astor, has been planned to begin early next month. This city will see "Bluffs" as it will be presented in New York. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

THE HAURAND LICENSE.

In spite of persistent reports, is is hardily conceivable that there is a scheme afoot among some members of the Common Council to deny Henry Haurand a liquor license when the annual renewals are made next month. For years, this man has maintained a thoroughly respectable place in the Schorb building in Front street, no complaint against his saloon being on record. But now that he is compelled to remove to other quarters, it is rumored, some persons believe they have found an excuse for refusing him further authority. Mr. Haurand has purchased a valuable property in the business section in the location where for eighteen years he has had a license, and there is no just warrant for denying him further privileges.

"MY POLICIES."

If the New York World really wants to render service to the Democracy by defeating the nomination of the glib-tongued Nebraskan; it might employ more effective means than spreading broadcast a treatise on his "Twelve Years of Demogagy and Defeat." Three thousand dollars will do the trick inasmuch as for that sum in hand, William Jennings Bryan can be "induced" to deliver in New York six talks on as many days during the week preceding the Denver convention.

It remained for Sheriff Lawrence to inaugurate the "new idea" in petit juries. The calibre of men now drawn for such service not only demonstrates the fact that the sheriff has determined to conscientiously discharge his responsibility but heralds through the State the tidings that Union county will no longer tolerate the type of juries that might be open to suspicion.

It's a case of "Love me, love my dog," with Rev. T. Moore-Smith, the witty Scotchman who has resigned the pastorate of the Scotch Plains Baptist church rather than surrender his devotion to his dogs. This fact is proven in the announcement that he has made a large entry at the Madison Square Dog Show which opens tomorrow.

Now it seems as if Thaw will have to make up his mind to stay where he is until the doctors have had plenty of time to determine good and well the matter of his insanity.—Knoxville, Tenn., Journal.

After that verdict, we supposed that Thaw didn't have any mind.

While one New York paper is worrying over an occupation for Roosevelt when he retires from the White House another is burdening itself with the responsibility of devising ways and means to keep William Jennings Bryan out of it.

While Mayor Fisk is taking a much needed week's rest at Lakewood, our taxpayers will have time to reflect on their good fortune in having such a valuable man as chief executive of the municipality.

That Dick Quay should be frightened at Black Hand threats is enough to make "Addition, Division and Silence" Matt turn over in his grave.

ESTIMATION OF JUDAISM

Rev. Dr. Herring Compares Jews' Religion with That of the Christians.

CLAIMS MANY CONVERSIONS.

Although Hebrews Number but 750,000 in New York They Control Two-thirds of Its Wealth, He Says.

"Jews and Judaism" was the subject of the discourse by the Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night, in the series on comparative religions. He presented the valuable religious teachings in Judaism and then the complete truth in Christianity. His theme was: "Will the Jews Ever Accept Christ As the Messiah?"

Dr. Herring said:

"We are dealing tonight with the religion of a people who number not more than 10,000,000, if that many, and throughout history the average has been about 7,000,000. Contrast that with the 233,000,000 Mahometans or the 530,000,000 Christians. Yet these people are making themselves felt in the history of the world today. New York city contains more than 725,000 Jews, most of whom have come here in the last twenty years, and two-thirds of the wealth of New York is controlled by the Jews.

"These people possess an intense national spirit, and are notably strong in intellectual and financial ability.

"The Rothschild banking house in Europe is said to control $30,000,000, and one-half of the rich people of Germany are Jews.

"Two per cent. of the population of Germany are Jews, and yet at Leipsic, in the highest Law Court of Germany, ten of the seventy-nine judges are Jews.

"This remarkable people have given to us the basis of our faith,—for the Jewish Scriptures are ours. I know of no better picture of the relation between Judaism and Christianity than that which the Apostle Paul presents when he says, 'The law was a tutor to lead us to Christ.' By 'law' he meant the Jewish Scriptures. The Old Testament had a purpose,—the purpose was the Messiah.

"What was a tutor? The picture is taken from an old Greek and Roman custom, when parents put their boys under men who looked after their physical and intellectual development.

"They supervised the boy's life until he was fitted to take care of himself, and then because of that training under a tutor he was better able to enjoy the freedom of citizenship. So the Old Testament was a tutor to lead men to Christ.

"Briefly,—let us note the cardinal teachings of Judaism and see how Christianity completes that Judaism.

"The Jewish Scriptures take account of sin. Its sacrifices disclose the fact and the seriousness of sin. They declare sin not to be merely imperfection or finiteness which we shall overcome by a process of evolution, sin is something that demands expiation and forgiveness.

"The Jewish Scriptures again teach us the holiness of God. Jehovah is the unapproachable Being, but it is not our finiteness that separates us from Him but our sin. The High Priest could enter but once a year into the Holy of Holies with the sins of the people,—the people never. The Priest mediated between Jehovah and the people.

"Throughout the Old Testament, the lesson is repeatedly given. It is sin that separates humanity from God.

"The sin of men pardoned, then God is no longer unapproachable but a tender Father to Israel.

"The Old Testament is God coming continually nearer to man, until the time is ripe for God to reveal Himself to the world in His Son.

"Now in what sense is Christianity an advance upon the Jewish religion?

"First in this: The Jewish Scriptures with all their truth do not present us with a glorious conception of immortality.

"Even Isaiah speaks of dead kings in the under world, sitting on thrones and rising up to meet a new comer, who had recently been a potentate of earch, and saying, 'Art thou become as weak as we, art thou become like unto us?'

"The dead are a shadow of their former selves, who could be brought to earth by magic arts.

"The future was not very clear to them. It was Christ who brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel. Christ said, You need never die, that death to a good man is merely a translation. Judaism had some thought of a resurrection but it was a dim and hazy thing until Christ made it luminous.

"Second: You cannot read the teaching of Jesus without becoming convinced of the value of an individual soul. God is the Father not simply of the nation as in the Jewish faith, but the Father of the individual.

"Third: The religion of Judaism is a national religion. Christianity is a religion of humanity.

"The Jew in the time of our Lord believed in his superiority over other people, and would not recognize the universal element in his religion, only those who were born Jews or who were naturalized Jews could share his religion and he was not anxious to spread his faith, that the world might rejoice,—yet the prophets were pointing to a world wide faith.

"It is an interesting question for us, —will the Jews ever accept the Lord as the Messiah? I believe they will, for such belief accords with prophecy. The facts are that today there is a change of thought regarding Christ; fifty years ago the Jews as a body, except the learned Jews, hated the name of Christ; today He is regarded as a great reformer; and many regard His as the greatest man that ever lived. Yes, and today the Jews converted to Christ number 250,000.

"Did I hear someone say, 'Christianity is in danger of becoming extinct.' Well, it numbers one-third of the world's people as believers, and the Jews are changing their thought of Christ. May it not be that our Lord sometime will use these very people to propagate His truth. I believe He will."

CHARITIES' AID CONFERENCE

deserved hardships which so frequently fall upon the families of convicts enlist our sympathies and summon our intelligence. One well qualified to enlighten us will speak this morning on this theme. A New York journal recently declared that, 'The Charity Organization Society by its work will eventually purify the management of the greatest city of our country, and make it directly humane instead of sadly human.

"Of all people who have suffered long and suffer still from 'Man's inhumanity to man' probably none are so quickly in our thought as our Hebrew brethren. Perhaps their history, steeped in pain, has made them wisely humane. Certainly there is nothing hysterical or over-fervent in their manner or methods, yet their success has made us desirous to learn of them. 'Still at the prophet's feet the nations sit.'

"Unburden yourself of pride, prejudice, philanthropic ambition to lead, to be known of men, and cooly reason with us. A Western journal tells of a young Kansan who took a young woman out to skate. Soon his companion was cold. He applied a match to a hole in the ice. It blazed up instantly with a hot, bright flame. The lake was full of natural gases. Possibly our alleged coldness has within it warmth sufficient for all real needs."

'TWAS LOCAL OPTION DAY

public life men must be steady, sober and industrious. What has accomplished this? The education of children in the schools, demands of business, close competition by rail and vessels, moral influences of the church and the W. C. T. U., politics and chief among these the strong movement for local option.

"We have government by councils, excise boards and judges, but there is no power of local veto, so we are subject to imposition at any time. What we want is local option. Still, if it does not obtain the present government remains and so there is nothing lost. What is local option? It s simply a law giving the people the right to say whether they shall have saloons in counties, towns, boroughs, wards and in reality it is home rule in the amtter of the saloon.

"How are we to get local option? A bill is now before our Legislature, introduced by Assemblyman Crosby, of Ocean county. The bill is in the hands of the committee, of which Assemblyman John R. Moxon, of Union county, is chairman. Write him and urge him to do his best to report it; write to any and all Assemblymen, Senators and Governor. This method has been invited by Governor Fort by his reference to the subject in his inaugural message.

"Let us save the man who is down by giving him a chance, putting him on his feet. Let us educate the coming man and woman by all kinds of means possible. Let us hold a firm check over the liquor traffic and control it. Do not let it control us. Let us fight it out of the land step by step and local option is the most effective way to do this at the present time.

Rev. Mr. Howard's Talk.

At the conclusion of the morning sermon yesterday, Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, made a brief reference to the agitation in favor of local option. He dwelt more especially on individual rights, maintaining that they should not interfere with the wall of the majority in local or county affairs. This he held to be the only true and safe method in deciding the question of local option.

Hot Stove Starts Blaze.

An overheated stove at the home of Adam Seader, of Steiner place, set fire to the wood-work in one of the upstairs rooms yesterday at about noon. The fire was discovered by Dr. Lufburrow, who smelled smoke as soon as he entered the house. His investigation showed the wainscoting and floor to be blazing fiercely and the bed and a chair were also aflame. An alarm was turned in from box 152, but the flames had been extinguished by the time the firemen arrived. The building is owned by E. P. T. Gavin and the loss will amount to about $100.

THE LOVER'S CHOICE.

I'd like to be the tiny shoe
With which my lady's shod,
That I, with all my sole, might kiss
The ground on which she trod.

I'd like to be the glove she wears,
For then, you understand,
I'd take the opportunity
To squeeze her little hand.

I'd like to be her looking-glass
(All hung about with lace),
And know no duty than to just
Reflect upon her face.

But, more than all, I'd like to be
Her ribbon belt, and haste
With absolute propriety,
To clasp her slender waist.

THE USUAL WAY.

First County Councilor—Here's a fine-looking street.

Second Ditto—You're right there. What's best to be done with it?

"Let's have it dug up for a sewer."

"But wouldn't it be proper to pave it first?"

"Of course; I supposed you understood that. Then, after it is paved and a sewer put in, we'll have it repaved."

"All in readiness to be dug up again for the gaspipe? I see you understand the principles of municipal economy. And after we have had it repaved for the second time, then what?"

"Well, then it will be in order for widening. There's nothing I admire so much as system in the care and improvement of our roadways."

GOT WELL.

"The doctors have given Wickwire up."

"Poor fellow, is he as ill as that?"

"No; he got well!"—Chicago Journal.

The Self-Same.

The letter that never came—
How often we assail it—
Is the self-same one
That should have gone,
But father forgot to mail it.
—Detroit Free Press.

A Change in Address.

A soldier of the great army of the unemployed shuffled up to the roll-top desk and looked over.

"Say, are you de guy wot advertised for a man to address envelopes?" he asked anxiously.

"I am," replied the man at the desk; "but if you can't address envelopes any better than you address me, you'll find the exit where you came in."—Judge

Making Use of Him to the Last.

Mrs. A.—I hear you are going to South Dakota.

Mrs. B.—So I am.

Mrs. A.—Divorce, I suppose?

Mrs. B.—Yes.

Mrs. A.—I wonder what your husband will do?

Mrs.B.—Oh, I am taking him along to look after the baggage,etc.—Judge.

Loss Fully Covered.

Adjuster—I've called to fix up that matter of your house burning down. Was the loss total?

Heck Penn—Oh, th' house is plumb gone; but, young feller, ef I tuck a cent from yore company, I'd feel like a thief. Mebbe you heven't heard thet my wife tuck advantage o' th' excitement t' elope.—Puck.

An Enfant Terrible.

Little Claude has been told that Uncle John has a glass eye, and forgets that he has been bidden to say nothing about it.

"Will you lend me your eye for a little while, Uncle John? My other marble has roled down a grating."—Royal Magazine.

A Primer.

See the man and woman entering the Great Dry Goods Emporium.

The man looks very sad.

The woman looks supremely happy.

Why does the man look sad? He is going in to buy something.

Why does the woman look happy? For the same reason.—Judge.

Bricks and "Bricks."

Bacon—The absorbing capacity of a brick is about 16 ounces of water.

Egbert—And when they call a man a "brick" it signifies that he has not the reputation for absorbing anything like that amount of water.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Good Guess.

Yeast—What would happen if some people could take their money with them into the next world, do you suppose?

Crimsonbeak—Why, it would burn in their pockets!—Yonkers Statesman.

Not Likely To.

Church—That man Roxley is always trying to outdo himself.

Gotham—What has he done now?

"Paid $5,000 for a Turkish rug!"

"Well, I'll bet he'll never beat that."—Yonkers Statesman.

Smoke Up.

The 2-cent cigar industry is safe. The Indian jute-crop is estimated at 10,000,000 bales, nearly 2,000,000 more bales than are needed for bags and wall-decoration.—Judge.

Her Age.

"How old is your daughter? Quite a young lady, isn't she?"

"She just passed her fifth picture post-card album yesterday."—Puck.

State of New Jersey

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Whereas, the comptroller did, on the sixth day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, under the provisions of an act entitled "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act to provide for the imposition of states taxes upon certain corporations and for the collection thereof,' approved April 18, 1884," which supplementary act was approved June 2, 1905, report to the governor a list of all corporations coming under said act; and

Whereas, the following named corporations so reported have, for the two years preceding such report, failed, neglected or refused to pay the state taxes assessed against them for the year 1905, under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and made payable into the state treasury; and

Whereas, under the provisions of said act the charters of said corporations are repealed and all powers conferred by law upon such corporations declared inoperative and void, unless the governor gives further time for payment; and

Whereas, the governor has not given further time to the corporations so reported and hereinafter named for the payment of such taxes, and the same are still unpaid;

Therefore, I, Edward C. Stokes, Governor of the State of New Jersey, pursuant to the provisions of said act of the legislature, do hereby issue this proclamation that the charters of the following named corporations so reported and in default, to wit:

The Fighting Chance.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1906, by the Curtis Publishing Company.
Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

Odd little thoughts came hovering into her reverie—thoughts that seemed distantly familiar, the direct, unconscious impulses of a child. To feel was once more the only motive for expression; to think fearlessly was once more inherent; to desire was to demand—unlock her lips, naively, and ask for what she wished.

Under the spell she turned her blue gaze on him, and her lips parted without a tremor.

"What do you offer for what you ask? And do you still ask it? Is it me you are asking me for? Because you love me? And what do you give—love?"

"Weigh it with the—other," he said.

"I have—often—every moment since I have known you. And what a winter!" Her voice was almost inaudible. "What a winter—without you!"

"That hell is ended for me too, Sylvia, I know what I ask. And I ask. I know what I offer. Will you take it?"

"Yes," she said.

He rose, blindly. She stood up, pale, wide eyed, confronting him, stammering out the bargain:

"I take all—all, every virtue, every vice of you. I give all—all, all I have been, all I am, all I shall be! Is that enough? Oh, if there were only more to give! Stephen, if there were only more!"

Her hands had fallen into his, and they looked each other in the eyes.

Suddenly through the hush of the enchanted moment a sullen sound broke, the sound of a voice they knew, threateningly raised, louder and louder, growling, profanely menacing.

Aghast, they turned in the darkness, peering toward the lighted space beyond. Leroy Mortimer, his face shockingly congested, stood unsteadily balancing there, confronting his wife, who sat staring at him in horror. At the same instant Plank rose and laid a hand on Mortimer's shoulder, but Mortimer shook him off with a warning oath.

"You and I will settle with each other tomorrow!" he said thickly, pointing a puffy finger at Plank. "You'll find me at the Algonquin Trust. Do you hear? That's where you'll settle this matter—in the president's office!" He stood swaying and leering at Plank, repeating loudly: "In Quarrier's office! Understand? That's where you'll settle up! See!"

Leila, white face quivering, shrank as though he had struck her, and he turned on her again, grinning: "As for you, you come home! And that'll be about all for yours."

"Are you insane to make a scene like this?" said Plank.

But Mortimer swung on him insultingly and said: "That's about all from you! Leila, are you coming?"

He stepped heavily toward her, but Plank's sudden crushing grip was on his fat arm above the elbow, and he emitted a roar of surprise and pain.

"Don't touch him! Don't, in heaven's name!" stammered Leila as Plank, releasing him, stepped back beside her chair. "Can't you see that I must go with him? I—I must go!" She cast one terrified glance around her, where scores of strange faces met hers, and at every table people were standing up to see better.

Plank, who had dropped Mortimer's arm as the latter emitted his bellow of amazement, stepped toward him again, dropping his voice as he spoke.

"You go! Do you hear?" he said quietly. "I'll do what you ask me tomorrow. I will do what you ask if you'll go now."

"You come! Do you hear?" snarled Mortimer, turning on his wife, who had already risen. "If you don't I'll make a row here that you'll never hear the end of as long as you live. And there'll be nothing to talk over in Quarrier's office if I do."

Leila looked at Plank, rose and moved swiftly toward the veranda steps, her head resolutely lowered, the burning shame flaming in her face. Mortimer cast one triumphant glance at Plank, then waddled unsteadily after his wife.

"Hold on," he growled; "I've a car here! I'll drive you back—wait! Here it is! Here we are!" And to Quarrier's machinist he said: "You get into the tonneau. I want to show Mrs. Mortimer what night driving is. Do you hear? I tell you I'm going to drive this machine and show you how!"

Leila scarcely heard him. She obeyed the impulse of his hand on her arm and mounted to the seat, staring straight ahead of her with dazed and straining eyes that saw nothing.

Then Mortimer clambered to his seat and without an instant's warning opened up and seized the wheel.

Unprepared, the machinist attempted to swing aboard, missed his footing in the uncertain light and fell sprawling on the gravel. Plank saw him from the veranda and instantly vaulted the rail to the lawn below.

"You d—n fool!" yelled Mortimer, looking around. "What do you think you'll do?" And he clapped on full speed as Plank made a leap for the car and missed.

Mortimer laughed and turned his head to look back, and the next instant something seemed to wrench the steering wheel from its roots. There was a blinding glare of light, a scream, and the great machine bounced into the air full length, turned completely over and lay across a flower bed, partly on one side.

Something was afire too. Men were rushing from the verandas, women screamed and stood up wringing their hands. A mounted policeman came galloping through the darkness. People shouted: "Throw sand on it! Get shovels, for God's sake! Lift that tonneau. There's a woman under it!"

But they were mistaken, for Leila lay at the foot of the slope, one little bloody hand clutching the dead grass, and Plank knelt beside her, giving his orders quietly to those who came running down the hill from the roadway above, which was now fiercely illuminated by burning gasoline. At last they got sand enough to quench the fire and men sufficient to lift the weight from the dead man's neck and drag what was left of him on to the grass.

"Don't look!" whispered Siward, drawing Sylvia back.

He and she both had put their shoulders to the tonneau along with the others, and now they stood there together in the shifting lantern light, sickened, shivering under the summer stars, staring at the gathering crowd around that shapeless lump on the grass.

Plank passed them, walking beside an improvised stretcher, calm, almost smiling, as Sylvia sprang forward with a little sob of inquiry.

"There's the doctor over there. That man is a docter. He knows," repeated Plank with studied deliberation, looking down at Leila's deathly face. "He says it's all right. He says he'll get a candle and that he can tell by the flame's effect on the pupils of the eyes what exactly is the matter. No," to Siward, beside him, pressing forward through the crowd which eddied from the dead man to the stretcher, "no, there is not a bone broken. She is stunned, that's all. She fell in the shrubbery. We'll have an ambulance here pretty quick, Stephen," using his first name unconsciously. "Won't you look out for Sylvia? I'm going back on the ambulance. If you'll find somebody to drive my machine I wish you would take Sylvia back. No, I don't want you to drive, Stephen—if you don't mind. Get that machinist, please. I'm rattled, and I don't want you to drive."

Leila lay on the stretcher.

Leila lay on the stretcher, her bloodless face upturned to the stars. Beyond, under a blanket, something else lay very still on the lawn.

Plank beckoned a policeman and whispered to him.

Then, far away in the darkness, a distant clamor grew on the night air, nearer, nearer.

Plank, standing beside the stretcher, raised his head, listening to the ambulance arriving at full speed.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Cora E. Gulick.

Mrs. Cora E. Gulick, wife of Cornelius Elmer Gulick, formerly of Plainfield, died at Berkeley Heights on Friday night and the interment will be in Cedar Hill cemetery, East Millstone, tomorrow. She leaves a husband and three children. She had been ailing for a long time from an incurable disease.

Mrs. John McInness.

Mrs. Agnes McInness, wife of John McInness, died this morning at her home on West Third street, following a long illness. She was in her seventy-third year and had lived in Plainfield about twenty years, coming here from Scotland. She leaves a family of seven sons and daughters of whom three live in this city, James and David McInness and Mrs. Margaretta Cashman. The funeral will be held at the home of James McInness, South Second street, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Theodore Hooper.

Theodore Hooper, colored, aged fifty-six years, died Saturday afternoon at his home on Richmond street, after an illness of eight weeks with pulmonary trouble. He leaves a wife and daughter. The funeral will be held at the Mount Zion A. M. E. church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Marshall Kinney.

Marshall Kinney, colored, who had been in the employ of Judge Steele's family for many years, died at the home of Hiram B. Steele, Court street, Brooklyn, Saturday night. The funeral will be held at the residence tomorrow and burial will be in Hillside cemetery here.

Richard Hutchinson.

The funeral of Richard Hutchinson, who died at his home on Clinton ton avenue, Friday, was held at the Brethren meeting place on East Front street, yesterday afternoon. Burial was at Hillside. Mr. Hutchinson was in his ninety-fifth year and in his earlier life had been a practicing physician. He came to Plainfield ten years ago. He is survived by one son, Dr. Hutchinson, of New York, a dental surgeon, and two daughters living in Michigan.

Secretary Parker in Town.

General Secretary Herbert E. Parker, who has been appointed to succeed Kenneth Robbie at the Y. M. C. A. came to this city with his wife and child today and was at the association building for the first this afternoon. He expects that his house on Westervelt avenue will be ready for occupancy tomorrow, for his household effects are coming on from his former home in Trenton today. Mr. Parker will be at the association daily with Mr. Robbie until the latter leaves to take up his new duties at Springfield, Mass., next Monday, when he will assume full charge as general secretary.

Tells of Mission Yacht Work.

Captain Benn, of the Mission Yacht Association, of New York, spoke concerning his work at the Congregational church yesterday morning and in the afternoon he addressed the W. C. T. U. meeting. He made an urgent appeal for literature to be distributed among the vessels entering the New York harbor. He explained that during last year seventy tons of literature were used in this way and he said that the sailors were very appreciative.

P. H. S. Junior Play.

The Junior Class of the Plainfield High School has decided upon "Miss Civilization" as the class play and this will be presented in the school auditorium Saturday evening, March 14. The play is a comedy by Richard Harding Davis, giving the experiences of a young girl with burglars. The caste has been provisionally chosen and Miss Katherine Ball, of the school faculty, is coaching the pupil thespians.

Lieut. Bull's Promotion.

Lieut. E. L. Bull, U. S. Army, has been detailed as assistant instructor of military science and tactics at West Point. This is one of the choice assignments of the service and is for four years. Lieut. Bull is a son of Charles P. Bull, of East Ninth street, this city, and is now with his regiment, the 22nd Infantry, on duty in Goldfield, Nevada.

Dr. Lewis One of the Speakers.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis will be one of the speakers at the annual banquet of the Men's Club of the Congregational church, Bound Brook, Wednesday night. The Ladies' Aid Society of the church will be in charge of the dinner.

—Advertise in The Daily Press.

FORT AND KEAN WILL BE DOLLAR DINNER GUESTS

Governor John Franklin Fort will be the chief speaker at a dollar dinner to be given under the auspices of the Elizabeth Downtown Republican Club, and the Union County Republican Committee jointly in Elizabeth, early in April. Senator John Kean will be the toastmaster and the affair promises to be one of the biggest political events held in the county in a long time. There will be other Republicans of prominence and Plainfield, it is expected, will be largely represented.

Andrew McCardell, of this city, is treasurer and one of the committee on speakers. County Chairman F. H. Smith is one of the advisory committee appointed. The exact date for the dinner has not been fixed as those in charge want to await the convenience of the Governor so as to insure his presence.

STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN HE ESCAPES WITH BURISES

Struck by west bound train No. 527, arriving here at 2:45, Lewis Smith, of Summit avenue, a carpenter employed on the Newark Bay bridge, near Elizabethport, miraculously escaped death Saturday afternoon. He was at work on the bridge when the train came along and was struck a glancing blow by the pilot of the engine. Thrown some distance, he escaped with some painful contusions, bruises and abrasions and is now confined to his home in charge of the company's physician, Dr. Fritts.

Dr. Fufburrow, who was on the train, rendered medical assistance to the injured man, who was taken aboard and brought to this city on the train that struck him. His examination failed to disclose any broken bones or internal injuries and Smith was taken to his home in the ambulance from the North Avenue station.

HAVE YOU SEEN "SPLINT."

Mr. Wilmerding Is Anxiously Awaiting His Return Home.

A. C. Wilmerding, of Belvidere avenue, is today anxiously seeking a black and white cocker spaniel puppy which ran away yesterday while out for an exercise run. The animal is a thoroughbred and has been entered by its owner in the Madison Square Garden dog show which begins tomorrow, consequently its return would be doubly agreeable to him. The puppy answers to the name of "Splint" and anyone locating him and returning him to Mr. Wilmerding will be substantially rewarded.

A full description of "Splint" will be found in the "Lost" column of today's Daily Press. In the event of his being found, a telephone message to Mr. Wilmerding's home will be appreciated.

Mission Workers at Faith Chapel.

John H. Wyburn, superintendent of the McGauley Mission on Water Street, New York, and four other workers from the mission, were at Faith chapel last night, where there was a special service in the interests in the work. Mr. Wyburn, who has recently succeeded F. H. Hadley as superintendent, was accompanied by his wife, and the other New Yorkers were Mr. and Mrs. John Hays, Mr. Langdorf, Mr. Stockdale, and Mr. Russel. All are converts of the mission and addressed the meeting in the interests of the work. The visitors sang several gospel hymns and a special collection was taken for the work.

Holy Cross Club Dance.

Under the auspices of the Holy Cross Club, a delightful informal dance was given Saturday night at the parish house on Mercer avenue. There were about twenty-five couples on the floor and dancing was continued until a late hour. continued until a late hour. The affair was arranged by the entertainment committee of the club, of which Will Little is chairman.

Spoke On Life of Lincoln.

In connection with the morning sermon at the First Baptist church, yesterday, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss made an appropriate reference to the life of Lincoln, whose birthday anniversary will be celebrated on Wednesday. He paid deserving tribute to the Martyr-President, recalling noble deeds in his career that combined to make him one of the great men of the times.

We're Going To Clean Out These Winter Goods

—as you can easily see by the prices we have put on them—that we mean for them to go right now. It's in line with our 1908 policy to clean out the old stock and make room for the new. We can afford to be a bit liberal about it, too, since it was inventoried last month with that in view. Read the list—how generously we cut the price! You will most likely find use for some of these things the way we sell them.

And the White Goods Sale isn't altogether over with either—in fact, all that's left of the White Goods bargains—as Muslin Underwear, India Linons, Persian and French Lawns, Nainsooks, Long Cloths, Embroideries—these will all remain at the sale prices until disposed of—and displayed on the centre tables as heretofore.

DEFENDS THE CHINAMAN

Rev. Mr. Smith in Lecture Before Baptist Men Says that They are Better than Japs.

HE PREDICTS GREAT THINGS.

Looks Forward to the Day When Chinese Will Surpass the Japanese—A More Honest Race.

The wonderful transformation, educationally and industrially, that is now going on in China was illustrated and described in an interesting manner at the First Baptist church, last night, by Rev. Frank Smith, pastor of the Baptist church at Haddonfield. Mr. Smith visited China in company with a party of ministers and he gained a wealth of knowledge concerning that country. His views, all taken by himself, were among the finest yet seen and gave the audience a clearer and better idea of this part of the world which has attracted so much interest.

Mr. Smith did not dwell on the missionary work especially. He described the Chinese as being the most conservative and self-opinionated people on earth, and referred at some length to the war between Japan and China, and the Boxer uprising. He declared his belief that the time would come when China would do things of which Japan never dreamed. With their sucessive defeats China had been led to wonder the cause and had come to the conclusion that they were due to western methods, western civilization, and the natives are now taking advantage of these things. As a result, he said, there is a great transformation going on in the country.

In speaking of the Chinese the speaker said that they are far superior to the Japanese, although he once had an idea to the contrary. They are honest commercially and the Japanese are not. He said that there is a popular feeling in this country favorable to the Japanese, but when China awakens she will perform wonders that will open the eyes of the world.

A fine series of views were shown by him illustrating the extensive country through which Mr. Smith traveled, and several showed educational centers, where the young men and women of China are rapidly being prepared to take the lead in all the prominent walks of life in that country. Speaking of the opium trade, he said that the government had taken steps which it was believed would eventually wipe it out of the country.

The scholar of China is now considered fully as important as the soldier in Japan and the leading men of the country are bending every effort to educate the people and bring them up to a higher plane of civilization. He spoke of the Chinese as being great gamblers and said that when they could not get money with which to gamble they would use sticks or in fact anything that they could get hold of to wager.

The views showing the great temples and various forms of religious worship proved interesting. He also displayed a picture of one of the large iron mills which would be a credit to any to be found in this country. In conclusion Mr. Smith said that China wants everything that we have in this country and above all she needs the Gospel of Christ.

Routine Hospital Business.

Only business of a routine character was transacted at the February meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, at the Casino. The medical director reported the number of patients in January as follows: Patients remaining at date of last report, 27; admitted, 54; discharged cured, 37; improved, 7; not improved, 1; died, 8; remaining, 28; total number treated, 81; operations, 68; number of hospital days, 919. In the dispensary, number of patients, 49; visits of patients, 151; operations, 2.

Teachers' Reception Tonight.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the city schools, has arranged for a reception of the teachers in the various schools to be held at the high school tonigt. CO. K BOYS INSPECTED BY CAPT. REED, U.S.A.

Company K's annual inspection in the armory on West Front street, last night, was a big success. Captain Reed, of the 12th Infantry, was the inspecting officer and he complimented the company on its excellent appearance. Fifty-six members were present, there being only one absentee. That was Michael McCardell, who, it was said, had gone to Brooklyn to enlist in the navy. This was the only thing that prevented the company from securing the highest mark in point of attendance. An effort will be made to have the absent member at Somerville tonight when Company M will be inspected. If this can be arranged the local organization will get the 100 per cent. mark.

In connection with the inspection last night the company went through a short drill in its usual efficient manner. Captain Reed was accompanied by Lieut.-Colonel George Foreman, of Trenton, and both officers expressed their pleasure and approval over the showing of the company.

MARY ANN KEHOE THE AMATEUR "SCREAM"

The biggest "scream" in the way of an amateur number that has yet appeared at Manager Counihan's weekly tryouts for aspiring vaudevillians held down the New Plainfield theatre stage last night. She described herself as Mary Ann Kehoe but shyly declined to tell what village, town or hamlet numbered her among its society belles and nobody knows from whence she came or where she went. If she started out for the places she was consigned to by the audience she has "gone on a long journey" as the fortune tellers put it.

Mary was introduced by Manager Counihan as "Fluffy Ruffles" and she galloped on the stage with the grace of a giraffe. She was short-skirted and short-winded, white-stockinged and wild-eyed but she faced the crowd with set teeth and ordered the piano man to play the prelude to "School-days." Hers were apparently so far back in the dim distance that it is not to be wondered at that she forgot most of the song when she started to gurgle. She kept at it like grim death while the excitement in front of her assumed riotous proportions and up in the gallery Bedlam was rampant. She got away in safety, however, and her nerve got her an encore.

Mary came back for a second try and shades of Geo. M. Cohan—how she did lambaste "Harrigan." She tore it all to pieces and then added insult to injury by doing what purported to be a dance. The gentle reader can take it from the dramatic critic, Adeline Genee has nothing on her in this respect.

After the airy, fairy Mary had departed, the amateurs were lined up for the awards. Miss Florence Irving, a demure little lady who sang "Won't You Be My Honey?" got first money; "Fluffy" Kehoe took second and third went to Henry Bender, who sang "He's a Cousin of Mine." The other contestants were Carlton Vail, who sang "Let It Alone" and Washington and Lee, a colored team, who gave a boxing exhibition.

Because of the cancelling of "Grimes' Cellar Door," Salisbury's pictures will be given at the theatre again tonight.

TWELVE CENTS BRINGS POOR WOMAN A TEN DOLLAR BILL.

This is a story of a poor woman who invested twelve cents yesterday which this morning netted her just ten dollars. Her good fortune lay in the fact that as an intelligent Plainfielder she knew how to make an investment which never fails to bring satisfactory results.

This particular woman lives near Franklin place and Watchung avenue and yesterday morning she rang up The Daily Press to say that she had lost a ten dollar bill the day previous. Of course she wanted the public to know it in the hope that the money could be recovered. Mr. Sleven, of 330 Franklin place, had found the bill and naturally he scanned the "lost" columns of The Daily Press to find out who owned it.

The poor woman got her money back this morning and Mr. Sleven refused the proferred reward.

MIKE READINGTON GOES DOWN FOR THIRTY DAYS

Thirty days in jail were doled out to Mike Readington, the champion return date player in the city court, when he was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. Three weeks ago he answered roll call on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and was told then if he climbed aboard the water wagon and stayed there a year, sentence would be suspended and he would be let off the first time he appeared after the twelve months elapsed. Mike promised and the court had hopes of his temporary reformation at least.

Early yesterday afternoon a cop discovered a man rolling about the snow banks in East Front street and after getting him straightened out discovered it was Mike. He was hustled to headquarters and thawed back to life over a register but the combination of heat and the booze he already had added the finishing touches to his souse. He was just about in shape to be arraigned this morning but was in no frame of mind to hand out an excuse for breaking his promise.

Mike has been in court so many times the cops have got the habit of marking up every appearance on his particular cell door and counting them when he arrives. They number about thirty at the present time.

ENDURANCE CONTEST ON LOCAL ALLEYS TOMORROW

Ten teams have entered the twelve-hour endurance contest, which will start at 10:30 tomorrow morning at Campbell's East Second street bowling alleys. The affair will assume the aspect of an Inter-Urban struggle, teams being entered from Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and this city. The local contestants entered will be compelled to put forth their strongest efforts to bring home the honors and incidentally the money, and it will be the first opportunity that Plainfield pin knights have had of testing their mettle with the cracks of other cities. The teams entered are, Noack and Walters, Sheehan and Mc Greevey, Kearney and Rue; Vermeule and Banks, of Newark; Smith and Hogarty, of New Brunswick; Turley and Bradley, of Elizabeth; Willett and Britton; Skelly and Williams, Reville and Koons, Mullen and Conklin, of this city.

One hundred dollars in prizes will be distributed as follows: First team prize, $30; second, $20; third, $15; fourth, $10. Individual average prizes, first, $10; second, $7; third, $5; fourth, $3. Post entries will be accepted and in this event the prize list will be increased.

FAVORS RETENTION OF THE VOTING MACHINES

The Senate committee to investigate election ballot conditions in New York reported to the Senate last night at Trenton that it favored the retention of the voting machine, but that the party voting lever should be abolished. It opposed two methods of voting in a municipality. There should be either all machines or all paper ballots, and voting machines should be located in most populous wards and once located never be removed.

The committee said the present paper ballots used in New Jersey elections were the "most unsafe, the farthest removed from secrecy and the most easily manipulated in the interest of fraudulent voting of any paper ballots in the United States.

For the paper ballots now used the committee recommended the New York State ballot, numbering stubs corresponding to ballot, so the voter must deposit the same ballot he received at the polls after he had marked it properly. Separate ballots and ballot-boxes to be used for State and county elections, the municipal ballot to be colored red and the county ballot white.

Recital for Day Nursery.

W. T. Carleton will give a song recital at the Casino tonight for the benefit of The Day Nursery. There has been a large sale of tickets and the affair promises to be a most successful one. Mr. Carleton will sing Irish, Scotch and Welsh songs, with explanatory notes.

—A charity dance will be given at Truell Hall, Netherwood, Saturday evening, February 15. Tickets admitting two, $1. Committee in charge, Mrs. R. H. McCready, Mrs. S. S. Schuyler, Miss Catharine Knox. ***

FOR AN IMPROVED ROAD

State Supervisor Meeker Goes West to Investigate Asphaltum Residium.

AUTOS SPOIL THE HIGHWAYS.

New Jersey Must Find Some Process Which Will Save the Top Dressing—The Western Plan.

As State Road Supervisor, Robert A. Meeker, of this city, left today for Kansas City, where he will investigate the merits of a new type of pave known as asphaltum residium. It is the purpose of Commissioner Kilkyson to have the pave introduced in New Jersey provided Mr. Meeker finds that it is an improvement on the present style of road building.

Between Kansas City and Fort Leavenworth, for a stretch of four miles, asphaltum has been in use for some time. It is claimed that the wearing qualities have been found exceptionally good and that the roadway is almost noiseless. Furthermore, it is quite plastic and yet not at all sticky. The residium is obtained from refining asphalt containing an oil with an asphalt base. This composition is well mixed with earth.

Mr. Meeker said today that the matter of keeping Jersey's famous roads in good order has become a serious problem. Automobiles traveling at high speed have gradually worn away the top dressing on almost all the improved highways, he declared, and the commissioner is making every effort to hit on some practical plan to preserve the top dressing or in other words to get a composition that will withstand heavy traffic.

AUBREY WEIGHTMAN TO SHARE IN MILLIONS

The report that Mrs. Anne Weightman Walker, daughter and sole heir to the $60,000,000 estate of the late William Weightman, of Philadelphia, would distribute millions of her wealth among relatives on the eve of her marriage to Frederick Courtland Penfield, was confirmed yesterday at Mrs. Walker's apartments in New York. Among those mentioned as beneficiaries under the plan of distribution is Aubrey Herbert Weightman, who married Miss Fanny Cox, daughter of the late Rowland Cox, of this city.

Mr. Weightman and Miss Cox were married in this city several years ago, the wedding being the society event of the year. Ten grandchildren and great-grandchildren of William Weightman, all but one residents of Philadelphia, are included among the beneficiaries, and the five daughters of Mrs. Jones Wister, whose suit to break the will three years ago ended so dramatically, are also mentioned. Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Weightman have two daughters, Fanny Cox Weightman and Martha Weightman, but as they are both quite young it is not considered surprising that their names have not been mentioned among those who are to be remembered.

"It is very likely that I shall provide for my relatives," Mrs. Walker is reported as saying, "but I have not done it yet, nor have I arranged the details."

Asked whether her approaching marriage had led her to this step, Mrs. Walker said:

"No, I will not say that. My marriage will not affect my financial affairs in any way. I have formed no plans regarding this matter, and will not until I consult my attorney in Philadelphia."

Lincoln's Birthday Observed.

Lincoln's birthday was appropriately observed by special exercises at the city and borough schools today. At the Plainfield High School, Lindsey Best read from the life history of the Martyr-President and Charles L. Lewis sang a vocal solo. No sessions will be held in the public schools tomorrow.

Osborne Halsted, Jr., Celebrates.

Mrs. Osborne Halsted, of Watchung avenue, gave a party at her home yesterday afternoon for her son, Osborne Halsted, Jr., in honor of the fifth anniversary of his birthday. The guests included a dozen young friends of the young celebrant and they had a jolly time playing games. A feature was a birthday cake bearing five candles. Master Halsted received a number of useful and pretty gifts.

FAIR ACRES ASSOCIATION MAKES PLANS FOR SEASON

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, when plans were discussed for the coming season. It was announced that Newton B. Smalley, one of the officers of the association, has obtained a lease on the Gentlemen's Driving Park for the year, and a committee, comprising Mr. Smalley, Lewis E. Waring and Adam C. Blair, was appointed to confer with the Watchung Hunt Club in reference to the reservation of dates for the anual steeplechase meet.

Now that Mr. Smalley has obtained the lease on the track there will be no question as to the racing plans for the season. The association will hold its weekly matinee events as before and it is proposed to make some additional improvements on the grounds. The dates for the steeplechase meet have not been decided upon yet, but they will probably be the same as last year. An adjournment was taken to Monday night, March 2, when the committee appointed last night will report. The association will elect officers in April.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS TO DANCE AT THE CASINO

Arrangements are complete for the second dance and reception to be given at the Casino Friday night, February 21, under the auspices of Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers Association. An orchestra of fifteen pieces has been engaged for the affair and Charles Suhr will be the director. The members of the orchestra will be from Newark and New York. In addition to the dance supper will be served at midnight.

The committee in charge of the affair comprise Frank W. Weed, chairman; A. L. Laing, R. D. Williams, James C. Fields, H. J. Percy, A. D. Thompson, Jr., Arthur Organ, Robert L. Day, Charles A. Sturtevant, D. B. Collins, Walter Hockridge, H. F. Warner. At a meeting of the Council Saturday night Julius M. Williams, of West Front street, and Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue, were initiated into the mysteries of the order.

FRELINGHUYSEN ACTIVITY IN THE STATE SENATE

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen in the Senate last night introduced an act making it a misdemeanor to place glass or any other cutting substance on a public highway or to fail to return any fine collected under the present automobile law, also providing $10 fine to drive any vehicle on any county road without a light. He also introduced a bill in the House prohibiting the sale of ice in cities without first getting a permit from the Board of Health.

Another bill introduced by Senator Frelinghuysen last night creates a live stock commission and examining board with per diem compensation and an act for promoting the breeding of high grade cattle.

Hansen Purchases a Property.

J. C. Hansen has purchased the property No. 141 East Front street, where he conducts a painting and decorating business, from the estate of Mrs. Mary Mead. The deal was made by Charles H. Lyman and the price is said to be between $14,000 and $15,000. The property adjoins one one side the building at one time occupied by The Plainfield Trust Company, and is considered one of the most valuable in the business section.

Minstrel Show and Dance.

The Nonpareil Social Club will give a minstrel show and dance in Saengerbund hall tonight. Twenty artists will take part in the performance and a lot of original specialty numbers are on the program. Lewis Peterson will be in charge of the dancing and will have six assistants on the floor.

Meeting of the L. C. B. A.

St. Mary's Branch, L. C. B. A., will meet this evening in the hall on Liberty street. Mrs. Maria Quinn, supreme trustee, will be present. Members of other branches will be welcome. Ladies who desire to join this order are invited to attend.

Commutation Ticket Found.

A commutation ticket bearing the name "Fred Brewer" was found in the New Plainfield theatre following the performance last evening. The owner may have it by calling at the box office.

TRAPPED ON TRESTLE, SCORES SEE MAN KILLED

Trapped on the high trestle of the Pennsylvania Railroad spanning Broad street, Elizabeth, an unidentified man, about thirty-two years old, was instantly killed yesterday morning by an eastbound Pennsylvania flyer. Scores of persons in Broad street and at the Pennsylvania station saw the fatality.

The man was walking the trestle and was about half way across when he heard the tooting of the engine whistle behind him. He attempted to cross over upon the westbound track, but saw a westbound freight train approaching. As there is no footpath on the trestle, he had but one chance to escape, that was to reach the end of the trestle before the flyer. He attempted it and was within a few feet of the embankment when the engine struck him. The entire train passed over the body, mangling it horribly.

The clothes the man wore indicated that he was in destitute circumstances. There was nothing found on his person that would lead to his identification.

On the same trestle and in precisely the same manner four boys were killed a year ago last August.

BOROUGH MAYOR TO HAVE SEWER CONFAB WITH CITY

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, has given a new impetus to the work of the borough sewer committee by arranging for a meeting with the Plainfield street committee, of which Councilman William L. Gloak is chairman, to talk over the question of common sewage disposal beds with the city and to secure, if possible, definite figures for the cost of installing a sewer system in the borough. W. J. Buttfield, who was chairman of the North Plainfield Sewerage Commission formed in Mayor Smalley's administration, will join with the Mayor in the conference to be held tomorrow night. A meeting of this kind was arranged two weeks ago, but was postponed.

The Mayor is desirous of pushing the matter of sewers in the borough with as much rapidity as possible, and fortunately has secured the services of Mr. Buttfield to work with him. He is anxious to find out definitely and as soon as possible, the advantages of a common sewage disposal with the city, the expense involved and the necessary cost of installing sewers in the borough. After this is done, the committee of five which was appointed some time ago to obtain the consent of the property owners to hold a special election to bring the matter of "sewers or no sewers," will continue the canvass. In order to have this election, it will be necessary for the owners of more than fifty per cent. of the assessed real estate valuation of the borough to give their consent. Tax Collector George F. Brown has secured the signatures of the owners of nearly forty per cent. of the borough ratables, who are in favor of sewers.

Before starting out in their work to obtain the consent of the property owners, Mr. Townsend is anxious that the committee shall have some definite figures as to the cost of installing sewers, and it is to this end that the joint meeting with the city fathers is to be held.

Auxiliary Has $110 Pledged.

At the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. held at the association building yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Henry C. Krebs, the president, reported that $110 had already been pledged for the fund started in place of holding a fair and bazaar. More money is to come in, and it is expected that the fund will reach $125. The report of Mrs. H. M. Maxson, chairman of the committee appointed to revise the constitution, showed that a revised constitution was ready. This was presented and accepted. It was decided that the auxiliary would furnish the refreshments for the reception to be held at the association building Thursday night to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robbie, and to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Parker to Y. M. C. A. work in this city.

To Dance For Church Benefit.

A charity dance for the benefit of St. Stephen's church will be held at Truell Hall Saturday evening. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Mrs. R. H. McCready, Mrs. S. S. Schuyler and Miss Catherine Knox. For the same benefit, a leap year dance will be held at the Hall, the use of which has been tendered by Mrs. Truell, on the evening of February 29.

SINCLAIR STUART DEAD

As Result of Paring Corn, Gangrene Sets in Proving Fatal to Aged Resident

CONNECTED WITH "LLOYDS."

Native of Scotland, He Had Made Plainfield His Home For Twenty-Seven Years.

Sinclair Stuart, aged 72 years, a well-known resident of this city for twenty-seven years, died this morning at his home on Madison avenue, of diabetic gangrene which resulted from the paring of a corn on his right foot about six weeks ago. The treatment was given in New York by a specialist and soon afterward Mr. Stuart was called to Boston on a business trip.

He returned to Plainfield about a month ago and a few days later experienced severe pains in his foot, which was at first though to be rheumatism. A physician was called and he diagnosed the trouble as diabetic gangerene. Everything known to medical skill and science was sought to save life, but to no purpose.

Mr. Stuart was a native of Scotland and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sinclair Stuart, who afterward located in Montreal, Canada. For many years Mr. Stuart's father was revenue inspector of the Canadian Government for the lower provinces and was a man of great ability.

Mr. Stuart was a marine engineer and for forty years was connected with the United States "Lloyds," with offices at 16 Exchange place, New York. He was also a surveyor for the United States Standard Steamship Owners, Builders and Underwriters' Association, a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, the New York Maritime Exchange and the Engineers Club, of New York. He was a member of Grace church, identifying himself with that parish soon after coming to Plainfield.

Mr. Stuart is survived by a wife, one daughter, Miss Florence Stewart, with one son, Sinclair Stuart, Jr., reside here. There are three other sons, Donald and Gordon Stuart, of Rochester, N. Y., and Linden Stuart, of Boston. One sister, Mrs. Robert S. Wood, resides in Montreal, Canada. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

UNION BUILDING LOAN HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association was held last night. The officers and directors elected were as follows: President, Dr. M. B. Long; vice-president, E. M. Laing; secretary, J. V. E. Vanderhoef; treasurer, M. C. Van Arsdale; auditors, C. B. Vail, H. R. Thorn, W. L. Long; directors for three years, J. P. Emmons, J. C. Manning, Nelson Runyon, M. F. Elderton; attorney, Nelson Runyon.

The report of the secretary presented showed the association to be in a flourishing condition, the profits averaging nearly 10½ per cent. for the past nine years, and the indications are that the first series which has been running 108 months, will mature next year, which was very gratifying to the shareholders present. Other business transacted was the granting of three applications for loans and the reading of the auditor's report. The secretary stated that he had received many applications for shares in the new series opened last month and that the printed reports would be ready for distribution at the next meeting.

"AD" SWIFT HOST OF UNION COUNTY'S POLITICAL LEADERS

District Court Judge C. Addison Swift, of Elizabeth, gave a dinner at Martin's, New York, on Saturday night, to mark his appointment by Governor Fort and his confirmation by the State Senate as Prosecutor of the Pleas of Union county. A number of Union county politicians were gathered about the festive board.

Among the guests were County Chairman Frank H. Smith, County Clerk James C. Calvert, Robert H. McAdams, Counselor Samuel Schleimer, Andrew McCardell and Walter L. Hetfield, who is slated to become Mr. Swift's assistant. There was no speechmaking.

BAMBERGER'S

"THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE"

MARKET, HALSEY & BANK STS.

15th Anniversary Celebration

Fifteen years ago this month, the present firm of L. Bamberger & Co. laid the foundation of what is now generally regarded as one of the most successful retail establishments in the country. From the smallest of beginnings, with an aggregate selling space of less one-half the size of the present main floor, and with a sales force of scarcely more than fifty persons, this great store has developed and expanded year by year, until now occupies seven huge floors of one of the most substantial mercantile edifices in the State, employing considerably more than twelve hundred people and with a business which may be reckoned in the millions. The success of this store is a tribute to the power of legitimate merchandising methods—honest advertising—aggressiveness and liberality. The Bamberger organization—Greater Newark's first really big store—first to refund money for unsatisfactory purchases — the pioneer in the fight for shorter store hours—now proposes to celebrate the Fifteenth Anniversary of its inception with the most remarkable trade function of its whole career, thus adding to the great achievements of a great store and bringing good merchandise to its patrons at the lowest cost in years. :-: :-:

We're Going To Clean Out These Winter Goods

—as you can easily see by the prices we have put on them—that we mean for them to go right now. It's in line with our 1908 policy to clean out the old stock and make room for the new. We can afford to be a bit liberal about it, too, since it was inventoried last month with that in view. Read the list—how generously we cut the price! You will most likely find use for some of these things the way we sell them.

And the White Goods Sale isn't altogether over with either—in fact, all that's left of the White Goods bargains—as Muslin Underwear, India Linons, Persian and French Lawns, Nainsooks, Long Cloths, Embroideries—these will all remain at the sale prices until disposed of—and displayed on the centre tables as heretofore.

New Silk Petticoats $5.00.

REGULAR VALUES $7.98 to $8.50.

If we cared to hold these petticoats for selling in the regular way there is no doubt that they would go quickly enough at regular prices, for we have not had a nicer lot of petticoats than these in a long while.

The taffeta silk of which these petticoats are made is of a heavy durable quality, in all wanted colors, including the newest changeable effects as well as black; made in four distinct styles with full circular flounce; some with sectional ruffle, others shirred or tailor strapped and accordion plaited.

The selling will begin at 9:30 tomorrow morning at the special price of $5

$8 Set Slip Covers for $5

Out of season? Not much. There are no seasons for Slip Covers. Wise folks use them all the year 'round to protect their good furniture from dust and the knocks that children give it.

If you haven't a set of slip covers consider this:

Our proposition to all who order tomorrow is to make a set of Slip Covers for 5 pieces of any style of furniture; using the best Belgium cotton damask; in striped or figured patterns; giving you a choice of ten different designs; materials used not to exceed 20 yards of 28-inch wide goods, nicely bound; a set that ordinarily would cost you $8, at the very special price of $5

$1 PONGEE SILK 69c.

We do not know of a more popular weave of silk than this very pongee, and it is going to be, if anything, more popular the coming season than ever.

Be happy, therefore, at this opportunity to buy the dollar grade for 69c.

This pongee is of silk and a full yard wide. It may be had in natural, navy, brown, and white and black; particularly nice for coats, and will be extensively used for full gowns; good for wear throughout the summer.

BLACK TAFFETAS.

$1 GRADE; 30 INCHES WIDE; 76c.

These taffetas are a beautiful black in a substantial weave; strictly perfect; are actual $1 silks and cannot be overmatched anywhere at the price; fully 30 inches wide; will be sold tomorrow at only 76c.

$1.25 TAFFETAS, 32 INCHES WIDE, $1.05.

These are fine dress taffetas, perfect in weave and color; medium weight; insuring good wear; nice for gowns or coats; regular $1.25 quality; tomorrow at $1.05.

New Dress Stuffs NOW ON VIEW.

Every day adds to our already splendid collection of Springtime Dress Fabrics, almost every steamer arriving in New York port bringing something from abroad that is novel and pretty, and the domestic mills are sending along their contributions as fast as finished.

Among the early shipments we note—

Popular Pekin Stripes.

Ombre and Herringbone effects in fashionable street shades, including the new browns and navys.

Neat Striped and Checked Batistes.

English, French, German and American Suitings in handsome new striped and checked effects.

Voiles, Taffetas, Veilings, French Serges, Melrose and Panama in plain any fancy weaves form a galaxy of lighter fabrics which are good throughout the summer.

Standard Serges, Cheviots and similar fabrics are here aplenty.

Just a few quotations to show how the prices run:

All-Wool Fancy Panama Suitings; 44 inches wide; medium weight; in neat striped and checked effects, grays, tans, etc., here at.. $1.00

All-Wool Suiting; 44 inches wide; in various striped, checked and overplaid effects, at $1.15

French Suitings; 50 inches wide; in new striped effects; also in checks and overplaids; grays, tans and various other mixtures; here at $1.50

English Suitings; 46 inches wide; thoroughly shrunk and sponged; some extremely light colorings as well as those of darker shade; good weight; very desirable in every way; $1.75 and $1.89

All-Wool Serges and Panamas; 40 to 48 inches wide; in stripes, checks and herringbone weaves; fashionable blues, browns, etc.; 89c and $1.00

All-Wool Prunellas and other weaves in Pekin stripes and shadow effects; 42 to 46 inches wide; in various shades of navy and all the new browns; $1.00 to $1.35

French Taffetas—Lupin's make; 42 inches wide; medium weight; in plain and fancy striped effects; all the fashionable street shades, at only $1.00 and is a total loss to Sorensen, as he was doing the work himself.

Three trustees are to be elected at the annual school meeting in Westfield this year as the terms of H. L. Fink, Robert Fairbairn and William Low will expire.

The engagement of Miss Grace Harden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harden, of Westfield, to Aubrey B. Smith, of New York, is announced.

SOMERVILLE.

The following have attended kindergarten every day during the past month: Bessie Haring, Elizabeth Parmalee, Gladys Hardgrom, Lloyd Gernert, Myron Levy, William Pierce, Frazer Sutphen and Claud Van Fleet.

Rev. Mrs. A. McWilliam entertained the Monday Evening Club last night. The essay was read by Miss Laura Vanderbeek, on "French Explorations in America."

Mrs. Emeline Otis, an aged resident on West Main street, who fell and broke her hip last week, is recovering.

An examination for clerk-carriers for the postoffice will be held next Saturday, at the postoffice building.

RARITAN.

Miss Margaret Williams, of Hudson, Mass., has returned to her home after being a guest of her brother, F. F. Williams.

Parcels Post Facts

The European countries have long been using the parcels post to advantage. In England an 11-pound parcel is carried for 22 cents. So prompt is the government in handling the parcels that the retail houses and laundries in the cities find it cheaper to deliver by parcels post than by delivery wagon. By paying a small fee extra immediate delivery is secured, as the special delivery of a letter is secured in this country. Besides this, up to a certain amount practically all the goods sent by parcels post are insured. In Germany an 11-pound parcel can be sent for 12 cents, and those weighing as much as 110 pounds can be sent for a little over 60 cents. Even such things as trees are sent by parcels post over there.—Pathfinder.

Hank O'Day is opposed to the raised pitcher's box, pointing out that a six foot twirler on a six inch mound of dirt has an immense advantage. The matter might be adjusted by allowing only short twirlers to use a mound.

It is predicted that Rube Waddell will do everything but pitch his arm off for the Browns the first time he faces the Athletics.

Nicknames of players on the Pennsylvania State college baseball team include Gumbo and Stony and Pinky and Paddy and Bull and Shreds and Bolo. It would be awful if they should be beaten by a team of Percys and Claudes and Algernons.

Should Bresnahan, McGinnity, Lynch, Doyle, Shannon, Donlin, Devlin and associates best out Schulte, Slagle, Sheckard, Steinfoldt, Hofman, Pfeister and Co. this season the spud will supplant sauerkraut as the national dish.

Fielder Jones, the manager of the White Sox, says that he believes his team will be stronger than ever this year and that it will fight it out for the championship with Clark Griffith's New Yorks. Jones, who is conservative and careful in his criticisms, says further that Griffith has succeeded in getting together one of the fastest ball teams in America. The White Sox leader believes that the addition of Glade, Niles, Stahl and Hemphill, together with the acquisition of Pitcher Lake, will just about make Griffith's team invincible, as far as all of the other American League teams, barring Chicago, are concerned. Hugh Jennings, the Detroit manager, also Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans and James McGuire of the Boston Americans believe that Griffith has at last secured a sensational combination of talent. A noteworthy feature of the New York team's makeup this year will be harmony among the players. All of them believe in Griffith and his methods, which means that earnest effort and continuous hustling will be displayed by the men from the beginning of the championship race. Experts agree that Griffith has succeeded in bolstering up his pitching department, which will probably be an important factor in the New York team's play.

GOLF.

According to an official of the Western Golf Association, those in control of the sport here in the East recently turned down an opportunity held over one of the courses in this vicinity during the coming season. As the matter now stands, the Western Golf Association has awarded the Olympic Cup competition to the Rock Island Arsenal Golf Club.

It will be played on Saturday, July 11. This immediately precedes the annual championship tournament of the Western Golf Association, which is to begin the following Monday over the same links. There had been some talk of presenting the Olympic Cup to the foreign committee having in charge the Olympic contests to be held in England next summer, but this project was abandoned because the Western directors were not assured of an American team going abroad.

The alternative proposition was to have the Olympic Cup an adjunct to the national amateur championship tournament, but as neither the United States Golf Association nor the Metropolitan Golf Association evidenced a desire to have it played for at Garden City, thus giving the metropolitan team a chance to defend the cup at home, there was nothing left for the Western directors to do but send it to Rock Island to be played for in connection with the Western amateur.

It is quite evident, therefore, that if the metropolitan team wants to try to hold the cup for another year, it will have to travel to Rock Island in July. The prevailing impression is that the metropolitan team will let the cup go by default.

The Young People's Association of the First Baptist church will have charge of the prayer meeting at the church tomorrow night. The topic will be "Wells of Salvation."

Rev. Mr. Stuchell, of Rahway, has been secured as the principal speaker for the banquet to be held at the First Presbyterian church, Tuesday night, February 18, under the auspices of the Men's Club.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The subject will be "China," and Miss Agnes Scribner will be the leader.

A union missionary meeting will be held at Faith chapel Friday, in which the women of the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist church missionary societies will join with the societies of the chapel. This is the day appointed by the Women's Board of Boston for prayer. The service will be held at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will deliver an address at the regular communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., tonight.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, will observe Lincoln's Birthday tomorrow night by holding an entertainment and lunch-box social. The G. A. R. and Women's Relief Corps have been invited.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet tonight and consider plans for an entertainment to be held in the near future. The Post has also accepted an invitation to attend the lunch-box social to be given tomorrow night by John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Master of the State Grange G. W. F. Gaunt, of Mullica Hill, has just returned from an extensive Western trip in the interest of grange work.

Chester D. Ely, former tax receiver of Paterson, is confined to a private room at St. Joseph's Hospital, that city, with an attack of appendicitis. He was taken suddenly ill last Saturday.

A large number of graduates of the State Normal School have "farmed" themselves out in different sections of South Jersey to teach for the experience. Most of these will get positions next fall, as teachers are very scarce.

Fire of unknown origin ruined the interior of the Greenwald liquor saloon, Mt. Holly, and badly damaged the building yesterday morning. Greenwald's loss is $2,300. No insurance. The damage to the building, owned by Dr. Flynn, is $500.

A new grange, with 120 charter members, was organized at Pedricktown Saturday evening by State Master George W. F. Gaunt. This is a record-breaker, the list of charter members far exceeding that of any other grange ever organized in New Jersey.

The addition to the Copper Hospital in Camden is completed. In addition to wards the annex contains a diet kitchen, an X-ray room, a pathological laboratory and two operating rooms, with steriling room, an anesthetizing room and dressing-rooms with shower baths.

So great has been the demand for assistance from the needy poor in Camden that Superintendent Edward E. Jefferis, of the Bureau of Charities, stated yesterday that it will be necessary to ask City Council for an emergency appropriation for the balance of the winter.

With a chicken bone fastened in her throat, Mrs. Mary J. Stockwell, sixty-three years old, 1222 Spring Garden street, Philadelphia, was admitted to the Cooper Hospital, Camden, last night, in such a serious condition as the result of choking that for a time her recovery was doubtful.

Uriah Norton, of Dias Creek, shot a big porpoise while cruising in the Grassy Sound channel, near Anglesea. The huge fish put up quite a battle before it was killed and landed by Norton, his wife and a woman companion. The monster weighed about 300 pounds and was nearly six feet long.

The announcement that Governor Fort had indorsed the selection of Captain John Shields, of Flemington, for commandant of the Soldiers' Home at Vineland, disappointed Port Elizabeth people, for it was hoped that Dr. J. Howard Willets, a veteran of the Civil War, a practising physician of that village and a member of the board of managers of the home, would succeed to the place.

Benjamin Glass boasted in a South High street saloon at Burlington that he could drink thirty schooners of beer and walk home straight. Glass emptied the score and a half and then started out to paint the town red. When he awoke, Glass was in a cell and Magistrate Smith sentenced him to one day in the county jail for each glass he had drained. Glass will have a month to think over his boast.

Finds His Wife Dead In Bed.

Daniel Slocbey, captain of a canalboat lying at an Elizabethport wharf, notified the police yesterday that he found his wife dead in bed in the cabin of his vessel. The body was removed to the morgue. Death is supposed to have resulted from natural causes. County Physician Westcott, of Fanwood, will make an investigation.

POST CARD VALENTINES

Millions of 'em Will Go Thru Mails During the Next Few Days.

LOVE POEMS WRITTEN ON THEM

The Day and Its Observance—St. Valentine a Christian Presbyter Crucified by Claudius.

With St. Valentine's day but three days off the souvenir postal card craze has given an impetus to the valentine habit. Fully a million post card valentines will be sent through the mails Thursday. The idea proved so successful last year that the card printers and dealers laid in enormous stocks, and this being leap year, they say that there will be few left over. One store that makes a business of selling nothing but post cards has laid in a stock of 50,000 valentine cards of 100 varieties. The demand for these began early last week, and there has been a steady sale.

The valentine idea has been conformed to in every conceivable way, in the making of the post cards. One may have a prettily embossed Cupid, shooting darts through a plush heart of red, set off with a varicolored background as vivid as a pipe dream, or, if one is deeply in love and of a potetic nature, a card with a selection from Shakespeare printed underneath a double heart. The prices run from 1 cent to 25 cents, according to the design.

It is said that the souvenir post cards output of the United States and Germany in a year is about 50,000,000, and most of the American product, as well as a large percentage of the German cards, is sold in this country. As the souvenir card has made hasty correspondence a joy instead of a burden, so the swain will find the handy postal a convenient means of reminding his sweetheart of his steadfastness. According to what the post card man says, the young man will invest a shilling in a dozen pack and put on twelve one-cent stamps.

This year the variety of post cards with poems on has been increased greatly over last year, and a damper may thus be put on what promised to be a feature of St. Valentine's day in America, the production of original poems. There is no question that the output of primitive sentimental effusions is greater on St. Valentine's day than for the remainder of the entire year. People of all ages sneak off into secluded corners and, with much scratching of heads and chewing of pencils, grind out their rhymed messages of tenderness. Most of these mental outbursts are never seen save by two persons. Few of them get into print. One proprietor of a post card store said last week that he had as many as a dozen of persons of both sexes in his place last year at one time, and he said it was a bet that they were all trying to pen rhymes in their cards.

According to the best traditions St. Valentine was an economical soul, and the practice of celebrating his day by little anonymous tokens has never changed. And it seems to be the only holiday on the calendar that has not become expensive with age. Probably more candy and flowers and books are sent in America than any other country; but here, as elsewhere, it has never been considered polite to attach one's name to any valentine gift.

The only exception to this rule seems to have been in the olden days, when the practice prevailed of drawing by lot for the name of one's valentine. In "Pepy's Diary" is a story of Madame Pepys drawing the name of Lord Something-or-Other one St. Valentine's day and that of her husband the next year. It seems that from what is gleaned from the story Pepys regrets that his name had been drawn by his wife, because he had to spend five pounds on a present for her, that he would otherwise have been able to spend on himself.

St. Valentine's day has been observed for many centuries. It is a continuation of the old Pagan festival of the Lupercalia, which the Romans celebrated on February 15. Christian Rome could not stop the games on the day, therefore, adopted them as a Christian rite. In the Lupercalia it was the custom of the young men and women to draw lots for the name of their sweethearts. There was an organization composed of young men who carried the carnival into the street, and it was they who fairly "made Rome howl." It was "thrice upon Lupercalia" that Caesar refused the kingly crown. In those days there was no festival more popular nor one more generally observed.

St. Valentine was a Christian presbyter. He was crucified in the Forum at Rome on February 14, A. D. 270, in the reign of Claudius II. When the Church became ascendent in Rome a shrine was set up to his memory near the nook on the Palatine Hill, where the altar to Pan had stood, and Remus centuries before. The Lupercalia was a celebration by the "sons of the wolf" in honor of the foster mother of the twin founders of Rome, and of the gods Pan and Juno. The martyrdom of Valentine coming on the day before the Lupercalia festival and the proximity of his shrine to the place made famous by the rites of the festival in the olden days made it easy for the church to set apart St. Valentine's day for observance.

A change was ordered by Pope Gelasius in the year 496. St. Francis de Sales, desiring to promote piety among the young, substituted the name of saints for those of girls in the baskets, and, instead of drawing the name of his sweetheart for the coming year the young man drew the name of a saint, whose life he was to study for the next twelve months. This custom lasted for centuries, but it never was observed to any great extent. The Romans believed that it was the day when birds mated, and the mating idea has come down through the centuries.

There are, perhaps, three stores near the centre of the city that deal in nothing but souvenir postal cards. Besides these are many drugstores, stationery and newspaper stores, and candy stores scattered all over the city, which carry thousands of postcards as a side line. It was freely said that the postcard craze would only last a short time. But it is now declared by those who are in a position to know that the so-called craze is good for at least ten years more.

AUSTEN COLGATE NOW "COL.", IF YOU PLEASE

Governor John Franklin Fort last night at Trenton appointed Assemblyman Austen Colgate, of Orange, his personal aide, with the rank of colonel. It is the only military honor in the gift of the Chief Executive of the State.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, was the personal aide of Governor Edward C. Stokes. His fighting weight and avoirdupois in peace are about the same as Colonel Colgate's.

"I'm mighty glad that my successor is a man of my build," said Senator Frelinghuysen in complimenting the Essex county man. "Maybe I can sell him my beautiful uniforms."

Be it known that Mr. Colgate weighs something more than 200, and to popularity adds the merit, for a colonel, of being handsome—at least it is so alleged, despite the fact that he is a bachelor, or because of it.

The Governor's aide is the chief dignitary at all important public functions. He will accompany the Governor to the inauguration of the President next March, and it is up to him to do the honors when the National Guard is in camp at Sea Girt.

Colonel Colgate is appalled by the recital of his duties. He is particularly upset over the social side of his Sea Girt work. It is understood that the Assembly will pass a resolution today commanding Colonel Colgate to appear in regimentals before the House. He received congratulations and entertained his friends late last night at the Hotel Sterling.

"STATE EDITOR" BILL ON THIRD READING

One of Governor Fort's recommendations embodied in his inaugural address, that a commissioner of State reports be appointed to look after their editing, and which was incorporated in Senate bill 67, introduced by Senator Minch, was the subject of an amendment offered by Senator George S. Silzer, in the Assembly at Trenton, last night, when the bill came up for second reading, which, if passed, would have rendered it ineffective. The amendment provided that instead of appointing a special commissioner the work be done by the State librarian in conjunction with his other duties.

The original bill provides that the commissioner receive a salary of $2,500 and a stenographer $600. Senator Silzer, in offering the resolution, said that he could see no reason why the State should be put to such expense when an additional $500 added to the librarian's salary would compensate him for the extra work. Mr. Minch wanted to know whether that official would have the necessary time. He was assured that he would, but the Senator still objected to the resolution, on the ground that it was in direct opposition to the intent of the bill itself. The motion to adopt it was lost by a vote of 16 to 14 and the bill passed to third reading.

A bill embodying the idea conveyed in the amendment was introduced by Senator Silzer.

ASKS OPEN PRIMARIES FOR JERSEY CITY.

John P. Landrine, a Republican member of the Jersey City Board of Finance, by grace of an appointment by Mayor H. Otto Wittpen, Democrat, made a speech favoring open primaries at a meeting of the Seventh Ward Republican Club in Jersey City last night. The club is a strong "new idea" organization, and the presence of Commissioner Landrine, a supposedly anti-Fagan man, at the session caused much comment. Andrew Knox, a Fagan street and water commissioner, said:

"I would no sooner think of following John Roterham than I would the devil. I want to say to Governor Fort, whom he is supposel to represent, that if Rotherham's methods prevail the Republican party will face nothing but defeat. The one thing that shows Rotherham is not big enough for the job is the refusal to open the door and stand for a fair and sure primary for the election of members of the county committee."

A delegation of fifty members from Goodwill Council, New Brunswick, with the lodgemen's degree team, were the guests of Friendship Council at Friendship Hall last night. The New Brunswickers came by special trolley, with a band, and were met by a delegation of the local council, with whom they paraded to the hall. At the conclusion of the business meeting, cigars were passed around and an informal program of entertainment rendered, as arranged by the Good and Welfare committee of the local lodge. The fraternal visit was in return for one made by the Friendship lodgemen several weeks ago. The general committee in charge of the affair consisted of H. L. Hathaway, P. W. Voorhees and Dr. D. C. Main, and the entertainment was arranged by William Van Nuis, William C. Ackerman and F. W. Randolph.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society, commemorating the ninth anniversary of the organization, was held this afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. A. A. Lake. There were addresses by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, wife of the pastor of Warren chapel, and former Secretary Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Plainfield. Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the church, also made an address and there were the usual reports. A social hour followed the business meeting.

Township Committeemen Harris and Tappen, who were authorized to secure a settlement with the Public Service Corporation for cleaning of snow along the trolley tracks, have forwarded a bill for $15, being two-thirds of the cost of cleaning the snow thus far this winter. This is in accordance with an agreement made at the beginning of the season with the company.

Tomorrow is Lincoln's Birthday, a legal holiday, and the schools will be closed.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Anthony Schwalbach, while cutting ice at the "Back Pond" yesterday, took an involuntary bath. The cake of ice "Tony" was cutting broke away and took him with it. A handy ice hook was brought into use and the bather was soon pulled out.

Another of the series of socials and entertains will be held by the Baptist Sunday-school tomorrow night in the parlors of the church. Besides stereopticon views on "Wonders of the Microscope" there will be refreshments served.

Fanwood Council, R. A., meets tonight in the Library room. A delegation of grand officers will be present and Regent M. C. Stewart desires that there should be a large turnout of members.

Tomorrow being Lincoln's Birthday, the public school will have a holiday. The stores will also close part of the day.

Ernest Clark, who has been detained at home for several days with an attack of the grip, is able to be around again.

Harry Flannery, of Elizabeth, spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. George H. Johnston, of Westfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, of Front street, have been entertaining relatives from out of town.

George Vanderbilt has returned from a visit with friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Susie Parse has returned from a visit with Newark friends.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

Mrs. John D. Runyon and her sister, Miss Anna Boice, of Park avenue, went last week to Florida where they will spend several weeks.

Among the recent arrivals registered at the Kirkwood Hotel, Camden Heights, S. C., are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue.

MOXON BOMBARDED BY ANTI-LOCAL OPTIONISTS

Persons opposed to a local option law sent a flood of circular letters to members of the Assembly yesterday at Trenton. They were signed individually by Newark German-Americans. The action was preconcerted, having been planned at a meeting held last week by German-American citizens.

Chairman John R. Moxon, of the House committee, a member from Union county, on municipal corporations, to which was referred the local option bill, introduced last week by Assemblyman Benjamin F. Crosby, of Ocean, as the measure of the Anti-Saloon League, received no less than forty-two letters. Leader Henry Young, Jr., of the Essex county Assembly delegation, was the recipient of as many more, and next in order of number of letters received were Messrs. Joseph Potter, of Camden; John Clark, of Essex; William C. Voorhees, of Middlesex, and Levi Morris, of Sussex, who, with Chairman Moxon, make up the committee on municipal corporations.

The letters were sent in envelopes that bore printed addresses and had all been mailed at one time. The text follows:

"Greeting—The undersigned respectfully requests you to use your best endeavors against the passage of a local option bill now pending in the Legislature of our State. The failure of local option in several cities has proved it to be a fact that local option brings about and fosters unlawfulness, vice, immorality and intemperance."

"I have been requested to report the Crosby bill, House 2, either one way or the other, tonight," said Mr. Moxon, when questioned. "I propose, however, to wait awhile. I see no reason for immediate haste, and I believe my committee agrees with me in desiring to give a public hearing some time soon, where those for and against local option may be heard. So the bill will be reported neither favorably or unfavorably tonight."

Mr. Moxon said he had no doubt there would be other bills aiming to accomplish the same ends as those sought by the Crosby measure, and that he believed there would be time and trouble saved by waiting a little and arranging a hearing.

HOME LIGHTING COMPANY SOON FOR MORRISTOWN

The streets in Morristown were lighted last night by the Morris & Somerset Electric Company, the newly organized rival to the Public Service Corporation in that section. Fifty-nine arc lamps are in use in the centre of the town, and the remainder of the streets are illuminated by incandescent lamps. On the better class streets the lamps are suspended from iron poles, and in the other sections a wooden pole is used. The plant to date has cost $128,000.

The new lighting company is the outgrowth of a series of meetings of citizens held last winter to protest against the wretched electrical service furnished the town. A report by experts of the Morristown Civis Association alleged that the town was not being supplied with candle power called for in its street lighting contract. It was also asserted that the price paid was greatly in excess of that paid by other towns in the State. The street lamp committee of the Board of Aldermen had specifications for a lighting system prepared and asked for bids. The only bid was by Peter V. Stryker, manager of the Bernardsville water and light plant. It was $85 a year for arc lamps and $18 for incandescents. The Public Service Corporation did not put in a bid, but filed a letter in which it asserted that the contract was too onerous and asked for a conference. The contract was awarded to Mr. Stryker, who assigned it to the Morris and Somerset company, which had been formed. A franchise was granted the new company for commercial lighting and the matter was taken into the courts by the Public Service Corporation, which obtained a writ of certiorari. Another franchise was granted by the Board of Aldermen, which overcame the technicalities raised by the big Newark concern.

The new company, which is purely a local affair, is officered by Samuel S. Childs, president; F. Landon Humphreys, vice-president; Camuel B. Carson, secretary; Peter V. Stryker, manager and treasurer.

The Public Service Corporation has announced that it has obtained additional land adjoining its present station here and will erect an addition to its building and instal new machinery costing, it is reported, $150,000. An electric light war in Morristown may follow.

CORBALLY CASE WILL BE GIVEN TO JURY TODAY.

Sheriff Frank H. Sommer, of Essex county, went on the witness stand yesterday in Newark and made emphatic denial that he had ever promised immunity to Detective Sergeant Thomas J. Corbally, who is on trial on an indictment for nonfeasance. The charge against Corbally is that he failed to close disreputable houses, the existence of which he is alleged to have had knowledge. Last Friday Corbally, while testifying in his own behalf, declared that Sheriff Sommer promised to nol-pros the indictment against Corbally and to see that he was not punished.

In answer to repeated questions on both direct and cross-examination the Sheriff denied repeatedly having had any such conversation as described by Corbally. He declared he never promised the latter immunity nor told him to engage Mr. McDermit as counsel.

Corbally was given a short re-examination, and Mr. McDermit took the stand to tell of a conversation with the Sheriff about Corbally's case. This, with the reading of the testimony of George Williamson, formerly a constable in the Sheriff's office, closed the case, and the summing up by Samuel Kalisch for the defence and Prosecutor Young for the State was completed at six o'clock.

Judge Ten Eyck will deliver his charge today and the case will then go to the jury.

A LEAP YEAR DANCE.

Young Women Arrange and Conduct a Successful Social Affair.

One hundred young people from the city and borough enjoyed a novel "Leap Year" dance in the Camera Club rooms, last night. The affair was arranged by Miss Mabel Hamilton and Miss Margaret Kennedy and was replete with features that are considered proper in the years when February has an extra day. The young women received the invitations and passed them on to their "best fellows." They are compelled to ask the young men for dances and also made it their business to see that they were provided with refreshments at the midnight intermission.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra and Warnock was the caterer. The young women paid the assessments.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. William Murray, of Rockview avenue, for a bridge party to be given at her home on Tuesday afternoon, February 18.

BAR TO GIVE BANQUET TO CHANCELLOR MAGIE

The Bench and Bar of New Jersey will tender former Chancellor William J. Magie a banquet as a tribute of esteem for his long service as a member of the Jersey pudiciary in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on February 29, if a banquet hall can be obtained for that date. This was decided upon at a meeting of lawyers from different parts of the State held in the Chancery chambers here yesterday. Edward Q. Keasbey presided and District Court Judge Thomas L. Raymond was chosen secretary and treasurer of the general committee which is to make arrangements for the banquet.

In outlining the reason for calling the members of the bar together, Mr. Keasbey gave a brief history of Chancellor Magie's career from the time he was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1880 until the close of his seven years' term as chancellor. Mr. Keasbey said that the 28th day of this month would be the twenty-eighth anniversary of Chancellor Magie's elevation of the bench.

These committees were appointed by Mr. Keasbey to take charge of the banquet arrangements: Speakers and toasts, Edward M. Colie, chairman; Richard V. Linabury, Chauncey G. Parker, Thomas E. French, of Camden; John Griffin, of Jersey City; dinner and menu, Charles D. Thompson, Edward A. Day, Hobart Tuttle. A reception committee will be appointed later.

It was decided to have local committees in each county, and Mr. Keasbey appointed chairman of such committees as follows: Atlantic, Allen B. Endicott; Burlington, Eckard P. Budd; Bergen, William M. Johnson; Camden, E. Ambler Armstrong; Cape May, Vice Chancellor J. Spicer Leaming; Hudson, Gilbert Collins; Hunterdon, Richard S. Kuhl; Mercer, George O. Vanderbilt; Middlesex, S. Silzer; Cumberland, Walter H. Bacon; Essex, Haisey M. Barrett; Gloucester, J. Boyd Avis; Monmouth, John E. Lanning; Morris, John B. Vreeland; Ocean, Isaac W. Carmichael; Passaic, William B. LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night will be Arnold Daly in his new play, "My Mamie Rose." He will be supported by a company of unusual excellence that includes Holbrook Blynn and Miss Chrystal Herne.

"Are You a Mason?" How significant is the query, yet how glad will the announcement of the return appearance of the comedy at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night, be received by the laugh-loving element. "Only two kinds of people," says the Pittsburg Dispatch, "should see 'Are You a Mason,' and they are those that are masons, and those that are not," and it is safe to presume that they are the ones that will see it, and a goodly number too, if the large advance sale is any criterion.

"Rudolph and Adolph," those very funny chaps, who have attained a national reputation as exponents of German dialect comedy, are announced for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, in that screaming funny farce. This comedy creation has won its greatest success in the amusement world solely on its merits as an example of what humor can be extracted out of pure and honest wit. Gallicisms and risque situations are as foreign to this farce as they are to healthy minds. A promising feature of the production will be the music. The songs, dances and jokes introduced are all new and written expressly for this play, and altogether it looks as though a night of thorough enjoyment was in store for our theatregoers on this occasion.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The best food in the market with a change of menu every day are features at Timbo's restaurant on North avenue. A full stock of cigars and tobacco on hand.

C. M. Neagle's drug store on West Front street, is strictly up-to-date and when in need of drugs or medicines patronize this store. The prices will be found reasonable. Prescription work a speciality.

Shoppers will find an attractive line of goods at Putnam & DeGraw's store on West Front street. The stock includes both men and women's furnishings, together with dressmakers' supplies.

Mid-Week Topics.

These topics have been adopted for the Wednesday night prayer meetings at the First Presbyterian church: February 12, "Waiting for God;" 19, "The Crisis in China;" 26, "Consciousness of Sin and Forgiveness;" March 4, "An Unnatural River;" 11, "Then Shall the Heathen Know;" 18, "Persian in Transition;" 25, "A Candlestick All of Gold;" April 1, "Living With God's Eye On Us;" 8, "Systematic Doing;" 15, "Meditation On Isiah 53;" 22, "Unevangelized Regions of Central Asia;" 29, "The Optimism of Haggai."

State of New Jersey

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Whereas, the comptroller did, on the sixth day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, under the provisions of an act entitled "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act to provide for the imposition of state taxes upon certain corporations and for the collection thereof,' approved April 18, 1884," which supplementary act was approved June 3, 1905, report to the governor a list of all corporations coming under said act; and

Whereas, the following named corporations so reported have, for the two years preceding such report, failed, neglected or refused to pay the state taxes assessed against them for the year 1905, under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and made payable into the state treasury; and

Whereas, under the provisions of said act the charters of said corporations are repealed and all powers conferred by law upon such corporations declared inoperative and void, unless the governor gives further time for payment; and

Whereas, the governor has not given further time to the corporations so reported and hereinafter named for the payment of such taxes, and the same are still unpaid;

Therefore, I, Edward C. Stokes, Governor of the State of New Jersey, pursuant to the provisions of said act of the legislature, do hereby issue this proclamation that the charters of the following named corporations so reported and in default, to wit:

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

IN September, her marriage to Siward excitingly imminent, Sylvia had been seized with a passion for wholesale renunciation and rigid self chastisement. All that had been so materially desirable to her in life, all that she had heretofore worshiped in and belonging to her own world, she now denied. Down went the miniature golden calf from the altar in her private shrine, its tiny crashing fall making considerable racket throughout her world and the planets and satellites adjacent to that section of the social system which she had long been expected to dominate.

The spectacle of their youthful ruler-elect in sackcloth as the future bride of a business man had more than disconcerted them. The amazing announcement of Quarrier's engagement to Agatha Caithness stupefied the elect, rendering in one harrowing instant null and void the thousand petty plans and plots, intrigues and schemes upon which future social constructions on the social structure had been based.

The grief and amazement of Major Belwether, already distracted by his nonparticipation through his own fault in Plank's consolidation of Amalgamated with Intercounty, was pitiable to the verge of the unpleasant. Like panic stricken rabbits, his thoughts ran in circles, and he skipped in their wake, scurrying from Quarrier to Harrington, from Harrington to Plank, from Plank to Siward, in distracted hope of recovering his equilibrium and squatting safely somewhere in somebody's luxuriantly perpetual cabbage patch. He even squeezed under the fence and hopped humbly about old Peter Caithness, who suddenly assumed monumental proportions among those who had so long tolerated him.

But Quarrier coldly drove him away, and the increasing crowds, besieging poor, bewildered old Peter Caithness, trod upon the major, and there was nothing for him to do but to scuttle back to his own brush heap and huddle there, squeaking pitifully.

As for Grace Ferrall, she lost no time in tears, but took Agatha publicly to her bosom, turned furiously on Quarrier in private and for the first time in her life permitted herself the luxury of telling him exactly what she thought of him.

"You had your chance," she said. "But you are all surface! There's nothing to you but soft beard and manicuring and the reticence of stupidity! The one girl for you—and you couldn't hold on to her! The one chance of your life—and it's escaped you, leaving a tuft of pompadour hair and a pair of woman's eyes protruding from the golden dust heap your father buried you in. Now you'd better sit there and let it cover your mouth, and try to breathe through your nose. Agatha is looking for a new sensation. She's tried everything, now she's going to try you. That's all. She will be an invaluable leader, Howard, and we shall not yawn, I assure you. But, oh, the chance you've lost, for lack of a drop of red blood and a barber to give you the beard of a man!"

Which merely deepened the fear and hatred which Quarrier had entertained for his pretty cousin from the depths of his silk wadded cradle. As for Kemp Ferrall, now third vice president of Intercounty, he only laughed with the tolerance of a man in safety, and, looking at Quarrier through the pickets of the financial fence, not only forgot how close his escape had been, but, being a busy and progressive young man, began to consider how he might ultimately extract a little profit from the expensive tenant of the inclosure.

Grace made the journey to town to express herself freely for Sylvia's benefit. But when she saw Sylvia the girl's radiant beauty checked her, and all she could say was: "My dear, my dear, I knew you would do it! I knew you would fling him on his head! It's in your blood, you little jade—you little jilt! You minx of a baggage! I knew you'd behave like all women of your race!"

Then she drove to the Santa Regina, where Marion was to join her in her return to Shotover. And she was already trying to make up her disturbed mind as to which might prove the more suitable for Marion—Captain Voucher, gloomily recovering from his defeat by Quarrier, or Billy Fleetwood, who didn't want to marry anybody.

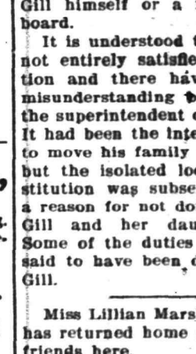
In the meanwhile Siward's new duties as second vice president of Intercounty had given him scant leisure for open air convalescence. He was busy with Plank. He was also busy with the private investigation stirred up at the Patroons club and the Lenox and which was slowly but inevitably resulting in clearing him, so that his restoration to good standing and full membership remained now only a matter of formal procedure.

So Siward was becoming a very busy man among men, and Plank, still carrying on his broad shoulders burdens unbearable by any man save such a man as he, shook his heavy head and ordered Siward into the open. And Siward, who had learned to obey, obeyed.

But September had nearly ended when Lelia, in Plank's private car, attended by Siward and Sylvia and two trained nurses, arrived at the Fells. The nurses—Plank's idea—were a surprise to Lelia, and the day after her arrival at the Fells she dismissed them, got out of bed and dressed and came downstairs all alone on a pair of sound though faltering legs.

Sylvia and Siward were in the music room, very busily figuring out the probable cost of a house in that section of the city east of Park avenue, where the newly married imprudent are forming colonies—a just punishment for those reckless brides who marry for love and are obliged to drive over two car tracks to reach their wealthy friends and relatives of the golden zone.

"What have you been playing?" asked Lelia. "What do you find to do with yourself, Sylvia, with that plump sun burned boy at your heels all day long? Are there no men about?"



Slipping her arm around Lelia's waist.

"One's coming today," said Sylvia, laughing, and slipping her arm around Lelia's waist she strolled with her out through the tall glass doors to the terrace, with a backward look of airy dismissal for Siward.

Plank had wired from New York the night before that he was coming. In another hour he would be there. Lelia knew it perfectly well, and she looked into the wickedly expressive young face of the girl beside her, eyes soft but unsmiling.

"Child, child," she murmured, "you do not know how much of a man a man can be!"

"Yes, I do!" said Sylvia hotly.

SECRETARY RESIGNS FROM SANITARIUM BOARD.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Clarence N. Gill, of this city, has resigned his position as secretary of the board of managers of the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Glen Gardner, to which he was appointed last June. Mr. Gill did not send his resignation to the Governor, his appointment being made by the board.

Mr. Gill is at present in New York, but it was admitted at his home today that he had given up his position, although the family preferred that any statement regarding the matter should come from either Mr. Gill himself or a member of the board.

It is understood that Mr. Gill was not entirely satisfied with his position and there have been hints of misunderstanding between him and the superintendent of the institution. It had been the intention of Mr. Gill to move his family to Glen Gardner, but the isolated location of the institution was subsequently given as a reason for not doing so, both Mrs. Gill and her daughter objecting. Some of the duties of the office are said to have been distasteful to Mr. Gill.

Miss Lillian Marsh, of Easton, Pa., has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Captain Begn, of New York, superintendent of the Mission Yacht Association, has returned home after spending several days here in the interest of his work.

Y.M.C.A. EVENS UP BY TRIMMING P.H.S. FIVE

The Y. M. C. A. five came back hard at the Plainfield High School basketball team at the association gymnasium, last night, and got even for their defeat by the school boys several weeks ago by trimming them 51-29 in a game which showed they are out of the high school class at least. The schoolboys put up a ard fight for the game and at times excelled in team work and passing. But, opposed by the regular league players, who made twelve baskets each half, they could only make twenty-nine points, three of them from the foul line.

At the end of the first period, the association five had a comfortable lead of 27-12, Gilmore and Collier making the best showing. When the teams lined up again, the Y. M. C. A. players got right to work and rolled up twenty-four points from the floor while the high school players only found the hoop eight times, while Doane slipped the ball through once from the foul line. Gilmore and Collier tied in the scoring honors with seven baskets apiece, Collier also making two on fouls. For the high school Snyder excelled, making five baskets. The Y. M. C. A. was awarded a point on technicality in the first half. The lineups and summaries:

Y. M. C. A.—Gilmore, Loizeaux and Rumsey, forwards; Collier, centre; Miner and Gavett, guards. P. H. S.—Mortimer and Doane, forwards; Caldwell, centre; Snyder and Parsons, guards.

Field goals: Gilmore, 7; Collier, 7; Miner, 5; Snyder, 5; Mortimer, 4; Rumsey, 2; Gavett, 2; Doane, 2; Caldwell, 2; Loizeaux. Goals from fouls: Doane, 3; Collier, 2. Referee, Charles B. Morse; scorers, Woodhull and Listman; timers, Morris and Vail. Twenty minute halves.

"Grimesy Me Boy" Cancelled.

Advance reports indicating that it is not up to the standard of New Plainfield theatre attractions, "Grimesy Me Boy," booked for tonight, has been cancelled by Manager Counihan. Salisbury's pictures and illustrated songs will be biven instead.

BUSINESS MEN FORCE SENIORS TO THIRD PLACE

The business men's five in the local league of the Y. M. C. A. took their sixth straight victory from the Seniors in a well played game at the association gymnasium last night. Without the fifteen point handicap which the Seniors allow their opponents, the score was 27-17, in favor of the Seniors, but with the handicap, the business men won out by five points. A feature of the game was the scoring rally of the Seniors in the second half. They scored twelve baskets and added five points from the foul line, guarding their opponents closely and preventing them from scoring more than two scratch baskets the entire period.

The score at the end of the first half was 13-10 in favor of the business men, feature work being done by Doane, Listman and Dunning. Martin, for the Seniors, scored the most points, finding the iron hoop five times for scores. The lineups and summaries:

Business Men.	Seniors.
Spicer, Doane	Sheppard left forward
Listman	Templin
right forward
Dunning	Jacot centre
Smith	Martin
left guard
Jarvis	Woodland
right guard

Field goals: Martin, 5; Doane, 4; Woodland, 3; Listman, 2; Dunning, 2; Templin, Sheppard, Jacot. Goals from fouls: Jacot, 3; Templin, 2; Listman. Referee, Charles B. Morse; twenty minute halves.

Brakeman's Arm Crushed.

Jacob Whitehead, of Mauch Chunk, a brakeman employed by the New Jersey Central, had an arm crushed while coupling cars at Bound Brook at 1:30 this morning. He was brought to this city on the 2:17 train and removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance. The injury is not severe and Whitehead left for his home this afternoon.

School Board Talks Budget.

An adjourned meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education was held at the Somerset street school last night. It is reported that the various committees worked on their budgets, but the proceedings were in executive session. Another meeting of the board will be held at the school next Monday night.

Mr. Whitall has assumed charge of the business conducted for more than fifteen years past by the firm he bought out. Clifton & Campbell have large orange and fruit growing interests in Florida and will devote their business to cultivation and supervision of the southern groves. While the partnership has not been dissolved, C. B. Clifton has gone to Bradentown, Florida, where he will superintend his large orange grove there and engage in truck farming. J. H. Campbell, the other member of the firm, will take personal charge of his orange and peach groves at Crescent City, Florida.

Miss Van Arsdale Paroled.

Horace M. Blackmur, of Brooklyn, whom New York Detectives McConville and Nelson arrested on last Wednesday, charging that he conducted a get-rich-quick game, was arraigned on two charges yesterday, discharge on one, paroled on the other, and then arrested and held on a third, all within fifteen minutes. The girl arrested with him, who first said she was Edna Smith, of Newark, and later admitted that her name was Margaret Van Arsdale, of Dunellen, was paroled. As Blackmur was leaving the court Deputy Sheriff Walgering arrested him for failure to pay $70 alimony in a suit being prosecuted by his wife in Brooklyn.

THIEF CONSCIENCE STRICKEN.

The Rev. Isaac P. Whelan, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, explained yesterday the return of $800 which was fraudulently obtained from the People's Building and Loan Association, of Harrison, some time ago. The money was mailed to the treasurer of the association, Thomas E. Gleason, a few days ago, and there had been much guessing as to the reason for its return. There was nothing about the letter that could help to trace the sender and the only note accompanying the money stated that the thief was conscience stricken.

Father Whelan said yesterday that the guilty person had used the clergyman as a go-between, confiding in him through confessional. Later the priest was given permission to tell the facts, and he met the officers of the building and loan association and completed the details of the transfer. Two persons were directly concerned in the fraud by which the $800 was obtained on the certificate of stock of Thomas Anderson, of Harrison. Anderson's name was forged on the back of the certificate and again on the check which Mr. Gleason handed to the person who presented the certificate.

COUNCILMANIC NEWS.

The Councilmanic license committee held a meeting last night and decided to submit all applications as filed to the Common Council in executive session on Monday night. The Councilmanic fire committee had scheduled a meeting for last night but a quorum of the members was not present.

Fowler Lauds Cleveland.

In an address before the Yale Law School last night, Congressman Charles N. Fowler paid a high tribute to the brains and power of J. P. Morgan, who, he said, in 1895 saved the country by twenty-four hours from the repudiation of its national credit. He also said: "I am a Republican and a staunch one at that but I thank God that Grover Cleveland was in the White House at that time, for I don't know what any other man would have done at such a crisis."

Offers Apartments Free.

Jacob Sachar, an extensive dealer in local real estate, has two five-room apartments and two three-room apartments which he will give rent free to any deserving persons in the city until April 1. After that, Mr. Sachar says, he will give half rent for a couple of months. The offer is made because the apartments are idle and the owner is anxious to aid any families that have felt the financial depression. Mr. Sachar lives at 731 West Third street.

Mrs. Margaret Cannon.

Mrs. Margaret Cannon, widow of James Cannon, died at her home on East Third street last night. She had been ill a long time. Mrs. Cannon had been a resident of the city for many years and was quite well known. She leaves one daughter, Miss Annie Cannon, with whom she lived. The funeral will be held at her late home Thursday morning at 8:15 and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

To those who know Miss Harriet Taylor, the announcement that she will be a guest of the association Thursday evening, February 20, will be greeted gladly. Miss Taylor is at the head of foreign department of the Young Women's Christian Associations and is much loved by all who know her.

Want Bridge Rebuilt or Removed.

Contending that the Newark Bay bridge is practically a dam across the bay, and consequently a menace to navigation in many respects, the fight for the removal or rebuilding of the New Jersey Central bridge, was begun before the War Department yesterday, by the Newark Board of Trade, Board of Works and the Board of Allotment, who were represented by several delegations. Senators Kean and Briggs and Representives Parker and Pratt escorted the delegations to the War Department.

Sewer Committee Did Not Turn Out.

An adjourned meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health was held at the house of Dr. A. H. Dundon last night. The members convened in executive session. The meeting was to have been a joint one with the committee of five recently appointed to agitate the question of sewers in the borough, but aside from A. E. Kenney, who is a member of the board of health, W. G. Debele was the only member of the committee present and no action was taken.

HEAR FAMOUS BARITONE

Fashionable Audience Crowds the Casino to Hear W. T. Carleton Sing.

RENDERS KIPLING'S BALLADS.

Enthusiastic Applause Greets Englishman Who Possesses Rare Vocal Gifts—His Program.

The song recital given at the Casino, last night, by W. T. Carleton, under the auspices of The City Union of The King's Daughters, was a huge success, the capacity audience reminding one of former days at this popular amusement centre. In fact long before the recital began it looked as though it would be necessary to display the "standing room only" sign. As a result the organization will realize about $125 as profit. The sum will be used to install a heating plant in The Day Nursery.

Mr. Carleton was most enthusiastically received and his excellent program comprising English, Scotch, Welsh, Irish songs, together with the famous "The Barrack Room Ballads," of Rudyard Kipling, with music by Gerard Cobb, gave him ample opportunity to display his fine baritone voice. It is an exceedingly difficult matter for a vocalist to entertain an audience for two hours, yet Mr. Carlton accomplished it and he held the interest of all from the beginning to the end of the program. One thing that helped to relieve what might have been a monotony was the short talks apropos of the songs, composers and periods. While many have often heard the songs of last night they had little idea of their origin and the explanatory notes proved enjoyable.

There were those present last night who remember Mr. Carleton of other days when he was a prominent figure in the world of opera, and they were unanimous in their opinion that his voice has retained that sweetness and range which has won for him the praise of thousands throughout this and other countries.

In the numbers selected by Mr. Carleton for his program it would be difficult to say which delighted the audience the most. Each received equal applause. One encore, "The Keys of Heaven," was especially good. There was the classic and selections of lighter vein and all combined to make an evening of real pleasure. Mr. Carleton was ably assisted at the piano by Charles Gilbert Spross. The program follows:

English—"Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," words by Ben Jonson; "Tom Bowling," Dibdin; lullaby, "The Slumber Islands," music by A. F. Loud; "The Mad Dog," from "Vicar of Wakefield;" Scotch—"Loch Lomond;" "Ye Band and Braes O' Bonnie Doon," Burns; "The Piper O' Dundee;" Welsh—"Cambria's Plume," Richards; "All Through the Night;" Irish — "Bendemeers Stream," words by Moore; "My Love Nell," arranged by C. D. Fox; "The Stuttering Lovers," old Irish air, arranged by Herbert Hughes.

The program then concluded with "The Barrack Room Ballads," as follows:

"Fuzzy Wuzzy," "Gunga Din," "Ford O' Kabul River," "The Road to Mandalay," and the final number was that well-known selection, "Danny Deever," by Walter Damrosch, which brought forth long and continued applause.

Teachers' Reception a Success.

Attended by nearly a hundred teachers of the various city schools, the reception and dance held at the Plainfield High School, last night, for the purpose of getting the teachers of the different schools acquainted, proved a great success. The reception was held in the auditorium, and there were informal remarks by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Principal Ira W. Travell, Charles L. Lewis and Lindsey Best. Later in the evening the floor was cleared for dancing. Music was furnished by the tel-electric piano player. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served during the dancing. A committee consisting of Superintendent Maxson and the principals of the various schools was in charge of the affair.

Knights of Columbus Euchre.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will give a euchre party in Columbus Hall, East Front street, tomorrow night. Knights and their friends from nearby towns and cities have been invited. Music will be rendered throughout the evening by an orchestra.

Convert to Speak.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock Ensign James Hirschler, a converted Hebrew, of New York, will relate the thrilling story of his conversion to Christianity in the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street.

MUST REPORT ALL BILLS

Amendment Abolishing Committee Morgues Adopted Despite J. R. Moxon.

"MOXY" GETS THE USUAL.

Union County Member Touches the Earthquake When Posing As a Machine Defender.

The State Assembly, by a vote of 33 to 26, last night at Trenton, adopted the Morgan amendment to the rules, providing that when a petition, signed by 15 members of the House, asking for the report of a bill, is presented to a chairman of a committee, such chairman must report the bill asked for within two hours after receiving the petition.

Since the opening of the Legislature Assemblyman Martin and his New Idea colleagues have been fighting for this amendment. The regulars opposed its passage, and when it was first introduced in the House it was referred to the Rules Committee, of which Mr. Martin is chairman, his colleagues being Assemblyman Moxon and Buxton, but in spite of the Essex Assemblyman's efforts, the committee refused to take any action on it. When Mr. Martin announced that he would fight it out on the floor of the House, a caucus was hastily called by the regulars, which met this morning.

For nearly two hours the Legislature wrangled over the amendment until the hour for the joint session arrived, when the caucus was compelled to adjourn. Efforts were made to get the caucus to adopt a resolution which said that at the request of five members the leader should call a conference to consider the question whether a committee should be relieved from further consideration of a bill. The New Idea men refused to accept this, however. The caucus adjourned without taking any action.

The afternoon session was fairly under way when Mr. Morgan moved that the Rules Committee be relieved of his amendment. A lively tilt followed, in which Mr. Moxon, single handed, tried to have the motion defeated. Not one of the regulars came to his assistance of their Union county comrade. Assemblyman Hendrickson then obtained the floor and urged the adoption of the amendment. So did Assemblyman Tumulty, of Hudson. Mr. Morgan quoted some of the bills killed in committee two years ago, the passage of which, he said, was demanded by public sentiment. They included the primary recount and the promoters' liability bills.

Mr. Moxon said he would like to see a copy of these bills, and Mr. Martin quickly jumped to his feet and asked the Union Assemblyman if he would support a primary recount bill, but Moxon sidestepped it, saying he would first want to examine the phraseology and the way the bill was drawn.

The motion to relieve was then carried by a vote of 33 to 26, and Mr. Martin reported the bill. Moxon understood the clerk to say the bill was reported favorably, and demanded to know by what right Martin reported the bill in such way. But Martin said he just reported the bill, that was all.

Mr. Thompson, of Mercer, made a point of order that the committee, being relieved of a bill, could not report it. Mr. Hendrickson, however, straightened things out by moving the adoption of the previous question, and the Morgan amendment to the rules was adopted.

Plan Hope Chapel Reception.

At a meeting of the entertainment committee of the Young Men's Club and Men's Club of Hope chapel, held Monday night at the home of Philip Braunstein, of Monroe avenue, it was decided to have an informal entertainment at the chapel Friday night, February 21. The affair will be of the nature of an "open house" for members of the church and their friends. The joint committee appointed for the affair consisted of Messrs. Braunstein, Hunter, Rimmer, Slorah and Sweeney and the work of arranging a program has been left to Messrs. Braunstein and Slorah.

Will Demonstrate Gas Engine.

There will be a demonstration of the pneumatic-gas engine, to be manufactured by a local company, at the old oilcloth works Friday and Saturday afternoons. This is the invention of Franklin H. Merrill, of West Front street, and several Plainfielders formed a company sometime ago to engage in the manufacture of the invention. Dr. P. J. Zeglio is president of the company, R. A. Meeker is vice president and Judge William Newcorn secretary and treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Deyo and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Reed, of Brooklyn, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy VanAlstyne, of West Fourth street.

EAGLES HAVE A BIG TIME

Dignitaries of the Order Make Speeches at Session of Freedom Castle, K.G.E.

SUPREME CHIEF'S ADDRESS.

In Addition to Informal Remarks, a Degree Team's Work Proves to Be a Feature of the Affair.

Thronging the local lodge's rooms on the occasion of a visitation from Supreme Chief Eli Manchester, of New Haven, Connecticut, State lodge officers of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, delegations from seven lodges prominent in the State, as well as Eagles from Yonkers, Philadelphia and New Haven, united with a big turnout of local lodgemen to make last night's meeting the biggest event in the history of the local lodge. The Supreme Chief reviewed the crack degree team of Freedom Castle in the installation of the Knight's degree upon four candidates, among whom was Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, who recently allied himself with the lodge.

With Supreme Chief Manchester was Past Grand Chief Hewitt, president of the New Haven Board of Education, and other prominent Eagles present included Past Grand Chief Hope of the State Lodge, from Asbury Park; Grand Chief Condit, of the State Lodge, from Asbury Park, with his staff; Deputy Grand Chief Blackford, of Yonkers, N. Y., and a delegation of five Yonkers Eagles, and Deputy Grand Chief Granville Moore, of New Brunswick, with a delegation of ten. There were also delegates from the Eagles' lodges at Somerville, South Amboy, Port Norris, Atlantic City, Annandale and Philadelphia. The visiting lodgemen were announced and introduced by Grand Sir Herald of New Jersey Horace J. Martin, Sr.

Past Grand Chief Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan presided at the meeting and introduced the various speakers, The principal address of the evening was by Supreme Chief Eli Manchester. He took for his topic "The Advancement of the Order in the United States" and dwelt especially upon the establishment of the order of Knights of the Golden Eagle. Referring to statistics, the speaker said that the present membership of the order is upwards of 70,000, of whom more than 7,000 are New Jersey Eagles. He spoke in commendation of the place of prestige held by the local Eagles, urging strictest appreciation of the cardinal principles of the order in the lodge life.

Past Grand Chief Hewitt next spoke, dwelling especially upon the foundation of the order by General Burbage. This man saw the necessity for such an order and based the foundation upon the lessons of militant Christianity as found in the Bible. He devoted much of his life to the work of the Eagles, effecting the foundation of the order in the early eighties in Baltimore. To him, the speaker said, is due the credit as instigator of the strong order in this country.

Speaking of the institution of the local lodge, Freedom Castle, founded in 1901, Past Grand Chief Houe dwelt at some length upon the growth of the order among lodges here. At the conclusion of the remarks of the grand lodge officers, Rev. A. E. Finn and Rev. E. E. Roberson were introduced. They emphasized especially the cardinal principles of the order—fidelity, valor and honor, and the part they have played in the growth of the lodge.

Another feature of the evening's program was the work of the degree team in the initiation of four candidates to the second, or Knight's degree. Degree Master William E. Day, to whom must go the credit for the efficiency of the crack Castle team, ranking high through out the entire State, was in charge. The rite was performed most impressively, without the employment of written ritual or prompting of any sort, and won the highest commendation from the State officers and all present. The personnel of the degree team follows: Noble Chief, R. V. Kinney, vice chief, P. H. Bennett; past chief, L. Niles; sir herald, Joseph Randall; ensign, Frank Neidig; esquire, Edward Schmeyer; chamberlain, John Bolsterle; high priest, Frank Runyon; venerable hermit, Casper Waglow; fallen knight, William Allen; Lucifer, John Becker; inside guard, Clark Lowrie.

The affair, which stands pre-eminent in the history of the local lodge, was spontaneously arranged, the visit of the Supreme Chief attracting the delegations from all near-by lodges. There were more than 150 Eagles present at the ceremonies.

SENTENCED HIMSELF TO SIXTY DAYS IN JAIL

The privilege of sentencing himself to a term in the county jail as long as he liked was accorded Harry Breidt, a Newark youth, in the city court, this morning. He was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn on a charge of vagrancy and when arraigned before Judge Runyon stated that he had tried to get employment but failed. He added that he didn't care much what was done with him as he suffered greatly from the cold weather while knocking around and he was better off in jail.

"In that event," said Judge Runyon, "you stand committed and you can make the sentence what you like. How would thirty days suit you?"

"Thirty days is hardly enough," was Breidt's reply; "with the usual time off for good behavior I would be out before winter is over; I think I'd better take sixty."

The court confirmed the latter sentence and the prisoner was led away with a smile spreading over his face.

Breidt is but twenty-five years old and according to the police prefers to knock around the State in preference to staying home because of quarrels with his relatives. Detective Flynn looked up his record after arresting him and learned that he is a good mechanic and previous to taking to the road had worked in a last making factory in Newark.

FIELDER AMENDMENT TO ACKERMAN'S BILL

Amendments flew thick and fast when Senate bill No. 6, a civil service measure introduced by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, came up for second reading at yesterday's session of the Senate, in Trenton, but in the end the main features of the bill remained unchanged.

An amendment introduced by Senator James F. Fielder, of Hudson, providing for the preference of veterans for office in case they had passed the examinations was adopted.

As originally introduced the bill provided that civil service should be mandatory in the State and permissive in counties and municipalities.

The first amendment offered by Senator Ackerman gave governing bodies power to adopt by resolution. Other amendments making it necessary to accept civil service by ordinance were introduced and lost. Another presented by Senator Robbins providing for the adoption by referendum in cities and counties were also voted down. Robbins' defeat was very pleasing to Ackerman's friends.

Besides giving preference Senator Fielder's amendment allows the transfer of civil service employes by their own consent and the permission of the commission.

DOMINIE HAS LAST LAUGH

Rev. Moore-Smith's Spaniels, Which Caused His Resignation, Capture Prizes.

WINNERS AT BIG DOG SHOW.

Scotch Plains Parson Sweeps All Before Him at Westminster Kennel Exhibition.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of Scotch Plains, who resigned his pastorate at the Baptist church in that place two weeks ago because his parishioners objected to his fondness for dogs, jumped into the "blue ribbon" class with one sweep at the annual exhibition of the Westminster Kennel Club at Madison Square Garden, yesterday, when he won everything in the classes for Irish water spaniels. His money winnings for the day amounted to $55 in addition to the entry fees received as first prizes in two of the classes.

There were six classes devoted to the exhibition of Irish water spaniels and the parson's string walked off easily with not only the first, but second prizes as well. In the first three classes the awards were $15, $10 and $5, while in the other three classes there were reserve and entry fees as prizes.

The classes were judged by Dr. Henry Jarrett, of Philadelphia, and the results follow:

Class 163—Novice. Dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's Erin's Coleraine Kitty. One prize only.

Class 164—Limit. Dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's Erin's Peggy O'Shea; second prize, $10, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's Erin's Coleraine Kitty. Two awards.

Class 165—Open, dogs and bitches. —First prize, $15, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's Erin's Molly Malone; second prize, same exhibitor's Erin's Doctor Terry; third prize, $5, same exhibitor's Erin's Shamrock.

Class 166—Winners, dogs and bitches.—First, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's Erin's Molly Malone; reserve, same exhibitor's Erin's Doctor Terry.

Class 167—Team class.—First prize, entry fees, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's team.

168—Brace class.—First prize, entry fees, the Rev. T. Moore-Smith's brace.

LARGE AUDIENCE ENJOYS A MEN'S CLUB MUSICALE.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club, a delightful musicale was given at the Congregational church, last night. The artists were Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; Miss Edith Davies, contralto; J. H. Sanford, tenor; Bertram F. Tallamy, bass. J. Albert Harold presided at the organ and Mrs. Bethune T. Barnes acted as musical director.

The program was in two parts and comprised eleven numbers in all. The quartet numbers by Mrs. MacDonald, Miss Haynes, Mr. Sanford and Mr. Tallamy were greatly enjoyed, the Madrigal from "Tom Jones" being one of their best. Each of the artists gave individual solos and Mrs. Barnes and Mr. Harold rendered organ and piano duets.

The musical was enjoyed by a large audience and was one of the most successful the club has yet conducted.

Boys to Publish Paper.

The question of publishing a club paper was discussed at the meeting of the Y. M. C., of Hope chapel, last night. The suggestion by G. Herbert Condict, the leader, that a committee of three be appointed by President Rimmer to confer with Rev. L. R. Howard, the pastor and editor of Hope Chapel Mirror, with a view to having a department in the chapel publication, prevailed. The plan is to have a certain portion of the Mirror devoted to club affairs. The committee appointed comprises Walter Firstbrook, chairman; James Kenney and Donald Mortimer.

Flag Upside Down.

In raising the "grand old flag" at fire headquarters, North Plainfield, this morning, it was accidentally run up the pole upside down, and boroughites flocked to the house to render assistance called for by the signal of distress. The flag was righted after a laugh on the firemen by the informers.

State Senators Invited.

TOO MUCH MOTHER-IN-LAW

Father's Second Wife Upsets a Happy Household and Results in a Police Case.

WRANGLE BRINGS ON A FIGHT.

Cause of All the Trouble Shows in Court that She Has a Quarrelsome Disposition.

A Polak family scrap that led to the rushing out of the patrol wagon and the arrest of three men, was sifted down in the city court this morning and found to have been caused by "too much mother-in-law." The prisoners were Dominick Poulock, his son-in-law, Frank Pusher, and Frank's brother, Peter. They have all been living in Poulock's home on Evona avenue and were engaged in scratching out each other's eyes, yesterday morning, when Patrolman Charles Flynn and Patrol Driver O'Gorman arrived in response to a telephone call from neighbors.

With the aid of Joe Manhattan as interpreter it was learned that when Frank Pusher married Poulock's daughter, the father-in-law signed a written agreement that the couple could live at his house as long as they liked, rent free, and that whenever they desired to move out he would give them $200 as the bride's dowry. The arrangement was satisfactory and domestic life at the Poulock household was one grand, sweet song until the father, who was a widower, married again. The new wife took a dislike to Mrs. Pusher and the two women by their continual wrangling lived out a sort of Mrs. Nagg and Mrs. Jarr existence.

The men took up the quarrel and ignoring his agreement, Poulock informed Pusher that he would have to pay $5 a month rent for staying at the house. It was paid until two months ago when Pusher lost his place and when he fell behind the father-in-law, at his wife's suggestion, told him he would have to get out. This was satisfactory to all hands and the Pushers, with the aid of the brother, started to cart away the furniture yesterday morning. Poulock let everything go until only a bed was left and, this he decided to hold for the $10 owing him. An argument followed, the argument led to a fight and in the fight the bed was demolished and the father-in-law, the son-in-law and the son-in-law's brother were all badly marked up.

These facts were brought out by Judge Runyon and Frank Pusher exhibited the dowry agreement to substantiate what he said. Mrs. Poulock bustled around the court room like a wet hen and discredited everything said except by her husband until Chief Kiely put her in a back seat and placed a cop guard over her. Her actions added the finishing touches to the impression gained that she was at the bottom of all the trouble.

The court made Poulock admit that instead of Pusher owing him $10 he owed the son-in-law $190, according to the contract. The father-in-law said he would pay it if the Pushers would stay away from his home and everybody said "yes, sure." The case was dismissed with this understanding but Judge Runyon sent the Poulocks out first and kept the Pushers behind in order to prevent any further hostilities when the sidewalk was reached.

The precaution proved a wise one as the old folks were anxious to get into another argument and hung about in front of headquarters until Detective-Sergeant Flynn went out and escorted them two blocks away.

Musical Service at Trinity Church.

BURGLARIES AT FANWOOD

Epidemic Alarms Residents of the Staid Suburb of Plainfield.

MAY INCREASE NIGHT PATROL.

Five Cases Reported Last Week Alone—Believed to Be the Work of a Gang—Little Has Been Taken.

A series of burglaries or attempts at entering that have taken place within the past week has disturbed the residents of Fanwood and steps are being taken to increase the night patrol on duty in the borough. There have been five cases in all reported in the past week and the belief exists that a gang that has been operating in Summit and Somerville has moved over to this vicinity.

One of the places entered at Fanwood is the home of J. H. L. Todd on Martine avenue, which was broken into last Friday night. The family was not disturbed and the next morning discovered that a small amount of money and an overcoat had been taken. On the same night an attempt was made to break into the home of F. J. Palmer on Tillotson road but the men were evidently frightened away. They had removed a catch from a window.

On Saturday night, the barn of C. R. Vincent on Martine avenue was entered and a plan to steal a horse and rig was evidently nipped in the bud by the passing of Marshal Logan. A runabout wagon had been taken outside and robes and a whip were placed in it. The blanket had also been removed from one of the animals in its stall and the harness was half on it when the barn was entered by a member of the family in the morning. Marshal Logan goes about the premises at times through the night and it is thought he came by on one of his trips as the thieves were making ready to hitch up.

Two other attempts at entering have been reported by the residents and it is probable that any more will result in the intruders meeting a hearty reception.

BELATED ANNOUNCEMENT OF A MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss May Harkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harkins, of Pearl street, and Peter McDonough, of East Sixth street. The ceremony was performed in St. Joseph's church on September 2 last and has been kept a secret by the young people until the present time. Rev. Father Miller officiated and the attendants were Miss Elizabeth Harkins and James McDonough.

The groom is a telegraph operator at the local office of the Western Union and has many friends in the city and borough. Mr. and Mrs. McDonough are making their home with the bride's parents.

Trinity's Banner S. S.

The annual report of the Union County Sunday-school Association for 1907, which has just been issued, shows that the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church, this city, has the largest average attendance of any in Plainfield and the largest enrollment in the county. The report shows a total enrollment of 613, with an average attendance of 331. There are 201 enrolled in the home department. These statistics are very gratifying to Superintendent F. E. Smith and his co-workers at Trinity Reformed church and is a source of great encouragement.

Broke a Show Case.

Arraigned before Borough Recorder Dolliver on a disorderly charge preferred by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the North Plainfield force, James DeCamp, of Somerset street, was fined $10 in the borough court last night. DeCamp was intoxicated Monday night and smashed a glass show case in front of a Somerset street restaurant. He was arrested on the warrant yesterday afternoon and released on bail for the night hearing. He promised to make a settlement for the damage.

Injured While Picking Coal.

While engaged in picking coal on the railroad near his home on Cottage place, this morning, Francis Dakamo, was struck by a westbound coal train. His right leg was badly lacerated and he also received cuts and bruises about the body. Neighbors carried the man to his home at 35 Cottage place and the ambulance was summoned to remove him to the hospital. Dr. W. H. Murray attended the man and in his opinion he will recover.

Dr. Schenck Improving.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, is so much improved from his recent severe illness that he was able to take a short walk on the veranda yesterday.

COURT DECIDED IN HIS FAVOR

Cooper Fought to Retain Formula Which Has Made a Fortune.

L. T. Cooper, the man who believes that 90 per cent. of all ill health of this generation is caused by stomach trouble, is fast winning a national faith in his theory. His claim is now admitted by a surprising number of people throughout the country, and he is gaining new adherents every day.

While speaking of his success in a recent interview, Mr. Cooper said: "I believed ten years ago that any one who could produce a formula that would thoroughly regulate the stomach would have a fortune. When I got hold of this formula I knew within six months that I was right, and that my fortune was made. I called the medicine Cooper's New Discovery, although I did not get up the formula. I have owned it, however, for over three years. I have had one lawsuit over it, which I won in the courts. When it was settled The Cooper Medicine Company became the only firm in the world that can prepare the medicine. The preparation has sold like wildfire wherever introduced. As I have said before, it is successful simply because it puts the stomach in perfect shape, then nature does the rest. There are any number of complaints never before associated with stomach trouble that the medicine has alleviated in thousands of cases."

Among statements obtained recently from users of this medicine that is arousing such universal discussion is one from Mrs. Emma Stanley, living in Chicago, at 713 Washington Boulevard, who said: "Perhaps I had the most complicated case that Mr. Cooper had to deal with. I was troubled for years with my stomach. I consulted with doctors and took many patent medicine preparations without result. My stomach was in such a wretched shape that I could not enjoy a meal that I ate.

"I was very nervous, and could hardly sleep; I had a roaring in my ears and dancing spots before my eyes. I felt very bad and weak. Then there was a very sore spot at the pit of my stomach that nearly set me wild.

"I heard about the Cooper medicine and decided to try it. I used four bottles, and the improvement in my case has been really wonderful. My nerves have been quieted, and I am so much improved that I feel like a new woman.

"I cannot say too much for these wonderful remedies, for they have made me well."

We sell the Cooper medicines and consider them well worth a trial by any one afflicted with chronic stomach trouble and its attendant diseases. —T. S. Armstrong.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Stolen from the Vine street ferry in Camden a week ago, a telephone pay box was found Monday in a lumber yard at the foot of Linden street.

Run over by a runaway team and loaded ice wagon at Burlington, Monday, Harry Coombs sustained a broken leg and internal injuries so serious that his recovery is doubtful.

Falling on ice at Mays Landing, Monday, Daniel Leach broke a small bone in his leg, John Hansen painfully injured his face and head, and Mrs. Clark W. Abbot broke her right arm.

Admitting his guilt, Harry Sheer, nineteen years old, was held in $300 bail in Camden as one of a gang of youths who robbed the Etter Erecting Company at Third and Lemon streets of old iron.

On his way home Monday Overseer of the Poor Jefferis, of Camden, was held up by two men who demanded money. One of the highwaymen was about to strike Jefferis, who reached his hand in his back pocket as though to draw a weapon, and the highwaymen fled.

Martin Kobicher, the Franklin Furnace iron miner who was badly injured on January 25 last at the mines by the falling of a number of supports, died at the General Hospital, in Paterson, Monday afternoon. Kobicher sustained an injury to his spine. His friends at Franklin Furnace were notified.

Angry Atlantic City women who resent Mayor Stoy's freeing of Albert Moralles, arrested for non-support of his wife, have written letters attacking his stand on the mother-in-law question. Moralles was about to be heavily fined for failure to support his wife, but pleaded that his desertion was forced because he refused to live with his wife's mother. The sentence was reduced, and the Mayor offered to go on the man's bond.

Rev. A. L. Ward, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Port Republic, has issued a statment welcoming an investigation demanded by Rev. R. Ashley Cake, chaplain of the New Jersey division of the United States life-saving service. Mr. Ward, after informing Mr. Cake that his asstance in connection with a revival was not desired, is said to have suddenly dismissed the service and made statements that aroused the indignation of Mr. Cake's friends. Friends of the pastor declare he made no wrongful statements. Mr. Cake was pastor at Port Republic for many years.

Argument on a rule to show cause why the temporary injunction secured by Isaac W. England to prevent the Public Service Corporation from stringing high voltage wires through Central avenue, Passaic, should not be made permanent, was heard before Vice Chancellor Stevens in the Chancery Chambers, in Jersey City, Monday, and resulted in the court refusing to make the injunction permanent. The vice chancellor held that Mr. England was without standing so far as the asking of the injunction was concerned, and summarily dismissed his application.

Joseph H. Lefferts, of Passaic, Monday applied to Judge Scott for the release of Franz Buchli, the letter-carrier recently arrested in Passaic and now held at the county jail awaiting extradition on a charge of robbing the mails of 2,400 francs, about $500. Mr. Lefferts contended that Police Judge Dalrymple, of Passaic, hadn't the right to send Buchli to jail for sixty days and claimed that thirty days being the limit, he should now be released. Mr. Emley said the federal statutes made provision for detaining Buchli for that period. Judge Scott reserved decision. Mr. Lefferts has taken out a writ of habeas corpus, and it was on this that he moved for the prisoner's discharge.

AMUSEMENTS.

The funeral of Miss Rosa Esler, thirty-four years old, was held the other day at the nome of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Roach, at Middlebush. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Hattie Novellie, Harold Huff, Norman Huff and Van Trumpore were present every day school was in session during the past month at Centreville.

The wedding of Mrs. Kathleen Stine, of Martinsville, and Isaac Otis Taylor, will take place on Saturday, February 22, at the home of the bride.

Arrangements are being made for a dance, which will be held at Staats' Hall, in North Branch, on Wednesday evening, February 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vroom entertained a number of friends at a dinner at their home at Pluckemin the other night.

A dance will be held tomorrow night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Skillman, near this place.

Miss Anna P. DuMont, of North Branch Depot, has returned from a visit to friends in Somerville.

We're Going To Clean Out These Winter Goods

—as you can easily see by the prices we have put on them—that we mean for them to go right now. It's in line with our 1908 policy to clean out the old stock and make room for the new. We can afford to be a bit liberal about it, too, since it was inventoried last month with that in view. Read the list—how generously we cut the price! You will most likely find use for some of these things the way we sell them.

And the White Goods Sale isn't altogether over with either—in fact, all that's left of the White Goods bargains—as Muslin Underwear, India Linons, Persian and French Lawns, Nainsooks, Long Cloths, Embroideries—these will all remain at the sale prices until disposed of—and displayed on the centre tables as heretofore.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

When the New York National League Club recently paid the $1,000 fine inflicted by the national commission because of the forfeiture of several games by McGaw's men to the Philadelphia Americans last spring at New Orleans, John T. Brush expressed a desire to have the case reopened. The commission, after considering the request, has just made this ruling:

"The New York National League club filed an application for a further consideration and a rehearing of the claim filed against it by the New Orleans Club some time ago with respect to which the commission made a finding some time since. The rule of the commission pertaining to rehearings is plain. Rule 32 provides that no case of any nature decided by the commission will be reopened unless an application for a rehearing shall have been filed in writing with the commission by the parties interested within ten days after such finding has been promulgated. The New York club has not filed within the specified time. Therefore its application is refused."

President Hedges of the St. Louis Americans says that negotiations for the release of Rube Waddell from the Philadelphia Americans occupied three months. Hedges will not say how much was paid for the big left hander, but admits that it was "big enough to sink a ship." Waddell says he is well pleased with the change and that he will endeavor to make it particularly interesting for Connie Mack's team this year. He wants to pitch in eleven of the twenty-two games to be played with the Quakers.

Mike Donlin, who is in Chicago waiting to leave on February 28 for Texas to join the New York Nationals, is enthusiastic over the team's prospects. "There is nothing to it," said Michael the other day. "We are going to be back on top again this year. Take it from me McGraw has the fastest bunch of ballplayers ever gathered together in the same club. To begin with, Tenney will give the infield a great boost by his work at first base and with the bat. This new one, Merkle, will get a chance to fight with Doyle for second base. McGraw thinks that Merkle is one of the greatest young players that has broken into the big leagues in years and he will do his best to find a regular place for him. You can't beat Devlin at third base, while young Birdwell, the new shortstop, is a crack fielder. Shannon, Seymour and yours truly will look after the outer garden to

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Plainfield people endorse our claim.

Mrs. Julia Molloy, of 740 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Many so-called cures for backache and kidney disease have been taken by me, but no medicine ever stopped my aches and pains until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's pharmacy. I took them according to directions, and found before finishing the first box that they were far more healing and brought even more relief from backache than their owners claim for them. I continued with them and was cured, and now do not suffer from aches or pains or kidney troubles."

FOOTBALL.

As a result of the conference between the representatives of the Navy Athletic Association the Army Association and the University of Pennsylvania it is settled that the Army-Navy football game will be played in Philadelphia this year, though it is not sure that it will be played on Franklin Field.

The university has not reconsidered its determination not to build a temporary stand, but it is trying to devise a plan by which the tickets allotted to the two services will not be curtailed. If this can be done the game will go back to Franklin Field. It is proposed to put benches around the field just inside the fence, but this has not yet been settled.

Porf. N. M. Terry and the other members of the navy and army committees visited the grounds of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club on Broad street, and Prof. Terry said last evening that they were much pleased with them. The owners will allow the use of the grounds for the game either at a definite sum or will allow each service 10,000 seats and will offer the rest for sale, the money received being by way of rental for the grounds.

Cornell and Princeton will not play football next fall because of a difference as to the place where the game should be played. The Cornell position is outlined by Judge Irvine, president of the athletic council, and graduate Manager Dugan in the following statement:

"It is true there will be no football game between Cornell and Princeton next fall. A three year agreement made in 1905 has expired. Under this one game was played in Princeton, one in New York and one in Ithaca. Princeton had the option of renewing this agreement, but declined to do so. Cornell proposed a home game and home agreement, the first game to be in Princeton, but Princeton declined to play in Ithaca at any time and proposed first a one and then a two year agreement for games in New York or Princeton. The Cornell faculty and athletic management both oppose contests in large cities on grounds not of the competing university. For this reason and because Princeton's proposal was deemed by Cornell and admitted by Princeton to be inequitable it was declined."

Percy D. Haughton has been appointed head coach for the Harvard football eleven for next fall. The appointment was made by the athletic association, was not unexpected and is one that is regarded favorably by the undergraduates in general. The poor success of the Crane regime last fall made it probable that a new coach would be selected. Harvard football adherents are hopeful of good results from Haughton's coaching, especially if he has as good material to work with as Crane had. He has much more practical knowledge of the game than Crane had.

Haughton played tackle on the championship Harvard eleven which defeated Yale in 1898. Besides being a first class tackle he was a fine punter and did the booting for the Crimson on the rain soaked field in New Haven in 1898. He coached at Cornell for a couple of seasons after leaving college and turned out a team that downed Princeton 12 to 0. He has been identified with Harvard football's coaching since being graduated. He is considered a competent handler of men and has kept in touch with the game under the new rules. It is possible that he may succeed Crane as the Harvard representative on the rules committee.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

An address on Lincoln will be given at the prayer meeting at the Congregational church tonight.

"Why Do I Belong?" will be the topic of the W. C. T. U. meeting tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. C. L. Bennett will lead.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will meet tomorrow afternoon. The pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, will be in charge.

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church has formed a Bible class under the leadership of Dr. H. E. Baright and will meet once a week.

"Will There Be Time for Argument at the Judgment?" will be discussed in the special discourse by Rev. A. E. Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night.

The Young People's Association will continue its study of the Bible Friday night under the leadership of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie. Howard H. Williams and Miss Elsie Goddard.

The women's missionary societies of the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist church and Faith chapel will hold a prayer service at Faith chapel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Finn's Sunday-school classes at the Park Avenue Baptist church will give a leap-year social in the Sunday-school room on Tuesday night, February 18.

In addition to Rev. Mr. Stuchell, of Rahway, there will be two or three other speakers of prominence at the dinner to be given Tuesday night by the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will on Sunday night deliver the last of the present series of sermons on comparative religions. The theme will be "Jesus and Christianity."

The Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union is steadily increasing in membership and there is a growing interest in the work. On Monday afternoon Mrs. Charles Conover will lead the devotional exercises and Mrs. Banks will teach the lesson, "Jesus at the Pool of Bethesda." Mrs. Frank Jones will speak on "Application for Sunday-school Teacher."

But, we all know you have, Brother Boyd!

If Assemblyman Van Cleef, who yesterday introduced a bill to make Flag Day, June 14, a legal holiday, will only open his eyes, he will find that what this country wants just at present is more working days. The army of unemployed will not see merit in the Van Cleef bill.

Four of Senator Ackerman's bills are now on third reading in the State Senate. One provides for free employment bureaus in Newark and Jersey City. Another arranges for increased fees for election officers. The third makes its mandatory for telegraph and telephone companies to obtain consent of property owners before stringing their wires in boroughs and townships. The four, a purely local one, is intended to legalize a Plainfield bond issue. The civil service bill, which is largely the making of the Union county man, who is chairman of the committee, has also gone to third reading.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Susan L. Irving.

Mrs. Susan L. Irving, a life-long resident of Basking Ridge, where she was born, died suddenly last night of apoplexy at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Morris Ballentine, of Dunellen, where she had been on a visit. Mrs. Irving was sixty-nine years old and was highly thought of by the residents of Basking Ridge. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ballentine. The funeral services will be held from the Methodist church, Basking Ridge, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Held On a Charge of Desertion.

County Detective John A. Gallatin arrested Monday night George W. Morris at his father's home in Roselle on a charge of deserting his wife and children, three years ago. He was indicted by the January grand jury of that year, but disappeared from the city before he could be arrested. He returned to Roselle Monday and was taken into custody on a sheriff's capias. He was brought before County Judge Atwater, who held him in $500 bail and fixed his trial for Thursday. The prisoner's father became his bondsman and he was released.

Mosquitoes Defy Cold.

It takes more than 10 degrees below zero weather to put the Jersey mosquito out of business. This was demonstrated at Glen Ridge yesterday, when Michael Morton found two of the largest specimens of the insect flying about his house. The sudden spell of warm weather is thought to have thawed out the mosquitoes.

William Brown, a Camden negro serving sentence for burglary, died Monday in the State Prison at Trenton.

SOME AUTO AMENDMENTS

Senator Jos. S. Frelinghuysen's Bills Provide for Increase in Fees.

HIGHEST IS PLACED AT $100.

Visiting Autoists May Have to Pay For the Privilege of Using New Jersey's Model Roads—Features of Bills.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, introduced in the Senate yesterday a set of amendments to his own automobile law. The amendments provide for new registration rates, fines and rules governing the issuance of licenses.

The amendments consist of changing the present number of inspectors from seven to ten paid inspectors and twenty unpaid inspectors, not more than two of the unpaid inspectors being from any one county.

The registration fees are raised from the present rates of $3 for all vehicles below 30-horsepower, and $5 for 30-horsepower or above, to the following scale:

Class.	H. P.	Fee.
First	11-15	$3
Second	16-20	5
Third	21-25	10
Fourth	26-35	15
Fifth	36-50	20
Sixth	51-70	25
Seventh	71-90	35
Eighth	91-120	100

The drivers' license fees are raised from $1 for drivers of vehicles below 30-horsepower and $2 for drivers of 30-horsepower and above to the following scale: $1 for first-class, $2 for second-class, $3 for third-class, $4 for fourth-class, $5 for fifth-class, $10 for sixth-class, $15 for seventh-class, $25 for eighth-class. Provision is made for licensing by a blanket license cab companies operating adjacent to ferries, provision being made that they shall operate only one mile within the borders of the State.

It is proposed to abolish the manufacturers' licenses, because of the many abuses that have grown up in connection with their use. Motor cycles will hereafter pay a registration fee of $2 and carry such identification as may be prescribed by the commissioner of motor vehicles.

All registration certificates and all drivers' licenses shall hereafter expire on June 30 of each year, and when certificates are issued for the fractional part of the year, only the fractional part of the annual fee shall be paid.

Provision is also made for tourists' registration and licenses. For six days or any multiple of that number of days, not exceeding thirty, at $50 per period of six days. It is provided that all identification marks, both for tourists and annual registrations, will hereafter be supplied by the State, and shall be changed annually.

It is also provided that the receipts from all sources shall be so distributed by the commissioner of public roads that those counties that have improved their roads by the county act shall receive their pro rata share with those that have been improved by the State road act.

FIRE SUIT PARTIALLY SETTLED.

Damages for Two Blazes Fixed While Amount for Third Is Still In Dispute.

Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze sat at Elizabeth yesterday in order to act upon the case of James E. Goodman against the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. Goodman owns a large farm near Picton and close to the Lehigh Valley Railroad. In 1905 three fires occurred on his property, one on April 1, another on July 19 and a third on July 22. The one on July 19 destroyed several thousand dollars' worth of property.

Goodman claimed that the three fires were caused by sparks from the railroad company's locomotives and brought suit for damages. The case was tried before Justice Swayze and a jury, and $7,500 was awarded the plaintiff last October. The railroad company carried the matter to the Supreme Court, which set aside the verdict as excessive and contrary to the evidence.

The railroad company admitted its liability for the fire of April 1, which did $29 damage, and also for the one of July 22, which did $15 damage, making in all $44. Justice Swayze yesterday directed that a verdict for this amount be entered on the court record for the plaintiff, and allowed Goodman's lawyer, Clark McK. Whittemore, to take an appeal to the Court of Errors on the disputed fire of July 19.

The Old Gen. Slocum Reaches N. Y.

New York, Feb. 12.—Under her new name of Maryland, the old excursion steamboat General Slocum, on which 1,000 persons were killed in the disaster in the East River on June 15, 1904, is discharging a cargo of lumber from Baltimore at the pier at the foot of Eighteenth street, Brooklyn, today. Only the hull of the old excursion boat remains, surmounted by a small deckhouse at the stern. The craft, now a lumber barge, is owned by a firm in Baltimore.

RUTGERS ALUMNI GASP.

Astounded Over the Wording of Letter of Invitation to Annual Dinner.

New Brunswick, Feb. 12.—The alumni of the Rutgers College are gasping over the letter they have received, inviting them to attend the annual dinner of the Rutgers Alumni Association of New York, at the Hotel Plaza on Friday night. The letter was sent out by the association secretary, Drew W. Hagaman.

They understood that they were to attend the dinner and hear Governor J. Franklin Fort and Mayor George B. McClellan, but they are taxing the knowledge they absorbed from Rutgers lexicons to comprehend what the secretary meant by sentences like these:

"The dinner this year promises to be a great success. From reliable information concerning the number who are coming it is qpite certain that it will make last year's dinner look like a solo luncheon.

"If you are a member and your dues for the current year have not been paid slip $5 to Charles E. Pattison, treasurer, Fuller building, as quickly and quietly as you can, and get on the band wagon for the biggest dinner the association has ever had. Pattison is a quiet, secretive person and will hand you back your dinner ticket and never let on that yours was not the first money over the counter."

UNIQUE GIFT FOR GOVERNOR.

Steel Name Stamp, of Exceptionally Fine Workmanship, Presented to Mr. Fort.

Trenton, Feb. 12.—The J. D. Mallonee Company of this city has presented to Governor John Franklin Fort a steel name stamp for stamping on steel and other metals. This is a gift representing a remarkable phase of New Jersey handicraft.

The Governor's name is done in letters which are but seven one-thousandths of an inch high. The entire name of sixteen letters occupies a space of fifteen one-hundredths of an inch long.

The engraving was done by Mr. Mallonee, under a powerful lens, and is one of the finest stamp of its kind ever produced. The letters of the name are so small that the finest of paper is too coarse to take them. To make a legible impression, which is then only visible under a powerful lens, the stamp must be used on gold or other metal of a fine texture.

—Willard Totten, formerly of Middlebush, Somerset county, has moved to this city, where he has formed a partnership and engaged in the produce business at Park avenue and Fourth street.

NOTICE.

All licenses granted by the City will expire March 1. All persons desiring to renew the same must make application to the City Clerk on or before Feb. 25. After March 1 no person will be allowed to carry on any business for which a license is required without securing one.

Last Sewer Settlement Made.

The Westfield Town Council Monday night ordered a check drawn in favor of Frank Faulkner for the sum of $89.70 to pay for right of way through his land, for the outlet sewer now under course of construction from the sewer farm to a point below the dam in the Robinson branch of the Rahway river. The settlement with Faulkner was the last to be made, other property owners having accepted the awards of the commissioners appointed by the court several months ago. Recently the town sold Faulkner 100 trees at the sewer farm for $89.70, and the result will be that the town and Faulkner will exchange checks.

Rector Wants to Be Released.

After having had his resignation declined by his congregation two months ago, the Rev. J. Woods Elliot, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, Orange, has again resigned, and insists upon leaving the parish. He is now out of the city, but it is said he intends leaving Orange on March 1. Mr. Elliott some time ago took up a line of preaching which many parishioners thought bordered on Christian Science, with the result that the resignation was forthcoming. A new vestry refused to accept the resignation and the parish seemed to be harmonious, but Mr. Elliott later decided to sever his connection.

Prayer of Praise As Saloon Burns.

During the burning of Greenwald's saloon, at Mt. Holly on Monday morning, members of the Law and Order Society, which favors local option and has prosecuted several merchants for selling liquor on Sunday, offered praise to God as the liquor was being destroyed, and additional thanks when they found that the work of the firemen were handicapped by the frozen fire hydrants, their desire being that the whole place should be burned.

Locomotives Lost at Sea.

Paterson, Feb. 12.—Word has been received here by the Cooke Locomotive Company that sixteen locomotives completed by them for the Manchurian Railroad were lost at sea in a vessel that foundered off the coast of China last week. The engines were a part of an order for thirty-five. They were of the standard American size and were for passenger traffic.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The girls of the younger social set of Dunellen have inaugurated a novel leap year custom in the borough, which will be put in effect for the first on St. Valentine's Day. On the evening of this day, several of the woung women are planning to take the leap year initiative and call on their young men acquaintances. This is a reversal of the usual conditions, but a representative faction of young Dunellen society have "vowed" to do it, so that instead of donning gala attire for calling, the young men are making plans to receive their women friends at the homes and will play the host instead of being in visitor's role.

The hearing of Charles Robinson, the colored man recently committed by the grand jury for abuses to children, will be brought to trial on five distinct charges in New Brunswick next week. It is reported that about a score of Dunellenites have been subpoenaed as witnesses for the trial.

Superintendent Lester Messeroll, of the borough schools, has completed arrangements for the re-cataloging of the books of the school library, and an up-to-date catalog will be printed as soon as the work of revising the library is completed.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church was held this afternoon in the lecture room of the church.

William M. Dealaman is able to be about again after several days' confinement with fever and ague.

The Embroidery Club will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Day, of New Market.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Miss Margaret Reynolds entertained a number of friends at an informal party at her home on Barth avenue last night. A pleasant evening of music and games was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served.

Fanwood Council, R. A., met last night in the Library rooms. After routine business short addresses were made by members of the Grand Council. Past Grand Regent Lightfoot was in charge of the delegation.

The People's Ice Company have finished the work of filling the company's house near the Back Pond. About 1,500 tons of ice was harvested.

Tickets for Oak Farm, the entertainment to be given March 3, for the benefit of the ball team, are out and selling well.

The members of the Baptist Sunday-school will hold a social tonight in the church parlors.

Miss Josephine Ingram, of Trenton, is visiting Miss Harriett M. Squires of Front street.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Class committees were announced at the regular monthly meeting of the Baraca Class, of Faith chapel, held last night. At the conclusion of the business session, refreshments were served.

Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, will deliver a lecture before the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this evening, on the "Federation of the World." Mr. Holt will speak of the results of The Hague conference which he attended last summer and the general International Peace movement which is nothing else than the substitution of law for war.

During his visit in our city, Mr. Holt will be the guest of his uncle, Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue.

FORT MAKES SOME MORE APPOINTMENTS

Governor Fort at Trenton yesterday nominated as the commission to revise the primary election laws, ex-Governor Edward C. Stokes, Chandler W. Riker, of Newark, and Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville.

Austen Colgate, of Orange, was nominated as personal aide to the Governor.

Edward D. Duffield, of South Orange, was nominated as a commissioner for the Rahway Reformatory. The Rev. John Handley, pastor of the First M. E. church of Millville, was named for the same board.

Charles A. Ransom, of East Orange, a newspaper man who is the State political writer for the Newark News, was named as executive clerk to succeed Edward D. Fox.

Other nominations included:

Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the county of Atlantic, Enoch A. Highbee, reappointed; Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the county of Bergen, Milton Demarest; prosecutor of the pleas of Morris, Charles A. Rathbun, reappointed; judge of the Second District Court of the county of Hudson, James S. Erwin, reappointed; members of the State Board of Education from the third Congressional district, W. Edwin Florence, of Middlesex, reappointed, and William G. Scauffler, of Ocean; trustee of the State Home for Boys, John E. Gill, of Merser; trustees of the State Home for Girls, Thomas P. Fay, of Monmouth, reappointed, and Joanna Hartshorne, of Essex, reappointed.

Members of the State Board of Medical Examiners, David P. Borden, of Passaic, reappointed; E. L. B. Godfrey, of Camden, reappointed; Charles A. Groves, of Essex, reappointed. Board of managers geological survey, fourth district, Washington A. Roebling, Trenton, reappointed; ninth district, Joseph D. Bedle, reappointed; the large, John C. Smock, of Mercer, reappointed. Commissioners of the Palisades Interstate Park, William A. Linn, of Bergen, reappointed; William H. Potter, of New York. Public Library Commissioner, Howard M. Cooper, Camden.

The Governor stated that in making the appointment of Milton Demarest to be judge in Bergen he acted upon his individual responsibility in the matter. The opposition to Judge Zabriskie seemed to be so strong and persistent that it was impossible to harmonize upon him.

HOUSE HORSE PLAY WITH GOVERNOR'S "COLONEL"

Considerable amusement was afforded at the afternoon session of the House at Trenton yesterday, when Austin Colgate was inducted into the office of colonel. Leader Martin arose and said that the spirit of militarism was rampant in the House, and moved that a committee be appointed to bring the culprit to the bar.

The Speaker appointed Messrs. Martin, Moxon and Smith, and Mr. Colgate was brought to the front of the Speaker's desk. General Breinttnall presented his commission to him, and Mr. Baker, of Hudson, presented a uniform and other accoutrements to the colonel. These consisted of some clothing which looked as if it had been worn in the Civil War, an ancient revolver and saddle and a receptacle which some of the members said was used for cold tea. Colonel Colgate thanked the members for their sympathy, and invited them all to visit his tent at Sea Girt next summer if the local option bill prevailed at that time.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Summit Follows Plainfield.

The city of Summit, one of the youngest in the State, has adopted the high license policy. At the meeting of the Board of Excise, held last week, the license fee for hotels, inns and taverns was raised from $500 to $750, and that for wholesale places from $250 to $350. And this without the slightest intimation in advance that such an act was contemplated. This places Summit the second high license city in New Jersey, the first being Plainfield, with its fee of $1,000. Summit has five hotels but no saloons, the Excise Board holding that the latter cannot be shown to be "conducive to the public good." This does not mean that the Summit people must do without beer, ale or other drinks. The hotels have bars, at which liquors of all kinds are retailed, and the grocery stores are the wholesale places from which these beverages may be ordered and sent to any of the private residences. Whether this increase of the license fee will drive any of the hotels or groceries out of the liquor business remains to be seen, but the Summit officials claim that they have the liquor traffic under better control than any other city in the State, Plainfield itself not excepted.—Newark News.

James Clawson, of Park avenue, left today for Wiersdale, Florida, where he will remain for two months.

Miss Josephine Petrie, of East Sixth street, sailed on Saturday for Porto Rico, where she will remain for several weeks.

ORGANIZERS OF $2,000,000 MINE CONCERN ON TRIAL

Arthur L. Richards, of Newark, and Francis Wilcox and George H. Beverly, of East Orange, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Cross in the United States Court at Trenton, Monday, on an indictment charging them with using the United States mails to advertise a "defrauding scheme." Edward Van Orden, of East Orange, was also to have pleaded, but he failed to appear.

The four men are incorporators of the New Jersey Mineral Company of Franklin Furnace, Sussex county. The company was incorporated for $2,000,000. Its stock was divided into 80,000 shares at $25 each. The "Munson tract" of 475 acres, adjoining the property of the New Jersey Zinc Company, was purchased, and to pay for it a bond issue of $100,000 was made. The mortgage on this property was secured by these bonds and a portion of the stock. Of the stock issue 50,000 shares were retained by the defendants.

Stock to the aggregate of 28,000 shares was sold to Harold W. Stanfield, of Emaus, Pa.; Henry A. Horn, of Medina, Ohio; Frank H. Hale, of Syracuse, and Pierre G. Blais, of Taunton, Mass. These persons and the federal government are complainants in this suit. Literature of the company sets forth that a zinc ore vein thirty-five feet thick had been found on the tract, and that this would yield 150,000 tons annually, with an aggregate value of $5,250,000, or 235 per cent. on their investments.

The compalinants declare that there is not enough ore in the property to make mining worth while, and that the whole scheme is a fraud.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Arnold Daly, and a strong supporting company, in his new play, "My Mamie Rose," is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and evening.

After considerable dickering, Manager Counihan of the New Plainfield theatre has finally prevailed upon Webster Cullison, manager of Charles Frohman's "Are You a Mason" company, to send his pet comedy to the New Plainfield theatre for a return date tomorrow night. Mr. Cullison has a number of road shows and of them all, "Are You a Mason," headed by Charles B. Hawkins, and Miss Eva M. Lewis, is the best both from the point of revenue producer and laugh creator. This announcement will be good news to the playgoers of Plainfield and the appearance of the famous farce will no doubt attract large crowds.

A humorous play is a safer investment than any other style of drama. People will laugh first and think afterwards, and laughter being in a sense a tangible entity, there is no going back on the verdict it renders. Again the fate of a farce is quickly determined. If there is no merriment the first night, there is no money in the thing, and no temptation to throw good money after bad in the hope that it sometimes buoys up the projectors of burlesque and extravagances of whipping a failure into shape. In Broadhurst & Currie's funny fellows, "Rudolph and Adolph," assume the title roles they have given the public a legitimate successor to their other famous plays, "What Happened to Jones," "The Wrong Mr. Wright," "Why Smith Left Home" and "The House That Jack Built." The amusing situations of the new farce never pall on the auditor and people in New York and Boston, who saw it the second and third time, enjoyed it as much as on the first occasion. It comes with a good cast of well known favorites to the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night.

Protecting Pillows.

Unbleached muslin covers slipped over pillows before the real cases are put on will lengthen the existence of the outer case.

State of New Jersey

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Whereas, the comptroller did, on the sixth day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, under the provisions of an act entitled "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act to provide for the imposition of state taxes upon certain corporations and for the collection thereof,' approved April 18, 1884," which supplementary act was approved June 3, 1905, report to the governor a list of all corporations coming under said act; and

Whereas, the following named corporations so reported have, for the two years preceding such report, failed, neglected or refused to pay the state taxes assessed against them for the year 1905, under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and made payable into the state treasury; and

Whereas, under the provisions of said act the charters of said corporations are repealed and all powers conferred by law upon such corporations declared inoperative and void, unless the governor gives further time for payment; and

Whereas, the governor has not given further time to the corporations so reported and hereinafter named for the payment of such taxes, and the same are still unpaid;

Therefore, I, Edward C. Stokes, Governor of the State of New Jersey, pursuant to the provisions of said act of the legislature, do hereby issue this proclamation that the charters of the following named corporations so reported and in default, to wit:

The Fighting Chance.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1906, by the Curtis Publishing Company.
Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

Leila smiled. "Hush, you little silly! I've talked Stephen and praised Stephen to you for days and days, and the moment I dare mention another man you fly at me, hair on end!"

"Oh, Leila, I know it! I'm perfectly mad about him, that's all. Look at him as he saunters across the lawn, Leila! Look at him!"

"Well? I see him."

"Isn't he almost an ideal?"

"He is. He certainly is, dear."

"Do you think he walks as though he were perfectly well?"

"He may be coming down with whooping cough."

Sylvia rose indignantly, but Leila pulled her back to the sun warmed marble bench.

"A girl in love loses her sense of humor temporarily. Sit down, you little vixen!"

"Leila, you laugh at everything when I don't feel like it."

"I'm not in love, and that's why."

"You are in love."

They sat there in the sun, Leila's hand lying idly in Sylvia's, the soft sea wind stirring their hair and in their ears the thunderous undertone of the mounting sea.

"Look at Stephen," murmured Sylvia, her enraptured eyes following him as he strolled hatless and coatless along the cliff's edge, the sun glimmering on his short hair, a tall, slim, well coupled, strongly knit shape against the sky and sea.

But Leila's quick ear had caught a significant sound from the gravel drive behind her, and she stood up, a delicious color tinting her face.

"Are you going in?" asked Sylvia. Then she, too, heard the subdued whirring of a motor from the front of the house, and she looked at Leila as she turned and recrossed the terrace, walking slowly, but erect, her pretty head held high.

Then Sylvia faced the sea again and presently descended the terrace, crossing the long lawn toward the headland, where Siward stood looking out across the water.

Leila from the music room watched her; then she heard Plank's voice and his step on the stairs, and she called out to him gayly:

"I am downstairs, thank you. How dared you send me those foolish nurses!"

She was laughing when he came into the room, standing there erect, head high, a brilliant color in her cheeks, and she offered him both hands, which he took between his own, holding them strongly and looking into her face with steady, questioning eyes.

"Well?" she said, still smiling, but her scarlet underlip trembled a little; then: "Yes, you may say what you wish—what I—I wish you to say There can be no harm in talking about it. But will you be very gentle with me? Don't m-make me cry. I h-have—I am t-trying to remember how it feels to laugh once more."

* * * * * * *

Sylvia, lying in the hot sand on the tiny crescent beach under the cliffs, listened gravely to Siward's figures as, notebook in hand, he went over the real estate problem, commenting thoughtfully as he discussed the houses offered.

He turned to look at her, and she lay there, silent, blue eyes looking back into his. Suddenly they glimmered with tears, and she stretched out both arms, drawing his head down to hers convulsively, her quivering mouth crushed against his lips. Then she rose to her knees, to her feet, dazed, brushing the tears from her eyes.

Drawing his head down to hers convulsively.

"To think—to think," she stammered, "that I might have let you face the world alone! Dearest, dearest, we must fight a good fight."

He looked straight into her eyes, fearlessly, tenderly, and she looked back with the divine, untroubled gaze of a child, laying her slender, sun tanned hands in his.

And, deep in his body, as he stood there, he heard the low challenge of his soul on guard, and he knew that the enemy listened.

THE END.
(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Its Worth.

The actress, having been arrested for running her automobile seventy miles an hour, was describing the superb car to a reporter.

The young man inquired:

"How much did you say it was worth?"

"At least two columns on the front page," she answered absently.—Kansas City Independent.

COASTERS UNDER HOOFS OF HORSES.

Five coasters, three young men and two young women, had a narrow escape from death while enjoying the sport on Seventh avenue hill, Newark, Monday. They were Elsie Jensen, nineteen years of age, of Belmont avenue; Annie Straubinger, one year her senior, of No. 198 Livingston street; John and William Straubinger, nineteen and fourteen years of age, respectively, and Frank Moeltner, aged fourteen years, of No. 678 Eleventh street.

All the coasters started from Bergen street on a bobsled, which had gained great velocity when Lillie street, a quarter of a mile away, was reached. At this point John Straubinger, who was piloting the sled, steered out to escape the rear end of a truck that extended over the coasting course. As he did so two wagons came out from Lillie street on either side of the avenue and the sled crashed into one horse knocking it down. William Straubinger who was on the rear end, was swept from the "bob" and fell alongside of the horse uninjured. A few feet further on the other horse was struck and fell on top of those remaining on the "bob," but in such a manner that only the Straubinger girl and Moeltner were injured. The girl's side was badly bruised and Moeltner's nose was injured. The "bob" was wrecked and both horses had their legs cut. In the mix-up the animals kicked viciously, but injured no one.

How He Would Act.

This is not the hoary bearded tale of the raw recruit who halted the officer of the day in the middle of the stream and forced him to dismount and wade through the water and be recognized, although there be a similarity of settings.

A cavalry "rookie" on his first night's tour was approached by the officer, who, after demanding his special and general orders and asking a number of more or less reasonable questions, wound up by requesting the guard's method of procedure if he were to see a steamboat coming toward him across the parade ground.

To which the "rookie" respectfully replied, "I'd quit drinking, sir."—Judge.

Marrying.

Everybody is expected to marry once, and there is not much talk when you marry the first time, but people look wise when you marry the second time and roar when you marry the third time.—Atchison Globe.

AN ORDINANCE

To Further Amend An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance to Create and Define the Duties of a Board of Police and a Police Force," Approved February 28th, 1882, As Amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 3 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, be further amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary and by resolution order to be appointed. The said Police Force shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Sergeant, Detective-Sergeant, Roundsmen, Patrolmen, Doorman.

The duties of the several members and officers of said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinance of the city and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department. The Patrolmen shall be divided into five (5) classes:

Class A—Fifth year of service and over.
Class B—Fourth year of service.
Class C—Third year of service.
Class D—Second year of service.
Class E—First year of service.

Provided, that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time, specified above, or not.

That beginning with the first day of January, 1908, the salaries of the members of the force who are regular Policemen be and are hereby fixed at the following rates, that is to say:

Chief	$1,600	per annum
Captain	1,200	per annum
Sergeant	1,140	per annum
Detective-Sergeant	1,140	per annum
Roundsmen	1,080	per annum
Patrolmen:
Class A	$1,000	per annum
Class B	960	per annum
Class C	924	per annum
Class D	864	per annum
Class E	792	per annum
Doorman	720	per annum

The times from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city are to be calculated, are the dates at which the continuous service of said policemen, respectively, commenced, and said Sergeant, Detective-Sergeant, Roundsmen, Patrolmen and Doorman, respectively, shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, in each month, except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time during which they severally shall be disabled from the performance of duty by reason of physical injuries, provided that the Board shall be satisfied that such injuries were the direct result of personal violence inflicted upon them, respectively, in the performance of their respective duties; and hereafter, each of such officers and policemen shall provide, at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for their use respectively, as from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the Department.

Adopted by the Common Council February 3, 1908; approved by the Mayor February 4, 1908.

STATE ENDEAVORERS URGE LOCAL OPTION

At the winter meeting of the executive committee of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, at the Young Men's Christian Association, at Newark, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"The executive committee of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, at its winter session in Newark, February 10, wishes to emphatically put itself on record as in favor of the local option bill No. 92, now before the State Legislature, and requests the Assemblymen and Senators from the various counties to vote in favor of the bill.

"We also desire to thus make public our approval of the Governor's excise views."

Rev. P. T. Pockman, of New Brunswick, reported for the program committee of the annual State convention and will announce the full list of speakers and the place of meeting at the April session. Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, the new State treasurer, reported $35.27 on hand. President Sproull announced the appointment of Miss Josephine Wyckoff, of the Park Presbyterian church, as superintendent of the State missionary work, to succeed Miss Jane R. Morrow, of Westfield, resigned.

On suggestion of President Sproull, it was decided to observe Sunday, April 5, as "visitation day," when there will be an interchange of leaders as the meetings, the topic being "The Neew of the Society."

Forty-one Indictments Returned.

The Union County Grand Jury presented twelve additional indictments yesterday, making forty-one which have been returned so far this term. In reply to a question by Judge Atwater as to whether the jury had completed its labors, the foreman answered in the negative.

Will Organize Social Club.

Steps have been taken by Plainfield Polaks to organize the J. W. Manhattan Social Club. Nineteen names have been placed on the charter roll and a meeting will be held at Joseph Manhattan's home on Elm place next Sunday to elect officers.

EPISCOPAL DEACONESS TELLS OF HER WORK

Speaking in the interests of mission work among the women and children of Alaska, Mrs. Sabine, a deaconess of the Protestant Episcopal church order, stationed at Anvik, Alaska, gave a vivid description of the work she was doing and the conditions in the mission field at a neighborhood meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Grace Episcopal church yesterday afternoon. Delegations of auxiliary workers from churches at Fanwood, Westfield and Bound Brook were in attendance and a substantial sum of money was given for the support of Alaskan hospitals and the relief of the motherless children.

The address outlined in full the work of the church in the North. Miss Sabine is home on a forlough, but will resume her work in the Alaskan field within a few months. She told of her experiences in advancing the civilization of the Alaskan people, dwelling especially upon the work among the women and children.

At the conclusion of the meeting, an informal hour followed in the parish house, where tea and coffee were served.

THESE NEW MEASURES STIR STATE FIREMEN.

Three bills introduced in the Senate at Trenton this week emanating from the Exempt Firemen's Association, two labeled by Majority Leader Robbins as his own bills, and the third by request, proved a source of uneasiness to the Trenton fire department and it is declared will be much more annoying in Newark, Jersey City, Paterson and a few other cities affected.

All three are from John S. Gibson, present auditor of the association, and one of the two provides that his salary as such shall be $1,200 a year—about what he receives now—and that it shall be paid from the moneys received by the commissioner of banks and insurance of the foreign insurance two per cent. tax. This fund is now devoted to the firemen's pension fund in cities having paid fire departments, and is the main source of revenue.

Another bill extends to exempt firemen all the protection of the veteran tenure of office act, and if Mr. Gibson's receipt of $1,200 a year through the bank and insurance department should make him a State employe his tenure would be for life, as the act contains no provision for removal from office.

The third act repeals Section 12 of the act of March 28, 1905, which applies to the pension fund the money received from the foreign insurance act, and inasmuch as the only other source of revenue of this fund is a per capita assessment and receipts from fines and sale of old material, it is pointed out that the fund would be materially depleted if the Gibson plan were enacted into law.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, will have initiation at its meeting Saturday night.

Several applications will be received at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., tomorrow night.

At the lunch-box social to be held tonight under the auspices of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, a quilt and several other articles left over from the fair held in December will be disposed of. There will be a vocal and instrumental program of music, together with an appropriate address on Lincoln. The G. A. R. and Women's Relief Corps have been invited to attend.

P. S. C. Retrenching.

Partly because there is no great amount of work to be done at present and also for the reason that there is a stringency in the money market, the Public Service Corporation has been laying off unnecessary help in various districts. In Plainfield three laborers, who were employed as extras, and three linemen have been laid off. It is expected that the full force will be employed in the spring when the company plans to do considerable in the line of improvements. The tree trimming gang is still in tact and is now at work in the Netherwood section of the city.

Bowling and General Sports

MAYOR A CRACK BOWLER

North Plainfield's Chief Executive as Capt. of "Myrtle Aves." Does Great Stunts.

IN A COCKED HAT TOURNEY.

His Team Defeat Bett's "Washington Avenues" in Great Fashion—Mayor's Score the Highest Made.

Smashing the pins for a 34, the high score of the evening's cocked hat match, Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, captain of the "Myrtle Avenues," a ten man team, led his side to victory in two straight games against the "Washington Avenues," bowled at the Park Club last night. The Mayor's ten had everything their own way, landing both games easily.

In the presence of an enthusiastic gallery of men and women members of the Park Club, the "Myrtle Avenues" established their right to the club title beyond the shadow of a doubt, and are now seeking more "worlds to conquer." The first game went to Mayor Townsend's ten by one pin, and his team did not finish bowling after establishing the victory. Augustus Van Deventer did not come to the alleys until late and all of his team had finished bowling when he started work. The "Washington Avenues" were five pins to the good when he went on the alleys, but in four frames he had won victory for his team and bowled no more that game. The "Myrtle Avenues" averaged 25 in this game, while their opponents had a 23 average.

Sustaining their high average in the second game, when the Mayor broke the evening's record with a 34, the Myrtle Avenues surpassed their opponents by an average of four pins. As soon as victory was secure, the Mayor's team was challenged by ten other members of the club, organized on the spot as the "Outsiders," and the two teams will roll next Tuesday night. The teams lined up as follows:

"Myrtle Avenues"—Mayor Townsend (captain), Morgand Townsend, Samuel St. John McCutcheon, J. C. Peck, Harold Serrell, J. H. Howell, Arthur Reed, Augustus VanDeventer, A. C. Abbott and C. L. Nichols. "Washington Avenues"—J. B. Betts (captain), Dr. F. E. DuBois, Dr. J. R. Westervelt, I. J. Taylor, Nelson A. Miller, J. L. Watson, F. O. Ball, Allen B. Laing, C. H. Lyman, R. A. Lyman.

STRENGTH, SKILL AND FUN AT BIG Y.M.C.A. CIRCUS

In a realistic tan-bark pot-pourri of stunts of skill and strength, flanked by a "stupendous, dazzling, gorgeous and marvellous, sensational and amazing, rare and spectacular collection of living curiosities and freaks" and livened by the antics of a troupe of clowns, the third annual circus of the Y. M. C. A. opened last night in a blaze of glory. The attendance was of house capacity, and the various "acts" in the "big show" kept the gallery in applause and laughter.

There were fourteen big acts on the bill last night, and an entirely different program will be presented at the closing of the association affair tonight. Tumbling exhibitions won the applause last night, and horizontal bar exhibition work by the Harlem gym team, club swinging by George Flynn, of N. Y. U., parallel bar exhibition work by the Harlem gym team, high diving, movements on the horse, and strength tests by O. H. Munger and R. H. Collins eked out a bill which held the interest of the spectators as the acts were introduced.

In the side show was a collection of freaks, compounded and collected from a careful canvass of local talent, and a big squad of mirth-provoking clowns wandered among the performers, injecting merriment into the acts. The circus will conclude tonight with the presentation of an entirely different bill of acts. The proceeds of the affair will be used in connection with the physical department fund.

Prevented a Serious Blaze.

A gas jet at Hodge's pharmacy in the Y. M. C. A. building set fire to some inflammable material nearby last evening and a serious blaze was threatened. It was seen by Carl Bergan, who was passing, and rushing in he beat the flames out. There was no damage.

Borough Cop on the Sick List.

Marshal Lemuel Pope, of the North Plainfield police force, who is confined to his home with inflammatory rheumatism, expects to be on the job again within a few days. During his absence from duty, Special Officer John Smalley has his beat.

PERSONAL.

W. T. Carleton, who gave a song recital at the Casino, last night, was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hooley, of Rockview avenue.

Mrs. Elmore D.Moffett, of Orchard place, has returned from Brooklyn, where she has been visiting Mrs. Wilbur J. Chamberlin, formerly of this city.

Printice Minton has returned from Red Bank, where he was called by the serious illness of his father. His condition is failing and hope for recovery has been given up.

Stephen Fitz Gerald.

Stephen FitzGerald, an aged and well-known resident of North Plainfield, died at his home, 31 Somerset place, last night. He was the father of Stephen FitzGerald, Jr., a telegraph operator employed by the Postal Company. The funeral services will be held Friday morning at 8:30 from the late home and at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's church, where solemn high mass of requiem will be offered. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mono Company's Annual Meeting

The Mono Investment Company held its annual meeting in the office of George W. V. Moy last night and re-elected officers as follows: President, G. W. V. Moy; secretary, H. W. Marshall; treasurer, J. C. Pope. The reports showed the company to be in good financial condition and encouraging prospects for the coming year.

Relief Association Met.

Routine business was transacted at a meeting of the North Plainfield Firemen's Relief Association held last night in the borough Council chamber.

Directing Folks in Boston.

The stranger had been searching nearly half an hour among the mysterious curving ways of the park for Fenway street. At last the trim figure of a hurrying student attracted her eye, and she resolved to ask for the necessary information.

"Can you tell me, please, where Fenway street is?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed," answered the student. "Why, we're in it now."

"Yes?" The stranger looked rather helplessly around at the wealth of shrubbery, the smooth roads that seemed to lead only to Mrs. Gardner's green roofed palace. "But I wanted to find a certain number on Fenway street."

"Oh!" said the student, a helpless expression for a moment clouding her face.

"Do you know, there's a street down there." She pointed a daintily gloved hand straight into a clump of elms. "I don't know the name of it. I never did know that it had a name. Why don't you try that one?"—Boston Herald.

Two cures for the Blues.

"What do you do when you have the blues?" asked the first woman.

"I walk up Fifth avenue and look in all the jewelers' windows and at the orchids and high priced hats. What do you do?"

"I go way down to Rivington street and look at the wretched poor women with seventeen children struggling in the dirt. That makes me thankful my affairs are no worse."—New York Press.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished that letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Elizabeth G. O. P. Candidates.

The Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, at its meeting last night launched booms for Captain Robert Kirtland as the next sheriff and Sydney M. Williams as the next Mayor of Elizabeth. Both names were enthusiastically received.

Bowling At Saengerbund.

Members of the Gesang and Turn Verein are having "open house" at Saengerbund Hall all day today, and several informal bowling matches have been rolled.

MOXON ON LOCAL OPTION

Assemblyman Finds Weak Points in Measure Which will Get Public Hearing.

PIERCE SAYS IT'S RADICAL.

Kirstein Is Non-Committal—Union's Assemblymen Besieged by Local Optionists.

Owing to the fact that Assemblyman John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, is chairman of the Committee on Municipal Corporations, to which was referred the Crosby local option bill, Union county has become a hotbed of local option contention, and the local Assemblyman and the two others from Union county are being stormed with communications from both sides in the fight.

Mr. Moxon was asked yesterday for an expression of opinion on the bill, and while not willing at this time to state his own personal views, he gave out enough information to permit the inference that without doubt the bill will be reported. Mr. Moxon also said that he would give a public hearing on the bill in the near future. He said:

"There is no doubt that it is a decided prohibition measure, as it appears quite one-sided in one particular, namely, that while a district once voted 'wet' may become at a subsequent election 'dry,' there is no chance for a district once voting 'dry' to become 'wet.' As to the way in which the committee will view the bill, I can only say that popular opinion must rule, and not personal concern. That is why I am going to have a hearing on the measure."

Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce was seen at his home, in Cranford, yesterday afternoon, and he said that he was the recipient of a large number of letters from the church people of Union county urging his advocacy of the bil. "I have read the bill carefully," he said, "and while it seems to have many adherents now, still public opinion is very flexible, and, no doubt, many diverse views on the measure may be expected. It is in many cases somewhat radical and will be opposed on that account."

In referring to the local option bill, Assemblyman Kirstein, of Rahway, said: "I am new in the legislative game this year, and therefore hesitate to give a personal opinion on this subject now. I shall be led entirely by the expression of the will of the people. I admit that at the present time there has been more activity on the part of those in favor of the measure in pushing it than by those opposed to it."

PLAINFIELDERS OFFICERS OF CHARITY CONFERENCE.

The following officers of the New Jersey State Conference of Charities and Correction have been elected at the seventh annual meeting:

President, Mrs. Frederick C. Jacobsen, Newark; secretary, Mrs. E. V. H. Mansell, Trenton; treasurer, John C. Cullen, Newark; vice presidents, Mrs. Emily C. Williamson, Elizabeth; Governor J. Franklin Fort, ex-Governor E. C. Stokes, Bishop James A. McFaul, of the Catholic diocese of Trenton; Bishop Edwin Lines, of the Episcopal diocese of Newark; Richard Stevens, Hoboken, and Marshall VanWinkle, Jersey City; as assistant secretaries, Miss Mary F. VanLeer, Trenton; Mrs. Anna Reed, Somerville, and L. A. Thurlow, Plainfield; executive committee, Dr. George B. Wight, Trenton; Rev. Father Francis A. Foy, East Nutley; Hugh F. Fox, Plainfield; Charles F. Curtsie, Blackwood; Rev. Walter Reed Hunt, Orange; Rev. J. L. Hamilton, Paterson; Mrs. Archibald Alexander, Hoboken; Arthur W. MacDougall, Newark; Albert C. Aborn, East Orange; George O. Osborne, Trenton; Judge Algernon T. Sweeney, Newark; Edwin R. Johnston, Vineland; Bleecker Van Wagner, Orange; Thomas McEwan, Jersey City; Edward Colby, of West Orange, and J. Doull Miller, Plainfield.

Scrappers Fined $3.

Dan Dellalio and Julio Regenti, sons of sunny Italy, sought to settle an argument by pummelling each other on Liberty street, last night. They were doing quite nicely when Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Patrolman Vanderweg stepped in and stopped hostilities. At this morning's session of the city court both men were fined $3 with a preference of ten days. They paid up.

Legislative Correspondents Elect.

The Legislative Correspondents' Club held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon at Trenton and elected officers: President, Charles R. Bacon; vice-president, Charles H. Bateman; secretary-treasurer, John P. Dullard, and trustees, James F. Dale, Upton S. Jeffreys and Charles A. Ransom. A committee of nine was appointed to prepare for the annual dinner.

GIRL'S ADDRESS ON EGG BEGINS CORRESPONDENCE

Taking the leap year initiative, Miss Bessie Taylor, whose father owns a chicken farm at Fall Branch, Tennessee, and ships eggs to a wholesale grocer at South Plainfield, wrote her name and address on one of the eggs in a crate received last week, and has ensnared Robert Horn, Jr., a South Plainfielder. A correspondence has sprung up between the two, and a sealed proposal of marmiage may yet come through the mails from the South. Robert saw the girl's address on an egg purchased from a local grocery store at his home, and wrote to Miss Taylor and a few days ago received an answer to his letter.

The young man refuses to show the letter, but village talk has it that Bessie gave a most entrancing description of herself, recording herself as "sweet sixteen," "never been kissed," "just loves candy, and especially cocoanut bars," and altogether so stirred and rankled the heart-strings of good-looking Bob, who has a "steady" in South Plainfield, that he has replied in kind, and sent on some "cocoanut bars." He was in a high state of discontent all day yesterday because the postoffice was closed in honor of the birthday anniversary of one A. Lincoln, but expects a sweet missive from the pretty maid of the chicken farm before the week is out.

Rob is absolutely non-committal about his correspondence with Bessie, and South Plainfield girls are hurt to see how he haunts the postoffice about mail time, and rarely now makes any calls or gives any sleigh-ride invitations. One significant fact about the whole affair has just been made public. It is officially announced that the egg which bore on its shell the name and address of the southern girl was a bad one.

SONS OF VETS. OBSERVE LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, was one of the few local organizations that observed Lincoln's Birthday, and the affair held at G. A. R. Hall, last night, was largely attended. There was a program of vocal, instrumental music and recitations, after which the members and their friends enjoyed a lunch-box social. The members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps were guests.

Captain Edward P. T. Smith was chairman of the committee in charge, and presented the program, which opened with a piano solo by Miss Clara Barton Smith. Captain Smith then delivered an address of welcome and commented on the significance of the day. A vocal solo, "Won't You Be My Honey?" by Miss Loretta Lantran, and a monologue, "The Heartrending Affair," by Miss May Smith and a vocal solo by Miss Lydia Edgar were well received, as were also readings by Mrs. Hattie Goibbons, a vocal solo, "Irish Love Song," by Mrs. William J. Dodd, a cornet solo by Edward Tallamy and additional vocal solos by Miss Lydia Edgar and Miss Loretta Lantran.

In connection with the sale of the lunch-boxes, from which a good sum was realized, there was the award of the quit presented by Mrs. William Hand for the Sons of Veterans fair. It was presented to Victor Lorton. A shaving set was given to William Sheppard, of Somerville. This concluded the entertainment and the committee from the Sons of Veterans served cake, coffee and cigars and a social hour was enjoyed.

A. O. H. AUXILIARY OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY WITH A DANCE

St. Joseph's Division, No. 1, A. O. H. Ladies' Auxiliary, conducted an enjoyable dance in Coward's hall last night. The affair was confined to the members and their friends and was in celebration of the divisions first anniversary. Judge and Mrs. Owen Mahon, of Elizabeth, were guests of honor, the latter being State president of the A. O. H. auxiliary societies. During the evening Judge Mahon delivered an address on the work of the societies.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised Miss Keogh, Mrs. Miss Molly Lyons and Miss Mary Boyle.

St. Valentine's Sociable.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel, a valentine sociable will be held at the church tomorow night. Games appropriate to the day will be played, after which refreshments will be served.

MISS ADELIA PATTERSON DIES AT LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Miss Adelia A. Patterson, daughter of the late Joseph A. and Adelia Patterson, who were residents of Scotch Plains for thirty-five years, died on February 6 at her home in Los Angeles, Cal. The family moved to the Pacific coast after the death of the father in 1904. Miss Patterson was stricken with pneumonia a few weeks ago and complications which set in resulted fatally.

Miss Patterson is survived by three brothers, Joseph A., George Henry and Charles F. Patterson, who under the firm names of Patterson Brothers, conducted a wholesale tobacco business on West Front street for many years. They are all residing at Los Angeles at the present time. The funeral was held in that city and the body was afterward forwarded to Plainfield, reaching here yesterday in charge of Charles F. Patterson. Burial will be in the Scotch Plains cemetery tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Mulford officiating at the grave.

Y.M.C.A. CIRCUS WILL NET MORE THAN $100

The New York Turn Vercin gym team won the loudest hand-rattle from the audience at the Y. M. C. A. circus, last night, by their exhibitions on the horizontal bars, parallel bars and German horse. The bill as presented on the closing night of the big association benefit was an entire change from Tuesday night's performances, and there was a capacity crowd out.

Fred Metz, of the Newark Y. M. C. A., gave a first-class club-swinging exhibition, and the N. Y. U. tumbling pair came in for a good share of applause. In the athlete contest, that "display of muscle-straining humanity" on the mats, there was a gratifying "exhibition of strength and skill." The side show did a big business last night, and "Kicko," the monkey, recognizable today as H. H. Woodland, rivalled Harry Thompson, "the tiger, captured in the wilds of Woodnether" for popularity of the "dazzled and amazed" spectators. H. C. Runyon, the mechanical doll, ("almost human") was especially clever in his machinations, and the clowns kept all diaphragms vibrating by their antics.

Speaking of the financial success of the affair today, Physical Director George L. Listman, "sole owner" of the show, said that he believed the net proceeds would exceed $100.

NEW Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY WILL LIVE IN THE BOROUGH.

Herbert E. Parker, who is to succeed Kenneth Robbie as general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has taken up his residence in the borough, at 95 Westervelt avenue. He will be welcomed to the association in a reception to be tendered at the association tonight. Rev. J. A. Chambliss will speak, and there will be remarks by retiring Secretary Robbie and by Mr. Parker. Refreshments are to be served and there will be violin music by Martin A. Korff; Miss Grace Carroll will sing.

Mr. Parker is at the association daily now, assisting Mr. Robbie, and will take full charge Monday, when Mr. Robbie will leave for Springfield, Mass.

Hearing on Lighting Contract.

The Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting Monday night when a public hearing will be granted on the proposed electric light contract which it is the intention of the city to adopt. The light committee, of which Councilman Francis L. Montgomery is the chairman, has reported the contract back to the Council with the explanation that it has made the best terms possible and for the purpose of thoroughly acquainting every citizen with the provisions of the contract it has been published in pamphlet form for distribution. Besides a public hearing is to be given, when anyone will have a chance to speak for or against the measure.

No Word from Michael McCardell.

Michael McCardell, formerly of the borough, who was a member of Co. K and who was the only one absent at the annual inspection Monday night, has not been heard from and the company thereby loses its opportunity to obtain 100 per cent. in attendance. It was reported that McCardell had enlisted in the navy, but later information leads the company to believe that he has joined the regular army.

J. W. Van Sickle's Condition Critical.

The condition of J. W. Van Sickle, of East Third street, is such as to give his family much anxiety. He apparently grows weaker each day and but little hope is entertained for his recovery. His illness has been aggravated by the appearance of dropsy.

MAYOR HAS NO COMMENT

Mr. Fisk Declines to Make Statement on P.P.A. Circular Regarding Light Contract.

IT ATTACKS THE AGREEMENT.

All Sorts Of Flaws Found In the Contract Proposed By the P. S. C. Authorities.

Determined that everyone interested shall be fully acquainted with the provisions of the proposed electric lighting contract, which is the intention of the city to adopt, the Plainfield Protective Association has again issued a circular letter calling the attention of taxpayers to the proposed action. The letter is accompanied by a copy of the proposed contract which was printed by the Common Council for general distribution.

When Mayor Charles Joel Fisk, who is taking a much needed rest at Lakewood, was asked today what he had to say about the latest statement of the Plainfield Protective Association signed by R. Henry Depew, he declined to make any comment. "I have not seen the circular," declared Mr. Fisk," and I could not make any statement concerning it. You know that the Common Council will hold a public hearing on the subject on Monday night. At that time I will say all I have to say but before that time it would not be right for me to be quoted."

The circular letter lays particular emphasis on several important clauses in the contract. The association declares that the one permitting lamps to be used until the candle power drops to 20, while the city is compelled to pay for 25 candle power is not in the interest of the city. The company should furnish the amount of light for which it is being paid.

Attention is called to the considerable expense for a city electrician, tests, etc., in trying to secure 20 candle power light, and suggests that of the company will agree to change lamps two or three times a year oftener than this contract contemplates and will maintain at the lamp terminals the required voltage, the problem will be solved.

It is further declared that the proposed allowance for insufficient candle power is inadequate; also that it is difficult to understand why the company should be allowed three years, the full term of the contract, in which to place underground the 13,000 volt wire which comes to Plainfield from Metuchen. If the wire is dangerous it should be removed at once.

The association states that the clause to the effect that no primary wires shall be upon the same side of the pole and upon the same cross arm with the secondary wires and other restrictions had not been agreed to by the Public Service Corporation, but was considered by some in authority as one of the most important features in the contract, as tending to promote general safety. Yet these conditions have been omitted and a clause inserted that "whenever practicable, the primary wires shall be upon the opposite side of the pole from the secondary wires."

Emphasis is laid on the fact that the Public Service Corporation is to make improvements "whenever practicable," "as fas ar may be practicable," and "as soon as may be practicable," in complying with the terms of the contract. It is claimed that except in the matter of removal of overhead wires, everything seems to be left to the judgment of the company.

The P. P. A. also says that it cannot understand why the contract will permit the company to charge twelve cents per kilo-watt hours, when through its efforts the price has been reduced to ten cents. It is further cited that no provision is made in the contract for proper maintenance of voltage for private consumers nor for reasonable extension of lines, and says that if this is the best contract the company will agree to let us do without one, or have a simple one-year agreement. In the opinion of the association the city appears to gain nothing by the contract and it will lose nothing by waiting. The one-year contract is urged again and taxpayers are requested to write to their Councilmen protesting against the proposed contract.

Dr. Holt Unable to Appear.

Acting on the advice of his physician, who forbids him to speak this evening, Dr. Henry Holt has announced that he will be unable to appear at the meeting of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church planned for tonight. The meeting has accordingly been deferred until a later date.

Hack Ordinance Violation.

Charles Barry was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Patrolman Kelley with violating the hack ordinance. It proved to be a technical violation and sentence was suspended with a warning.

ALFRED'S GRADUATES ATTEND ANNUAL BANQUET

The Alfred University Alumni Association held its annual banquet at the Hotel St. Denis, New York, Tuesday night, and twenty-five Plainfield members were present among the 100 guests. Orra S. Rogers was the toastmaster and among the speakers of the evening was Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, formerly pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, but now dean of Alfred University. President Booth Davis was also a speaker. Charles Potter Rogers, of New York, a cousin of D. E. Titsworth, was elected president for the coming year.

Those from this city and vicinity at the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Ira N. West, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dunham, Dr. Martha Stillman, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Truell, Mr. and Mrs. Orro S. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Cottrell, Charles Potter Titsworth, Miss Ida Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Asa F. Randolph, Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, Rev. and Mrs. N. H. Jordan.

STOKES AND BESLER AT LINCOLN DINNER

Abraham Lincoln Brick, Congressman from the Thirteenth (Indiana) district, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Lincoln Republican Club, of Asbury Park, last night at the Marlborough Hotel in that city.

Covers were laid for 150. Congressman Brick, in his oration, characterized Lincoln the grandest American that ever lived.

Other speakers were former Governor E. C. Stokes, of New Jersey; Congressman B. F. Howell, Dr. A. E. Ballard, vice-president of Ocean Grove; Vice-President W. G. Besler and General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope, of the Central Railroad; W. W. Wimer, Jr., of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Mayor T. Frank Appleby.

DUTCH MARKET FEATURE OF THIS ENTERTAINMENT.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held an entertainment, followed by a "Dutch Market," in the parlors of the church, last night. The affair was largely attended by the young people and friends of the society. The program opened with the singing of "America," and at the same time Old Glory was displayed from a concealed corner.

There was a piano duet by Miss Eva Rogers, a vocal solo and encore by Charles Potter Titsworth, a short sketch of the life of Lincoln by Dr. Henry M. Maxson and a soprano solo by Mrs. Theodore G. Davis.

Following this part of the program, all were invited to visit the "Dutch Market," where various booths were arranged and at which different dishes were served. In front of each booth was an artistic placard, the work of Charles Neagle, indicating the dish served. One was privileged to select their own refreshments for a nominal sum. The booths and those in charge were as follows:

Dishes, Miss Mildred Greene; brown bread and butter, Miss Ernestine C. Smith; cheese salad, Mrs. Theodore G. Davis and Miss Eva Rogers; baked beans, Miss Evalois St. John; cake, Miss Ida Spicer; buttermilk and cottage cheese, Miss Rachel Vail; Welsh rarebit, Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson and Mrs. Asa F. Randolph; coffee, Mrs. O. S. Rogers. The rooms were attractively decorated with American flags and those taking part wore Dutch costumes. The committee in charge comprised Miss Mary Greene, Miss Eva Rogers and Miss Ernestine C. Smith.

Missionary Society Musical.

Under the uaspices and for the benefit of the missionary society of Hope chapel, a pleasing musical was given last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Lister, of Grove street. There were about 100 members and friends of the society present. The program was furnished by Miss E. Elizabeth Varigault, of Rahway, a graduate of the New York Conservatory of Music; Miss Bertha Jones and Miss Miriam Hall, and vocal solos by Mrs. L. R. Howard and William Anderson. The numbers were greatly enjoyed and several encores were given.

In the District Court.

Before Judge Newcorn and a jury in the District Court, this morning, Wrone & Wrone, of New York, brought suit on contract against Leo Slonim for a balance of $65 on a bill of diamonds sold him. The plaintiffs were awarded the full amount with interest. Robert Newton Crane appeared for Wrone & Wrone and H. C. Runyon represented Slonim.

LEONARD SMITH DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Following a long illness with throat trouble, Leonard Scott Smith, a resident of Plainfield for the past eighteen years, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home on Duer street. He underwent an operation for the trouble at the hands of Dr. Ard in October and it was quite successful but had been delayed so long that poison had penetrated the system. His nerves were left in a bad condition and last February he took a trip south hoping to be able to return to business in the spring but he never regained his strength. Complications set in at the end and the immediate cause of death was Bright's disease.

Mr. Smith was born in 1870 at Jessups, Anne Arundel County, Maryland, and was the youngest son of the late Col. John L. and Virgina C. Smith. His father was a prominent lawyer of Washington, D. C. For seventeen years Mr. Smith held a responsible position with the firm of Henry W. Peabody & Co., export and import merchants, 17 State street, New York. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., and Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, No. 711. He was formerly a member of an Episcopal church in New York city, but for a number of years had been a member and regular attendant of Trinity Reformed church, of this city.

He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Margaret Virginia, aged seven years, also by a brother, Lowndes A. Smith, and a sister, Mrs. George F. Canfield, of New York city.

The funeral will be held at his late home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Dr. E. M. Rodman. Burial will be at Hillside.

HUSKY FARMER FLOORED BY SOMERVILLE BOOZE

Judging from a statement handed out in the city court, this morning by James Loree, a Pluckemin agriculturist, the booze camps at Somerville dispense a brand of red eye that has Tenth avenue fussfungle beat a mile. If what he says is true, the authorities in that end of Somerset county ought to investigate to see if the hotels are not selling embalming fluid under an applejack trademark.

Loree is a big six-footer and was discovered by a citizen in a down-and-out condition at Front street and Grant avenue yesterday afternoon. The police were notified and he was lugged to jail in the patrol wagon, an absolute dead weight. He remained in a comatose condition until late last night. When court convened this morning he had pulled himself together and he informed Judge Runyon that his knockout was due to one drink of "long life bitters" at Somerset's county seat.

"That's all I had, Your Honor," he said; "I walked over from Pluckemin in order to come down here to visit my sister and stopped in to a hotel for a little liquor to freshen up after the trip. I was all right when I left Somerville but when I got here I lost all control of myself. I've drunk Pluckemin hard cider and the Tune Melick brand of champagne many a time but I never went up against a proposition like that Somerville red eye."

The court advised Loree to fight shy of the same brand again and let him go on suspended sentence.

Bachelor Dance at Casino.

The bachlor dance to be given at the Casino Friday night, February 28, promises to be even more successful than the first one earlier in the season. A large invitation list has been completed and the affair will be attended by many out of town guests. J. Hartley Mellick and Harvey Fisk have the arrangements in charge.

Entertained at Greenville.

Mrs. McAneny, of this city, entertained the Greenville Euchre Club on Monday at the home of her friend, Mrs. A. A. Brower, of Lambeck avenue, Jersey City. Mrs. McAneny was a resident of Jersey City for many years before her removal to this city and she retains her membership in this club.

ALLEGED FORGER PLEADS

"Kid" McGinniss is Held on Failure to Produce $2,000 Bail Bond.

NEGRO GOES TO STATE PRISON.

Edward Randolph Sentenced For Stealing Silverware—Kennedy, Another Negro, Is Released In $200 Bail.

"Kid" McGinniss, alias William Browning, who was arrested here on January 29, on a charge of passing forged checks at the First National Bank, was arraigned in the Union County Court, this morning, and in default of $2,000 bail was remanded to the county jail until February 20, the day set for his trial. A plea of "not guilty" was entered.

He is accused of forging the name of William F. Wilson, of West Front street, to two checks, one for $95, which he obtained, and the other for $100, which he failed to get through a mistake on his part. The young man who was sent to the bank with the check was delayed in returning and McGinniss, thinking something had gone wrong, left his place of waiting and could not be found by the boy when he came back with the money. He then went home, explained the circumstances to his older brother and the arrest of McGinniss followed.

Edward Randolph, colored, who was found guilty of stealing a quantity of silverware from an Arlington avenue residence a couple of months ago, was arraigned for sentence. In view of his previous bad record, having served four years in the Rahway Reformatory, he was given one year in State Prison.

John Kennedy, of this city, who was indicted on a charge of assault on the colored porter at the Elizabeth station of the New Jersey Central, was released in $200 bail and his trial was set for February 26. He was represented by his counsel, W. G. DeMeza. Frank Brown, colored, also of this city, was arraigned on an indictment charging larceny. Mr. DeMeza, his counsel, changed the plea of Brown from guilty to non vult. His case was laid over until Wednesday, February 19.

James VanNest, of Newark, who was indicted on a charge of stealing $65 at Westfield, was given one year in State Prison.

DALY AT HIS BEST IN KILDARE'S "MY MAMIE ROSE."

In "My Mamie Rose," which Arnold Daly and his most excellent company presented at the New Plainfield theatre yesterday afternoon and last night, Plainfielders were afforded the opportunity to witnessing one of the plays of the essentially different type so frequently wished for by the critics and the public. It might be classed as a problem play and also as melodrama but the story told is one of human interest and staged in a faultless manner it commands rapt attention from start to finish. It is a repetition of the life story of Owen Kildare, the author, and is possessed of a plot distinctly new to playgoers.

Associated with Mr. Daly in the production are Holbrock Blinn, Miss Chrystal Herne and Miss Helen Ware, all well known to theatre patrons. Mr. Daly's work is undoubtedly the best of his career and in the role of Owen Conway, whose soul is regenerated, he never appeared to better advantage. The play goes to New York in a short time and is without doubt destined for a long run.

Ice Company Still Harvesting.

The Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company has about 250 men employed cutting ice from its ponds at Watchung. Despite the unfavorable weather conditions the men will work all day and as late tonight as possible, in the hope of harvesting as much of the good ice as possible. Had the recent cold snap continued until Saturday the company would have had no trouble in filling all of its houses. The crop thus far gathered is a good one and the ice is of good thickness and excellent quality. Tier's ice-houses are now filled, a large force of men being engaged to harvest the crop before the weather changed.

Dr. Lewis One of the Speakers.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, was one of the speakers at the annual banquet given by the Men's Club of the Congregational church, of Bound Brook, last night. His topic was "How Great Men Are Made?" There were 150 men at the dinner and the affair was a great success.

W. B. Grannatt, Jr., Off for Seattle.

Miss Mary Shoemaker has returned to her home at Clover Hill, after a visit to her sister, Mrs. Henry C. S. Sebring, at Neshanic.

William Mingle, of Belleville, has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mingle, near North Branch.

Mrs. Charles Case and daughter, of Reaville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Amerman, near Neshanic.

Daniel H. Housel has returned to his home at North Branch after a visit to relatives at Woodfern.

John A. Powelson, of Pluckemin, who has been ill from pleurisy, is able to be about again.

Miss Mabel Paulison has been visiting Miss Ethel Gaston at North Branch.

RARITAN.

William and Miss Mary Smith have been visiting their sister, Mrs. Joseph R. Weaner, in Plainfield.

Henry Riley, of Frankfort, has been a guest here this week of Mr. and Mrs. Staats Quick.

The Leap Year Club held a dance last evening in St. Bernard's Hall.

Former Sheriff W. W. Wyckoff is out after a severe attack of grip.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A party of young people from the village took a sleighride to Elizabeth yesterday to attend a dance. The party included John Terry, Munro Terry, Flora Dixon, Grace and Edna Van Nest, Miss Hooper and Grace Melick. They not only enjoyed the dance but also the excellent sleighing.

The private dance which was held Tuesday night in Washington Hall was a very pleasant affair. There were many guests from the surrounding district as well as the village.

A committee, formed last week by the Good Government Club to consider the advisability of incorporating the village, has issued a call for a mass meeting to be held in Washington Hall Tuesday, February 18.

Mrs. Charles Brantingham is under the care of Dr. Hughes and is so ill that her daughter, Mrs. Harry Klinger, of Jersey City, has been sent for to stay with her.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

At a recent meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Reformed church of South Bound Brook the following officers were elected: President, Miss Marva Voorhees; vice-president, W. N. Brown; corresponding secretary, Miss Laura Tantum; recording secretary, Miss Bertha Thompson; treasurer, Miss Lena Keochlein.

Miss Bessie Hendershot, of near Lebanon, is being entertained at the home of John S. La Rue, in Main street, South Bound Brook.

Richard Dunbar is convalescent from his recent severe illness at his home in Main street, South Bound Brook.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Mayor and public officials of "Doubtful Dunellen" spent the holiday quietly in town and there was considerable discussion of the political situation in the borough. In reference to the editorial, "Whither are we drifting," in the local paper, the faction which claims that Recorder Campbell's appointment is illegal has been reminded of the fact that if this is the case, the appointment of John Moynihan, made in almost exactly the same way, is also illegal. And "Doubtful Dunellen" is still in doubt.

The honor pupils for the month of January in the South Plainfield schools follows: Miss Lulu M. Corson's class: Anna McDonough, Anton Phillips, Stanley Phillips, Lester Soper, Howard Norman and Douglass Schenck, Nellie Ryno, Tessie Hannon, Nellie Harlow, Laura Roberts, Helen Richards, Margaret Hamilton, Grace Boss, George Brower, Peter McDonough. Randolphville School: Bertha Van Nuis and Jennie Schenck.

Taking advantage of the thaw, borough property owners are working in conjunction with the street officials in cleaning off their sidewalks perfectly and shovelling out their gutters.

A big delegation from here went to Plainfield last night to attend the closing night of the Y. M. C. A. circus.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The residents of the borough are beginning to realize that the beat covered by Marshal Logan is too large for one officer to patrol and give the protection that is needed. The several petty robberies of the past week or ten days has brought the residents to a realization of this and another officer will probably be put on duty in the near future.

Another of the series of winter's socials arranged by the Baptist Sunday-school was held last night in the church parlors. Stereopticon views, "Wonders of the Microscope," was the feature of the evening. Refreshments were served.

But few of the residents here observed yesterday as a holiday, the majority of them working as usual. the school and commuters being about the only ones taking a full day.

We're Going To Clean Out These Winter Goods

—as you can easily see by the prices we have put on them—that we mean for them to go right now. It's in line with our 1908 policy to clean out the old stock and make room for the new. We can afford to be a bit liberal about it, too, since it was inventoried last month with that in view. Read the list—how generously we cut the price! You will most likely find use for some of these things the way we sell them.

And the White Goods Sale isn't altogether over with either—in fact, all that's left of the White Goods bargains—as Muslin Underwear, India Linons, Persian and French Lawns, Nainsooks, Long Cloths, Embroideries—these will all remain at the sale prices until disposed of—and displayed on the centre tables as heretofore.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Cy Young 3d, who is to be with Pittsburg this season, won twenty-nine out of thirty-three games in the Western association in 1907.

Nineteen games are on the schedule for the Williams college baseball team for this season, ten to be played at home and nine abroad.

Pitcher F. C. Reisling's plea for reinstatement recently was rejected by the National Baseball Commission. Reisling is the property of the Brooklyn National league club.

Joe Keley, who is to manage the Boston Nationals the coming season, batted 322 in the Eastern league last year. He should hit well up around the 300 mark with the big leaguers.

Manager McGraw has a physical wonder in one of his recruits, Pitcher McKinney, who is said to be as big as pugilist Jim Jeffries.

The departure of several members of the New York Americans for Hot Springs and the starting of McGraw's new recruits for Texas means that the ball season is approaching rapidly. It is estimated that the training of sixteen major league teams in the South this spring will cost about $100,000. Nearly all of them will play a series of exhibition games with the hope that some of this money can be recovered, but as is usually the case nearly all the magnates will have to dig into their bankrolls to make up losses. But this outlay does not cut much of a figure when the gate receipts from championship games begin to roll in at the box offices. The total expense of each New York club for the current season will amount to about $100,000, but if the teams handled by Griffith and McGraw play good ball the owners of the clubs will surely quit ahead financially next fall.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Americans, who is a believer in college talent, has picked up a "boy wonder" in Fred Barnicle, a Providence lad who as pitcher for the Dean Academy team has beaten Yale, Harvard, Brown, Holy Cross and other New England college teams. He is also credited with thirteen one hit games. Barnicle is 19 years old, six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds. He will go South with Mack's team.

President Navin, of the Detroit Club, has backbone. He says that Ty Cobb, the star outfielder of the American League champions, who has refused to sign a contract unless he can get $15,000 for three years, will have to accept the club's terms or get out of baseball. Navin says that Cobb has been treated with extreme fairness in regard to salary for this year and that the latter's stand is both unreasonable and unfair. Cobb can sign a one year contract for $5,000, but declares that this is not a square deal. Navin is backed up in his policy by Millionaire Yawkey, who is still a half owner of the club.

The Boston Americans may have a "Criger battery" this year. Lou Criger, the star catcher of the Red Sox, has a young brother who is said to be a crack left handed pitcher. Manager McGuire has looked the young man over and will take him to Little Rock next month for a try-out.

If McGraw can develop Merkle, his young first baseman, into a competent guardian of the second bag it will be due wholly to the fact that Merkle is a natural ball player. When Lajoie came out of a little team in Fall River to play with the Philadelphias he was a first baseman, but as he was also gifted with the unusual ability to play any position he soon developed into the great second baseman that he is today. Perhaps Merkle will prove another Lajoie. "The woods are full of great ball players," was the way Pop Anson put it in the old days. "But you've got to be able to tell one at first sight." McGraw thinks he has discovered the real article in the young man from Michigan.

GOLF.

The 1908 plan of playing the amateur championship is the seventh that has been tried. The impulse to change has always been to relieve congestion by quickly weeding out the golfers not playing well, something that all match play does not do in a big field. The first U. S. G. A. championship in 1895 was at match play; in the second and third sixteen qualified at thirty-six holes medal play. There was a change in 1898 to thirty-two to qualify at thirty-six holes, with thirty-six holes match play to follow each day. This system prevailed until 1901, when the Atlantic City field numbered 142.

The flaw in the crystal was the impracticability of having a big field wind up before dark at thirty-six holes of stroke play. An eighteen hole qualifying round, sixty-four to qualify, had a trial at Glen View in 1902, with also an automatic plan of pairing for the first match round to do away with the draw. There were 157 starters, L. N. James, who gained eligibility after a tie, winning the title. All match play prevailed in 1903. In 1904 after fifty-four holes of medal play sixteen kept on. For the last three years the qualifiers have had to go thirty-six holes in two days, thirty-two keeping on at eighteen hole matches with a thirty-six hole final.

The 100 petitioners for the new system united in condemning the old method and the signers formed the greatest body of notable players to ever unite for a new method of play. Of the seven changes it is the only one to originate with the players. The scheme of the golfers pays more heed to gaining long matches than to bother with the congestion that may be on the course the first day, but afterward should one of them lose a chance through being crowded the links will ring with denunciations of their own plan. Consequently the executive committee has granted the petition with clean hands, for they cannot be blamed if it fails to work. The ultimate conception in the championship line begins on Monday with eighteen holes of medal play, sixty-four to qualify. The margin of admittance is so great that an enormous field may be expected to start, yet all should finish before candlelight.

Tuesday morning's play should be easy, for sixty-four only have to go over the course at medal play. The thirty-two left in to play eighteen holes at matches in the afternoon will be the survivors at thirty-six holes of medal play. There will be sixteen survivors on Tuesday night and for the remainder of the tournament thirty-six hole rounds will prevail. The Garden City course should be in splendid condition during the week of September 14, for if necessary the members can give it a complete rest for a month by using the nearby Salisbury links.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Hugh F. Fox will speak at the Congregational church Sunday night on charity work.

The Intermediate and Junior Endeavor Societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon for sewing.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors this afternoon and consider the subject, "China."

Under the spirit and enthusiasm of George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school, who is also president of the State Sunday-school Association, there is a growing movement toward class organization. The method has been found very successful wherever tried.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Vacate a Portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council, to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at 8 o'clock p. m. on Monday, the second day of March, A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Eight, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Dated Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 3, 1908.

AN ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, The portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue is shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J., 1870," filed in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield September 20, 1870, and

WHEREAS, The Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company, Union County Investment Company, Dorsey W. Hyde and Henry P. Talmadge are the sole owners of the fee and of all the property abutting anywhere on such portion of said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said City to vacate such portion of said street pursuant to Chapter CXXXIII. P. L. 1888, and other laws governing the matter, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), lying between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue, as shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J. 1870," be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

We are now privileged to refer to James Smith, Jr., as Brother Smith.

Taft declares that Roosevelt is another Lincoln. It was Pennypacker who said that Quay was greater than Webster or Clay.

Because he has consented to act as toastmaster at a dollar dinner, John Kean stands charged with the terrible offense of desiring to be returned to the United States Senate. So, off with the muck-rakers!

Those New Brunswickers are certainly an unappreciative lot. The other night a number of them after attending a lodge meeting here walked all the way home rather than sleep in this city. Or, was it because they didn't have the price?

Governor Fort has made a capital selection in Charles A. Ransom for executive clerk. Next to Herman B. Walker, Mr. Ransom is about the best known and brightest political writer in the State. That he will make good goes without saying.

Mr. Bryan will please observe that Morse is indicted for "fraud," not "glorious larceny." What's the answer?—Newark Morning Star.

As the "Farmer-orator" is still in a trance as a result of the recent visit of "The Peerless One," the gingery syllables desired cannot be supplied.

BECOMES THE BRIDE OF ELIZABETH CONTRACTOR.

Elizabeth, Feb. 13.—A fashionable wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. John C. Rankin, of 667 Newark avenue, this city. The bride was her daughter, Miss Edna Rankin, and the bridegroom George W. Rogers, a wealthy dock and bridge building contractor, whose offices are at 44 Broadway, New York. He resides at 518 North Broad street, this city.

Miss Rankin is a daughter of the late John C. Rankin, who for nine years was Mayor of this city, and founder of the John C. Rankin Publishing Company of 34 Cortlandt street, New York. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church. It was followed by a reception.

The Exposed Water Snake Bill.

Senator Ackerman was deceived. He now says he was. He introduced in the Senate that East Jersey water snake bill in the belief that it was meant to fit a certain situation in his own county. He had no idea that the bill handed to him had been constructed by an East Jersey Water Company attorney for the purpose of anticipating the issue of a suit in the courts, get possession of Jersey City's streets and supply the city's principal customers with water. Now that he has been made wise, the Union Senator has agreed to keep the bill in committee and not let it out as long as the joker is in it. But should it not be an indictable offense for anybody to deceive a Senator or Assemblyman into introducing a "joker" bill in the Legislature? Is not a covert attempt to misuse the statutes as bad as the offense of violating a statute? Who gave this bill to Senator Ackerman, anyhow?—Newark Morning Star.

Accuses Man of Bigamy.

West Hoboken, Feb. 13.—As the result of a "Little Coney Island" romance, Katherine Peters, sixteen years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peters, of 403 Walnut street, this town, is under arrest, and a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Frederick Keindorf, on a charge of bigamy. Peters says that he met his daughter and Keindorf at "Little Coney Island," and that they showed him a marriage certificate. He threatened Keindorf with arrest and the latter fled. Keindorf has a wife and three children.

SHAW FAVORS MORGAN FOR THE PRESIDENCY

In an interview here yesterday at Detroit, former Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw stated that he would like to see J. Pierpont Morgan President of the United States.

"Of course, that remark might be—will be, I might say—misunderstood," said Mr. Shaw, "but I will tell you this: Mr. Morgan is a much misunderstood man. If he were President he would give an administration that would rank with the best in the history of our executives.

"Mr. Morgan is a big man, morally and mentally. If he were in the White House he would sink his own interests entirely and devote himself to the paramount questions confronting the country, bringing to bear the calm, strong judgment that has made him such a power in the world of finance.

"Understand, I do not regard him in the holy light that certain people have tried to throw around him because of his course in the recent panic. For every dollar that was given to the imperiled banks and trust companies Mr. Morgan exacted $2 of gilt-edged securities. But I know the man and I admire him, and if he were President he would fill the place as he has filled his financial niche—as the biggest man in the country."

TALKS ON TUBERCULOSIS.

Summit Health Commissioner Makes An Interesting Address to His Colleagues.

Summit, Feb. 13.—Following the disposition of minor routine matters, the members of the Board of Health Tuesday night listened to some interesting data pertaining to tuberculosis, its causes and methods of conquering the dread affliction, as gathered and prepared by Health Commissioner Dr. William H. Lawrence, Jr., who had been requested at a previous session of the board to present some plans which might be adopted by the board in pursuance of a battle against the great white plague. Dr. Lawrence advanced the somewhat startling information that it is agreed among the physicians who have been grappling with the disease throughout the country that fifty per cent. of the American population is affected to some extent with tuberculosis germs. There were, however, Dr. Lawrence said, leading authorities who held that as much as ninety per cent. of the population of this country was so affected, and to the prevalence of unrestricted expectoration in public places was due this alarming condition of the public health.

Had the medical profession been recognized more fully, in the way of broader and greater legal rights, in its efforts to combat the disease, Dr. Lawrence declared, the great destroyer of life could have been overcome, and, he further asserted, every contagious disease known to the science of medicine could be prevented. The mortality tables do not begin to show the deaths caused by tuberculosis, Dr. Lawrence told his colleagues, but the post-mortems reveal the inroads of tuberculosis. The speaker said that the general belief that tuberculosis was necessarily hereditary was strong, in his opinion. While a child born of parents suffering with the disease, the physician said, would naturally be generative for tubercular germs, it was the child's surroundings after birth amidst the bacilli which led to infection.

HISTORICO-PATRIOTICS TO HOLD UNION MEETING.

The union meeting of the Historico-Patriotic societies of the State will be held in Trenton on Washington's Birthday, and the officers of the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the Revolution will be given.

A special meeting of the society will be held at the Trenton House, Trenton, at 10.30 o'clock on the morning of February 22. New members will be elected and a new standard of colors, valued at $300, will be presented by a committee consisting of Colonel Jordan, of Merchantville; Captain John Lilly, of Lambertville, and Frederick H. Clark, of Trenton.

At 11 o'clock religious and patriotic services will be held in the First Presbyterian church, with the following societies taking part as guests of the Sons of the Revolution: Cincinnati, Colonial Governors, Colonial Wars, Colonial Dames, Sons of the American Revolution, Founders and Patriots, War of 1812, Washington Headquarters Association and Sons of the Revolution. Rev. Dr. Hugh B. MacCauley will offer prayer, and Rev. Henry Collin Minton will deliver a patriotic address. Frederick H. Clark has charge of the church program.

The union meeting will convene at 12.30 o'clock in the assembly chamber of the capitol. Each society's set of colors will be presented to the president of the meeting by a color guard of three members. An address will be delivered by a speaker not yet selected. Luncheon will be served at the close of the meeting.

The committees follow: General, Bayard Stockton, Princeton, chairman; Colonel William Libbey, Rev. Hamilton Schuyler, N. Robert Montgomery, Fred H. Clark. Luncheon, Rev. Hamilton Schuyler, N. R. Montgomery, F. H. Clark. Church services, F. H. Clark.

N. Y. U. LAW GRADUATES TO HONOR JERSEY BARRISTERS.

Invitations are out for a dinner to be tendered the members of the New Jersey Bench and Bar by the Alumni Association of the New York University Law School. The dinner will be given in the Hotel Astor, New York city, on March 19, and is intended as a compliment to New Jersey and its bench and bar. Many prominent lawyers in New Jersey, and several who are now on the bench, are members of the association giving the dinner.

Already the committee arranging the dinner have received acceptance from Governor John Franklin Fort, Chief Justice Gummere, Chancellor Mahlon H. Pitney and all the vice-chancellors, as well as the Supreme Court justices of the State. It is also expected that Governor Hughes, of New York, will accept his invitation, and an effort is being put forth to secure the attendance of all the justices in the first and second departments of the New York State Supreme Court.

Man Swindles Housekeepers.

Hoboken, Feb. 13.—A swindler has made his appearance here. He goes to the house of a poor woman and says that his wife needs the care of an attendant and engages the woman to attend his wife. He then turns his conversation to the subject of hams. He tells the woman that he must leave immediately as he has to meet a friend from whom he intends to buy a fresh ham for one dollar. The woman knows that hams at that price are a bargain and then he offers to get her one as a favor. She gives him a dollar and then she never sees him nor the ham. He is described as a man about thirty-five years old, five feet ten inches tall and smooth faced.

Trial of Priest Is Postponed.

In order, if possible, to reach some agreement and avoid the necessity of a trial, the ecclesiastical court convened yesterday at Seton Hall College to try the Rev. Hugh P. Fleming on charges which, if proved, would result in his removal as pastor of St. John's church, Orange, took an adjournment. Bishop O'Connor, as well as others directly concerned in the case, refused absolutely to announce the date of the next meeting. It is possible that Father Fleming and Father McDonald will retire from St. John's church and that other clergymen there will be transferred. As an irremovable rector Father Fleming cannot be removed except for cause, but he may voluntarily retire.

The Women's Relief Corps will hold a dime social in G. A. R. Hall Friday night, February 21. There will also be an entertainment.

MIDWINTER KINKS IN FASHION'S FANCIES.

Novelties in sheer white and colored handkerchiefs are legion. The new glove handkerchiefs look like a mere speck of color.

Girls who want to wear thin, transparent yokes in their shirtwaists should not discard their woolen underwear, but should rip open the shoulder seam and fasten with buttons and buttonholes.

Some hats are now seen fashioned entirely of leaves and foliage with a small bunch of flowers for trimming.

The tops of many of the sleeves are being cut in one with the fronts of the bodice, joining the underarm portion of both sleeve and bodice in a few small plaits.

Linen bows with buttonholed ends are being worn with some of the high-striped collars.

The most appropriate hats for street wear these cold days are the small, round turbans of fur. Lynx, mink and the darker furs are for street wear, while the lighter and daintier furs are suitable only for evening.

At fashionable afternoon weddings, the bridesmaids are wearing rather large hats of rose point lace trimmed with pale plumes.

By all means alter the sleeves of your last summer's waists if you would be up-to-date. The puffs above the elbows must be considerably reduced in size for this season's wear.

NEW RIFLES FOR MILITIA.

Acting Secretary Oliver announced yesterday at Washington that the War Department at last is in position to arm the organized militia of the country, 100,000 strong, with the new high-powered army rifle or musket.

The weapon is officially known as the Model of 1903, Rechambered for the Ammunition of 1906, the distinguishing feature of which is the new sharply pointed light steel-clad bullet with its enormous range and flat trajectory. Governors of States may have the new rifle for their militia upon requisition and turning in the Krag-Jorgensen guns on the type used in the Spanish-American war.

Puts Up $2,000 Cash Bail.

Trenton, Feb. 13.—John Smith, known to the racing fraternity throughout the county as "Sonny," appeared in Mercer Court Tuesday and put up $2,000 cash bail to answer to an indictment charging him with pool selling here two years ago. Smith was the only one of a gang that escaped the police raids upon a number of poolrooms at that time. He was later captured in New York, but forfeited $2,000 cash bail and got away.

NOTICE.

All licenses granted by the City will expire March 1. All persons desiring to renew the same must make application to the City Clerk on or before Feb. 25. After March 1 no person will be allowed to carry on any business for which a license is required without securing one.

ASK FOR THE FISHER HOLDBACK

The old style holdback for blinds affords a roosting place for birds and causes ugly stains to disfigure the sides of the house under the blinds. Notice this carefully and then you will want to prevent it. No bird can roost on this.

The FISHER HOLDBACK

Bartered Daughter for Job.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13.—On the witness stand yesterday Judson H. Coe, fifty years old, admitted writing letters in which he agreed to exchange his sixteen-year-old daughter Ethel for a position with a railroad. According to the letters the agreement was made in 1902 with G. W. Smith, who was employed by the Illinois Central at Waterloo, Ia. Coe had been summoned into court by Judge Bordwell to explain the letters which were introduced by Mrs. Theodora Coe in her suit for divorce. She was granted an interlocutory decree. Coe had previously been divorced from three wives and a fourth is dead.

$15,000 Gem His Pay for Speech.

New York, Feb. 13.—When Chas. J. Hughes, Jr., a Denver lawyer, finished his forty-five hours' address before the arbitrators who are hearing the Denver Water Works case here, he was presented with a black pearl by David Moffat, of Denver, whose interests he is representing. The pearl is said to be worth $15,000. Mr. Hughes began his speech last Wednesday and has spoken for several hours every day since.

Miss Jane Scott, of Jersey City, is spending the week with friends in Netherwood.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Discussion of the franchise requested by the Interstate Telephone and Telegraph Company at the recent meeting of Township Committee took most of the time at the meeting of the Good Government Club last night. The hearing is set for early in March, at New Market, and the club members will be out in force at the meeting. After adjournment a special meeting was held at which it was decided that the meeting night be changed from the second to the fourth Friday night of each month.

Representatives of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church made up a stage party and attended the union meeting at Warren chapel, North Plainfield, Thursday night. Those who made the trip were Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, Mrs. Attlee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson, Mrs. William Manning, Miss Tillie Neivius, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellogg, Verna Allen, Florence Johnson, Mildred Johnson and Edward Horn.

At the morning service of the Baptist church Sunday morning, the pastor will speak on the text, "Go ye, and stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life." The text of the evening has been announced as: "Who knoweth whether thou art not come to the kingdom for such a time as this."

Edward Teeple, of Lakeside avenue, is confined to his home with a severe cold.

SOMERVILLE.

At the recent annual meeting of the Somerset County S. P. C. A. the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, H. H. Hight, of Raritan; vice-presidents, Mrs. Gillespie, of Bound Brook; Mrs. E. M. Murray, of Raritan; secretary, Miss Emelie Messler, of Somerville; counsel, Miss M. M. Stille, of Somerville.

Robert Wilcox, of Newark, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilcox, at their home on South Bridge street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Honeyman are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Shurts, at Hampton Junction.

Miss Marion Spafford, of Sharon, Mass., is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Louis Gaston, on Cliff street.

The West End Hose Company gave a reception Tuesday night in its rooms on Doughty avenue.

WESTFIELD.

Summones were issued Tuesday against eight Westfield residents who failed to clean the snow from their sidewalks after the recent snow storm. The cases will be up before the recorder next Tuesday morning.

James Gleason has been appointed a special policeman on the Westfield police force, to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of James Comeron.

Those Resolutions.

The end of the good resolutions made on January 1 usually sets in about this time. Just as well, perhaps, for at the best they are frozen and unhuman devices to attain uprightness. It may be the third week in January; it may be February; but they are pretty sure to go by the board at last. A very lifelike document is the diary of the crusty old Dr. Johnson. We select a few jottings:

"1760. Resolved, To rise as early as I can.

"1761. My purpose is, To regulate my sleep.

"1764. My purpose is from this time, to rise early.

"1764 (September). I resolve, To rise early; not later than six, if I can; I hope sooner, but as soon as I can.

"1765. My resolution, I propose to rise at eight, because, though I shall not yet rise early, it will be much earlier than I now rise, for I often lie till two.

"1769. I purpose and hope to rise early in the morning, at eight, and by degrees at six.

"1772. I hope to rise by degrees more early in the morning.

"1774. I hope to rise at eight."

Evidently no lack of good resolutions; yet only a few years before his death we find him writing:

"I have now spent about fifty-five years in resolving; having from the earliest time almost that I can remember, been forcing schemes of a better life. I have done nothing. * * * My life has, from earliest years, been wasted in a morning bed."

Few would agree with Dr. Johnson's estimate of his life, but we may concede that his resolutions were not of great assistance.—Collier's Weekly.

For Cleaning.

Fuller's earth is one of the best methods for cleaning silk or any delicate fabric. The powder is harmless, used dry, and will remove every particle of dust and grease from a garment. It should be brushed on the garment with a moderately stiff brush. French chalk is splendid for cleaning white goods, especially voiles, but has no good effect with smooth surface goods.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Colliding with a stump while coasting yesterday, Stanwood Melcher, son of Dr. W. P. Melcher, of Mt. Holly, had his wrist broken and a gash cut in his face.

The Vineland Grange has adopted a resolution urging Congress to support the Littlefield-Hasbrouck bill to prohibit railroads from carrying liquor into prohibition States.

William Gardner, foreman of the casehouse at the Gibbstown Powder Works, had his arm badly crushed when his sleeve caught in machinery and the arm was pulled in.

Hettie Refracas, an aged colored woman, was fatally burned when an oil heater in her room at Trenton exploded yesterday. The woman was confined to her bed by paralysis.

Rev. R. T. Leary, a prominent Methodist minister, who was recently taken to the State Hospital at Trenton, is very much improved, and is expected to return to his Toms River home soon.

Mrs. Thomas Costello, of Mullica Hill, ran a needle in her foot two weeks ago. Monday she was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital, and the needle was located several inches from the place it entered.

Professor Husmann, in charge of viticulture investigation in the United States Department of Agriculture, is visiting experimental vineyards at vineyards at Vineland and will rejuvenate them as an object lesson on grape growers.

The State Forestry Commission has for the third time requested the Millville Council to appoint a fire warden to protect that section of the county from forest fires, but council has refused to make the appointment.

Garfield Wentz, son of Thomas Wentz, had one hand badly shattered and two fingers blown from the other hand while blowing out stumps with dynamite on his father's farm on the Glassboro road, near Wenonah, Monday.

In the explosion of a stove in Milkman Harry Moore's kitchen at Woodbury every window pane was broken and the kitchen wrecked. Mr. Moore's mother-in-law had a narrow escape from death, having just left the room.

Squeezed between bales of licorice at the warehouse of the MacAndrews & Forbes Company, in Camden, yesterday, Alfred Roach, of 906 Locust street, sustained lacerations of the head and was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

A work car ran into the rear of a trolley car on the Camden and Trenton Railway near Bordentown yesterday. Both were badly damaged. Edward McClaskey, an employe on the work car, had his face slightly scratched, but no passengers were injured.

Pouring water on a carload of red-hot ashes in the yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Camden, yesterday afternoon, W. F. Blake, a brakeman, thirty years old, of 30 North Second street, Camden, was badly scalded about the face, hands and body. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

Harry Welsh, thirty-five years old, and an experienced mechanic at the plant of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company at Burlington, sustained probably fatal injuries yesterday in a terrible plunge to the bottom of a pit. His skull was crushed and a number of bones were broken.

The destruction of practically all his apple trees by the San Jose scale has caused John Black, of the Wigwam farm, one of the largest in Burlington county, to cut down his entire orchard. The trunks and stumps are being shipped to the Disston saw works, to be used for saw and other tool handles.

Mrs. Edward Elliott, of Florence, while running a sewing machine yesterday, overexerted herself and ruptured a blood vessel at the base of the brain. She was alone at the time, and was found some time afterward by her little nephew lying unconscious near the machine. Drs. Baird and Sheppherd have no hope of her recovery.

John Bailey, owner of a large sawmill at Baileytown, three miles south of Millville, is much worried because of a second "Black Hand" letter he has received. The first came about two weeks ago, demanding $50. He treated the matter as a joke. The second letter states that he has one day more in which to comply with the demand. Bailey has armed himself and expects to give the writers a hot time if they turn up.

To Renovate Ostrich Feathers.

Have a teakettle full of boiling water and shake the feather vigorously through the escaping steam, taking care that it does not get too damp. This livens up the plume and restores its brilliancy, if it has become dull and rusty. Next take a silver fruit knife and, commencing with the flues nearest the quill, take a very small bunch of them between the thumb and blade of the knife, drawing them gently and repeatedly over the edge until they curl as closely as desired. Follow this process on each side of the feather, and then, with a very coarse comb, comb all the flues out carefully and the plume will be as good as ever. A really good feather is always a good investment, as it can be done over many times.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Leo Ditrichstein's perennially popular farce, "Are You a Mason?" is the attraction billed for tonight at the New Plainfield theatre.

"Rudolph and Adolph," a melange of music, mirth and melody, by Charles Newman, which will appear at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, is brimful of ginger, snap and go. There is not a dull minute from the rise of the curtain on the first act until it descends amaid a tumult of laughter and applause at the close of the last. There is more plot than is usually encountered or expected in farce comedy and the piece is not a mere vehicle for the exploitation of an assortment of individual specialties evolved by Mr. Newman, are genuinely funny and the many musical numbers are not dragged in but are legitimately introduced as a part and parcel of the play. The clever masters of comedy, who appear in the stellar roles are unquestionably the two best eccentric German comedians on the stage and as they make their first entrance the fun "begins" to commence—as they say—and continues until the final curtain; perfectly at home with their dialect they succeed in making the King's English do stunts that are laughable in the extreme and can distort or misuse a word as originally as any German American citizen. The company this season has been much enlarged and many new musical numbers have been added. "Rudolph and Adolph" should prove the festival of the season.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Thurlow's Idea Impracticable.

Governor Fort's idea of a State Health Department, to include the present State Health Board and the State Sewerage Commission, would be amplified by Health Officer L. R. Thurlow, of Plainfield, who suggests the inclusion in the department of the Potable Water Commission, the Tuberculosis Commission and the Shell Fish Commission. Says Mr. Thurlow: "If these bodies were merged into one, we would then have a State Department of Health that would be not only ideal, but practical." It is doubtful if such a constituted department would be either ideal or practical. The work of all these State boards relates to the public health, but not to that alone, and such a diversity of interests to look after and of duties to perform would be too much for the capacity of any ordinary man. A State Health Department should not be engaged in building big reservoirs for water supply or collecting open shells for oysters to grow upon. The fewer and more identical the duties of a board the better they will be performed.—Newark Star.

PERSONAL.

Miss Ethel White, of Easton, Pa., has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Morris, of Jersey City, spent yesterday with Plainfield friends.

Former Councilman Daniel F. Ginna, of Watchung avenue, has returned from a business trip to Boston.

Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Weightman, of Philadelphia.

Mayor Pierre Garvan, of Bayonne, who has been appointed prosecutor of Hudson county, has been visiting friends in town for a short time.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Harry K. Lister, of North avenue, invites you to examine the Edison phonograph and Victor talking machine and to hear the latest selections.

A. M. Griffen, the hardware merchant, carries a complete line of housefurnishing goods; also builders' materials. Contracts made for sanitary plumbing and installation of heating systems.

The Woodhull & Martin Company is advertising great bargains in seasonable goods. The different departments are filled with the best goods obtainable, right from the manufacturers. There is an attractive line of dress goods and white goods, as well as laces and embroideries that will interest the women. A full line of men's furnishings in stock.

Date for $75,000 Will Hearing.

Toms River, Feb. 13.—The contested will case of the late Mrs. Louisa Aumack, who died January 4, leaving an estate valued at about $75,000, will be heard before Surrogate Grover next Saturday. A caveat has been filed against the will by Frank H. Aumack, of East Orange, a nephew of Mrs. Aumack. The latter was seventy-five years old at the time of her death. On the death of Selah S. Aumack, the husband of Mrs. Aumack, in 1905, he left his entire estate to her. Her gifts to the Toms River Presbyterian church, of which for many years Mr. and Mrs. Aumack were members, aggregated about $6,000. By her will she bequeathed to three nieces and a nephew $1,000 each. Mrs. Edward K. Drake, of Elizabeth, received $20,000, and the residue, including her home and personal property, was left to her only brother, W. Scott Jackson, who has been named as executor.

State of New Jersey

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Whereas, the comptroller did, on the sixth day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, under the provisions of an act entitled "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act to provide for the imposition of state taxes upon certain corporations and for the collection thereof,' approved April 18, 1884," which supplementary act was approved June 2, 1905, report to the governor a list of all corporations coming under said act; and

Whereas, the following named corporations so reported have, for the two years preceding such report, failed, neglected or refused to pay the state taxes assessed against them for the year 1905, under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and made payable into the state treasury; and

Whereas, under the provisions of said act the charters of said corporations are repealed and all powers conferred by law upon such corporations declared inoperative and void, unless the governor gives further time for payment; and

Whereas, the governor has not given further time to the corporations so reported and hereinafter named for the payment of such taxes, and the same are still unpaid;

Therefore, I, Edward C. Stokes, Governor of the State of New Jersey, pursuant to the provisions of said act of the legislature, do hereby issue this proclamation that the charters of the following named corporations so reported and in default, to wit:
